A few favorable reports were received and ordered printed and placed on the calendar. The nomination of Albert B. Hamlin to be judge of the court of common pleas in Litchfield county was confirmed by a vote of 110 yeas and 78 nays.

The house passed the substitute bill concerning the bonded indebtedness of municipalities. The bill is as follows:

Section 1. Section 441 of the general statutes as amended by chapter 198 of the public acts of 1919, by chapter 132 of the public acts of 1921 and by chapter 111 of the public acts of 1923 is amended to read as follows: No town or consolidated town and city, either by itself or by any political or territorial division or divisions thereof, shall incur any indebtedness through the issuance of bonds which shall cause the aggregate net indebtedness of such town or city to exceed five per centum of its grand list, unless otherwise provided by special act. For the purposes of this act the grand list of every town or city shall be construed to include, in addition to the taxable real estate and tangible personal property, the fair market value of the tax exempt real estate therein, except such tax exempt real estate as may be owned by the United States, the state of Connecticut or the county in which such town is situated, such tax exempt real estate owned by Yale University as is situated in the city of New Haven, such tax exempt real estate owned by Wesleyan University as is situated in the town of Middletown, such tax exempt real estate owned by Trinity College as is situated in the city of Hartford and such tax exempt real estate owned by the Connecticut College for Women as is situated in the city of New London. In computing the net indebtedness subject to the limit prescribed by this act, bonds issued for the supply of water, gas or electricity or for the construction of subways or underground conduits for cables, wires or pipes, shall not be included.

At 1:20 the house adjourned till Monday, June 1st, at 10:30 a. m.

Senate.

On the motion of Senator Cronin the senate decided to hold a session next Monday.

A bill, reported by the committee on public health and safety relating to the practice of natureopathy, was passed. It provides that an applicant for a state license to practice natureopathy must have a high school education or the equivalent thereof, and have taken a four years' course of study in the profession. The applicant must pay a fee of $25. Ten dollars of the fee much accompany the application and the balance when the license is issued.

On the recommendation of the committee on appropriations the senate voted $3,000 to the New Milford hospital and $3,000 to the Sharon hospital.

A resolution was passed, on the report of the committee on appropriations authorizing the state board of education to pay the city of New Britain a sewer assessment of $1,585.50.

A bill was reported by the committee on public health and safety to govern the profession of chiropractic. It provides for the qualifications of those who apply for a license to practice the profession and for a charge of $25 for the license. Fifteen dollars of the fee must be paid on application and the balance when the license is issued. A fee of $4 must be paid for a renewal of license. The act provides against misleading or unethical advertising. Senator Brigham, who explained the report, offered an amendment making verbal changes in regard to the repetition of the name of the profession. The amendment was adopted and the bill as amended passed.

Calendar.

Passed—Appropriating $3,000 to county farm bureaus; appropriating $225,900 for construction at the Connecticut Agricultural college; appropriating $25,000 to the highway commissioner for a testing laboratory; defining the territorial limits of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company; requiring auctioneers of gold or plated ware, etc., to be licensed and fixing the licensed at $50 a year; amending the charter of the city of Meriden relating to the salary of the judge of the local court of that city; providing for the transfer of Minnie Island to the state to be used as a state park and authorizing the state park and forest commission to acquire the property in the name of the state; appropriating $5,000 for state nurseries under the supervision of the state park and forest commission; concerning the powers and duties of the board of relief; authorizing the commissioner of agriculture to assume and exercise the authority of the old board of agriculture; relating to the right to vote at town meetings by non-residents who have an equity of $300 in real estate located in the town; authorizing the borough of Naugatuck to adopt the city manager plan; concerning the consolidation of the town and borough of Canaan; extending the time for the organization of the East Hampton Water company.

Roderick Gardner 1812 Soldier.

In the Bozrah list of soldier graves printed in The Bulletin is that of Roderick Gardner buried in a private burial plot back of Clinton Gardner's house. This soldier of the War of 1812 is listed in the Connecticut History of all war veterans up to the war with Spain. Jonathan Gardner, father of Roderick, is buried beside the son. Jonathan was in the Revolutionary war. The homestead is the large house on the corner, opposite Clinton Gardner's, and is well preserved. In the middle of the last century this Manse was well known as a hostelry or tavern, as they were called in those days. It is situated but a short distance from the upper end of Gardner Lake and was a great rendezvous for hunting and fishing parties.

Suit by Guerin Mills Co.

Suit in the superior court, returnable in September, has been brought by Guerin Mills, Inc., of Woonsocket, R. I., against Clarence E. & Oscar L. Peterson, of this city co-partners doing business as the New England Mills Co. The suit is on the common counts for a claim of $11,900 dated May 26, 1925.

NEW LONDON CITY COURT CASES ARGUMENTS FOR TOTAL ABSTINENCE

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 29—A barge man, who gave the name of Edward Brannigan, came here from a wharf up the river yesterday and had $55 in his duds when he struck the streets of this city. Then he started in to buy booze at $3 a half-pint so that when he was picked up helpless on State street he had $3 left. Policeman Edward Riordan took him into custody for safe-keeping. Today when he was in the police court Judge Prince told him to shove off for the barge and not to take in anything but water on the passage.

Walter Casey, a chief petty officer on the coast guard boat 125, which has been seeking rum carrying craft in the vicinity of Montauk Point, evidently came upon some liquor unexpectedly. He sampled it and it threw him, for he was picked up intoxicated. He explained that he met a fellow from the submarine base who had a bottle of "good stuff", and when Casey sampled it he took the count. But Casey had overstaid his leave of absence and was due to receive some sort of penalty when he went aboard ship, so he was allowed to go without any punishment by the court.

Millard Teabout, formerly a United States service man, has been about here several weeks. He has been before the court three times or more in that time, so that when he appeared this morning charged with intoxication Judge Prince told him there were two strikes on him now and that when he came again he would be out of the game for a while. Teabout was in a restaurant on Bank street last night where he found pleasure in throwing coffee on the floor and against the wall. He broke a bottle of liquor he had and the contents went on the floor. Teabout became such a nuisance that his arrest was asked for by the restauranteur. He was fined $10 today, which with the costs of his trial amounted to nearly $30.

Mrs. Lawrence V. Spears of Gardner avenue, reported to the police this forenoon that an automobile had ripped away a section of the fence surrounding her property and that a cow that was at pasture stroyed through the opening in the wrecked fence. The animal wandered to nearby property where it caused slight damage. It was later ascertained that the automobile which struck the fence is owned by W. Kyle Sheffield, Gardner avenue.

Thomas F. Oldroyd, 75, of 48 Sherman street, died this morning at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where he had been a patient for some time. Mr. Oldroyd is survived by three sons, John Oldroyd, this city, George F. Oldroyd, Newark, N. J., and Arthur Oldroyt, Fairfield. Mr. Oldroyd was well known and for many years was a machinist in the employ of the Babcock Printing Press Manufacturing company.

Abraham A. Braunn has sold a house and lot on Prest street to Peter Castagna.

Meyer H. Hollanderaky has sold a tract of land on Reede street to Nicholas Haleftiras.

The will of Miss Georgie Gatter, aged Waterford resident, whose death occurred a fortnight ago, has been filed in the probate and a hearing for the admission of the document will take place next Friday afternoon. It is understood that Miss Gatter, who was possessed of considerable real estate on the Niantic river, has made several public bequests.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operators' licenses of Donald Casey, 45 Tilley street, and Sebastino Muscarello, 110 Shaw street to be suspended. Both men were recently adjudged guilty of violation of the automobile law. Casey having been fined $25 of the charge of reckless driving in the police court, the automobile he was in charge of colliding with a car owned by James Coyle, an employe of the Robert Gair company, which was parked on Connecticut avenue, and then continuing across the highway, over a sidewalk and against a residence.

The negro lodge of Elks conducted a dance in Plant hall last night and the affair was attended by an immense throng of members and their friends. All went well until shortly after 1 o'clock this morning when an argument arose between two of the male dancers and after harsh words had been exchanged, blows were struck. The starting of a fight precipitated a typical battle royal, for hardly had the fight started than eight or ten other male dancers entered into the row. The screams of the women were heard on the street and at the Hotel Mohican a short distance away. A guest at the hotel caused a message to be sent to the police station telling of the fight. Acting Lieutenant Frank Howard, Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolmen David Nagle, John Clifford, Howard Sloan, Edward Riordan and Clarence Martin, speedily arrived at the hall where the fight was still in progress; but it did not last long, for the officers soon quelled the disturbance and ordered the dancers from the building. No arrests were made.

Edward Peace, of Eastern Point, Groton; Sandy Palwello, Lowell, Mass. Mrs. Donald Hillsberg, 20 Denison avenue, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Sullivan Lovett, wife of Henry D. Lovett, 46 Ramsdell street, Groton were held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, at the Lovett residence and were attended by a large assemblage of mourners. Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ, conducted the services, assisted by Rev. Henry W. Hulbert, pastor of the Groton Congregational church. Rev. Frederick W. Haist, rector of the Bishop Seabury Memorial church, Groton, also assisted. The bearers were friends of the family. Burial was in Groton cemetery.

Miss Grace Canata of 17 Shaw St., George Berube, United States Coast Guard patrol boat, 177; Mrs. Percival Woodruff, and infant son, 269 Hempstead street; Joseph Quellette, Uncasville; David Morton, 439 Bank street and George Smith, 37 Willetts avenue, were patients discharged at Lawrence hospital today.

Edwin Keeney, New London's oldest resident, being 95, is spending the holiday with relatives in South Manchester, leaving here this afternoon by automobile.

The annual Memorial Day parade will be held Saturday morning and the plans formulated are carried out, the number of marchers in line will equal that of any similar procession of recent years. Henry S. Dorsey will be marshal and with a platoon of police the parade will be composed of the military band from Fort Wright, a battalion of United States Coast Guard ensigns and bluejackets and a detachment of sailors from the submarine base, several companies of soldiers from the island forts and Spanish War veterans, World War veterans, Sons of Veterans and W. W. Perkins Post, G. A. R., the last named riding in automobiles.

The parade will form on Broad street, corner of State, at 10 o'clock and proceed to St. Mary's and Cedar Grove cemeteries, where floral pieces will be placed upon the graves of dead heroes of the various wars.

An automobile owned by the New Haven Dairy company, and driven by R. F. Daly, in passing through Golden street late this afternoon collided with a car parked alongside the curb owned by Salvatore Fiscarra, 32 Truman street, the latter machine being damaged.

John Higgenbotham, 52 Colman street, fruit peddler, drove his machine to Morgan Park late this afternoon where he witnessed a ball game. During the progress of play youths visited the automobile and stole a quantity of fruit. After the game Higgenbotham discovered his loss and reported it to the police.

One of the biggest improvements the city has made since the present form of government became operative in New London, was the laying of a granolithic sidewalk on the south side of Golden street, midway between the block extending from Bank to Green street. The walk was installed today and to accomplish the work in the shortest possible time a large force of workers was assigned to the task. The sidewalk has been in a deplorable state for two years.

Another New London man has been pensioned by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. The latest to be retired on approximately half-compensation is Benjamin F. Bradford, 21 Avery court, who has been notified that his pension dates from March 21, 1925. By the retirement of Mr. Bradford he concludes 34 years of continuous service in various capacities with the railroad. Mr. Bradford entered the employ of the railroad in June, 1901, as sectionman, at that time Amos Packer, of Groton, was foreman. He remained as such until December, 1902, when he was made a lampman and after serving 17 years became crossingman and he served until the date of his retirement.

Attorney Frank L. McGuire and family, of Vauxhall street, have moved to their summer home, in Neptune Park, to remain until fall.

Miss Dorothy Pasnik, of Norwich, a student at Connecticut College, is in Cambridge, Mass., where she will be in attendance at the Harvard jubilee.

Announcement is made by John Sullivan, 49 Warren street, of the recent marriage of his daughter, Miss Elisabeth Sullivan, and John McCort, of San Francisco. The ceremony was performed in New York. Mr. McCort is secretary of the Richard & Boylston Co., New York. His bride, who has resided in New York for some time, has been employed by Vantine & company.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week the city government acted upon the estimates to cover the expenses of the city for the year 1875-1876. The finance committee's recommendations at that time showed the total estimated expenses of the year to be $153,230, the estimated receipts as $42,250, this leaving a total of $110,980 to be raised by tax, the tax recommended being ten mills on the dollar. The grand list of the city at that time was $11,160,238. Preparations for the observance of Memorial Day, were being made and the day's programme included a procession, exercises at the Yantic cemetery, exercises at the Williams Park, (now Chelsea Parade) and the decoration of the graves of fallen soldiers of the civil war. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Bulletin of May, 1875, are as follows:

Monday, May 25, 1875—The finest parade ever made by the Norwich Fire Department was that of Saturday. It was gratifying as showing the Department to e in efficient condition, both with regard to the number of its members and the condition of its apparatus and also as displaying a strong but friendly rivalry among the various companies which contributes greatly to the vitality and energy of any organization.

A four pound shad was caught by a scoop net in the Quinebaug river at Jewett City Saturday evening. This is certainly proof that an occasional shad goes over the fish-ways at the Greeneville dam.

The officers of the new Oxoboxo Lodge, F. and A. M., installed at Montville Friday evening are: R. C. Hooper, W. M.; John Scott, S. W.; Wm. Johnson, J. W.; Edward Johnson, treasurer.

Mr. Pratt who had consented to deliver the address on Decoration day, will be unable to do so on account of illness. The Grand Army Post have as yet considered no substitute.

Tuesday, May 26, 1875—A special meeting of the city government was held last evening in the council chamber. His Honor, Mayor Greene presiding. The committee on finance presented the estimates of the expenditures of the city during the current fiscal year, namely:

Estimated Expenditures

|---|---|
| Street Department | $35,000 |
| Fire Department | 10,000 |
| Police Department | 20,000 |
| Public Grounds | 5,000 |
| City Court | 2,000 |
| Lighting streets | 8,000 |
| Water works | 15,000 |
| Contingent expenses | 10,000 |
| Interest on bonds | 43,230 |
| Interest on loans, est. | 5,000 |
| Total | $153,230 |

Estimated Receipts

| | |
|---|---|
| City Court | $ 2,000 |
| Fire Department | 250 |
| Public Grounds | 5,000 |
| Water Works | 20,000 |
| Town of Norwich | 15,000 |
| To be raised by tax | 110,980 |
| Total | $153,230 |

To meet these expenses a tax of ten mills on the dollar on the city list last made will be necessary. The amount of that list is $11,160,238.00.

Isaac Sanderson has leased the Fair Grounds trotting course for the season and will keep it in order for the use of Norwich steeds. Several races are promised in addition to the training of horses.

Wednesday, May 26, 1875—A Norwich man named Hall was knocked down and badly hurt by a runaway horse in New Haven yesterday. He was brought home on the afternoon train.

The Rev. W. V. Morrison, formerly of the Central Methodist church of this city has been elected president of the Alumni Association of the Boston University.

The Lincoln avenue farmers are now engaged in sowing their beans. They plant their beans with the "eye" up, consequently the beans are not obliged to waste any time in turning over.

The Rev. S. S. Cummings with a choir of singers from the Home for Little Wanderers will hold services next Sunday morning in the Sachem street church.

One of the back windows of a firm on Shetucket street was smashed yesterday by a rock from one of the blasts on the Laurel Hill tunnel.

Dr. William Sweet, one of the large family of bone setters of that name whose family lived in this vicinity died in Fall River, Monday.

Thursday, May 27, 1875—The Steamer Ella made a trial trip yesterday afternoon. It is the first since her wheels have been reduced in size and the first of the season. A party of about 50 including several ladies went down on her making a very pleasant trip. The steamer went as far as the Pequot House returning about half past six.

The Grand Army invite contributions of flowers from all citizens to use in decorating the graves of the fallen soldiers Saturday.

On account of the backwardness of the season it is feared there will be some difficulty in obtaining a sufficient supply and they hope that extra exertions will be made on the part of all who feel an interest in the matter.

The Rev. S. O. Seymour of Trinity church preached the annual sermon to the alumni of the Berkeley Divinity School at Middletown Tuesday.

A very pleasant entertainment was given in Breed Hall last evening by the pupils of the Academy of the Immaculate Conception.

Friday, May 28, 1875—The services of Decoration Day tomorrow will not differ materially from those of past years. In the morning, the graves of the fallen soldiers will be decorated by committees. The committee on flowers is composed of Comrades Hartland, Bishop, Learned, Sevin and Cook, who will receive contributions at Police Headquarters, according to the programme of last year.

In the afternoon the procession will leave the hall at 3 o'clock. It will march through Main, Union, Broadway, Sachem and Lafayette streets to the Cemetery, where the graves in the city lot will be decorated by Sedgwick Post. It will then proceed through Williams street to the soldier's monument at Williams Park where the oration will be delivered by Rev. Mr. Kellogg of the East Main street church. The procession will then return through Washington street to the Grand Army Hall and the members will entertain their guests with a collation.

The blasting on the Laurel Hill tunnel appears to be conducted in a very reckless manner. The place of the blast is not properly covered and large fragments of stone are frequently thrown to a considerable distance. Mr. Arnold of the firm of Arnold and Hiscox was struck by one, while standing on the new wharf, 20 rods or more away.

Lieut. W. S Baldwin of this city has been ordered to report at Detroit for service on the cutter Fessenden.

Saturday, May 29, 1875—The opposition to Judge Colt grows out of adverse criticism on his judgments, which of late seem even to his friends to be strange and decidedly unpopular. High fines for light misdemeanors and small fines for heinous offenses have stirred up a sentiment among the people in and out of town, that partiality or prejudice temper the decisions.—Aurora.

Under the new law, notes falling due Sunday or Monday, will not be payable until Tuesday, whether Monday be observed or not. Those falling due today, are of course, payable today.

Tomorrow evening the Park church observes its annual Memorial service in connection with the visitation of the soldiers' graves. The floral decorations as well as the music and discourse, will have special reference to the object of the service.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

Dr. Harry B. Wright, of Putnam, has bought the office equipment of the late Dr. A. O. Comins in the Tonon block.

The town school committee has elected Miss Elizabeth Flynn, of Willimantic, teacher in the commercial department of Stafford high school.

Miss Flynn is now in the commercial department of the Terryville high school where she is completing her fourth year and was recently reelected.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lassarme, of East Hampton, Mass., visited friends in town Friday. They were former residents of Stafford Springs.

The funeral of Jeremiah Donohue was held at St. Edward's church Friday mornnig at 9 o'clock. Rev. Felix J. O'Neill sang the requiem high mass. Burial was in St. Edward's cemetery.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

The ladies of the G. A. R. and others spent Thursday making wreaths for the soldiers' graves.

The Girls' club players put on a clever farce Wednesday before a full house. The dance afterward was well patronized.

The Tyler garage, corner of Moosup road and Bliven street, built of cement blocks, is nearing completion. A tenement overhead is planned.

Fred W. Tillinghast left Saturday with a party of twenty-five Shriners for a trip to the Pacific coast.

POETRY

I hear the Summer's feet,
The June-bride-robes, by love made wise,
Their songs have turned to lullabies.
Goodbye to Spring, goodbye!

Goodbye to Spring, goodbye!
Behind the lifting latch of June
Are visions of delight;
Come listen to the brook's tune.
The daisy-foam is white.
I wonder which can strawberries be.
The wind from lemonbalm, or foam sea.
Goodbye to Spring, goodbye!

Goodbye to Spring, goodbye!
With Autumn still far, far away
There is no hint of grief;
Before we count the new-mown hay
Why think of falling leaf—
Or mourn that rose shattered lie
That wake the woodside strawberry?
Goodbye to Spring, goodbye!

A Song of the Four Seasons

When Spring comes laughing
By vale and hill,
By wind-flower walking
And Daffodil—
Sing stars of morning,
Sing morning skies,
Sing bine of speedwell—
And my Love's eyes.

When comes the Summer
Full leaved and strong,
And gay birds gossip
The orchard long—
Sing hid, sweet Honey
That no bee sips:
Sing red, red roses—
And my Love's lips.

When Autumn scattered
The leaves again,
And piled sheaves bury
The broad-wheeled wain—
Sing flutes of harvest
Where men rejoice.
Sing rounds of reapers—
And my Love's voice.

But when comes Winter
With hail and storm,
And red fire roaring
And ingle warm—
Sing first and going
Of friends that part;
Then sing glad meeting—
And my Love's heart.
—Austin Dobson.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

He—"I want you to know I'm a self-made man."

She—"Well, who interrupted you?"—Washington University Dirge.

"Ladies and gentlemen," announced the barker, "the Gypsy Queen will now read the Twenty-third Psalm."—University of Toronto Goblin.

"Am I the first girl you ever kissed?"

Willie (aged 8)—"O, Elsie, I know a fine game. Let's pretend we're Adam and Eve."

Elsie (aged 6)—"Oh, yeth, but you wait till I finish eating my apple."—Judge.

Bore—"How did you make out in your singing act?"

Boo—"Great. After the first verse they yelled 'Fine!' After the second they yelled 'Imprisonment!'"—Stanford University Chaparral.

First Maid: How did you like working for that college professor?

Second Maid—Aw, it was a fifteen job. He was all the time quarreling with his wife, and they kept me busy running between the

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS STRONG.

New York, May 30. (AP)—Pre-holiday profit taking and sporadic bear selling failed to halt the upward movement of prices in today's stock market. Trading was in relatively large volume, the day's sales running well over one and one-quarter million shares.

Heavy selling of the Pan-American issues took place at the opening as a result of the court decision against the company in the Elk Hills and Hawaiian contract cases. Both the A and B stocks opened about three points lower, but recovered about two-thirds of their losses before the close. With the exception of Mexican Seaboard, which dropped about 1 1-2 points, the other oils held relatively steady.

The only important trade development of the day was the announcement of an increase in tire prices by the principal manufacturers, effective June 1. The rubber shares, however, showed only fractional improvement.

Standard industrials displayed a firm tone. U. S. Steel common closed fractionally higher at 116 1-8 and Baldwin closed about a point higher at 119 1-8. After being run up to 130 7-8, largely at the expense of the short interest.

Gains of a point or two were recorded by Air Reduction, Allis Chalmers, Coca Cola, Inspiration Copper, Sears-Roebuck and Texas Gulf Sulphur.

Considerable irregularity developed in the automotive group, Maxwell A and the A certificates each advanced a point to new high records while the B stock and the B certificates recovered substantial losses. Hudson Motors, Paige-Detroit and Fisher Body all advanced to new 1925 peak prices.

Bullish demonstrations were renewed in the public utility group. Havana Electric was run up nine points to a new peak at 156, compared with a recent low of 112, while Brooklyn-Manhattan, Columbia Gas preferred, American Telephone and International Telephone, Abitibi Power and Kansas City Light and Power first preferred all bettered their previous maximum quotations.

A sudden spurt of buying in International Paper sent that stock up three points to a new top at 73 7-8. Other industrial issues to reach new high ground included American Beet Sugar, California Packing, Frank G. Shattuck, Brown Shoe, Certain-teed Products, Woolworth and Consolidated Cigar.

Reading and Southern railway were the strong spots in the railroad group, each moving up more than three points to new high records at 90 and 97, respectively. Both these issues were heavily bought in anticipation of increased dividend disbursements.

Call money opened at 4 per cent. and then eased to 3 3-4, closing at the low figure. Tax money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Trading in the foreign exchanges was quiet with the principal rate ruling practically unchanged, demand sterling being quoted around $4.85 3-4 and French francs just above five cents.

The weekly clearing house statement, which was issued today because of the holiday tomorrow, showed increases in most of the principal items. Loans, discounts and investments were $50,685,000 over those of a week ago; cash in own vaults gained $8,416,000; reserve in the federal reserve banks of member banks, $17,-234,000, and net demand deposits, $68,695,000. Time deposits dropped $1,638,000.

Aggregate reserve totaled $649,926,000, leaving excess reserve of $49,404,220, an increase of $7,965,040.

BOND MARKET.

New York, May 29. (AP)—Bond prices held firm in today's quiet trading, which was restricted somewhat by the approach of a holiday. Profit taking tendencies still cropped out but the market offered stiff resistance to selling pressure and renewed speculative buying of railroad and public utility liens encouraged sentiment.

Weakness of Pan-American and Sinclair Oil bonds was attributed to the court decision against the Doheny interest, cancelling the Elk Hills Naval reserve oil lease and contracts for construction work at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. Pan-American 6s dropped more than a point and the six per cent. bonds of the Sinclair Consolidated company, which is involved in similar litigation with the government, broke two points. Rubber company bonds appeared to have discounted fully the advance in tire prices, scheduled for June 1, and were unresponsive to the announcement.

Foreign bonds generally marked time, although activity continued in Bolivian 8s, which advanced a point, and Brailian 8s, which yielded 1 3-8. Denmark 6s were strengthened by reports that the government might obtain a new loan to retire an outstanding 8 per cent. bond issue. U. S Government obligations worked irregularly higher, the first Liberty 4 1-2s selling at the highest level of the year.

An $8,000,000 Detroit Edison thirty-year five per cent. bond issue has been sold to local bankers and will be offered next week.

Public offering of a $30,000,000 Norwegian loan, recently awarded to a syndicate headed by Blair & company, will be made next Monday through a nation-wide banking group. The amount of the issue has been reduced from the $33,000,000 originally purchased and will consist of 40-year, 5 1-2 per cent. bonds to be offered several points below par.

The Queer Baby

To every one it seems most clear
That everybody else is queer.
—Old Mother Nature.

Welcome Robin's babies grew as only bird babies can grow. Every day brought more feathers and every day made it more and more clear that one of these babies wasn't right. At least that is the way his father and mother regarded the matter. He was queer, and if he was queer of course he couldn't be right. He was queer because his coat wasn't like the coats of the others. Instead of being dark it was white! Yes, sir, that young Robin was growing a white coat!

It is funny how people seem to think that there is something disgraceful in being different from other people. Welcome and Mrs. Robin tried not to have that feeling about this white-coated youngster, but just the same they did their best to keep their neighbors from knowing about it. One or the other was always near the nest and when any other of the feathered folk chanced to alight in the tree the white baby was covered by father or mother wings.

But such a secret cannot be kept for long. Jenny Wren was the one who found this one out. She is so small and she moves so quickly that it sometimes is difficult to keep track of her. She had noticed that that nest seldom was left by Welcome or Mrs. Robin at the same time, and she began to suspect that there was something worth looking into there. You know she is a busybody, full of curiosity. So one morning when Mrs. Robin's back was turned Jenny Wren slipped up and peeped into the nest.

"Tut, tut, tut, tut!" she exclaimed. "What have we here? As I live that poor child hasn't a colored feather on him! How queer. How very queer. I've heard of such a case, but I've never seen one before."

Mrs. Robin flew at Jenny Wren and drove her away. But the mischief was done. That lively tongue of Jenny's would soon spread the news all through the Old Orchard. Such news as that couldn't be kept. Not two minutes later Mrs. Robin heard Jenny Wren telling Mrs. Chippy the Chipping Sparrow about it.

"Tut, tut, tut, my dear, you never have seen such a sight in your life," declared Jenny. "I tell you that young Robin is as white as the Ducks in Farmer Brown's dooryard. There isn't a colored feather on him. I'm sorry for the poor thing for I don't believe he'll live long. He will be so easy to see that he'll soon be caught by one of his enemies. You should have seen Mrs. Robin fly into a rage just because I happened over there for a neighborly call."

Mrs. Robin knew now just what would happen. And it began to happen right away. That apple tree in which was her nest, became the most popular tree in the Old Orchard. There was a steady procession of feathered folk to stare at the white young Robin and talk about it. They even came over from the Green Forest to stare and make remarks, and wonder what would happen to it, and inquire if it had a good appetite or acted at all strange. Poor Mrs. Robin was driven almost crazy. At least that is the way she felt. And it was much the same with Welcome Robin. They didn't at all enjoy being the parents of a queer child, and queer is what everybody said that young Robin was.

Perhaps it was because they felt that he was queer and that he would have a hard time when he went out into the Great World that they fed him the fattest and choicest worms. They intended that he should have a fair start even if he didn't have a fair chance.

ALLEGES FAILURE TO KEEP CONTRACT TERMS

Alleging that an agreement made on June 28, 1923 by Mary and Alice M. Manning of Norwich to purchase property on Summit street from Sarah E. Moran of Norwich has not been carried out, the latter has brought suit in the superior court against the Mannings to secure possession of the premises and a decree resting title in Mrs. Moran free from all claims. The defendants have been occupying the premises ever since June 28. The agreement, it is claimed, was to buy the property for $2,700, paying for it at the rate of $50 every three months, with interest and all the regular charges for taxes, gas, water and electric bills, insurance, etc.

SUES TO GET DEED OF GRISWOLD FARM

William M. McNicol, of Griswold, has brought suit in the superior court against Tony and Katharine Tenscar, husband and wife, both of Griswold, to compel the conveyance of certain land according to the terms of an agreement made Feb. 28, 1925. The defendants have not executed the conveyance and are retaining possession of the land although demands have been made upon them and on May 1, 1925, the plaintiff tendered $5,995 and demanded conveyance of the land. The real estate in question is known as the Williams place, of about 18 acres. The contract price shown was $6,000.

ECZEMA IN TINY PIMPLES

Great Irritation and Burning. Cuticura Heals.

"Eczema broke out on my limbs below the knees. It appeared in tiny pimples with great irritation and burning, and was sensitive to the touch. It was much worse at night when I went to bed, and the irritation kept me awake and made me very nervous.

"I was troubled with the eczema about two months before I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and other using them four weeks I was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Grace Doherty, 18 Evergreen Pl., East Orange, N. J., Nov. 13, 1924.

Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum are all you need for all toilet needs. Soap rubs Soap, cooling with Ointment, dust with Talcum.

DAUGHTERS OF REVOLUTION HONOR THE MEMORY OF FRENCH SOLDIERS

Faith Trumbull chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held an impressive memorial service Friday afternoon at Norwich Town in memory of 20 French soldiers who fought in the Revolutionary War and who were buried at the cemetery in Norwich Town. It had been planned to hold the service at the boulder in the cemetery but shortly before the hour for the service rain began falling and as a consequence the service was held indoors at the chapel of the First Congregational church.

Mrs. George A. Ashbey, regent of faith Trumbull chapter, presided at the meeting, and after stating the object of the gathering, called on Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church, who led the religious part of the service, reading the scripture and offering a fervent prayer. Reginald Ashbey gave a cornet solo which was followed by an interesting talk by Mrs. Charles H. Bissell, state regent of the D. A. R.

Mrs. Bissell said it was a pleasure to be present at the service and take part in the programme. It is a good thing to stop in our busy lives once a year and think back to 150 years ago. She told of the French soldiers coming here to help the Colonies in their fight for independence. The Colonies had no quarrel with England as England but did have a quarrel with the German king, George III. The American revolution was not a revolt against the English principles of government but was against the tyranny of George III. We members of the D. A. R. have great pride in our birthright, she said, but that pride is justified only as we recognize our responsibilities. Mrs. Bissell spoke of her recent visit to the camp ground at Valley Forge and told of how impressed she was by her visit.

Following Mrs. Bissell's talk, Omer Tellier of Taftville, sang in French The Marseilles, the French national anthem, after which Edwin W. Higgins briefly addressed the gathering. He spoke of the death of the 20 French soldiers in 1778 while they were passing through this section. Mr. Higgins said we cannot tell what influence the work the D. A. R. is carrying on will have in the future. If we can learn some lesson from the past then Memorial Days are worth while, said Mr. Higgins. I feel that such exercises as these have a great influence.

Following the singing of The Star Spangled Banner, Reginald Ashbey sounded Taps on the cornet, this bringing the impressive service to a close.

C. A. R. Memorial Service

At the close of the D. A. R. service a memorial service for Samuel Huntington was held by the members of Gen. Ebenezer Huntington society, C. A. R. Mrs. E. A. Bidwell conducted the service which opened with the singing of America followed by the salute to the flag by all. The C. A. R. creed was repeated by the children after which an interesting sketch of the life of Samuel Huntington was read by paragraphs by the following children:

Emily Bidwell, junior president; Sherwood Ingalls, John Tingley, Marion Mitchell, Olga Edmunds, Dorothy Prentice, Lois Latimer, Elizabeth Durie, Dorothy Stewart.

Samuel Huntington was born July 2, 1731, in Windham, Scotland Society, Connecticut, the son of Nathaniel and Mehitabel (Thurston) Huntington. He married on April 17, 1761, Martha Devotion, daughter of Rev. Ebenezer Devotion of Scotland Society. When 16 years old, he was apprenticed to learn the trade of cooper, but by constantly reading and studying, he made his way to the legal profession by the time he was in his 22nd year, and before his 30th year, had ended, he was not simply an established lawyer, but one who already won distinction. By 1760 he had established himself in Norwich, as a better and wider field for his career.

After the Revolutionary war, he built the house next to the cemetery gates and here were entertained many distinguished guests.

His public life commenced in 1764, when he represented Norwich in the general assembly of Connecticut in 1765, he was appointed king's attorney and in 1774 he was appointed associate judge of the superior court of Connecticut, and in October, 1775, the general assembly appointed him a delegate to congress, in which body he took his seat, Jan. 16, 1776.

Connecticut had four signers of the Declaration of Independence, on July 4th, 1776; two of them lived in the western part of the state; one of them, William Williams, lived in Lebanon, not far from here, and the fourth, was Samuel Huntington, of Norwich, whose tomb is in this cemetery.

During the Revolutionary war, he served on many important committees, on Indian affairs, on the manufacture of arms, on the capture and condemnation of prisoners, and many others. He was also a member of the marine court, for the control of the navy.

Congress elected him their president by vote of Sept. 28, 1779, and he held that office till his resignation in July, 1781. In 1873, he was again appointed to congress. In 1785, chief justice of the superior court of Connecticut. In 1785, elected lieutenant-governor of Connecticut, and in 1786, elected governor, which office he held till his death on Jan. 5, 1796.

His wife had died 18 months previous, and both rest here in this tomb. Let us say as one said at the time of his death, "May Connecticut never want a man of equal worth to preside in her councils, guard her interests, and diffuse prosperity through her towns."

Mrs. Bidwell read the following sketch:

General Ebenezer Huntington, for whom the General Ebenezer Huntington Society is named, was born in Norwich, on Dec. 26, 1754 and was a student in Yale college at the time of the Lexington battle. He immediately left college and served through the war in which he held the rank of a general.

There was a brief address by Mrs. Bissell, the state regent of the D. A. R. following which the meeting was brought to a close by the singing of The Star Spangled Banner.

At the service held by Faith Trumbull chapter the children of the C. A. R., formed an aisle of honor through which the state regent passed on entering the chapel. The American flag was carried by Russell Edmund, the French flag by Sherrod Ingalls and the state flag by Emily Bidwell.

Thursday Emily Bidwell, Olga Edmund and Betty Spear, assisted by Mrs. Bidwell decorated the graves of the 36 Revolutionary soldiers in the Norwich Town cemetery and placed flags around the boulder for the 20 French soldiers in the cemetery.

STATE CURBS "FOREIGN" MOTOR LAW VIOLATORS

The right to operate in Connecticut of 102 operators from other states was suspended last month because of violations of the motor vehicle law in Connecticut, according to announcement from the state motor vehicle department. These suspensions were made by the authorities of this state by a reciprocity agreement existing between those states and Connecticut in the interest of safer driving conditions.

Fifty-five New York operators were suspended for motor vehicle law violations in Connecticut; thirty-two Massachusetts; nine New Jersey; four Rhode Island; one each, California and Washington, D. C. This arrangement between the states rectifies drivers of out-of-state cars an advantage over Connecticut operators, unless arrests were made, because they came under "foreign" jurisdiction. There has been a measure of co-operation between the states for some time but it has reached its maximum efficiency since the eastern conference of Motor Vehicle administrators brought the officials of the eastern jurisdiction into closer harmony in their mutual endeavor to reduce traffic dangers.

The licenses of 538 Connecticut operators were suspended by the state motor vehicle department during April, bringing the total number of suspensions for the year, because of motor vehicle law infractions in Connecticut, to 1,723, as against 1,564 suspensions in the corresponding period of last year. New Haven led in April with ninety-three suspensions, followed by Hartford, with 92; Bridgeport with 62; Waterbury with 35; New Britain with 25; Stamford with 23; Norwalk 11; Meriden, Middletown and Norwich with 9 each; Torrington and West Haven, 7 each; Ansonia, Greenwich, Darien and West Hartford, 6 each; Bristol, Stratford and Willimantic, 5 each; and the rest distributed in smaller numbers throughout the smaller municipalities of the state.

Surprise Shower for Miss Remiszewicz

On Thursday evening at the home of Miss Amelia Whidica, 42 Thames St., a surprise miscellaneous shower was held for Miss Amelia Remiszewicz in honor of her approaching marriage to Stephen Homics which will take place at St. Joseph's church June 1st. Games were played and violin solos were rendered by Miss Amelia Whidica and Miss Remiszewicz. Miss Anna Kovelenka and Agnes Mileski gave an exhibition dance. The feature attraction of the evening was a mock marriage, Anna Kovelenka, the blushing bride, Amelia Mileski the happy groom Agnes Mileski the minister. The wedding march was played by Amelia Whidica on her violin. A buffet lunch was served later in the evening by Amelia Whidica assisted by her mother. The bride-to-be received a great many useful presents. The shower ended at midnight and all wished the bride-to-be all the best of luck. Those present were the Misses Amelia Victoria, Helen Whidica, Harriet Odderych, Helena Glenska, Blanche, Victoria Plopa, Stephanie Glenska, Anna Homick, Helen [illegible], Anna Kovelenka, Amelia [illegible], Agnes Mileski, Anna Korzeniowski, Marie Krinki.

PRIZES ANNOUNCED BY NORWICH ART SCHOOL

In connection with the 35th annual exhibition of the work of the students of the Norwich Art school and the Norwich Free Academy, which opened Friday evening in the Converse art gallery, the announcement of prizes was made.

A full scholarship to the school of the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston has been awarded to Miss Alyce Kent of 14 Nelson place.

The scholarship in the children's class, which is open to the children in the public schools of the city, was won by Germania Kocaj, of the Falls district.

The sum of $35 from the Mary E. Williams fund, awarded annually to the students whose work shows most progress or most ability, is awarded this year to students in the senior class of the Academy and to the children's class. Sketching from the model and out-of-doors, Dorothea Tucker; in pottery, Justine Briggs; for general work, Gladys Tortoiseshell; originality, Clementine Bachelor. Children's class, older group, Marion Agnew younger group, honorable mention is made of the work of Fay Hill. The prize is awarded to Marion Agnew. In the younger group, mention is made of Dan O'Neil's work in drawing and of William Robbins' work in metal, the prize is given to Olive Rathburn for general excellence.

Announcement of the award of the William Perkins medal for excellence in drawing and of the scholarship to the Art school will not be announced until graduation day. These are open to students in the senior class. The prize offered for a design for a class ring was awarded to Dorothy Malcolm.

Reception Was Held

A reception for the students and their friends Friday evening was followed by dancing. Kyle's orchestra furnished music.

The exhibition will be open to the public on Saturday and Sunday afternoons from 1 until 5 o'clock.

Mrs. Guy Warner Eastman is director of the school, Miss Aida Watrous teaches the classes in metalry and pottery and Miss Katherine Mallett has classes in composition and drawing and has charge of the children's class. On account of the number of children in the Saturday cass, it has been necessary this year to divide the class into three groups. These groups work in succeeding weeks with Miss Harriet Trumbull in pottery and modelling and with Miss Nellie Loring in metalry.

The exhibit is varied. There is work from the children of six and from the experienced craftsman. All of the work is interesting. Much of it is professional.

Course in Design

The course in design is closely allied with the other departments of the school. Problems in rhythm and balance, in the division of circles and squares, are exercises in the principles of design. Many of these exercises have been adapted for the decoration of pottery, and further [illegible] work, and [illegible]

There have also been problems for the study of color and for the study of historic ornament. Color analysis and charts are made by Alyce Kent, Gertrude Fontaine, Gladys Tortoiseshell, Doris Bliss, Carolyn Hanover, and Dorothy Malcolm.

Problems in historic ornament are carried out by Elsie Church, Alyce Kent, Caroline Hanover and Quentin Atkins.

A handsome design for a decorated pottery plate is exhibited by Ava Byrnes and gay colored patterns for circles have been made by Irene Arsenault, Marion R. Hill, Helen Mahoney, E. Rollins and Miss Hratyk.

Rugs which are very attractive in color and pattern have been designed and hooked by Ava Byrnes, Ethel Reid, and Ida Grablefsky. There are other rugs of equal interest which have been hoked from the designs made by Dorothy Malcom, Clementine Bachelor, Silvia Niederman, and Miriam Shapiro.

Bill folders, mats and purses have been made in modeled and tooled leather by Quentin Atkins, and Gladys Petrosky.

There are lamp shades made by Miss Tortoiseshell and Gertrude Fontaine.

Jewelry

The craft classes are planned to show the students the direct application of the principles of design and of drawing. The pupils endeavor to produce objects suited to their individual interests.

An electric furnace for jewelry enamelling has been added to the equipment of the metal shop. A few experimental problems in enamelling are exhibited, which show promise of colorful work for another year.

Miss Taft displays a pendant of oxidized silver set with a moss agate. This is of unusual charm. She also exhibits a conventional brooch in which a Rhodonite is used, and two brooches of cloisonne enamel.

The work of Ruth Lee and Helen Towers is varied and interesting. Dorothy Gildersleeve, Mary Hracyk, and Ruth Fitch exhibit pieces of well wrought jewelry.

The work of Miss Nellie Loring is executed in her characteristic style, dignified and well balanced in design, strong and craftsmanlike in execution. A ring of white gold is set with a turquoise matrix; a linked bracelet in oxidized silver has black onyx and New Zealand jade surrounded by effective units. Several fairy crosses have been developed into interesting ornaments and a set of pewter bread and butter plates are exhibited.

On one screen of drawings from the antique, there is work by Alyce Kent, Dorothea Tucker, Gladys Tortoiseshell, Carolyn Hanover, Elsie Church and Clementine Bacheler. Miss Kent's work is strong and of promise.

The sketch class meets once a week and works from the costume model and makes studies of heads from life. Art school students and advanced Academy students are in the class. Drawings in charcoal, water color, pastel and pencil, are shown. Dorothea Tucker's work shows marked ability and artistic feeling. Her studies of heads are perhaps the best exhibited. Miss Church has several sketches that are unusually strong.

Several very attractive figure studies in water color and pencil have been made by Helen Tirrell and Dorothea Simpson. Miss Tirrell's color and freedom of drawing is very pleasing, and Miss Simpson's delicate pencil drawings are full of character and feeling. Both of these girls are second year students in the Academy and are gifted.

Other drawings that are good are by Carolyn Hanover, Sylvia Niederman, Gladys Tortoiseshell, and Alyce Kent.

Pottery

The work of the pottery class shows a marked advance. This is to be observed in the appreciation of form; in the handling of clay, and in the use of glaze. Several large vases and lamp bases are exhibited. One in mulberry majolica by Mrs. Sudlow, one in dark blue tin enamel by Mrs. Tetlow, one in black by Mrs. Opie. There are also two bases made by Justice Briggs. One is a copy of a Persian jar and one is made with panelled sides. Both are in blue. Mrs. Wilson has made two large pitchers. Miss Elizabeth Huntington's pottery shows her particular interest in color and her ingenuity in adapting casts to many uses. Mrs. Allis has undoubtedly produced more work than any other member of the class. She has made seventy-five pieces during the year. Her little flower filled baskets of desk use and a jam pot in Chinese white with a blue drip glaze are most attractive. Mrs. Lester has modeled various houses in low relief and glazes them effectively in soft colors. The reliefs are of houses about town and are delightfully done. Miss Amy L. Cogewell has modeled shapes and has chosen glazes which are most useful in flower vases. She is exhibiting several of her smaller pieces. Mrs. Sudlow, Ethel Reid and Alva Byrnes have decorated wheel thrown pieces, with colored glazes. Mrs. Sudlow has spent much time experimenting in glazes, working for texture and for color. Many of her pieces are unique in color and of a fine texture. Miss Trumbull has made a beautiful bowl. It is glazed in a gray matt.

Mrs. Bard shows an extremely attractive pair of twin lamps, glazed in manganese brown majolica and a fruit bowl of brown tin enamel lined with green. Mrs. Swan's flower bowls are excellent in finish and color. Among the Academy students noteworthy pieces have been made by Justine Briggs, Doris Bliss, Selma Arremony, George Desmond and M. Rosycki.

The pottery room will be of interest to those who care to see the various steps taken in producing pottery. Unfired ware, once fired ware and pieces covered with glaze, ready for the second fire may be seen. The kiln is only partly packed for firing; space has been reserved for the porch vase made by Ava Byrnes. Ava Byrnes has made, under instruction, practically all of the glazes which the school has used during the year, and students have been employed in preparing the clay for the class.

Children's Class

The drawings of flower studies in tempera and water color are made by Marion Agnew, Emily Bidwell, Fay Hill, Florence Congdon, Germania Kocaj, Esther Gilbert, Viola Allyn, Ruth Norton, Daniel O'Neil and Olga Edmund.

Copies of Japanese prints have been made for the understanding of brush work. The copies shown are the work by Warren LaPierre, Daniel O'Neil, John Stephen Skelly, Ray Robbins, Olive Rathbun, Vincent Grzymkowski, Nancy Greenman, Katharine Hough, Patricia Howe.

sketches by Marion Agnew and Fay Hill show promise. Compositions illustrating the story of Cinderella, her pumpkin coach, her flight from the ball room are well handled by Kirkner Bailey, Warren LaPierre, Daniel O'Neil, Esther Gilbert. And the story of "Alice in Wonderland" and "The Night before Christmas" are expressively illustrated by Katherine and Priscilla Hough, Ruth LaPierre, Marion Agnew, Emily Bidwell, Esther Gilbert and Carolyn McCormick.

One Saturday morning each student made a paper doll and designed its wardrobe. Marion Agnew made a fascinating doll with red hair. Priscilla Howe and Viola Allyn made baby dolls and Daniel O'Neil has fastioned a boy doll in baseball costume. Other owners of charming dolls are Emily Bidwell, Esther Gilbert, Olive Rathbun, Dorothy Prentice, Betty Hitchon, Betty Spicer, Germania Kocaj, Barbara Taylor, Fay Hill, Katharine Hough, Priscilla Hough.

Children's Metal Class

A great deal of interest and enjoyment has been expressed in the children's metal class; and a problem which is the result of sawing and drill pressing is shown in the book-makers of colored leather with metal ends. Good examples of this work are shown by Betty Hitchon, Marion Agnew, Emily Bidwell and Betty Spear.

Paper cutters of copper and brass show excellent filing in bevelled edges. Pieces are exhibited which were made by Allyn Brown, William Robbins and Warren LaPierre.

A set of three brass finger bowls are hammered by Dorothy Prentice. Other pieces of hammered copper which should be mentioned are those made by Florence Congdon, Esther Gilbert, Roy Robbins, Mary Stewart, William Robbins, Warren LaPierre and Allyn Brown.

Desk pads with hammered and pierced metal corners assembled by the children are very nicely done. Those made by Viola Allyn, Marion Agnew, Emily Bidwell and of the older division and of the younger division those by Katherine and Priscilla Hough, Betty Hitchon, Kirkner Bailey, John Skelly, Vincent Grzymkowski show good work.

Work in hard and soft soldering was done in small round jewel boxes with tooled cover designs. The best of these are by Barbara Tingley, Emily Bidwell, Betty Spear, Olive Rathbun, Vincent Grzymkowski, and William Robbins.

Childrens Class in Clay

The children have done both pottery and modeling in clay. Several round small bowl and bowl shapes, also ash trays are shown by Kirkner Bailey, Olive Rathbun, John Skelly, Ruth Norton, Jeanne Boisson, Nancy Greenman, Dolly Edwards, Barbara Fellows, Priscilla and Katharine Hough.

In the problem of constructing square or oblong shapes god examples are shown by Ruth Norton, Patricia Howe, Jean France Boisson, and Olive Rathbun and three square boxes with covers are made by William Robbins, John Skelly, and Allys Brown.

Vincent Grzymkowski is original in his ideas of decoration. Three styles are exhibited by Warren LaPierre, Daniel O'Neil, and William Robbins. Green vases of larger size were well executed by Emily Bidwell, Barbara Tingley, Patricia Howe, and Mary Stewart. Barbara Tylor has a pretty blue vase and there are two wall vases by Dorothy Prentice and Betty Spear.

Germania Kocaj has done the only pitcher. Her work shows much ability both in pottery and modeling.

Among the various animals and birds, three roosters made by Viola Allyn, Florence Congdon and Ruth LaPierre are most conspicuous.

Fay Hill and Viola Allyn also do well in this line and little Priscilla Hough in some original work promises well for the future.

Perspective

The students in perspective have made orderly arrangements for rooms. One would enjoy reading in Elsie Church's living room or in keeping house in Gladys Tortoiseshell's kitchen. The class has also made sketches out of doors.

"The Poplars across Lowthrope Meadows," "the Bonney House on Harland Road" and "the Post House" sho wa variety of treatment.

Sylvia Niedzman's work is strongly individual and of promise. Elsie Church appears to be especially interested in trees. She has made a happy selection in her sketches. Gladys Tortoiseshell and Helen Tirrell exhibit sketches which are pleasing in pure color. Alyce Kent, Carolyn Hanover, Mildred Tortoiseshell and Helen Wenser are also exhibiting sketches.

Friends of the school, who year after year have anticipated the annual exhibition as an opportunity to enjoy Miss Faith Caruthers' exquisite work, mourn with the school, in the loss of its beloved Master-Craftsman.

PLANNING COMMUNITY PICNIC FOR LOWTHORPE MEADOWS

Preparations are well under way for the fifth annual community picnic, under the auspices of the Norwich Rural association, to be held Friday afternoon, June 5th, at four o'clock, in Lowthrope Meadows, Norwich Town.

As in past years the cordial invitation of the association has been extended to all the people of Norwich and vicinity to come and bring their baskets of lunch and to take part in the many interesting attractions which include the following: Athletic contests and novelty races, also sports for all ages, interpretive dancing by a company of children comprising Mrs. Edward Andrews pupils, basket picnic on the hill, followed by community singing, which will be the closing feature. With good weather permitting, all those who enjoy an outing in the open may avail themselves of this community affair and enter into the spirit of the occasion with the same enthusiasm as is being manifested by the several committees.

Mrs. Ozias Dodge is the general chairman of the festivities and will be assisted by the following committees: athletic contests and games, Frederic H. Wyant, (assisted by Troop No. 20, Boy Scouts of Norwich Town) Emmet Fritts of the Young Mens Christian Association, A. A. Harris, Thomas Baldwin, Ozias Dodge; badges of award, Miss Lucille Browning, Miss Dorothy Heath; interpretive dancing, Mrs. Edward Andrews; community singing, Joseph Worth; refreshment booth, Mrs. Robert R. Agnew, Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Hitchon, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Albert Van Wagenen, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey Almy, Mrs. W. W. Leonard; custodian of signs, Miss Anna Loyd Ely; hospitality committee, Miss Elizabeth Huntington, Mrs. Walter T. Camp, Mrs. George Houghton Gilman, Mrs. Robert Bolsson, Herbert L. Yerington, Miss Gulliver, Mrs. Ruby Jordan. Rev. Robert B. Day, Mrs. Grosvenor Ely, Mrs. Edith Huntington Wilson; publicity, Francis Gilman, Leonard Hough and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb.

Entrance to Lowthorpe Meadows is accessible from upper Washington street and Town street. There will be plenty of room for everybody. This ideal spot, the generous gift of the Gilman family to the Lowthorpe association, situated in one of the finest locations in Norwich Town, alone affords recreation, which with the elaborate programme under direction of Mrs. Dodge, bids fair to surpass anything of its kind in previous years.

If stormy, the picnic will be held the next fair day, Sunday excepted.

JURY CASES ASSIGNED FOR SUPERIOR COURT

The following cases have been assigned for trial in the superior court in this city before Judge Isaac Wolfe and jury:

Wednesday, June 3rd. Charles B. Ring, et al., vs. Mary M. Ring, Exx., Appeal from Probate; Coit vs. Libby, Exr.; Sullivan vs. Wheeler.

Friday, June 5th, Short Calendar. Bar Meeting, and Assignment of Cases.

Wednesday, June 17th. Dyer vs. Glassenberg, (Special).

Raymond Keeler, a classmate of Russell White, of Guilford, at Storrs Agricultural college, will spend the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William C. White on Leete's Island.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

GROTTO

Two big events for Nemrod Grotto are on the June program, the ceremonial on Monday, June 8, and the departure of the Atlantic City club on Monday, June 22.

The June ceremonial is promised to be the best yet of any that the Grotto has held and a schedule has been arranged that will cover every minute of the evening with business and entertainment. The supper will be at the Community house on Church street, the balance of the events at Grotto hall on Broadway. All candidates are to report to the candidate committee at the Community house at 6:30 p. m. The time table for the ceremonial is as follows: business session at 4, supper at 6:45, parade at 7:30, initiation at 8, stunts at 8:45, vaudeville at 10.

On Monday the 15th there will be a regular business session at which plans for the summer activities will be made.

Reservations for the Atlantic City pilgrimage close June 8 and on the 22nd the club will get under way, leaving the Norwich bus terminal Monday morning, June 22, to attend the supreme council convention of the M. O. V. P. E. R. at Atlantic City June 23, 24 and 25. The William Penn hotel will be the home of the club while attending the convention and the party will be back home on Saturday morning, June 27 coming from New York to New London on the Friday night boat.

CATHOLIC LADIES OF COLUMBUS

Mercier assembly, No. 13, is to receive communion in a body at St. Mary's Memorial church on Trinity Sunday, June 7th, at the 7:30 o'clock mass, this day being their annual communion day. A communion breakfast will be held after the mass in the Wauregan and all members who are to attend are expected to give their names to Mrs. May Symonds, who is chairman, or telephone her at 2685W.

The members of the degree team of Mercier Assembly, No. 13, C. L. of C. and their friends enjoyed a very delightful time last Monday in the assembly rooms, playing whist and bridge. The rooms were attractively decorated by Mrs. James J. Dutton, chairman, assisted by her committee. Rev. W. [illegible] Meade, chaplain of the Assembly, was guest of honor.

MAYFLOWER DESCENDANTS

A Spring meeting of the Society of Mayflower Descendants in the State of Connecticut was held this week at the Farmington Country Club with an attendance of about 200 members and guests. Following the informal reception to Governor Edwin H. Bingham and the speaker of the day, and the luncheon, the company was entertained by a group of songs by Mrs. William Haine, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Carlotta Allen Westphal.

George Francis Dow, of the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, read a most interesting and entertaining paper on "Early New England Houses and the life lived in them." The speaker said in part, "Every town in Connecticut ought to have its old house" and many of them have, many of which have been saved, like Mt. Vernon, by the ladies—the Societies of Colonial Dames and the Daughters of the American Revolution. The speaker who claims Elder Brewster as his ancestor, dwelt especially on the early life of the colonists and a description of the contents of their houses. Then, as now, life had its contrast of luxury and poverty. The houses consisted of rude wigwams or tents and the meeting-place was under the trees. "There is a widespread misconception," the speaker said, "that the Pilgrims immediately built log houses." Early accounts are full of interesting details, but there are no accounts of "Log houses." He described the wigwams with "wooden chimneys" and gave a graphic account of one which was accidentally set on fire by the ashes from a pipe of a female servant. He spoke of the early settlement of Agawam, the name of which the "Court of Assistants" changed to Ipswich in 1634. He described the home of John Dillingham who built a house there in 1636. This house consisted of two rooms without buildings, the "parlor" being used as a bedroom. As families became more prosperous, a room was added. The speaker gave an interesting description of an old firepiace and gave a list of its contents, the food consisting mostly of corn-meal, boiled meats and vegetables. Each chimney had its brick oven. The domestic animals were too valuable to use as food, but game was plentiful. Mr. Dow said that our ancestors set a high value on "condiments," and that Governor Winthrop brought over from England the first fork. The 17th century hall had little room for occupants. Rugs were used as coverlets on beds and chests as closets which were unknown. A few stools and chairs, a mirror perhaps and a table made up the furniture of the "parlor" with its white walls unornamented. The "Puritan character" did not warm up to the fine arts. Massachusetts was more austere than Connecticut. There, fine clothing was forbidden by the ministers. A "slash" in each sleeve of the feminine dress was permissible to show the color of the undergarment, but no bare arm must show. In 1675 the court prohibited the wearing of periwigs. The accounts of the General Court "shatters our ideal of Priscilla's garb." At first the conduct of our ancestors was that of "transplanted Englishmen," but the necessities of frontier life changed them and they became "independent in thought and action." In early times every one was obliged to go to church. Absence from meeting and many instances of Sabbath breaking were evident. One arrest was for "picking peas" on Sunday. Drunkenness was common. Every family had wine and cider. In 1655 some of the "crimes" noted are "eavesdropping, profane speech, kissing, wicked speeches, pulling hair. It was an age of gossiping and meddling with everyday life, but men and women lived together then, as now, with respect and love."

At the close of Mr. Dow's talk, the company, led by Treasurer Edwin H. Tucker, visited some of Farmington's fine old houses. The Captain Cowles house, the Whitman house, the oldest inhabited house in Farmington; the fascinating "Gundy Shop," full of old-fashioned treasures and "Hillithead," the beautiful home of Mrs. John Wallace Riddle.

MOOSEHEART LEGION

A successful whist and pinochle was held at Moose Home Tuesday evening with Mrs. Teresa Watters in charge. The prizes were awarded as follows; Whist—first, ladies, Mrs. E. Larkin, bath set, donated by Mrs. George Goetter; second Mrs. E. Miller, tea apron, donated by Mrs. Vera Sterry; first, gentlemen, Paul Watters, cigarettes, donated by Gertrude Kiminsky; second gents, Joseph Tomanlo, silk socks, donated by Mrs. Buehnell. In pinochle, first ladies' Mrs. Clara Busch, with a score of 6710, pyrex dish, donated by Mrs. Charles Wright, second, Mrs. Wholey, with a score of 6670, 1-2 doz. glasses, donated by Mrs. Sourbier; first gentlemen's, Mr. Corn, with a score of 6750, tie, donated by Mrs. Bernard Wunderlich; second, Mr. Carson with a score of 6650, handkerchiefs, donated by Mrs. Jensen; consolation, Mrs. Wilson with a score of 4.580 and Mrs. Gadbois with a score of 4.180. Consolation on the whist, Mrs. Carson and T. Medico. The scorers were Mrs. Mary La Valle, and Mrs. Vera Sterry on whist and Miss Pauline Wunderlich and Mrs. Teresa Watters on pinochle. Tickets were sold at the door by Mrs. Irene Buns. At the whist and pinochle held last Thursday the first gentlemen prize was donated by Mrs. Henry Jarvis, not Mrs. George Jarvis.

FORESTERS OF AMERICA

Chief Ranger Joseph C. Callahan presided at the regular meeting of Court City of Norwich, No. 63, on Tuesday evening. Among the large attendance were visitors from New Jersey. Routine business engaged the attention of the members before the obligation of several candidates. The Foresters Memorial Day committee reported that everything was in readiness for the annual decoration of the graves of the deceased members. The memorial day of the order comes on the first Sunday of June. The headquarters committee reported progress in their work. Several sites have been inspected and options have been taken on two. It is expected by the next meeting of the court that the committee will be able to report that permanent headquarters will be a reality. The enthusiasm of the members in the work of the committee points to success in this undertaking.

At the recent state convention of the order held in the city of Waterbury, Court City of Norwich was represented with eight delegates, and there were 225 delegates and grand court officers present. The convention was called to order by Grand Chief Ranger John G. Fitzgerald of Ansonia, in Eagles hall. An address of welcome was delivered by Mayor Francis P. Guilfoile, a member of Court Hellman of Waterbury. In welcoming the delegates to the city the mayor said that he could not give them the keys of the city as they had been thrown away years ago. He asked them to enjoy themselves to the limit and expressed the hope that 20 years would not pass before Waterbury would be selected as the convention city again. Following a brief response by Brother Fitzgerald and delegates gave his honor a parting ovation as his escort conducted him from the convention hall.

The reports of the grand chief ranger, grand secretary and grand treasurer were accepted as read and referred to the committee on distribution. They showed that two new courts had been instituted during the year, as well as an increase in membership with a balance on hand to begin the work of this year of $2095.74. Several of the recommendations of the grand chief ranger as well as those from different courts were taken up by the resolution and distribution committee and referred to the delegates to the supreme convention which is to be held in Detroit in August. The committee on state of the order reported that the executive council have earned the praise and gratitude of the members for the manner in which they performed their duties during the year, and that the order

REV. FOSDICK REPEATS PLEA FOR BROADER LIBERALITY

Preached His First Sermon From the Pulpit of the Park Avenue Baptist Church, New York—Tells Youths That Dangerous Things Are Afoot in the Moral Life Which Cannot Be Met By Conventional Christianity—The Rockefellers Were in the Congregation.

New York, May 31—A congregation that crowded to capacity the Park Avenue Baptist church today heard the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick preach his first sermon from its pulpit. In the congregation that heard the newly-called pastor repeat his plea for a broader liberality in church doctrine, were John D. Rockefeller, Sr., Mrs. Rockefeller and their son, John D., Jr.

After the sermon, Dr. Fosdick was enthusiastically received by the audience. He stood for more than an hour shaking hands with the hundreds of persons who attended the services.

Referring to "the adventure that we are about to undertake in this church" Dr. Fosdick said:

"Under most extraordinary circumstances you have called me to be your pastor. I marvel at you. The sacrifice which you are making, both in substance and in sentiment, is very great. It did not seriously occur to me at first that you would actually do it. Now that you have done it you have done a courageous and sacrifical thing. It is a thrilling adventure which we are undertaking here.

"But what is it an adventure after? What are we trying to do? Some will describe it in negative terms; we are against this or we do not believe in that. That, however, is surely an utter misrepresentation of our spirit and this morning I wanted to say that, as I see it, we are endeavoring to exalt the central and spiritual elements in Christianity, to make great things great and small things small, and to make this so explicit in the organization of our church that nobody can mistake our sincerity in meaning it. We want to say to this city that just one thing is central in Christianity—discipline to Jesus—and that anybody who has that spiritual root of the matter sincerely in him ought to obe welcome on equal terms with everybody else in the church of Christ."

One of the conditions of Dr. Fosdick's acceptance of the church's call was that of inclusive membership, under which persons could join the church without the Baptist form of immersion.

Relating that youths often come to him for discussion of religious problems that puzzle them, Dr. Fosdick said he usually asked them: "Do you really think that dynamic dirt, going it blind, is an adequate explanation of this vast and varied universe and of us within it, and that mothers and music and the laughter of children at play are nothing but the sublimated consequence of fortuitous concourse of eighty-odd chemical elements?"

After such conversations, he said, he usually found that such youths were "not nearly so irreligious as they thought they were."

Nevertheless, one can remain under no illusions about what is going on, he continued. "Dangerous things are afoot in the moral life of our time and you cannot meet them with conventional Christianity. The younger generation is rebellious, impatient of conventional christianity. It must be vital christianity that gets them if anything will. Could there be any more thrilling an adventure than to endeavor in this trying time to lead the youth past all the outworks of religion into its very citadel, into the presence of Jesus Christ Himself, what He was, what He stood for, and challenge them with that voice which long ago thundered, 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and thy neighbor as thyself'?

Referring to the change of policies by the Park Avenue Baptist church, Dr. Fosdick said.

"It is my deep conviction that we are fulfilling in our plans the best traditions of the religious movements to which this church belongs. The genius of our denominations has been its insistence of the competency and freedom of the individual soul in matters of religion, that emphasis upon individual freedom has been our best contribution to christian history."

Dr. Fosdick will assume regular charge of the pulpit in the fall of 1926. In the meantime he will spend a year in travel and study abroad. He succeeds the Rev Cornelius Woelfkin, who resigned as pastor because of his age. Dr. Fosdick told the congregation today that in calling him it had simply added another member to its staff of ministers.

"Dr. Harding is the senior warden of this church," he said. "I hope he will consent to remain so for many many years".

BUSINESS SENTIMENT IN NEW ENGLAND IMPORVED

Boston, May 31.—(A. P.)—A definite improvement in business sentiment in New England in May is noted in the monthly review of industrial and financial conditions issued by the Federal Reserve bank of Boston and made public today. Conspicuous activity in the building industry and a better tone in the cotton textile industry are remarked. The review says:

"There are times when a change in business sentiment gives a clearer prospective of the general situation than the actual current volume of trade or rate of production. This seems to be one of those times. The rate of business activity in New England has been slowly declining since January and until the latter part of April this was accompanied by a distinct feeling of uncertainty over the outlook for the summer. In May, however, business sentiment definitely improved. While this improvement may have been based in part on the rise in security prices, a great deal of it was attributable to stronger commodity prices.

"The New England busines activity index for April was above the average of the past few years, while the index for May will undoubtedly be close to that for April. The building industry is conspicuous in being one of the most active in the district. The value of contracts awarded in April has been exceeded only once and the value of the projects contemplated is high. The cotton textile industry of New England has been more active than usual during recent months.

"Retail distribution of merchandise throught New England department stores was in smaller volume during the first four months of this year than in the corresponding period a year ago. Sales of Boston department stores during the first two weeks of May were slightly in excess of those during the corresponding period of 1924."

WOMAN STRANGLED TO DEATH IN BOSTON HOTEL

Boston, May 31.—(A. P.)—Mrs. Mae Price of New York, wardrobe mistress for a theatrical company, was found strangled to death in her room in a South End hotel today. She had been beaten and $75 in cash was missing from her belongings.

The body was found face down on the bed by an elevator operator after telephone calls to the room went unanswered. The woman's hands had been tied behind her back. She was tall and robust, and it was evident that she had fought for her life. One eye was discolored and there were marks of blows on the head and body.

Mrs. Price was the wife of William Price, a New York stage carpenter. The company which employed her have its closing performance of "The Brown Derby" a musical comedy, here last night and this morning Mrs. Price was called by telephone to join the troupe in its preparations for departure.

Herman Widman, the elevator operator, found the door of Mrs. Price's room unlocked and the shades drawn down. He discovered the body a moment later and gave the alarm.

ANNOUNCE AID FOR EXTERMINATING MOSQUITOES

Argo, May 31—The opening of a state-wide campaign of extermination against the mosquito, was announced today by the Cayuga Memorial Institute. An outline of definite plans for the anti-mosquito war has been prepared and widely distributed by the institute.

PRESIDENT BUSY BEFORE STARTING ON VACATION

Washington, May 31. (AP)—With less than a month remaining before he departs for an extended stay at Swampscott, President Coolidge is giving his attention to a mass of routine business he feels should be disposed of before he starts on his New England vacation.

The work of clearing his desk during the next few weeks will be interrupted for a day, however, when he goes to Annapolis Wednesday to address the Naval academy graduating class, and from Saturday until the following Wednesday, when he will be away from Washington on a trip to Minnesota—his longest journey since he became president.

Although Mr. Coolidge, by going to the Massachusetts shore late in June, will get relief from the heat which usually prevails here during the summer, his stay at Swampscott, in a sense, really will not be a vacation. Preparations are being made to transfer an office force to Lynn, where headquarters will be established a few miles from White Court, the summer White House, and it will be possible for the president to transact business with practically as much dispatch and ease as if he were in Washington.

FRENCH ARE CHECKING THE RIFFIAN REBEL URPRISING

Tetuan, Spanish Morocco, May 31—(A. P.)—The latest successful operations by the French have culminated in a checking of the riffian rebel uprising in the region of Uazan. The French successes were due to the concentration of large contingents of troops and war materials of all classes.

The powerful Beriserual tribe, which sent 5,000 soldiers to liberate Machixo and Bibane, was compelled to order a halt between Fes and Uazan, as there were appearances that the tribesmen would refuse to continue the campaign. It is reported that other groups of tribesmen have become disgusted by drastic orders of Abd-El-Krim that the spoils of war be concentrated at Aitkamara, together with prisoners. The taking of the loot of Altkamara was considered by the tribesmes as meaning they would receive no compensation for their fighting.

YALE FRESHMEN WERE DESTRUCTIVE IN CELEBRATION

New Haven, May 31.—(A. P.)—The old traditional freshmen fence at Yale was torn down F. H. Bangs, the freshman instructor, was injured, and considerable damage was done by freshmen at Yale tonight in a celebration marking the close of the college year at Berkley Oval, the freshman dormitory. It is said that threats to call back the Yale freshmen crew at Gales Ferry checked the outburst.

Professor F. H. Bangs, one of the proctors in tre dormitory tried to prevent the students from tearing down the fence and making the fire and he was roughly handled by the men and driven back to his room. He came back three times but was forced to seek refuge when the students burned a fire extinguisher on him.

TO PLAN CO-OPERATION IN THE DAIRY INDUSTRY

Washington, May 31.—(A. P.)—Methods of bringing about greater co-operation in the dairy industry will be considered at a national trade conference to be held in connection with the first summer session of the American institute of co-operation, between July 2nd and August 15th, at the University of Pennsylvania.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Endurance Flying Contest.

Berlin, May 31.—(A. P.)—The biggest endurance flying contest ever staged in Germany started at four o'clock this morning, when a nine day airplane match began at Berlin. All Germany, except eastern Prussia and the occupied western area, will flown over.

STATEMENT ON EARTHQUAKES BY ECONOMIC FOUNDATION

Boston, May 31—The Engineering-Economics foundation, which is engaged in organizing knowledge of the earthquake hazards, when asked today for a statement on the earthquake shock reported yesterday from Quebec, said:

"The news of the quake tremor of Saturday is of particular interest to the foundation at this time as it has only this week been checking its figures with figures obtained by the Dominion observatory at Ottawa.

"The statement shown to the Foundation says, 'The series began on February 28 when quakes rocked the eastern section of the continent.' The fact is that the tremor of May 30 is the thirteenth tremor of a known series which began July 14, 1924 and and has continued up to the present time. Four tremors felt by men in the northeastern section of the United States and Canada occurred in seven and one half months to February 28. The date of the strongest quake of this series. Nine tremors felt by men have occurred in the three months since February 28.

"The average time between shocks in the first period was approximately two months. The average time between shocks in the second period was approximately two weeks, except for the group of tremors in late April. Some time ago in publishing a statement of the results of study of each of these tremors which had then occurred, the foundation said, 'this series of earthquake tremors in number, in intensity, in diversification of the zones of origin, and in area affected by the shock, is greater than the inhabited area of the northeast part of the continent has known since the earth spasm of 1755, the year of the great Boston quake.

"Since that statement was made five tremors have been added to the list. Each new tremor should however simply drive home the comforting fact that while we cannot prevent earthquake shocks we do know today that 75 per cent. of the loss and suffering from earthquakes can be prevented."

COOLIDGE APPEALS FOR ENFORCEMENT OF LAW

Washington, May 31. (AP)—Appealing for more vigilant enforcement of law on the part of states and local governments and for a "universal observance of the Constitution" by the American public, President Coolidge in a Memorial day address Saturday at Arlington cemetery declared that "what we need is not more federal government, but better local government."

"We are not a lawless people," said the president, "but we are too frequently a careless one. The multiplicity of laws, the varied possibilities of appeals, the disposition to technicality in procedure, the delays and consequent expense of litigation which inevitably inure to the advantage of wealth and specialized ability—all these have been recounted as reproaches to us.

"It is strange that such laxities should persist in a time like the present, which is marked by a determined upward movement in behalf of social welfare. But they do exist. They demonstrate a need for better, prompter, less irksome and expensive administration of the laws; for uniformity of procedure; for more accurate delimitation of state and federal authority."

Mr. Coolidge made only passing reference to prohibition, and did not apply his observations directly to any particular situation. Discussing the complaint which he said is heard to a lesser extent than at the time of the Civil war that the federal government usurps funqtions propecly belonging to the states, the president declared that despite the claim that this is a land of equal opportunity "equality suffers often because of the divergencies between the laws of different states."

"If questions which the states will not fairly settle on their own account shall have to be settled for them by the federal authority, it will only be because some states will have refused to discharge obvious duties."

PROGRESS MADE BY THE ITALIAN AIRMAN

Broome, Western Australia, May 31—On his flight from Rome to Australia and Japan, the Italian airman, Commander de Pinedo, arrived here today from Coepang, Dutch East Indies. He covered 570 miles in 6 hours, which was an hour less than he had expected to make the distance. He will make flights from here to Melbourne, where he will stay three weeks and overhaul his plane.

From Milbourne the aviator will fly to Sydney, and Thursday Island, Queensland; to Amboyna, in the Malay archipelago; to Macassar, in the Celebes Islands; to Manila, Formosa, and Tokio.

BROKER PARSONS, CHICAGO, WAS BURNED TO DEATH

Chicago, May 31—D. R. Parsons, vice president of the Christian Parsons brokerage firm here, and a prominent clubman, was burned to death this morning in a fire which virtually destroyed his apartment. He was 40 years old.

Mrs. Parsons and James King, a policeman, who was in the Parsons apartment while off duty, were burned, narrowly escaping death.

Mrs. Parsons told the police she did not know how the fire started. Damage was estimated at $10,000 to $15,000.

GENERAL OF FIRST MUKDEN ARMY REPORTED KILLED

Shanghai, May 31.—(A. P.)—General Li Kwei Yuen, chief of staff of the first Mukden army, is reported to have been killed, and Cheng Quo Jui, commandant of the 28th brigade, and Yuen Chi Fu, chief of courtmartial, seriously wounded yesterday afternoon in a quarrel arising from a disagreement during a conference at the Mukden army headquarters at Chapei, a subusb of Shanghai.

The question under discussion was the local opium traffic and a fight ensued. To escape being shot, it is said, General Li jumped from a window and broke his neck.

U. S. Aid to Britain On Gold Standard

Federal Reserve Banks Have Created Credit of $200,000,000 For the Bank of England.

Washington, May 31—Details of the plan by which American financial interests will support those of Great Britain in the maintenance of the gold standard in England were given to the public today for the first time by the federal reserve board.

While here were actually two distinct transactions, one being the establishment of a direct credit of $100,000,000 to the British government by serve board's statement, which appears in the June issue of the Federal Reserve Bulletin, deals with the arrangement made between the bank of England and the New York federal reserve bank prior to the re-establishment of the gold standard and abolition of the ban of gold exports from England. Other federal reserve banks also are anticipating in the creation of the credit of $2000,000,000 for the bank of England upon which it can draw when and if conditions require.

The board also issued a lengthy expression of its views concerning the benefits which it believes will be derived from re-establishment of the gold standard in England and its dominions. In this the board's observations coincide largely with earlier expressions from official sources here, notable by the reserve's advisory council.

The board believes that the restoration of the gold standard in England will result in a limitation on exchange fluctuation and will "there by remove, or largely reduce, hazards to business transactions where cable transfers and exchange must be calculated. Credits in countries where the gold standard prevails become interchangeable practically at par with dollar credits, which have been continuously equivalent to gold, and the board asserted that short time funds therefore ought to be distributed more nearly in response to current demands.

Of the credit arrangement with the reserve banks, the board said:

"Under its arrangement, with the bank of England, the federal reserve bank of New York undertakes to sell gold on credit to the bank of England from time to time during the next two years, but not to exceed $200,000,000 outstanding at any one time. The credit is to bear interest to the extent that it is actually used at the rate of one per cent. above the New York reserve bank's discount rate, with a minimum of 4 per cent and a maximum of 5 per cent., or, if the federal reserve discount rate exceeds six per cent., then at the rediscount rate of the bank.

"The rate of interest to be paid by the British government on the credit which it has established is to be determined in a similar manner. Upon the purchase of gold the bank of England will place on its books to the credit of the federal reserve bank of New York an equivalent deposit in pounds sterling. This deposit may be used from time to time by arrangement with the bank of England in the purchase of eligible sterling commercial bills which shall be guaranteed by the bank of England, and in that case discount earned on the bills will be applied to the payment of interest.

"If the occasion arises for the use of this credit, support can be given to sterling exchange either through the purchase of sterling bills in New York or abroad, or gold can be shipped to other countries on British account. Thus the bank of England could meet foreign demand for gold without reducing its own reserves, or it could replenish its reserves by withdrawing gold from this country or by ear marking it in New York.

NEW YORK IS ASSURED OF SKYSCRAPER CHURCH

New York, May 31—Its first skyscraper church was assured to New York city tonight when the board of directors of the Broadway Temple brought the campaign for $2,000,000 to a successful conclusion by agreeing to underwrite whatever amount remained to be subscribed.

In its last days the campaign has assumed the aspects of a race against a quarter of a million dollars in that the mount had been given toward the project by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., contingent upon the organization raising $1,750,000 from other sources by June 1.

Although the definite figures were not made public tonight concerning the amount still needed to complet the sum necessary to claim Mr. Rockefeller's gift, Dr. Christian F. Reisner, who inaugurated the Broadway Temple project, announced that about $25,000 was still to be raised.

MAN DIED OF INJURIES SUSTAINED IN MILL

Watertown, Conn., May 31—Milton H. Chamberlain died early today at the Waterbury hospital as the result of injuries sustained Friday in the Waterbury Rolling mills. The man's body lies now at the funeral home of J. H. Mulville awaiting the location of relatives or friends.

Little is known of the antecedents of the man, who roomed at the home of Harry L. Sizer at 37 Middlesex street, Waterville.

CUSTOMS OFFICIALS SEIZE DIAMONDS OF $100,000 VALUE

St. Albans, Vt., May 31—Diamonds valued at $100,000 were seized at Rouse's Point, N. Y., last night by customs men of the second Vermont district who arrested Henry Margulis of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Abraham Trappel of Woodhaven, L. I.

The men arrested were placed under surveillance when they left Canada where they boarded the liner Minnesota. Customs Inspector Harry C. Whitehill turned the prisoners over to the collector at Rouse's Point.

ONE PERSON KILLED, SIX INJURED IN SPRINGFIELD

Springfield, Mass., May 31—One was killed and six persons seriously hurt in Sunday traffic crashes here yesterday. John Laing of 465 Sumner avenue was fatally injured when his automobile was smashed to kindling wood in a collision with a south bound Hartford trolley car at Framington avenue and Longmeadow street. He died in Springfield hospital.

Signs of Increasing Business Activity

For First Time in Many Weeks Favorable Reports Come From the Primary Textile Market.

New York, May 31—Despite a rather uneventful week in the principal financial and commodity markets, signs of increasing business activity accumulated. Further improvement took place in a number of basic industries, and although gains were moderate they gave indisputable evidence that constructive forces were at work in many lines of trade.

Foreign developments continued to promise beneficial results for the trade of the United States and the rest of the world. With Great Britain maintaining its gold position satisfactorily and steadily accumulating additional balances, sterling exchange maintained a strong tone, within a fraction of dollar parity french francs fell below 5 cents, but anxiety over this reaction was allayed by reports that the franc might be revalued on a gold basis around the 5 cent level. Clarification of debt funding problems seemed to be making progress.

One of the most tangible indications of expanding business activity was found in advancing commodity prices. Another general increase in gasoline quotations took place and the leading tire manufacturers announced that their prices would be raised 5 to 10 per cent. on June 1 to conform to the higher roost of crude rubber, which recently has soared in value.

Conditions in the steel industry assumed a brighter aspect, both from the standpoint of production and of production and of prices. Indications that the readjustment of output to demand had been nearly completed were seen by the weekly trade reviews, while the price situation of the leading products was reported more stable.

For the first time in many weeks a note of encouragement was heard from the primary textile markets, which have undergone more severe depression than most other industries. Improvement in retail buying was reported by curtailment of production was still urged as one of the remedies for the lowered vitality of the cotton and wool goods business.

The volume of freight traffic continued to set new records. Car loadings for the third week in May, the last for which statistics are available, were the highest of the year and only slightly below the million car mark. The heavy movement of freight however, has not been reflected in the earnings of the railroads. Most of the April reports showed lower revenues, partly because the carriers have been sacrificing maximum profits for greater efficiency and partly because of increased outlays for improvements and repairs.

In manufacturing activities, the motor industry has continued to rank among the first. Record breaking sales and production have been reported by several large companies and the automotive shares have not been slow to reflect these business gains.

ALLEGED CONSPIRACY TO KIDNAP MARY PICKFORD

Los Angeles, Calif., May 31—Los Angeles police said today that the design of two truck drivers and an automobile salesman to kidnap Mary Pickford and hold her for $200,000 ransom has been effectively disposed of.

Of the three alleged plotters arrested yesterday and held in the city jail on suspicion of conspiracy to commit a felony, two, it was announced by detectives tonight, have made third or partial confessions and the third is being subjected to further grilling. Two automatic pistols have been discovered among the effects of the suspects.

A. J. Wood, one of the two truck drivers, is quoted as saying that the plot to kidnap Miss Pickford has its origin in conversations last fall between himself and C. Z. Stevens, the automobile salesman suspect "soon after they had got a few drinks inside of them."

RAIN CHECKED RIOTING OF STUDENTS IN SHANGHAI

Shanghai, May 31—More effective than the menace of machine guns or carbines was the continued downpour throughout Sunday, in checking further outbreaks although the remitt Y.M.C.A. er student outbreaks, although there was a minor demonstration in the afternoon on the Nanking road, attended by no casualties. The entire area surrounding the Louza station has been encircled with fire hose, with which it is believed any new gathering will be dispersed by five inch streams of water.

The total of dead is 10, with 12 wounded. Tension is unrelaxed, with all but the foreign defense units on duty. As a result of the meeting of Chinese commercial organizations it is believ d that a general strike in the shops and other industrial activities will be a probable development Monday.

CONDITION OF SEC'Y WEEKS IS NOT SATISFACTORY

Boston, May 31—The condition of Secretary of War Weeks, who was operated on for gall stones at the Massachusetts General Hospital here on Thursday, was reported as "not entirely satisfactory" tonight by his physicians, Drs. Daniel Fiske Jones and S. Gorham Brigham.

The Bulletin, issued at about six o'clock (eastern standard time) was as follows:

"Secretary Weeks had a moderately comfortable day." While his condition is not entirely satisfactory, it is by no means alarming. Pulse 96, temperature normal."

Except for attacks of hiccoughs, Mr. Weeks had been very comfortable until today and was said to be convalescing satisfactorily. He had planned, after two weeks at the hospital to spend the rest of the summer at Cole's Island, West Gloucester.

CLAIMS SHOT WAS FIRED UPON WITHOUT WARNING

Captain and Crew of the Schooner William A. Morse Condemn Crew of Coast Guard Patrol Boat—Held For Violation of Navigation Laws—Captain Maintained That He Did Know What Law He Had Violated, and Members of the Coast Guard Refused to Specify the Infractions Alleged.

New York, May 31. (AP)—The two-masted auxiliary schooner William A. Morse was captured by two Coast Guard patrol boats yesterday afternoon, 15 miles off Atlantic City. This became known today when the vessel was towed, with nine members of the crew under guard on board, to the barge officer on charges of violating the navigation laws.

Marct Menella, 29, of Brooklyn, captain and owner of the vessel, said he did not know what law he had violated and members of the Coast Guard refused to specify the infractions alleged.

Captain Menella said his vessel was fired on by machine guns and a one-pounder and claimed that the shots narrowly missed striking himself and members of the crew.

The Morse is the first vessel captured by the Coast Guard since the patrol was established on Rum Row five weeks ago. The boat was captured by the CG-111 and CG-220. Captain Menella admitted that the vessel at one time was a rum runner, but said he purchased it from the government for $600 and that it had since been used solely for fishing.

The skipper said he left Cape May Tuesday and had been hailed by the three Coast Guard boats at sea. Saturday afternoon he said another patrol boat fired on the Morse without warning. A machine gun bullet struck a gasoline tank on the Morse, containing 710 gallons of gasoline, Menella said. A one-pounder shell narrowly missed his head, he added.

The patrol fired to hail him as is customary, Menella asserted, and after the shots had been fired he ordered his crew to stop her and brought his vessel to a stop.

Both skipper and members of the crew criticised the Coast Guard for not allowing them to get in touch with bondsmen and the captain was vehement in his denunciation of the patrol for seizing his vessel.

The skipper and crew will be given a hearing tomorrow afternoon at the customs house.

LOUIS A. COOLIDGE DIED AT HIS HOME IN MILTON, MASS.

Milton, Mass., May 31—(A. P.)—Louis A. Coolidge, former assistant secretary of the treasury, former treasurer and director of the United Shoe Machinery corporation, and a prominent member of the Republican party in this state for a score of years, died at his home here.

Mr. Coolidge had been in failing health since the close last fall of his unsuccessful campaign for United States senator from this state. Sclerosis of the liver was the cause of his death.

Born of sturdy Massachusetts stock in Natick, Mass., Octo. 8, 1861, Mr. Coolidge graduated magna cum laude from Harvard in 1883, and joined the staff of the Springfield Republican. He was night editor of that paper when he left to become private secretary to the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, then a congressman. Last Thursday Mr. Coolidge completed a biographical sketch of Senator Lodge which he had intended to present to the New England Historical Genealogical Society.

He returned to the newspaper field in 1898 as Washington correspondent of the old Boston Journal, and several New York newspapers and in 1904, the year Roosevelt defeated Judge Parker, he was director of the literary bureau of the Republican National committee.

Four years later, he became assistant secretary of the United States treasury and for several months was acting secretary. In 1909 he was made treasurer and director of the United Shoe Machinery Corporation, positions which he resigned in March last.

From 1909 to his death he was a director, officer or member of more than a score of corporations, clubs, societies and committees of state and national scope. He was president and founder of the sentinels of the republic now operating in every state; one of three members of the federal shipbuilding wage adjustment board which settled the Pacific Coast shipyards strike in 1917; chairman of the welfare department of the national civic federation; and president for three years of the Coolidge family association.

Mr. Coolidge took an active part in only two political campaigns in this state, both of which were unsuccessful, one being for lieutenant governor in 1911, and the other for United States senator last year.

PERSIA SUFFERING FROM INVASION OF SOVIET TROOPS

Geneva, May 31.—(A. P.)—Alleged bolshevik military aggressions on the Prussian frontier are deemed so serious that the Persian representatives to the league of nations announced tonight that they might be obliged to appeal to the council of the league on the ground that the situation constituted a menace to international peace.

Prince Arfa Ed Dowleh, former head of the Persian delegation to the league assembly but now in Geneva to attend the arms traffic conference today informed the American and other delegations that Persia was suffering from a series of insursions by Soviet troops in violation of the treaty signed between Persia and the Russian Soviet government in 1921.

The gravest charge is that the Russians incited 3,000 Nomads and Tarters in Turkestain to attack Bodjnurd, Persia in an effort to capture the Holy City of Meshed.

YOUNG WOMAN DIED OF AUTO INJURIES

Waterbury, Conn., May 31—Mary Sullivan, 21, of Lewis street, Naugatuck, died tonight at St. Mary's hospital as the result of injuries received in an automobile crash in Bethany on the night of May 23.

The car driven by the young woman was thrown over an embankment.

Her mother, Mrs. Annie Reilly Sullivan, and Miss Mary Mahoney who were with her in the car, are still confined to the hospital.

CHARGES AGAINST LABOR LEADER

PRISONERS IN SING SING INSTALLL RADIO OUTFITS

Ossinging N. Y., May 31—On the 100th anniversary of the occupancy of the first building at Sing Sing prison, it became known today for the first time that fifty prisoners have installed radio outfits in their cells.

CHARGES FORMER LABOR LEADER R. P. BRINDELL

Yonkers, May 31—An affidavit from Charles Johnson, Jr., president of the dock carpenters union that Robert P. Brindell, former leader who was convicted of extortion when he was president of the dock union, was attempting to resume control of the organization and that he had committed a new act of labor extortion, was sent to the state board of parole today.

Brindell was paroled recently with the stipulation that he must not take any labor office. Violation of the the terms of his parole would result in sending him back to prison for almost six years.

Samuel Untermyer, who prosecuted Brindell, has charged that the former labor leader had violated his parole but the board of parole at an "informal discussion" of the situation last week, decided the accusations were unfounded. The Johnson affidavit was sent to the board by Mr. Untermyer in furtherance of his demand for an open hearing on the Brindell case.

In the affidavit Mr. Johnson says that Brindell told him he would be "very well taken care of" if he would told him he would be "very well taken care of" if he would act as a "dummy" president and let Brindell resume actual control of the union. Johnson also says in his affidavit that Brindell told him that he was reported to have made $2000,000 when he was president and that anymbody with sense could make that much if they used their head.

Johnson said that he had information from a contractor of a recently complete building that a strike of workers on the structure had been called off after he had given Brindell $2,000 on his solicitation.

THREE DEATHS FROM AUTO RACES ON DIRT TRACK

Elkhart, Ind., May 31—(A. P.)—Two deaths in a hospital here increased to three the toll of lives taken in the dirt track auto races here yesterday. Ten persons were in the hospital with injuries and three are said to be in a serious condition.

Maurice Schwartz, 60, of Mishawaka, Ind., and Joseph Lauer, 14, of Elkhart, died in a local hospital. Robert Lieb, 9, of Elkhart, died yesterday.

Floyd G. Shawhan and Arthur J. Davidson, both of Dayton, drivers in the race, were released on bond of $1,000 each on a technical charge of assault and battery as a result of the accident.

Witnesses, police said, declared Shawhan and Davidson locked wheels with a third car driven by Frank Matthews, another racer, in an attempt to wreck Matthews' car. Matthews lost control of his automobile and it crashed through a wire fence into a crowd of spectators. Shawhan won the race while Davidson came in third. Matthews was unhurt.

SLAYER OF HUSBAND COMMITTED SUICIDE

Springfield, Ills., May 31—(A. P.)—Mrs. Alexander Norbert, 61, confessed slayer of her husband, committed suicide by setting fire to her bedding in the county jail here.

The bedding was burned fiercely before Mrs. Norbert uttered an outcry which brought two guards to the scene.

WILLIMANTIC

Memorial day, fair weather and a high patriotic spirit accounted for what was the largest attendance at the morning and afternoon pilgrimages to the four cemeteries of Windham for several years. Seven veterans of the Civil war hoarded automobiles at 7 o'clock in the morning for the trip around the Windhams. They were accompanied by an escort of veterans of the Spanish-American war, the World war, Company C, 169th Connecticut infantry, the Woman's Relief corps, Daughters of Veterans and the auxiliary to the Spanish war vets. The B. P. O. E. and St. Joseph's Boy Scouts bands rendered solemn music at the cemeteries. A brief address was made at the Windham Center and North Windham cemeteries by Rev. Frederic C. Williams, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church. Ninety-seven graves were decorated in Windham, 32 in North Windham and 115 at St. Joseph's cemetery, where there was a brief address by Rev. Charles M. Kelley, of St. Joseph's church. Judge-Advocate James Haggerty, of Francis S. Long post No. 30, G. A. R., supervised the morning program. Lieut. Jeremiah McCarthy was marshal of the procession. At noon the veterans were served an excellent repast by the Woman's Relief corps in the G. A. R. hall of the town building.

The afternoon program started with the procession to Willimantic cemetery, from the town building, at 2 o'clock. The graves of 219 veterans were decorated at this cemetery. Capt. Frank P. Fenton was marshal of the procession. His aides were: Civil war, Captain Adam Duntz; Spanish-American war, Chief Commander William E. Jackson; World war, Lieutenant James J. Lee; National Guard, Lieutenant Ellison S. Smith. The formation of the procession and the officers in charge of the divisions were: Platoon of police, Chief Allan McArthur; B. P. O. E. band, Charles N. C. Wheeler, director; Company C, 169th infantry, Captain Joseph R. Morrison; Garde Sacred Heart, St. Mary's parish, Captain Arthur Vertefeuille; Boy Scout troops, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 and the Girls' Scout troop No. 1 of the First Congregational church; World war veterans, Captain (Dr.) W. P. S. Keating; A. C. Tyler camp No. 8, U. S. W. V., Commander Joseph Guilford; Francis S. Long post, No. 30, G. A. R., Judge Advocate James Haggerty in charge, in the absence of Commander A. P. Benner, who is ill in a Hartford hospital; Woman's Relief corps; A. C. Tyler auxiliary No. 14, U. S. W. V.; Mary Todd Lincoln tent No. 15, Daughters of Veterans.

Rev. F. C. Williams delivered the afternoon oration before hundreds of people who covered the entire side of a knoll, in the center of the cemetery, at the top of which the speaker stood. James Haggerty presented the speaker of the day, also Captain Fenton, who pleaded that the impressive exercises might be perpetuated throughout the years to come. The procession moved from the burying grounds in the same order as it had entered to dirges by the bands.

The Civil war veterans who participated in the ceremonials were: Judge Advocate James Haggerty, 18th Connecticut; Timothy Dillon, 3rd Rhode Island Regt.; George Herrick, 12th Conn.; Adam Duntz, 159th, New York; John Lennon, 1st Artillery; Joseph Slater, 14th Conn., and Dennis Shea, Navy. Comrade John Hoey, veteran of the navy of the Spanish-American war, was in charge of a delegation of members of the auxiliary, who carried out the customary service to the departed sailors at the Willimantic river. For the daily program Ollie Rock was flag bearer and the guards were, Walter McNeikie of the navy and Richard Moseley of the army.

Indications point to a continued deadlock in the strike situation at the American Thread company mills as the thirteenth week of the disagreement opens this (Monday) morning. The outstanding step taken by the American Thread company the past few days was to serve personally delivered notices on tenants of the company houses that rents were now due for the occupancy of these tenements. The rents average from $1.75 to $3.50 per week and in some instances have not been paid since the opening of the strike. In other cases the rents are paid to date and it is understood that these tenants were not approached. The presentation of bills was not, however, taken as an order to vacate and strike leaders are conferring with the tenants to study the situation and decide what shall be done in case such an edict is forthcoming. A meeting for that purpose was held at the Polish-American hall Sunday afternoon, with Organizer Miss Mary Kelleher in charge.

A victory is claimed at strike headquarters where information has been secured that the firemen of the three mills of the American Thread company plant in Holyoke, Mass., have succeeded in obtaining a restoration of the 10 per cent. wage cut, which was effective through the entire textile world last January. Horace Riviere, national organizer, reports that he has confirmed this information, which was at first accepted as a rumor. The concern's plant at Holyoke is in three units, the American Thread mills, the Merrick mills and the Hadley mills, employing three sets of firemen all of whom are members of the Holyoke Stationary Firemen's union. The leaders state that eight weeks ago this union requested that the firemen employed by the concern receive a restoration of the 10 per cent. wage. This, the informer states was done two weeks ago, in addition to restoring back time over a period of six weeks, thereby covering a general restoration of eight weeks. "We claim victory by virtue of this information," stated Miss Kelleher Sunday, "as it shows that the company is weakening in spots and is ready to make concessions provided that they can, for the present, be done in the utmost secrecy, such as was attempted in the case of these firemen."

The number of clerical employes who have joined the striking ranks rather than return to former positions in machinery departments is given at between thirty and thirty-five by the strikers. Asked regarding the firmness of the strikers' ranks, Miss Kelleher stated that it was very likely that a number of those returning to work this (Monday) morning would be slightly increased, possibly between eight and ten. In reply to another question she replied, "No, this does not hurt our cause. These people who are now working took part in the general exodus from the mills, in most cases, but they were never among us. They were never really strikers and never attended mass meetings or any other meeting."

Fred Boucher of this city was arrested late Sunday afternoon on a charge of intoxication. Another case to be heard in police court this (Monday) morning will be that of Vincent Latusek of this city, arrested by Motorcycle Officer Bombria when detected breaking the speed laws on Lower Main street. He is charged with reckless driving.

The Paige sedan owned by Harold Adams of Warehouse Point and a Franklin touring car owned and operated by George W. Hobby, of Eagleville, came together and were considerably damaged at 7.35 Saturday night, corner of Main and Bank Sts. Hobby drove out of Bank street and struck the sedan. He assumed the responsibility and agreed to settle for all demages.

There was a collision of automobiles at the junction of Valley and Jackson streets, about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon [illegible] Reo touring car driven by Arthur W. Johnson and owned by [illegible] Manuel Alfred Johnson, of Mansfield Center and a Willys-Knight owned and driven by Raymond J. Exley, of 79 West Main street, Rockville, bumped. Both machines were damaged to some extent. In reporting the accident the drivers signified their willingness to settle the matter between themselves.

The funeral of Alice E. Kennerson, eleven months' old daughter of Harold and Annie Smith Kennerson, who died at the home of her parents in South Coventry Thursday night, were held Saturday morning at the house, with burial in St. Mary's cemetery, South Coventry.

The funeral of Leddie Evangeline, two year old daughter of Henry and Eva Bombeck Kelley held from the home of the parents in South Coventry Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, South Coventry, Killourey Brothers had charge of the arrangements.

The cast of "The Whole Town's Talking," excellently presented by the class of 1935, Windham High school, under the direction of Miss Veronica McQuillan, Friday evening in high school auditorium, was as follows: Ethel Simmons, Mary Norton, Chester Binney, Nathan Gatchell, Mrs. Henry Simmons, Betty Muirhead, Henry Simmons, Burt Squires, Roger Shields, Delphia Bouchea, Donald Swift, Wilson Wilmarth, Letty Lythe, Alice Yeomans, Lila Wilson, Margaret Persons, Sally Otis, Phyllis Moran, Sadie Bloom, Edith Fittabile, Annie Jessie Rychling; a taxi driver, Clarence Redman; Mrs. Jackson, Tharsilla Sullivan; girls, Dora Beaulieu, Stella Rychling, Helen German, Marion Bowen, Anna Stygar, Grace Iskiyan. The farce was given a delightfully amusing interpretation, and laughter from the audience was almost continuous. Nathan Gatchell was very good as Chester Binney, Mary Norton, as Ethel, and Alice Yeomans as Letty Lythe, a motion picture actress. Several pieces of new scenery had been purchased by the Dramatic club from a sum voted at the annual Lyceum meeting to be given for that purpose were used for the first time. Charles Redman was business manager, Parker Smith, stage manager and Katherine Smith, property manager for Memorial Day opened at 9:30 in

In the town of Mansfield, services Spring Hill cemetery, Rev. T. H. Jones officiating. At the same hour services were conducted in Atwoodville cemetery by Rev. Florence Jones. At eleven the townspeople assembled at the Center church, where all the children from the schools formed for a procession, carrying flowers, under the direction of Mrs. W. R. Davoll. The assembly proceeded to Mansfield Old cemetery where flowers were laid on the graves of the veterans of all the wars, after which a similar commemoration was held in the new cemetery. The following program was carried out under the direction of Rev. T. H. Jones: Opening hymn, America; invocation, Rev Florence Jones; scripture reading, Rev. T. H. Jones; song, "Garlands for the Brave," Edith Grant of Wormwood Hill school, accompanied at the piano by her father; recitation, Stella Nemworth, Chestnut Hill school; recitation "The Blue and the Gray," Reginald Chappell, Mansfield Center school; song, chorus; recitation and song, Althea Davis, Eleanor Barrows, Helen Odea, and Stella Janson, Mansfield Hollow school; recitation, two little girls from Atwoodville school.

"The Mother of a Soldier," the same recitation she had spoken as a child fifty years ago, was given by Mrs. Anne Clark, followed by the Gettysburg address and a short address by Rev. T. T. Jones. The roll call for the dead was very impressively given, as one by one the little children laid bunches of flowers on a large evergreen cross, which stood on the rostrum, as the names of the veterans were called. Mansfield numbers about forty in her tribute of four wars. The remainder of the flowers were banked at the foot of the cross by Miss Blanche Devoll in memory of the unknown dead, and the ceremony closed with "O God, Beneath Thy Guiding Hand."

Memorial Day was observed Saturday afternoon in Columbia under the direction of Raymond Lyman, a veteran of the World War. Services were held at nine o'clock at West Street cemetery, and at ten at the Center. Following the schoo lchildren's parade to the Center, patriotic songs were sung, and a poem was read by Harry Chonwanuch, of Old Hop River school. A short patriotic address was given by the pastor of the Congregational church, Rev. C. H. Haun, after which flowers were laid on the graves by the children, while Taps were sounded by Peter Toloken. After the exercises at the Center, the children marched to the Old cemetery, where the soldier's graves are mostly of the Revolutionary army. Columbia has not a living Civil War veteran, and the duty of the observance of Memorial falls upon the veteran of the Civil War, William Jennings.

In Coventry, observance of the day was by Boy Scouts, No. 4, under the direction of Scoutmaster Edward Zimmerman. The parade formed at School street and proceeded up Main street to the Nathan Hale cemetery, where the soldiers graves were appropriatly decorated, after which the scouts were taken to the Catholic cemetery in a truck loaned by Ernest Woodward and to North Coventry cemetery, where they performed a similar service. The boys presented a fine appearance in their new uniforms, and were applauded on all sides.

Among people from out of town to spend Memorial Day in Hebron were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Basinet, of Hartford; Guerdon Rathbun and family, of Willimantic; Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Ward and daughter, Miss Eunice Porter, Misses Marjorie and Gladys Hough and F. Clarence Bissell, all of Hartford.

The Columbia band played at Memorial Day exercises at Abington Saturday morning, about eighteen members attending, accompanied by a number of friends.

Cat Jumped to Fame

In the Smithsonian Institute in Washington there is a stuffed cat labelled: "This cat on September 23, 1880 jumped from the top of Washington's Monument and lived." The monument at that time was not completed and the cat jumped from a height of about 160 feet, alighted on all fours, lay on the ground for a few minutes and then got up and walked away. The jump was witnessed by quite a few persons who were dismayed when a dog pounced upon the cat a few seconds after it started to walk away and killed it.

The poor people have come into their own in West Bromwich, a suburb of Birmingham, England, where the town council has decided that only people with incomes of less than $1,800 may rent any of the houses owned by the municipality. Complaints had been made that most of the houses were rented to people who own motor cars, and therefore, it was reasoned, could afford to build their own homes. The Bromwich council has built 4,200 houses of five to eight rooms, which rent for about $225 a year.

Back Achy—All Worn Out?

ARE you lame and stiff, tired, nervous and depressed; miserable with backache and sharp twinges of pain?

Then look to your kidneys! Good health depends upon good elimination. But sluggish kidneys allow impurities to accumulate and upset the whole system. Backache is apt to follow; stabbing pains, depressing headaches and dizziness, getting up at night and other annoying kidney irregularities.

Why experiment? If your kidneys are sluggish, why not use Doan's Pills? Doan's is a harmless stimulant diuretic. Used the world over. Ask your neighbor!

HERE IS NORWICH PROOF:

C. I. ALLEN, Stationary Engineer, 395 East Main Street, says: "I was bothered with my kidneys for four months and the doctor told me they were causing the severe lameness in my back. When I bent over it would be quite a few minutes before I could straighten again. Doan's Pills regulated the passages of the secretions and did away with the lameness in my back. The cure Doan's gave me has lasted."

WESTERLY

This (Monday) morning at 9:30 o'clock will be held the June meeting of Westerly Town Council.

Among matters to receive attention will be the adopting of th. Westerly zoning ordinance, following a recent public hearing, which requires a formal vote of the council for adoption. The public hearing showed that there was a sentiment that the members of the proposed zoning board of five members should not be named from the Town Council or other holders of public office or political position. One of the most active members of the council has been active in forming a slate for this board. Among those suggested for members have been Frank A. Sullivan, Arthur L. Perry, Wells R. Fowler, Charles L. Fontana, D. Harold Rogers and C. Palmer Chapman. The board receives its appointment from the council.

With the report of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, there may follow an argument on traffic regulations of automobiles parking and the handling of the jitney privilege. Licensed bus drivers especially the Mooney busses complain of competition between Westerly and Bradford, where no permit has been given by the Rhode Island State Board of Public Roads.

When Health Officer Dr. Samuel C. Webster's report is presented there may com eup complaints of conditions where an obnoxious stench arises from the corner of Railroad avenue and Canal street where a public jitney stand is located. Chief of Police Brown has visited the place and it is said that representations of the conditions there have been reported to the Rhode Island State Board of Public Health.

Action on twenty or twenty-five new buildigs permits will be asked for.

This Monday evening in the rooms of the P. S. Barber Hose Company will be held the meeting of Pawcatuck Fire District of possible petitions, action is to be taken on a proposed zoning law for which authority was given the Pawcatuck Fire District by a recent act of the Connecticut legislature. A committee of three electors of the district is to have charge of proposed changes which include the segregation of the district into business, residential and industrial zones and control of traffic in times of fire, together with numerous attending conditions involved. It is also reported that the purchase of additional equipment for the diartict to fight fires will be requested.

Memorial Day afternoon, two brass cannons were located on the grass plot at the west of the Westerly station of the New Haven road where the gun carriages are bolted to blocks of cement set in the ground. The dedication ceremonies were in charge of Amos P. Chapman Post, Sons of Veterans. The exercises comprised the hauling of the brass howitzers from the Holdredge garage in Pawcatuck to the railroad station grounds. The procession was headed by boy scouts, four in number, with the Westerly Highland Pipers Band, followed by the committee, Richard J. Rooney, Charles Witter and Robert Knight. Then came the howitzer "1861" with its girl and boy escorts, then the "1812" cannon and the members of Chapman post Sons of Veterans. Arriving at the station grounds the ordnance was wheeled into position with the "62" gun nearer Canal street. Exercises at the station grounds included a prayer by Rev. Marvin S. Stocking, introduction of the dedication speaker, Ida May Clark, by R. J. Rooney. The selection by the Kiltie Band and closing by Rev. Mr. Stocking. The brass howitzers are inscribed "12 P d P. Boat Howitzer, 1863, J. A. D., Dahlgren, U. S. N. Y. Washington, No. 99 432 lbs. 30 pre heavy 12 pd. No. 154 on the brass barrel and on the other "1872," M. S. Dahlgren 181, 425 lbs. heavy 12 pd. No. 154. The guns are plugged with wooden blocking.

Pawcatuck Fire Department responded to two fire alarms over the Memorial day week end and speedy arrival of the members of the P. S. Barber Hose company prevented serious loss. Fire alarm Box No. 36, corner of Mechanic street and Mystic avenue, was sounded shortly before ten o'clock Saturday night, by the whistle alarm on C. B. Cottrell & Sons Company's shop, for a fire in the shed off Mechanic street, just below the William Clark Mill of the American Thread company, in which was a newly painted automobile also a pipe organ, the property of George W. Holland. The Barber truck laid two lines of hose from a hydrant, which took about 1,800 feet, all there was in the truck, and the stream was directed upon the blazing automobile, which was badly burned. Some of the water flooded the pipe organ on which Mr. Holland had been working, damazing it to some extent. It is estimated that the damage amounted to $800.

About 3:45 o'clock Sunday afternoon Pawcatuck whistle alarm from box 65, Hillimen avenue, near Brick Mill brought out the P. S. Barber Hose company. The cause was a chimney fire in the house, 84 Stillman avenue, to the upper tenement of which Angelo Sanguedalce had moved recently. A rubbish fire in the stove ignited the chimney. Forty gallons of chemicals were poured into the chimney by the firemen in charge of Engineer Pierce Morrison, before the flames were out. The firemen returned to the hose house after an hour's duty.

The Biltmore lunch cart building recently gutted by fire, at the west end of the Pawcatuck River bridge, has been moved back toward the river a distance of three or four feet. The building has been located on wooden posts set in the ground as the original wheel spokes on which the former wagon stood had rotted away. The proposed widening of the west approach to the bridge can now be carried out when several feet of the sidewalk is taken into the adjoining highway on West Broad street.

Two automobile loads of fans from Westerly attended the double-header game between the Braves and Brooklyn in Boston Memorial day. Among those in the party were Edward Larkin, Francis McMahon, C. J. Murphy, Daniel Sullivan, Daniel Ryan, Edward Ferrare, Pierce A. Morrison, Michael Shea, Edward Keegan and John Sullivan.

The program for Kingdom Enlistment week, conducted by Rev. McDaniel Howsare, follows: Sunday evening: Sermon, "The Human Agency in Soul Winning."

Tuesday evening ("First School Night"): Sermon, "The Ninety and Nine Plus One."

Wednesday evening ("Distribution night"): Sermon, "Changing Our Attitude Toward Christ."

Thursday evening ("Church night") Sermon, "The Struggle Out of Darkness Into Light."

Friday evening ("Young People's night"): Sermon, "The Lure of Life Service."

Saturday evening ("Denominational night"): Sermon, "Some Glimpses, Past, Present and Future."

Sunday morning (Recention of New Members): Sermon, "The Gracious Invitation and the Glorious Reception."

Transfer of real estate in Westerly for the past week has been rather brisk and undoubtedly anticipated Tuesday, June 16, when at noon time the Westerly tax assessors close their book and all transfers after that date will not be found in the "Westerly Tax Book for 1935," but a whole year later.

In the office of the Westerly town clerk, for the past few days there have been recorded the following:

May 27. Alice H. Burnett, Mary L. Howard, of Hartford, and Julia H. Bush, of Troy, N. Y., to Tristram D. Babcock, of Avondale, a strip of land on the north side of Larkin road, Watch Hill. Elizabeth R. Chester to Antonio Croci and wife, Mary Croci, a parcel of land, No. 6, east side of York avenue. Heirs of Alzeda A. Saunders to Solomon Soloveitzik and wife, a lot of land, No. 57, at Pleasant View beach. Maynard Land company to Arthur G. Campbell and Anna M. Campbell, his wife, lots Nos. 40, 41 and 42, Melrose Heights.

May 28. Samuel H. Davis to Francis Cronin, of East Boston, a parcel or plot of land, No. 42, Clark avenue, Pleasant View. Maynard Land company to Wayland E. Chapman, lots Nos. 118, 119, 120, 121, Melrose Heights.

May 29. Eben S. Cleveland, of Webster, Mass., and Frank C. Smith, Jr., of Worcester, Mass., executors of the estate of Eben S. Stevens, of Dudly, Mass., two lots or parcels of land with buildings, at Weekapaug beach, to Eben S. Cleveland, of Eben S. Cleveland, of Webster, Mass., and Frank C. Smith, Jr., of Worcester, Mass., as executors of the estate of Eben S. Stevens, of Dudly, Mass., to Gertrude O. S. Cleveland, of Webster, a parcel of land with buildings, at Weekapaug beach.

Mr. and Mrs. William Coughlin and family, of Norwich, were week-end visitors at their cottage at Pleasant View.

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Nichols and daughter Margaret, of Providence, were week-end visitors with Westerly relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Smith, of Pawtucket, R. I., have arrived at their Pleasant View cottage for the season.

Mrs. Mary S. Crafts, of Providence, formerly of Westerly, has been at her Pleasant View cottage during the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Revere E. Clapp, of Newark, N. J., arrived in Westerly Memorial day morning to be the guests of relatives and friends.

Ex-Governor and Mrs. Henry Roberts, of Hartford, will take up their summer residence the middle of this month at "Pass cottage," Newaun road, Watch Hill. John T. Roberts will be their guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Salb and child, of Pawtucket, were at their Pleasant View cottage over the holiday week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy H. Saunders and son, of Providence, were automobile visitors with friends at Pleasant View over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wills and family are passing June near the Atlantic beach casino.

Lorin N. Gavitt, after a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles O Gavitt, in Westerly, left Saturday for Philadelphia.

Dr. Fritz J. Swanson, of New York, has been at his summer home at Shelter Harbor near Haversham, during the past week.

Austin B. Taylor, of Hartford, and Howard W. Taylor, of Providence, were guests of Westerly relatives during the week.

Mrs. William B. Senior, of Pawcatuck, left Westerly Memorial day for Boston to meet her sister, Miss Evangeline M. Atkinson, of Cape Sable Island, Nova Scotia, who arrived on the boat from Yarmouth, and will be the guest of her sister and family in Pawcatuck for the summer.

W. W. Tapley, a former police commissioner of Springfield, Mass., and Mrs. Tapley arrived in Westerly the past week-end by automobile for a short visit at their summer home, "Casa Loma," at Watch Hill.

Capt. and Mrs. Christie McConnell and family, of Westerly, eift this (Monday) morning to pass the next few months at their summer home at Lord's Point.

Mr. and Mrs. William McLaughlin and two sons, of New York city, are guests of relatives and friends in Westerly and Pawcatuck.

Charles E. Redford and son Charles, of New London, arrived in Westerly on Sunday morning to join Mrs. Redford in Pawcatuck, where they were week-end guests of relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Babcock, of Plainfield, N. J., were automobile visitors over the week-end at their summer home, "El Reposa," Ocean road, Watch Hill.

John H. Gavitt was the Memorial day vacation visitor in Westerly from Avon, where he has been employed as a stonecutter in the erection of school buildings there.

Mrs. M. C. Darrach, of Hopkinton, N. H., is the guest of her sister, Mrs. C. Byron Cottrell, in Westerly.

Dr. and Mrs. C. F. Erickson, of New Britain, have been visitors at their cottage at Pleasant View.

Thomas E. Fiddler made a week-end visit at Boothbay Harbor, Me.

Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Davis, daughters Ruth and Virginia, have returned to Westerly, after a week-end visit in Stockbridge, Mass.

Justice Ledyard S. Anthony held a lengthy session of North Stonington town court Friday morning, which lasted from 10 until after 12 o'clock. The case was Calvin D. Collins vs. William H. Partelo, in which the plaintiff sought to recover one lumber gear, valued at $35, which the defendant was alleged to have had by a conditional bill of sale, the conditions of which had been broken.

Collins was represented by Attorney E. W. Perkins of Norwich, while Clarence E. Roche of Westerly represented the defendant. Appearing also for the plaintiff was Orrin Swain and the plaintiff himself, in seeking to replevin the lumber gear the plaintiff was unable to learn its whereabouts and as the defendant had not divulged the same, the suit followed. After much evidence had been put in lengthy arguments were made by the lawyers.

Justice Anthony said that the dates and evidence presented was so conflicting that he would reserve decision.

Easy to handle

In the press of traffic, the driver of a Ford car experiences little strain and effort.

He finds that its simplified control and quick get-away enable him to thread the crowded thoroughfares with an ease that only a Ford can give.

He finds that the problem of parking, which proves so serious in a large city, is of little consequence to him because of the simplicity with which a Ford may be maneuvered back and forth into a very small space.

Many owners of larger cars use a Ford for daily city driving because of its easy control. Good will towards this car is increasing year after year because it has proved from the first to be a sound motoring investment for everyone.

RESULTS OF EXPERIMENTS IN THE USE OF LIME

During the past year a great deal has been said about the necessity of using lime for the economic production of clover and alfalfa hays. Apparently it has been assumed that other extensively grown major farm crops—corn and oats, have no need for lime. It is true that these crops show no such response to lime as is shown by clover or alfalfa. Yet many trials have shown lime to increase the yield of both. For example, Maryland secured an increase in corn amounting to 17.8 per cent; Ohio 19.6 per cent; Virginia, 27.5 per cent, and Indiana, 40.9 per cent. Oats usually show less response than corn. When the range in crop response to lime is from 0 to 5, it has been estimates that the response of corn is 2 1-2 and of oats 1 1-2.

One is led to inquire why these crops, that as crops show but small response to lime, give marked larger yields on limed land. Doubtless there are several explanations for the increase. The most obvious one lies in the fact that clover has grown on the land. This crop leaves some nitrogen in the soil in its roots and the residue returned to the land as barnyard manures still further increase the nitrogen supply used both by corn and oats.

However, the addition of air nitrogen is not the entire explanation of the benefits obtained. The clover residues supply the stupendous soil germ life with palatable food. The germs in turn leave certain by-products in the soil, harmful both to themselves and to crops growing on the land. Yet these by-products are capable of great helpfulness to the crop if lime is present. One by-or-waste-product of certain bacteria is nitric acid, which in large amounts would be harmful to crops and fatal to the major part of the bacteria producing it. Yet when lime is present this strong acid is converted into calcium nitrate — one of the most beneficial corn nutrients we have.

Specifically then lime is essential to neutralize the toxins produced in the life processes of the germs in the soil. It concerts certain detrimental products into beneficial plant nutrients. The processes of ammonification, nitrification and nitrogenfixation —both symbolic and non-symbiotic, proceed in a desirable way when the soil is properly limed. Too much lime may kill the germs while too little may prevent their proper development. A good growth of corn and oats is indicative of satisfactory amounts of lime in the soil. The lime residue is still in the land ready for the following crops. It follows then that liming corn and oats land is a desirable practice. Benefits to these crops may be expected. The seedbed preparation for each offers a satisfactory time to thoroughly incorporate the lime into the surface layer of soil to plow depth, which can not be done on turf land. Finally, the much to be desired clover that follows either corn or oats finds a seedbed neutralized and of the proper alkaline reaction to meet its needs.—Henry Dorsey in Connecticut Agricultural College Review.

ENCOURAGING THE ASPARAGUS

Asparagus and rhubarb get up into the world this spring before gardeners fairly had a chance to give them the usual spring treatment of salt for the former and manure for the latter. Asparagus is being cut now in many gardens an unusually early date for it to be out of the ground and in full bearing in northern states while rhubarb is already unfolding its crinkled leaves and getting well on the way towards pies and stewed rhubarb.

Despite the fast that an early spring started these two perennials of the vegetable garden into early growth they should not be neglected because of their early appearance. Give the asparagus bed a dressing of nitrate of soda to encourage fast growth and juicy, tender stalks.

The nitrate looks like dirty rock salt and when it comes from the dealers is likely to be lumpy. Break up the lumps and salt the asparagus bed with it but sprinkle it lightly, about half the quantity of a light rock-salt dressing. Scatter it at least six inches from the hills so it will not come in contact with the shoots.

Give the rhubarb the same treatment.

Usually the asparagus gets an early spading over. This should not be neglected as the spading and pulverizing of the soil will retain moisture and make the asparagus more tender and more rapid of growth. A light dressing of manure or commercial balanced fertilizer may be applied to good advantage but nitrate is the speedy acting fertilizer and speed is desired with the asparagus. The faster it grows the tenderer it is and the less of tough butt to the stalks that must be discarded.

This is a good time to start new asparagus beds. The one-year-old roots will take hold even more quickly than the two-year-old sizes, but will not come into vigorous bearing so soon. Asparagus seed may be sown now if this method is to be employed. Soak it over night before planting.

STRINGY MILK CAUSED BY FUNGI—MUDDY SPRINGS BAD

During spring and summer there are generally more cases of stringy milk than in the winter months. The cause of this may be fungi developing in the liquid. It is thought that the spores are present in the system of the cow. Muddy springs in the meadow lands from which cows drink, seem to be the general source of these spores. Cows that have become infected have a temperature of one or two degrees higher than the normal. Many times only two or three cows in a herd will be affected at a time. They will get over it after 10 or 15 days and others may come down with it.

Where cows drink from muddy springs should be fenced off, and each cow given daily, two drams of bisulphite of soda. Sometimes thick milk will result in the hot summer weather unless the pails and utensils are kept cleanised and disinfected.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Memorial Day afternoon, at the Chace home, in Pomfret, funeral services for Miss Catherine Sumner were conducted by Rev. Charles A. Downes of Goodyear. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were Ray C. Smith, Ralph Spencer, Edward Spencer and Arthur Peck. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Traffic at its peak and drivers—a small percentage of them—at their worst, were features of the holiday peril motor traffic through this section. Those who impassionately observed how a few drivers operated motor cars—and get away with it—would be mentally strong indeed in denying the existence of a spreme being. Some super-natural force must protect the violator of every rule of the road and every rule of safety to at as many dare fool drivers get by safely as they do get by, not to mention the hazards of life and limb to which they subject other motoring parties by their impossible stunts. Holiday motoring, for many people, has come to be a nightmare.

After having written the foregoing it might seem a bit out of place to mention in the next breath that there was not one arrest in Danielson over the holiday period for violation of the motor vehicle laws, or for any other reason, but such is the fact. The borough police, augmented by extra forces for the period, found nothing to challenge their attention that would warrant arrest. Motor drivers do behave fairly well when they know an officer is about. Chief John McFarland reported Sunday that the holiday had passed without incident.

The officers handled a volume of traffic probably never exceeded in the motor age. Danielson has learned what it is to be a way station on a trunk line. There is a hurly-burly of traffic, but little revenue from it. The boys are heading for the big towns, or shore resorts.

The following relative to a former resident of Abington in the town of Pomfret, and from a week end edition of a Providence paper, is of general interest:

Charles W. Cassidy, 48, of this city, was struck and instantly killed by a city-bound electric Broad street electric car in front of St. Xavier's Academy on Broad street, near Claverick street, last night about 9.25 o'clock. He roomed at 379 Weybosset street, and conducted a plumbing establishment at 753 Eddy street. Neither motorman nor conductor of the trolley was held.

Investigation of the accident showed that the man had stepped into the path of the trolley car, which was stopped almost instantly. Cassidy was knocked down. A crowd of several hundred persons quickly gathered.

Police Station 5 was notified of the accident and Lieut. Parker, Sergt. Colenan and several officers soon arrived, summoning an ambulance from the Rhode Island hospital. Traffic was kept moving by the police.

Dr. Davis T. Gallison with the ambulance, pronounced the man dead. Medical Examiner Clifford H. Griffin, after examination, declared that Cassidy had died from a fractured skull caused by an unavoidable accident, and allowed the body to be removed to local undertaking rooms.

The car was in charge of Motorman Thomas F. Sheehan of 702 Potter avenue and Conductor John T. McKenna of 39 Felix street.

Mr. Cassidy was the son of the late John and Anne Cassidy, who resided at the corner of Admiral and Hawkins streets, where Charles W. Cassidy was born. He is survived by any near relatives his sister having died three years ago. He has a cousin, James Nolan, a lawyer in this city.

Here is something for the people who are careless about addressing letters and putting on information that would lead to a return of their mail, in case of error. And maybe to serve as a warning to those who consider they are careful in handling their outgoing mail.

At this time of the year when most of us a ermore or less concerned in "digging down into our jeens" for the second quarterly installment of our income taxes, we are prone to wonder if there aren't many ways by which the necessity for these taxes could be reduced.

One item of governmental expense which should be nearly possible to totally eliminate is that of $1,740,000 which the post office department disburses, in order to keep the dead letter department functioning.

Here are a few interesting facts recently compiled by the officers of the postmaster general at Washington, D. C., for the express purpose of bringing home to the people of the United States, the great necessity for their co-operation in reducing this cost and at the same time marking one more item off the list of expenses which are no wtied on to the early income tax requirements.

We do not realize that 21,000,000 letters and 853,000 parcels reached the dead letter office at Washington during 1924. 100,000 of these letters were in perfectly blank envelopes; $92,000 was collected for return postage and $67,000 in cash removed fro mun-deliverable and un-returnable envelopes. This money is but a drop in the bucket; the balance must come from taxation.

Beyond all this, the post office department gave directory service to 100,000,000 letters. In other words, they searched directories 200,000,000 times in an earnest endeavor to deliver mis-directed mail. The cost of this service in one city alone averaged $500 a day. As one solution of this big problem, the postmaster general's office proposed the slogan "Every man knows his own address if not that of his correspondent." This vast amount could be saved and the dead letter office abolished if each piece of mail carried a return address, and if each parcel were wrapped in stout paper and tied with strong cord.

Another suggestion which has been offered is that correspondents refer to late editions of city directories whenever an address is questionable. This can be done by referring to libraries of city directories that are maintained throughout the United States and Canada.

Sunday evening at St. James' church there was the annual May ceremony of the crowning of the Blessed Virgin and the reception of new members into the society, an annual event of interest to hundreds of members of the parish.

"Doc" Oatley a famous trout fisherman hereabouts when the average devotee of rod and reel of today had not arrived in this vale of tears, or had he arrived, was still in knickers, brought in a real trout Saturday. The beautiful fish was 17 inches in length, weighed two pounds and three ounces and stands at the head of all the offerings made up to this first day of June for the award that will be made at the end of this month for the best trout of the season caught hereabouts. Doc Oatley has set another mark for the youngsters to shoot at.

Memorial Day exercises were carried out here Saturday as in neighboring communities, in accord with the programmes previously announced. Sunday afternoon at Dayville the annual Memorial Day exercises were held with a large number participating.

Graduation exercises, just ahead, are now claiming the attention of teachers and pupils in the schools of Killingly.

Nearly an inch of rain fell in the thunderstorms of Saturday afternoon and evening, a welcome addition to the water supply, but not at all pleasing to thousands who had programes for the holiday.

Mrs. Leonard J. Richards of Broad street is to sail in a few days for a summer holiday in England and Wales.

Rudolph Rieter of 2062 63th street, Brooklyn, N. Y., had his wrist broken when a closed Buick he was driving skidded on Dark Lantern Hill, Friday. The car shot up an embankment and stood practically perpendicular where the front end mixed up with some telephone wires. Rictor's wife, son and daughter, who were with him, escaped without injury of any serious nature. The battered car was towed to a Danielson garage. The Ricter accident is believed to have been due to a too quick application of the brakes. Another car that came along just after the Rieter wreck dished a wheel in trying to stop going down the hill.

PUTNAM

Although there was no parade or other public service on Memorial Day the graves of soldiers and sailors in the Putnam cemeteries were decorated each with flowers and a small American flag. T. H. deCoudres as chairman of the Chamber of Commerce committee and Dr. E. R. Perry, representing the former service men, looked after the details of the observance. Under their direction twenty Y. M. C. A. boys assembled at St. Mary's cemetery at 9 o'clock and visited all the soldiers' graves there, at 9:30 the same ceremony was carried out at the Grove Street cemetery. At 10 o'clock, at the soldiers' monument, the Sons of Veterans paid tribute to the memory of Putnam soldiers who died in the service, but who are not buried here.

As originally given out, there were only ten names on the list of the survivors of the war between the states. To this list should be added the name of John Whitney of Farrow street and Alfred Loveley, of Woodstock avenue. Mr. Whitney has been blind for several years and has not been able to take part in Memorial exercises. Although he has lived in Putnam for twenty-five years, it was known to only a few that Mr. Lovely was a Civil War veteran.

A shower was given Miss Germaine Fredette, of Mill street in honor of her approaching marriage with Eugene J. B. Cartier of Maynard street. During the evening, cake, lemonade and candy were served. Games and music proved entertaining. Miss Fredette was presented a handsome chest of silver. Those present were Miss Rita Lebeau, Miss Una St. Onge, Miss Pauline Dusseault, Miss Edna Dubois, Miss Juliette Pechie, Miss Jeanette Lacroix, Miss Rose Durocher, Miss Emma Robillard, Miss Gracia Morel, Miss Antonia Guerin, Miss Rita Rivard, Miss Bella Bertrand, Miss Bernadette Cartier, Miss Celia Laflamme, Miss Leosa Benoit, Miss Alboma Leon, Miss Alice McEvoy, Miss Estelle Benoit, Miss Irene Beausoliel, Miss Ella Bouthillette, Miss Flora Morin, Miss Marie Louise Guerin and Miss Ena Fredette.

The annual county convention of the Windham County League of Women Voters is to be held at the Community house in East Woodstock Thursday, June 4. It woill be an all day affair with a business meeting, followed by a luncheon. In the afternoon at 1:30, Howard Bradstreet will speak on "Immigration" and Miss Alice Hunt of Providence, who has just returned from abroad, will talk of "An American's Experience in Geneva." The meeting is public.

Mrs. Leon T. Wilson attended the semi-annual celebration at Wellesley College.

The Woman's Relief Corps celebrated its 36th anniversary in a Rally Day and each member was permitted to invite a guest. The Department president and staff visitors from Danielson and a few veterans were special guests. At the close of the meeting an entertainment committee, Mrs. Emil Benoit and Mrs. G. E. Monroe, provided the following programme: Reading, Mrs. Harry Prentice; remarks by department officers; balloon dance, Miss Charlotte G. McCulloch; music by the Israel Putnam Band, Miss Gertrude Warner leader; talk by Rev. N. B. Burton on the Civil War from 1861 to 1865; two plays "The Train to Mauro" and "Servant Wanted" by the Putnam Heights school children under the direction of Mrs. Ruby Davison; song, Mrs. Emil Benoit with Miss Gertrude Warner at the piano and violin obligato by Mrs. Charles L. Torrey; reading, Miss Bertha Hall; toe dance, Miss Ednear Guy. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Edna Guy. Refreshments were served by a committee with Mrs. Hattie Miller as chairman. A large birthday cake was cut.

Alfred Gagne and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Tetreault leav today (Monday) for an automobile trip to the Pacific coast and expect to be gone for several months. They will make the trip across the continent by a northern route to Portland, Oregon, and will arrive at San Francisco at the time the Elks' national convention is in session.

Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. Howard James will leave for the Pacific coast. They are going with a possibility of locating in California, if they like the western country.

Rev. Charles F. Bedard has gone to Quebec to visit his father and other relatives and from there he will go to Montreal to join a party of pilgrims to Rome and the Holy See. The party will sail on the Magnetic of the White Star line and will be gone about three months. This is Holy Year and since the first of January many such pilgrimages have been made from this country. Father Bedard is the first pastor from Windham County section to make the pilgrimage. Since coming to Putnam, Father Bedard has worked hard in building up St. Mary's flourishing parish and his parishioners and other friends hope that the trip will prove beneficial to him physically as well as spiritually. The pilgrims will be received by the Pope.

Mrs. Eleanor Babbitt has returned to her home at Meriden, after a visit with her sister, Mrs. Clarence Heath.

Mr. and Mrs. William Crawford of Lexington, Mass., spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Byron Howard.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Nash of Webster, Mass., spent Memorial Day with Mr. and Mrs. Newton A. Ballard.

Miss Ellen Dolan and Miss Margaret Dolan spent the week end with relatives in Providence.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanton Ballard of Reading, Mass., spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Newton A. Ballard.

A metal cap for soft drink bottles that may be pried off with a coin or knife has been invented.

Many French Women Are Discarding French Soaps

Palmolive Soap is one of the two largest selling toilet soaps in France today ..... Note this if beauty is your aim

THIS is published in the interest of women who seek the finest that money can buy to foster good complexions. And to guard beauty seekers against a grave and costly mistake.

You may be tempted by "French" claims for soap. Yet in France itself Palmolive leads as a beauty soap. You may be asked to "try" an ordinary soap on your skin.

If a good complexion is your aim, watch out! Note that in France, the home of cosmetics, French soaps by the score have given way to Palmolive. French women have found it their ideal of a soap. In Paris, Palmolive is the "imported" soap.

In old days, women were told, "Use no soap on your faces." Because soaps were too harsh.

Then Palmolive came; a soap secretly blended of cosmetic oils famous since the days of Cleopatra; a soap made to be used freely, lavishly on the skin.

Women tried Palmolive. And found amazing results. Palmolive quickly became the leading toilet soap of the world. It is one of the two largest selling soaps in France today. French women gladly pay almost twice the price for it that you pay. And often three times the price of their own "French soaps."

That is because Palmolive is a unique creation based on 60 years of soap study. A soap made for ONE purpose ONLY—to foster good complexions. It is made by experts in beauty—more than merely good soapmakers—to guard your complexion and charm.

Don't expect Palmolive results from "French" soaps. Don't expect them from ordinary soaps, or from "medicated" soaps. No ordinary soap can bring them. Protect your good complexion by using a soap made to protect it.

Palmolive is not recommended for laundry work, or even for fine fabrics. To make it good for those things, its cosmetic qualities would need be much reduced. And fine complexions are too precious to be endangered thus.

There are soaps at 25 cents and over that approach Palmolive in complexion results. We know of two. But Palmolive sells at 10 cents . . . no more than ordinary soap. Enormous production brings you this modest cost.

Wash, cleanse, launder with any soap you wish. But when beauty is at stake, use Palmolive, a soap you know is safe to use. It is nature's formula to "Keep That Schoolgirl Complexion."

THE PALMOLIVE COMPANY
(Del. Corp.)

For Germs

Soaps to "destroy" germs should be used only by advice of a physician. All soaps "remove" germs to a certain degree. Palmolive will "remove" germs as well as any soap safe for toilet use.

The real difference in soaps is in their action on your skin. Some are too harsh, others crudely blended. Palmolive Soap is a unique creation, a blend of rare cosmetic oils; a soap made for ONE purpose only, to foster good complexions. Don't expect Palmolive complexion results from any strong "medicated" soap, from any "jack-of-all-trades" soap, from any soap claiming alike for fabric washing and the skin.

Soap from Trees

The only oils in Palmolive Soap are the soothing beauty oils from the olive tree, the African palm and the coconut palm—and no other fats whatsoever.

That is why Palmolive Soap is the natural color that it is—for palm and olive oils, nothing else, give Palmolive its green color!

Note carefully

TODAY'S ELECTION

Individually and collectively the republican ticket places before the voters today candidates who are worthy, men who are well known and in most instances citizens who have had experience in the very work in which they will be engaged if elected.

Norwich wants progressive, active and efficient office holders. It wants men who will put the welfare of the community before that of the individual and who will insist upon an economic administration of city affairs. It wants men of affairs who are personally interested in good government and the conduct of city business on sound principles. It wants officials who will cater not to a few sections but to all of them, officials who will insist upon the running of the city as a successful corporation would be run and whose main purpose will be results that will react to the whole city's betterment.

Getting what is needed and desired in the way of city officials and city betterment rests with the voters. It isn't brought about by staying at home. It is necessary for the voters to get to the polls and stand by the candidates who can be relied upon to promote and produce good government.

The make up of the republican ticket as presented above justifies pulling the republican lever today and electing those who stand ready to give the city first class service. It is a time to move for a reduction of expenditures, the lowering of taxation and the rolling up of a vote that will give substantial expression to the attitude of the citizens. The movement has been so long in the other direction that it is time for the voters to get to the polls and insist upon having a hand in their own affairs.

It is well to remember today that the polls will open at seven a. m., standard, or eight a. m., daylight, and close at 7 p. m. standard, or 8 p. m. daylight.

That means that there will be time for all to vote. Make the most of it. Vote early and vote right.

BETTER MAILING WEEK

It is worthwhile to remember that Better Mailing week opens today, that it is being fostered by the postoffice department and that it is intended to make the postal service better.

This is an effort to get all users of the mail to do something for themselves. It is an appeal to the writers of letters to make unnecessary the huge expense of trying to locate persons addressed, when either the name or the address is wrong, to get their misdirected mail back by putting the writer's name in the upper left hand corner.

The postoffice department doesn't pretend to employ mind readers. The best they can do is to try to deliver letters as directed, and there certainly should be sufficient interest on the part of the individual to have his mail reach its destination to write plainly, use the right address with street and number and affix a return address.

With 21,000,000 sent to the dead letter office last year, 803,000 packages and 100,000 letters sent in blank envelopes, it becomes evident that there is an opportunity for those who use the mails to join heartily in the aims of Better Mailing week. With more than $3,000,000 in money, checks, drafts, money orders and postage taken from letters which cannot be delivered and with the dead letter office costing about $2,000,000 to maintain there is a chance for some real saving to be done by those who write letters if they will but exercise a little care in keeping with the request of the postoffice department, which seeks to overcome the vast amount of carelessness. It is to be realized that it is a matter which rests with the individual.

THE WRIGHT PLANE

From such statements as was made by Orville Wright last month the impression was gained that he had definitely decided to present his original production to a British museum, that such decision was final and that the airplane that first carried a man would be lost to the country where it was constructed.

According to the latest expression it is not exactly right Mr. Wright has promised the plane to a museum across the water, but only for a five year period so that it will be possible to regain possession of it, and it is even hinted that if some agreement can be reached concerning the Langley plane and a clear statement secured regarding the respective claims for the Langley and the Wright planes that there is a good chance to prevent placing it in a British museum, or at least to recover it after a period of display there.

It has been evident throughout that the manner in which the Langley plane, now in the Smithsonian institution, is labeled has been the cause of the entire controversy concerning the Wright plane. Had the former not borne the claim that it was the "first flying machine capable of carrying a man" but labeled solely for what it was there would have been no thought of placing the Wright plane elsewhere for preservation. There is no question about the Wright plane being the first machine to carry man, but inasmuch as it was the first there is resentment over the inference that the Langley plane could have done as much before the Wright plane actually did it.

It is gratifying to learn that Mr. Wright has not unalterably decided on the disposition of his first plane. With a little diplomacy the way should be opened for the settlement of the controversy and the retention of the plane in this country where it was developed and served as the basis for present day airplanes.

The polls will be open in the four city districts today from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m., daylight time.

THE PRESIDENT AT ARLINGTON

In his Memorial day address at Arlington President Coolidge used the occasion to call the attention of the states to the importance of looking properly after their own problems and at the same time he aimed a powerful blow at the tendency which has been increasing of trying to get a centralization of too much government at Washington which should be handled elsewhere.

There are responsibilities which states must meet and when he said "what we need is not more federal government but better local government" he pointed out a situation which needs emphasizing. Likewise when he insisted that "we shall not correct admitted and grave defects if we hesitate to recognize them" he was calling attention to a laxity in law enforcement which is contributing to disrespect for law and making a farce of government. Without a doubt much of it, as claimed, is due to a carelessness, but the situation is nevertheless made worse by it. It all contributes to the making of more laws, quite the same as the failure of states to handle problems which are publicly demanded but which through failure to act are thrown over onto the federal government.

The president has done well to call the attention of the states to the fact that they should assume the handling of their own affairs, and as might be expected he took occasion to point out the responsibility of the states to tackle the cutting of taxes in as serious and effective a manner as the federal government has. Prohibition and federal road aid were mentioned by him as instances of lack of respect for law and dependence upon the federal government for what should be handled by the states.

THE NEW HAVEN JURY

Throughout Connecticut there will be endorsement of the move which has been made by New Haven county bar for an investigation of [illegible] ner in which one member of the Macri jury was treated in and [illegible] juryroom. This case attracted widespread interest because of its character. Whatever may be thought of the verdict, and whether it meets with approval or not, it is recognized that any member of a jury is entitled to respect, that he is entitled to his convictions and has a right to stand by them.

Because one juryman stood for conviction when the others were for acquittal and resorting to a lot of spectacular and unimpressive efforts, does not justify the efforts to hold him up to ridicule or the disclosures in regard to what took place in the juryroom.

The members of the bar are cognizant of what such conduct is bound to mean upon jury [illegible] in the future and appreciates the fact that if jurors cannot stand by their conviction without being held up to improper treatment it is time that the situation was carefully looked into.

A jury is expected to do its duty. It is expected to weigh the evidence and to fix the guilt or the innocence under the law. It isn't expected that jurymen are going to be stampeded and driven to declare black is white when they believe to the contrary. The action of the bar association is certainly timely and needed, and it is to be hoped that it will have the effect of preventing any further demonstrations of the kind which followed the Macri trial.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Election day and everyone who can get there should go to the polls early and vote.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Serve boiled cauliflower with cheese sauce.

Woodenware should not be placed near the fire to dry, as it will crack.

The clinging odor of fish to dishes and cooking utensils may be removed by adding a few teaspoonsfuls of vinegar to the dishwater.

Make a funnel out of a piece of wrapping paper for pouring sugar, tea, coffee and cereals into their proper receptacles. These funnels prevent waste.

Where economy has to be considered it is advisable to buy half-bleached linen. This is much stronger than bleached and soon becomes perfectly white with washing.

Panama hats should be washed in a warm castile soap lather to which a few drops of ammonia have been added. Rinse well in tepid water, using a soft nail brush and rub dry with a soft rag.

A little glycerine poured about the neck of a glass stopper that refuses to come from a bottle, usually lifts it out, particularly if you will let it stand for a while.

To clean papered ceilings mix two cups of flour with cold water to a stiff paste. Roll into a ball with dry flour and rub the ceiling. As the paste grows dirty dip in fresh flour, and when finished dust the ceiling with a soft duster.

Instead of lining the drawers in a cupboard with paper, give them a coat of good white paint. This is much nicer than paper, and when cleaning is necessary all that is required is to wipe them with a damp cloth.

Beeswax or mutton suet may be rubbed around boots and shoes in wet weather to keep out the dampness. To preserve kid shoes rub them at night with a little petroleum jelly and polish them in the morning. The treatment applies to patent leather.

When making marmalade or jam cut rounds of tissue paper the size of the jars. Soak each separately in vinegar and lay close over the top of the preserve. Then cover in the usual way. This will prevent it from becoming moldy.

ADD YEARS TO LINOLEUM

The life of linoleum is greatly lengthened if it is varnished just as soon as it is placed on the floor. This is particularly true of printed linoleum. It is well to varnish it once each year or as soon as the varnish appears to be wearing off. Before applying the varnish, the linoleum should be washed well with soap and water and thoroughly dried. A second coat should not be applied until the first is dry. Inlaid linoleum may be treated the same way.—The Delineator.

THE NEW BROOM

Before buying the new broom press it down firmly on the floor. If the straws remain firm the broom is all right, but if they spread out and bend do not purchase it.

PREPARED IN ADVANCE

Frequently a great deal of Sunday's dinner can be prepared on Saturday afternoon to take away some of the stress of going to church and having a nice Sunday dinner at the same time.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

An adult usually requires eight hours of sleep every night.

Poultices, fomentations or immersion of a painful part in hot water are all useful to relieve pain caused by infection or inflamation.

For a headache temporary relief may be obtained by refraining from eating and lying down in a darkened room with cool cloths on the head and a mild mustard plaster on the back of the neck.

Green vegetables provide the necessary bulk and act as a stimulant to the stomach and intestines when taken into the stomach with other food. The leafy green vegetables such as celery, kale, chard, spinach, cabbage and brussels sprouts are extremely good for one and celery should never be slighted.

When there is bleeding from an accident or blow heat is likely to increase the bleeding, though sometimes it does not. Ice is usually better to stop bleeding than heat. This is when the bleeding assumes the nature of a hemorrhage. Otherwise, for superficial injuries, hot compresses are useful.

THE HOME NURSE

The home nurse has to exercise the greatest tact. If this is expected of the trained nurse, it is even more necessary in the home nurse, for the reasons already given. She has to gain her ends without antagonizing the patient. Anything that ruffles a sick person or which makes her nervous is unfortunate, and sometimes disastrous. A nurse, whether a professional or not, should have a soothing personality. She should never appear to be hurried that she may get to other duties. She should not rock in the sick room nor whisper, nor should she talk in a low voice just outside the patient's room. If the patient is very ill the sound may be disturbing. If she is convalescing she will unconsciously try to hear, and be able to catch only enough of the conversation, probably, to pique the curiosity or to be mentally disquieting. Such a conversation may be about her, and if so it is apt to be something she should not hear.

V-SHAPED POWDER PUFF

The latest powder puff being included in the smartest handbags and toilet cases is V-shaped. This contruction enables the bearer to apply the powder below the eyes without distributing it broadcast over all her features.

PARIS FAVORS THE KID SHOE

Champagne-tinted kid, as delicate in color and texture as glove glace kid, is the all-important shoe fashion in Paris at the moment. A favorite type of shoe for practical wear is a pump covering the instep and bordered with a wide band of doeskin, usually of the same color as the rest of the shoe. Patent leather and brown kid often are combined with brown doeskin.

QUAINT WINDOW SHADE

Flowered chintz on formal patterns makes the most fascinating shade for a country house, especially if the furniture in the room is painted or of an early American maple in quaint old-fashioned designs.

KEEPS FLOWERS FRESH

A large glass bowl placed over a floral table decoration between meals keeps the flowers from wilting.

DICTATES OF FASHION

English broadcloth is very much liked for sport and house dresses.

The scarf that ties over the left shoulder with flowing ends is very smart.

The cape back is featured on all types of frocks, particularly those for evening when the cape is of very delicate lace or spangled tulle.

Delightful little frocks with tight bodices and wide full skirts are made of black taffeta, a material which fashion once more regards with considerable favor.

A bag which reflects the vogue for printed materials is made of a printed chiffon handkerchief in the gayest colors. It is lined with silk and attached to a frame so that the four corners make a petal decoration.

Refined colors are the new offerings for next fall and winter, and will be shown in stripes, checks, modernized plaids, and in solid colors.

The unquestioned vogue for stripes now influences the newest lingerie seen in smart shops. On a pale flesh or beige background, wide stripes of variegated colors are printed.

The range of promising colors for evening wear runs thus: Porcelain and cerulean blues, rose pinks, wild rose, shrimp, pale mint green, water green, pearl gray, apricot, orchids, pale violets and champagne.

The square scarf of plain or printed silk is now folded diagonally and wrapped close about the throat, crossing the ends at the back and bringing them forward, tying them in a four-in-hand knot.

A fashion which comes from Europe but has met with general acceptance in this country is that of dressing one's maids in a uniform of brown poplin instead of the familiar black and gray. Collar and cuffs are of crisp white organdie.

BANGKOK HATS BIGGER

Bangkoks are bigger. That is the latest trend in fashionable headgears. This popular straw braid is appearing in high flat topped crowns with medium wide down-turned brims, the latter are bound in felt of a contrasting shade and simply trimmed with a felt band of harmonizing hue. But only a person with an oval face should wear one.

HOUSE DRESSES

House dresses continue to look less and less like utility garments and more and more like smart little frocks for everyday wear, says the Dry Goods Economist. This tendency is especially marked in new models that follow sports lines.

All-over prints are having the success in cotton dresses they enjoy in silks. All the dots are good, also pencil checks and geometric designs. A practical weight in a printed cotton is called fasheen. Printed dimities and voiles are coming in stronger with warmer weather, and there is a silk and cotton printed crepe that is new and attractive. This crepe in excellent designs makes dresses that are quite suitable for afternoons as well as mornings.

House frock trimmings include innumerable pearl buttons, some lace edgings, the occasional drawn work and a great deal of hand embroidery in one form or another.

LAUNDRY HINTS

After you have washed, starched and dried curtains gather up one end and fasten between the rollers of the wringing machine, then gather up the other ends in your hands and stretch, then fold very straight and mangle well. You will find that they will not require ironing and will last much longer.

If your canton-crepe dress is spotted sponge it all over with warm water and when partly dry press on the wrong side. Treated in this way spots will disappear.

To remove egg stains from tablelinen, soak in cold water. Hot water sets the stain and makes it almost impossible to remove.

CHOOSING YOUR DRAPERIES

What housewife hasn't been distressed in choosing and hanging her draperies. In most cases glass curtains should reach exactly to the sill, and draperies should come to within an inch of the floor, except in very informal rooms and where the ceilings are too high, but the draperies for the high-ceilinged living or dining room had best come to the floor and have an unusually wide cvalance to break the high wall. For the low-ceilinged room the draperies should come to the floor, with no valance at all, or a very narrow one. If you use no valance, the rod should be decorative in itself, either a painted wooden pole or an iron rod with simple wrought iron decorations. Short draperies, however, should end at exactly the lower edge of the window casing, and not a bit below, as so many people seem to think, for they assume a most unfinished appearance when they dangle halfway between the casing and the floor. Only for very narrow windows should you split material for a pair of draperies, and one curtain should never be stretched tightly across a window—the effect of skimpiness is most displeasing.

REPAIR CRACKS IN PLASTER

Equal parts of plaster of paris and whiting mixed with water is good to repair cracks in walls before they are painted or papered.

REPAIR YOUR OWN FAUCETS

Learn how to put washers on your water faucets. These small repairs can be done without the aid of the plumber and are not so apt to be neglected for a long time if you know how to remedy them. Leaking spigots mean larger water bills.

THE BRIDE MAY WEAR PINK

In place of the customary white, the smartest brides of spring have chosen a frock of the faintest shade of blush pink and have selected lingerie in this same delicate color. Even the veil of tulle is pink in tone.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Only three of the women members of the German Reichstag have college degrees.

Women now compose nearly 7 per cent of the total membership of the German Reichstag.

Women doctors in London who marry are barred from remaining in the service of the London County Council.

Women are just as quick at stopping automobiles as men, according to the reports of recently devised tests for motor drivers.

A remarkable accomplishment is reported by a public school of London, Ont., where Pearl Wong, a Chinese girl, has just won first prize in the oratory contest.

It is reported that the first woman veterinarian in Germany is Fraulein Ruth Eber, who recently qualified at Leipsic, where her father is a professor of veterinary medicine.

Of California's woman population over 15 years of age, 13.5 per cent are widowed. This is the highest percentage for any state in the union. North Dakota has the lowest percentage.

TO REMOVE RUST

If your pet knife becomes badly rusted, cover it with thick sour milk and let it remain over night. It will clean quite easily by morning.

TO HANDLE MUFFINS

A grapefruit knife is just the implement to use to remove muffins or cup cakes from the pan, as the curved blade prevents crushing or breaking.

Springtime Ragout: Pare and dice 6 potatoes. Slice 6 leeks and cover with boiling water. Cook 10 minutes and then drain. Cut 1-2 bunch asparagus in inch slices and cook in boiling water about 10 minutes. Add to the potatoes and leeks. Scald 2 cups rich milk and 1-4 cup butter. Pour over the vegetables and simmer gently until all the vegetables are tender. Sprinkle with finely chopped parsley before serving.

Soft Ginger Cakes: Cream 3-4 cup of lard, add gradually 3-4 cup of soft brown sugar that has been rolled and sifted, 3-4 cup of molasses and two eggs beaten until thick and lemon tinted; then add slowly 3-4 cup of sour heavy cream in which 1-2 tablespoon of soda has been dissolved, beating constantly. Sift together 1-3 tablespoon of salt and 1-3 tablespoon of ginger; add 1-2 tablespoon of orange extract and enough flour to make a very soft dough. Beat mixture thoroughly and chill in the refrigerator. The dough should be almost frozen. Roll on a light floured board to 1-2-inch thickness (rolling one-half the mixture at a time). Shape with a cutter measuring 2 and 3-4 inches in diameter. Arrange them, one inch apart, on well-greased baking sheets, brush tops over with a slightly beaten egg and bake 15 minutes in a moderate oven. Store in a stone jar with cover. These old-fashioned cakes are delicious.

RU-BON SKIN-TONE

First and last in all skin needs. RU-BON will heal all ECZEMAS. ## LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Suggestions to Highway Department

Mr. Editor: That the roads of today are greatly superior to those of 20 years ago cannot be denied. This improvement has been brought about by the exigencies of the times. The invention of the automobile and its subsequent development created a demand for better and still better roads. The state government through its highway department has satisfied, in a measure at least, this demand and can be pardoned for taking pride in the excellent condition of the roads under its jurisdiction. Although the writer feels that the department should be complimented for the results it has attained he realizes that its efficiency is not perfect. The following is cited as an example of this imperfection. As all autoists know the town of Bozrah lies on the trunk road that links Norwich to Hartford, via Colchester. Bi-monthly, or approximately so, the state highway department has its local road-fixing gang scrape part of this trunk road. Starting in the vicinity of Yantic and continuing up through the village of Fitchville the sides of the road are scraped. The rocks and turf obtained from this quite unnecessary operation are thrown into the long grass contiguous to the road, much to the wrath of the property-holders who have gone to some expense in keeping the roadsides clean. The writer and many of the residents of the district feel that it is superfluous for the department to squander its money on such work. A limitation of the same would save enough eventually to build an up-to-date road through the "main street" of Fitchville. Why the present section of road has been left unimproved is a matter of wonder to the natives. With hundreds of cars and trucks passing daily a permanent road is a necessity in Bozrah's premier village.

Hoping the department will see the reasonableness of these suggestions and that all stones and turf torn up in their operations are carted away and that the road-bed will be scraped only when necessary, I am

Yours for better roads.
ABSIT INVIDIA.

Fitchville, May 30, 1925.

From Small Beginnings

Jakob Bohme, the Cattle Boy, a Great Philosopher.

Off among the green hills of Germany, in the latter part of the Sixteenth century, sat a small boy watching a herd of cows graze on the hillside. The whole scene was one of quiet beauty, so serene, so untroubled that it scarcely seemed possible that such a thing as war could exist. Maple and beech trees, with masses of green foliage, made a background of forest. Down the green hill slopes the boy saw the brown houses of a little village.

Jakob Bohme looked at the cows, at the green of the grass, at the forests, at the hills, and up at the clouds. "Who made it all? What is it all for? Is the great God himself there in the woods, or is He up in the sky?" Off by himself on the hills there Jakob Bohme thought a great deal. There was little else to do. He was too young to think deeply, but as the proverb says, "the thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts." His solitude, the silence, the beauty of the country made a deep impression on his naturally sensitive mind, and attuned him to do better thinking when he grew into manhood. Happy indeed is any boy who has the chance to look at hills and woods and open land, for Nature always rewards those who live close to her. The influence of country scenes remains as an abiding influence all through life.

Jakob Bohme had to leave his hills and sit at a shoemaker's bench, but he remembered the views he had looked at—and he kept on thinking. Especially he kept on asking himself: "Where is God? Why do I feel closer to Him when I am off in the hills?" He grew into manhood thinking more and more deeply. He studied books of religion and philosophy, such as he could find; he listened to preachers—and he kept on thinking. At last he put his thoughts into writing, putting down all the solutions he had thought out concerning the problems of existence. This precious manuscript he treasured carefully, showing it to only a few friends. Through unwise talk, rumor of his book came to the authorities.

They took one of the copies Jakob Bohme had made, and they were horrified because of the views he had expressed. They forbade him to issue his great work. Thus it was not for some years after Jakob Bohme had died, in 1624, at the age of 49, that his book of philosophy came into print. His search for God was so earnest, his thinking so clear, his finding of The Unknown in all about him so convincing, that his book is one of the foundation stones of modern philosophy. Thus a little boy tending cows on a hillside led the way to our greatest modern philosophers.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

There is not a more popular officer in the British army than Field Marshal Baron Herbert C. O. Plumer, who has just been appointed high commissioner for Palestine. Known in the service as the "Dandy General," he has been always regarded by Tommy Atkins as the soldier's friend, and the Field Marshal's popularity with all ranks is due not only to his considerate methods but also to his happy temperament and a keen sense of humor. He entered the military service in 1876, took part in the Egyptian expedition of 1884, and during the South African war became prominent through his training of the Matabeleland relief force. In the great war he was successively commander of the Third British Army corps in France, the Second British army in the South Ypres offensive in 1917, which carried out the Messines attack, and commander of the British forces in Italy. Later he returned to the British front in France and helped to carry out successfully the operations beyond Ypres until the Armistice.

Gained 10 Pounds In 22 Days

That's going some—but skinny men, women and children just can't help putting on good, healthy flesh when they take McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

As chock full of vitamines as the nasty, fishy-tasting cod liver oil itself, but these sugar-coated, tasteless tablets are as easy to take as candy, and won't upset the stomach.

One woman gained ten pounds in twenty-two days. Sixty tablets, sixty cents. Ask Lee & Osgood Co. or any druggist for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. Directions and formula on each box.

Steel Eclipse Windmill

All working parts are machined

First with Standard cut away to show mechanism. Note extreme simplicity, which means no more trouble-proof as possible. Case-hard worm pinion and worm gear eliminate many parts. All gears machined.

It runs in the lightest breeze

There are no rough cast gears as are commonly used in most windmills. All working parts are machined and run in a bath of oil, thereby cutting down resistance to a minimum. There's no chance for a groan or squeak. Lubrication is necessary only once a year.

Working parts are enclosed in a dust-proof cast iron case—dirt, rain or snow cannot blow in. Crankshaft is a drop forging with turned, ground and polished surfaces. Worm gear and pinion have machine-cut teeth. Simple, all-metal construction throughout—built for a lifetime of service. Quick downstroke; slow lift, means pumping two-thirds of the time. Speed is self-regulating. Sizes 8 feet and larger.

We have this remarkably efficient windmill on display. Let us show you its many points of superiority.

Will Answer Letters from Women asking about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lititz, Pa. — "I was very nervous and suffered for a long time with pains in my back and side. I was employed in a factory and for about three months I did no work at all. There were two women who told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I didn't believe what they told me at first, but at last I tried it. It has taken my pains away and my nervousness. I am glad to say that I am one of the '98 out of 100' that it has helped. I recommend it when I can, as I know it is good for women's troubles. I will answer any letter that any woman writes to me. I know the Vegetable Compound has helped me and hope it will help others." — Mrs. CHARLES R. SHUE, R. F. D. 2, Lititz, Pa.

YALE AND HARVARD CREWS ARRIVE AT GALES FERRY FOR REGATTA

Gales Ferry, Conn., May 31. (AP)—The Yale crew squad, numbering 47 in all, arrived at the Yale training quarters here today, preparatory to daily practice on the Thames for the Harvard regatta next month. The oarsmen, consisting of 34 varsity men, 13 freshmen, trainers and others, were met in New London and brought to the training quarters in the Yale coaching launches. Coaches Leader, Murphy and Moore are motoring from New Haven to Gales Ferry and are to arrive late tonight.

Because of a minor accident to one of the coaching launches and as the oarsmen will have their final examinations at the training quarters this week, it will be difficult for the coaches to arrange a schedule, but it is expected that all of the crews will be on the river daily.

At a banquet of the 150-pound Yale crew in Philadelphia last night, Franklin I. Greene, 1926, of Santa Barbara, Calif., was elected captain. He is stroke of the crew.

Harvard Arrives

Red Top, Conn., May 31—The Harvard rowing squads, which will train at their quarters here for the regatta with Yale next month, arrived here tonight with the exception of the junior varsity crew which raced at Philadelphia yesterday and the members of which were given a vacation until Wednesday. The Harvard schools arrived this noon.

The freshmen squad is a musical one, the men having installed a player piano, a victrolla, banjos and ukeleles for entertainment. The freshmen crew was accompanied by Coach Bert Haines but Coach Stevens and his assistant are not expected until late tonight.

MATHEWSON PITCHES NO-HIT NO-RUN GAME SUNDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, May 31.—Alfred Mathewson hurled the South Windham All-Stars to an 11 to 0 victory over Danielson at Recreation park this afternoon and in so doing entered the no-hit, no-run hall of fame. Fanning seventeen of the opposition, the local lad who last season was in the spangles of the Thread Makers, was never once in danger, so completely did he hold his mastry over the visitors. Only one ball was knocked to the outfield and that was easily pocketed by Kegler in center field. Not even a semblance of a hit was made off the Thread City twirler, only three batters reaching first safely, two on bases on balls and another who was hit by a pitched ball.

While Mathewson was giving such a wonderful exhibition—and this was the first no-hit game of his career—his mates were collecting fourteen safe clouts, including two doubles and a three-base hit, off of Legace and Gaudreau. Legace started on the mound for Danielson and for six innings he was rolling along in a commendable manner. The All-Stars solved his portside delivery in the lucky seventh and he retired in favor of Gaudreau.

Yesterday, in this city, the South Windham All-Stars defeated the Willimantic All-Stars 7 to 2, in a ten-inning game. The South Windham team was trailing by two runs into the ninth. Kesney Lathrop pitched the entire distance for the winners. He was opposed by Hayes and Johnny Godack. Score:

INDIANS STOP TIGER RALLY IN NINTH

Detroit, May 31. (AP)—A ninth inning rally that brought in four runs came too late to do any good and Detroit bowed to Cleveland, 6 to 4, in the last game of a three-game series today. After pitching shutout ball for eight innings, Uhle had to be taken out and Miller got the last two Tigers.

RIVERVIEW TAKES FIRST GAME OF SUB BASE SERIES

At the State Hospital diamond Saturday afternoon Riverview drew first blood in the series with the Sub Base taking the opening game 3 to 2. The Base squeezed a run over in the first inning and the Riverview team bunched hits for the tying run in the third. The game remained deadlocked until the seventh inning when Riverview took the lead by bunching hits behind errors for two runs. The Base made its final stand in their half of the seventh when D. Moore crashed one to deep left for a home run. West had the better of the pitching argument and was the stronger in the pinches. The score:

WINDHAM TO PLAY LYMAN HIGH TUESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, May 31.—After repelling Chapman Tech in New London yesterday afternoon for five innings, Coach T. A. Callaghan's Windham High school diamond representatives are in a more improved state of mind than they were previously and naturally will enter their three home games this week with more vim and a determination to continue on in the direction which they started at the expense of the Whalers.

With the transfer of M. Usher to the outfield, the assignment of "Lorrie" Haggerty to third base and the benching of Merrill whose duties in left field were filled by Sawicki in the Bulkeley game last week by Coach Callaghan, a noticeable improvement in team play was effected and the indications are that the local mentor will maintain this array intact. Haggerty's error in the Bulkeley game ushered in a three-run rally which resulted in Windham's downfall and will be overlooked as one of the breaks of the game, as well it might. The local pitcher-infielder is one of the steadiest players on the team.

Tuesday afternoon, Lyman Memorial High school, of Lebanon, will make its initial appearance here. The annual Windham-Clerks game will be staged in this city Thursday afternoon. The attraction on Saturday will be Manchester High. The week-end exhibition will be Windham's most difficult assignment. The Silk Town boasts of one of the best nines in recent years, while not of state championship calibre, is nevertheless making a commendable record in competition with some of the best scholastic teams in the state.

Coach Callaghan will manipulate his two-man pitching staff for the three games so that he will have Johnnie Miela to oppose Manchester on Saturday. At this writing, it appears probable that Haggerty will hurl against Lyman Memorial Tuesday. Both twirlers will pitch against the Clerks.

The following week, the local baseball season will be concluded. Midweek, Stafford High will show here while on the week-end Meriden High will be received as guests in the Thread City.

AGGIE TRACK TEAM VICTORS OVER TRINITY

(Special to the Bulletin)

Hartford, May 30—The Connecticut Aggies closed their 1925 track season with a victory here today, when Trinity was overwhelmed in a dual meet by a score of 87 1-3 to 38 2-3. It was a walk away for the Storrs athlete, who placed first in twelve of the fourteen events run off. Connecticut won all the running events, and all but the high jump and pole vault of the field events. Trinity's expectation of scoring heavily in the shot, discus and javelin were not realized, for the Aggies cleaned up in the events.

Summary:

Two mile run—Mulligan (C.), Jacoby (C.), Johnson (T.) time, 10:24 1-5.

BUCKY HARRIS DRIVES IN WINNING RUN IN NINTH

Washington, May 31.—The Senators defeated the Philadelphia Athletics in a close game today, 4 to 3, Bucky Harris driving in the winning run in the ninth after the champions had loaded the bases with none out. ## YANTIC MILLS TEAM LOSE TO HARDIGS

For the second time this season the Hardigs defeated the Yantic Mills team at Yantic Sunday afternoon 6 to 5, in a game that was close and marked by good hitting and fielding. Beebner was the leader of the Hardig attack and Kane and Lanphere featured for the Woolmen. Next Sunday the Woolmen will play the Medical Dept. team of the Sub Base. The score:

Vandels Have Off Days

The Rose City Vandels had a couple of the bad days over the weekend as all teams have at some time in the season. They lost to the West Ends, Norwich Town Sluggers and the Pirates. They will lay off a couple of days before beginning their practice in preparation for the opening of the Junior Twilight League.

Seattle gave the Vernon club a thorough whitewashing to a double-header, May 15, winning by scores of 4 to 0 an 6 to 0.

The polls will be open in the four city districts today from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. daylight time.

AGGIES BEAT TRINITY FOR FIFTH STRAIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, May 30—Coach Dole's Connecticut Aggie baseball team made it five in a row here this afternoon, when they defeated Trinity 6-5 in what was the second contest of the season between these two teams. The Aggies defeated Trinity earlier in the month at Storrs by a 9-1 score.

Base hits were freely made this afternoon, the Aggies connecting for eleven off Whitaker, while Trinity made ten off Wells. Errors at critical moments by both teams figured in the scoring, and marred an otherwise perfect exhibition.

After both teams had scored twice in the first inning, Trinity jumped into the lead in the second when Riley scored on Whitcomb's single. Connecticut wiped out this scant lead in the fourth, when three bunched hits netted two more runs. The boys putaynit ted two more huns. The Storrs boys put the game on ice in the sixth, by bunching their hits and making two more runs. Score:

AGGIES WILL LOSE SEVERAL STAR ATHLETES BY GRADUATION THIS YEAR

Storrs, Ct., May 31—Commencement at the Connecticut Agricultural college this year will see the exit of a galaxy of athletic talent from the Storrs institution, when Coach Dole will lose stars in football, basketball baseball and track, the four major sports of the state college. Eleven letter men will be lost by graduation, including five in football, two each in baseball, track, and basketball.

In football, Dole will lose Captain O'Neill, Eddy, Baylock, Swem and Thomson. In track it will be Captain Jacoby and Johnson, and in baseball it will be O'Brien and Wells, Captain Balock and Eddy, both of whom are also lettermen in football, are the two men who will be lost from the basketball quintet.

Martin O'Neill, of New Britain, captain of the Aggies undefeated football team last year, as well as the 1923 eleven, is without doubt one of the best football men in the history of the state college. For the last two years he has been picked on the Courant "All--Valley" eleven for the center berth, and his great defensive play and leadership have been big factors in the success attained at Storrs during the past two seasons. In addition to his work on the gridiron, O'Neill has been prominent in non-athletic activities at Storrs.

Maxson A. Eddy, of Simsbury, is another member of the Aggies' undefeated football team, who will be lost via the graduation route. Eddy made the football team at Storrs in 1922, his freshman year, and has played regularly ever since. Eddy, like O'Neill, was picked for the "All-Valey" team at the close of the season last fall, and he was mentioned by the Courant football expert as the most valuable man in Connecticut Valley football. Eddy's position is tackle, but in addition to his duties in the line he has been used for punting, place and drop-kicking, and throwing and receiving passes. His versality was of great help to the Aggies in weathering some of the rough spots of the 1924 schedule. Eddy has also been a member of the varsity basketball squad for three seasons, the last two of which he played regularly at center.

John W. Balock, another New Britain product, made his letter in basketball four years, and he captained the Aggies quintet the last two seasons. In addition, he has been a member of the football squad for four years, making his letter the last two. As a basketball player, Balock ranks among the best at Storrs, and in football his ability to snatch passes out of the air made him an important cog in the best forward passing offense developed by Dole during his two years at the State college. Balock also served as president of the Athletic association at Storrs.

Tracey Swem, of East Hartford, has the honor of being the lightest member of the Aggies football squad in the past two years tipping the beam at an even 175. Swem is a product of East Hartford high, where h uct of East Hartford High, where he starred in all sports. After playing on the second team at Storrs for two years, Swem finally got his chance with the varsity in his junior year. From the beginning, Swem showed himself to be the most elusive open field runner in the Aggie backfield, besides being a deadly tackle on defense.

Herbert Eyre, of Woodbury, is another of Dole's football stars who will be lost this year. Eyre has been a member of the varsity squad for four seasons, but it was not until this year that he played regularly and made his letter. As a guard, he was one of the bulwarks in the Connecticut stonewall line of last season and his play was of highorder in every way.

William Thomson of Hartford, while not playing regularly, was a member of the Connecticut varsity squad for four years, and last season was captain of the Aggies' second team. In recognition of his spirit in sticking with the squad for four years, Thomsony was awarded his letter by a vote of the athletic council of the college.

Two seniors, William O'Brien, of Waterbury, and George Wells, of New Mifford, will be lost to the baseball team. O'Brien is another of the Aggie athletes who made a letter in his freshman year, and has been playing regularly with the team ever since. O'Brien's position is shortstop, where he plays a fast game At presenit he is leading the Aggie batters with an average of .344. Wells, who is this season bearing the brunt of the pitching burden, has been a member of the Aggies' squad for four years, though it was not until last season that he made his letter. He is the most dependable of Dole's corps of twirlers, and he has been used in eight of the nine games that the Aggies have played to date.

Captain Jacoby of the track team, Ridgefield boy and letterman for four seasons, is without doubt the best middle distance runner ever developed at Storrs. He holds the college record in the two-mile run, with a mark of 9 minutes, 55 3-5 seconds. In the New England Intercollegiates, at Boston, last week, Jacoby placed third in the two mile, when he completed the distance with time of 9 minutes, 40 seconds. Jacoby also has the distinction of winning the two mile in the eastern intercollegiates at Springfield for three successive years. He also holds the collegiate record in the mile run, his time being 4 minutes, 39 seconds.

"Val" Johnson, the Aggies' star hurler and broad jumper, is another product of New Britain. He captained the track team last year, and in this, his senior year, he had been one of the mainstays of the team. Johnson holds the college record in the high and low hurdlers, and in the broad jump, in the high hurdles, his time is 16 3-5 seconds; in the low hurdles, 27 4-5 seconds; and in the broad jump his distance is 21 feet, 4 1-2 inches.

POMFRET LOSES CLOSE GAME TO MILTON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Pomfret May 30 — Pomfret school lost to Milton Academy at Pomfret Saturday, 1 to 0. With the defeat went the private title of southern New England. Cunningham limited Pomfret to four hits and himself scored the winning run in the sixth inning. Gundry worked well for Pomfret until the seventh inning when he filled the bases with one out. Foster relieved him and retired the side.

Pomfret's nearest approach to a run was in the fourth inning when Johnson opened with a triple to right but was caught by several feet in his attempt to make it a home run. In the seventh inning Johnson singled and Plunkett advanced him to third with another hit, which the third baseman coldn't quite reach. Plunkett was unequal to the occasion. Hitting a fly on which Sprague of Milton made an excellent catch.

For the first five innings each side batted up only three men per inning and made only one hit. The hitting of Captain Howard Johnson and the fielding of Probst and Perkins were features for Pomfret. Foster also did very well in his role of relief pitcher.

For the visiting team Cunningham's pitching was the main factor. He was backed up by excellent support, and himself made six assists. Wood at second base for Milton fielded well. Barbour and Clifford were the hard hitters.

This game closed Pomfret's season, one which has been none too successful During last week two games were lost by one to nothing scores. The first was to Putnam High on Wednesday.

VELVETMEN LOSE TEN-INNING GAME TO HARTFORD TEAM

Sunday at the J. B. Martin grounds the Yankee Filling Station team of Hartford defeated the J. B. Martin team, 8 to 7, in a ten-inning thrilling game. Pepin who pitched for the Velvetmen allowed but eight hits and fanned eleven. He should have won his game but costly errors by his teammates figured largely in the visitors scoring. Neville, who started in the box for the Yanks was hit hard and was relieved by Fisher, who with the aid of good support, allowed but one run in the five innings he worked.

Frankie Gley with four hits led the attack for the Velvetmen while Hayden with three hits was the leader for the visitors. The Highwood club of New Haven will play here next Sunday. The score:

LITTLE GIRL STRUCK BY NORWICH AUTOMOBILE

An automobile driven by Peter Sabiowski of 283 Central avenue late Sunday afternoon struck two-year old Irene Mulholland in front of her home at 606 Main street, inflicting a cut over her left temple, which Dr. J. W. Callahan, who attended her, closed with one stitch.

In response to a telephone call to police headquarters immediately after the accident, Sergeant Matthew Delaney dispatched Officer P. Murphy and J. Farrell to investigate the accident with Officer Elmer Allen. According to the statement made to the police by James Mulholland, the little girl's father, she was walking with him when she suddenly ran out into the street in front of the automobile.

DECORATED GRAVES OF WORLD WAR VETERANS

As in past years the graves of World War veterans, in the several cemeteries in Norwich and towns nearby, were decorated by committees from Robert O. Fletcher Post, No. 4, American Legion.

The work of decorating was begun Friday and new American flags were placed in the holders of the American Legion grave markers. A number of new graves were decorated this year, some "buddies" having "gone west" since Memorial day in 1924, while other graves were those of veterans whose names were not known a year ago.

Triple Birthday Party

Miss Annie B. Ward was hostess for a triple birthday party given at the home of her uncle Alfred H. Faulkner of Trading Cove in honor of her cousins Mrs. Lulu B. Palmer of Grove St., Norwich, Mrs. Florence M. Fries and Winifred Fries of Amston. The combined ages of the three totalled 91 years. There were three elaborately trimmed birthday cakes with candles. The favors for the guests were pink and yellow May baskets filled with dainty candies. A buffet lunch was served consisting of salad, sandwiches, pickles, cake, fancy cookies, coffee and ice cream. There were guests from Norwich, Willimantic, Amston and Trading Cove. Miss Ward was assisted by Mrs. Albert Gilman and Miss Arlene Fries.

Lemons Lighten Wrinkled Skin

Squeeze the juice of two lemons in a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents, shake well and you have the very mildest anti-wrinkle lotion to tighten relaxed skin, erase fine lines and eradicate crows-feet.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion into the skin at night. By morning most of the tell-tale wrinkles, tired lines and crows-feet are smoothed out, giving a more youthful contour to cheeks, chin, throat. It leaves the skin velvety soft, clear and fresh.

Beauty experts use this astringent lotion for enlarged pores, also to bleach and whiten sallow, tanned skin.

Mix this harmless lotion yourself since it acts best immediately after prepared.

At the meeting of Rockville Lodge, No. 1259, B. P. O. Elks, a large class was initiated during the week. This was the first initiation since the installation of the new board of officers headed by Exalted Ruler William J. Austin.

Freight cars placed in service in the first four months this year totaled 87,926, according to reports just filed by the Class 1 railroads with the Car Service Division of the American Railway association. This was an increase of 11,505 over the corresponding period last year.

The polls will be open in the four city districts today from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m., daylight time.

PRINCIPAL TIRRELL TO ATTEND WESLEYAN EXERCISES

Middletown, Conn., May 31—Governor John H. Trumbull has accepted an invitation to attend installation exercises Friday morning at Wesleyan university when Dr. James Lukens McConaughy will become president of the university. Governor Trumbull will march in the academy procession preceding the installation.

The state also will be represented by Dean Frederick S. Jones of New Haven, chairman, and Henry A. Tirrell, of Norwich, of the state board of education, State Educational Commissioner Albert B. Meredith and State Librarian George S. Godard.

The presidents of the four other Connecticut colleges also will attend and Bishop Chauncey Brewster of the Episcopal diocese has accepted an invitation.

COLCHESTER WOMAN IS ATTACKED BY BULL

Colchester, Conn., May 31—(A. P.)—Mrs. Ida Mintz while crossing a lot from one street to another near her home here tonight, was attacked by a cow and seriously hurt. She had seen the animal many times before and did not think it was dangerous. She had almost reached the street when the cow charged upon her, and knocking her down, drove its horns into the back of her head. Persons nearby went to her assistance and she was taken to her home. The cow is owned by L. Broder, grain dealer.

MEMORIAL DAY ORATOR SPEAKS OF CITIZEN SOLDIER AND THE FUTURE

Norwich paid its annual Memorial Day tribute Saturday to the soldiers of the Civil war who sleep beneath the sod and to the few veterans of the days of '61-'65. A few less than 20 of these veterans whose marching days are over rode in automobiles in the parade that took them to the Chelsea parade where the exercises were held from the decorated stand, according to the annual custom.

Memorial Day Address.

The speaker for the exercises was Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, whose impressive address was upon "The Citizen Soldier Building For Tomorrow," in which he said in part:

This is a sacred day. We stand with sacred memories behind us, we pronounce in reverence sacred names, we pluck out from the utterances of the great their confessions of faith spoken in times of crisis.

It is our all-soldiers day. General Logan's wish expressed in his first Memorial Day proclamation of 1868, that the day should be kept so long as a single hero of the slavery struggle remained is being fulfilled. We lay flowers on the graves of those who are gone, and we lay at the feet of these who remain the choicest tributes of our regard and affection.

Lincoln gave forever the key to which our Memorial Day appeals should be set—"It is rather for us the living to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us, that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to the cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion."

The Citizen Soldier is a modern development. War in earlier centuries was the vocation of specialists, today it is the work of volunteers, of laymen. Aforetimes the warrior chose fighting as a career. The daredevil natures and reckless spirits lacking the powers and inclinations to the selfrestraints demanded in civic life took service in the army. Here most of their decisions were made for them and restraints were enjoined by rigid authority.

Always however there have been men who were soldiers for a cause. Lafayette, Rochambeau and Kosciusko in our own struggle for Independence belong to this honored group. To this group also belongs the American soldier. None of the motives which made the soldier of the adventurer type are primary with him. A cause which does not enlist his conscience does not enlist him. He must know and believe in the cause for which he fights.

Now these citizen soldiers are numbered by the scores and hundreds of thousands in our nation. They stand today with the memories of great struggles in their records. They are asking for progress of definite proportions in completing the unfinished tasks. They who fought the "war to end war" are demanding that "it shall not happen again."

The speaker then spoke of three particulars as interpretative of the mind of the American citizen soldiers.

The citizen soldier abhors rather than glorifies war. The most characteristic utterance of "Unconditional Surrender" Grant was "Let us have peace." The only one word description of war that has been common currency in all English speaking lands was uttered by a leader of citizen soldiers in the slavery struggle.

The citizen soldier would build a world without war. Edmund Burke estimated in 1756 that twenty-three times the population of the earth had been slaughtered in war. The citizen soldier would seek some way to eliminate this futile business. The cost of a modern battleship would duplicate the Congressional Library building in Washington, the finest library building in the world. The citizen soldier prefers a world of libraries to a world of battleships. The cost of a battleship will build a good modern highway from New York to Chicago. The citizen soldier prefers highways to armament.

The citizen soldier prefers bayonets to chains but he would fight with the instruments of law and reason, justice and mercy to build a world "where the war drums beat no longer and battle flags are furled."

The citizen soldier would make preprations against war as fully as preparations for war. He would approve Longfellow's pronouncement—

"Were half the power that fills the world with terror,
Were half the wealth bestowed on camps and courts
Given to redeem the human mind from error,
There were no need of arsenals and forts."

The mutual defenses of Canada and the United States are the armament of mutual trust and good will and in these the citizen soldier pre-eminently believes. The surest guarantee of peace between Chile and Argentine is mutual confidence in the principles of the life of the Christ of the Andes.

So the American patriot will meet more than halfway on any common platform of attempt at mutual understanding any and all nations who would prepare against war. Without such preparedness there is no hope of improvement in relations between nations. Without progress in world courts and world conferences there awaits us only a tomorrow of national and continental suicide and destruction.

Suppose a gentleman living in a suburban house, with his garden separated only by a front wall from his next door neighbor, and he had called me to consult with him on the furnishings of his drawing room. I begin looking about me, I find the walls rather bare; I think such and such a paper might be desirable—perhaps a little fresco here and there on the ceiling—a damask curtain or so at the windows. "Ah," says my employer, "damask curtain indeed! That's all very fine but you know I can't afford that kind of thing just now!" "Yet the world credits you with a splendid income!" "Ah, yes," says my friend, "but do you know, at present, I am obliged to spend nearly all in steel traps." "Steel traps, for whom?" "Why, for that fellow on the other side of the wall, you know; we're very good friends, capital friends; but we are obliged to keep our traps set on both sides of the wall; we could not possibly keep on friendly terms without them and our spring guns. The worst of it is we are both clever fellows enough; and there's never a day passes but we don't find out a new trap, or a new gun barrel, or something; we spend about fifteen million a year, each in our traps; and I don't see how we're to do with less!" Slightly comic state of life for two private gentlemen! but for two nations it seems to me not wholly comic.

The citizen soldier would look behind the scenes to the hidden springs of national conflicts. "You business men start the wars, we only end them," retorted the general to the twittings of the financier. The national and industrial life organized only around the principle of selfish competition for gain and not around the principle of rivalry in service is a phenomenon that is increasingly under suspicion by the lover of peace and righteousness. The "causa belli" rather the "casus belli" is the study of the American patriot.

So the citizen soldier welcomes all the unselfish, altruistic, and idealistic make every people our friend. Only heathen hearts put their trust "in seeking tube and iron shard." But peace is built on righteousness and justice.

The address closed with the recitation of Ingersol's Vision of the Future.

Parade Opens Day

The parade in the morning opened the public observance of the day. Mayor Charles A. Hagberg, the marshal, giving the word at 10.02, which started the line moving from the Buckingham Memorial over the assigned line of march to the Chelsea parade.

The police arrangements, which were carried out without a hitch, kept Main street free from automobiles from Burnham square to Washington square, providing an uninterrupted line of march and the sidewalks were lined with spectators all along the line of march, the buildings displayed the national colors and flags were flown from the sidewalk standards all along Main street.

Parade Formation.

The parade moved with the following formation:

Marshal Charles A. Hagberg
Aides: Major F. Russell Smith, Captain Wm. G. Tarbox, Lieut. F. B. Craven, Lieut. Harry House and Comrade B. F. Skinner
Platoon of Police, Captain Murphy
Swahn's Military Band
Battery B, 192 F. A., Captain W. R. Denison
H. 2, Combat Train, 192 F. A., Capt. H. F. Burdick
American Legion, Commander Webster D. Copp
Veterans of Foreign Wars, Commander Leo Jacques
Spanish War Veterans, Commander William R. Zeis
Camp Fire Girls, Mrs. A. C. Freeman Commanding
Boy Scouts, F. A. Benton, Commanding
Daughters of Veterans Float
Members of G. A. R. in Autos
City and Town Officials in Autos

Reaching the Chelsea parade, where a big audience was gathered, Commander Orrin M. Price of Sedgwick post, No. 1, G. A. R., conducted the memorial exercises from the stand on which were representatives of the city and town governments.

After the assembly call by the bugle, the address by the commander opened the exercises.

Commander's Address.

Commander Orrin M. Price of Sedgwick post addressed Mayor Milo R. Waters, the common council, the selectmen and others officers of the city and town governments and the postmaster as follows:

"As commander of Sedgwick post and in behalf of my comrades, I again welcome you to this our public service. Also you, the officers and members of our military companies and Spanish War Veterans who have done escort duty in the days gone by, and the Sons of Veterans, Daughters of Veterans, Citizens Corps, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, and all others who have this day gathered with us to pay homage to our patriotic dead, and their memorable deeds will serve not only to make American citizenship these days reputable, but also to maintain and perpetuate through all future generations the Union and authority of the United States of America.

"This is the national Day of Memorial, the time when in mind and thought our glorious past is made to live again. It is the hour when a nation awakes to the remembrance of deeds of heroism performed in its defense; the day when a loyal people, grateful, for service rendered their country, unite to honor their patriotic dead.

"Differences of party, creed and sect are today forgotten. North, south, east and west, all over our broad land our people with reverent hearts circle the sacred mounds where sleep our country's dead. Let us mingle a tender sympathy for the living who mourn for the loved ones they have lost. Let us recall to memory the men who in time of danger made their breasts a barricade between our country and its foes. Let us recall their toils on the long, weary marches, their intense sufferings in the hospitals, their fearful sacrifices in the prison pens, their sublime heroism in the days of battle, and finally may we join so reverently in these exercises that what we call Memorial Day may be to our dead their day of coronation.

Prayer by the post chaplain, George Tillinghast, was followed by hymn, Hear Our Prayer, rendered impressively by the band, and Hugh Kinder sang the Star Spangled Banner in fine voice and with patriotic fervor.

The Memorial day orders were read by George A. Turner, past camp commander of the Spanish War Veterans, and past commander of Richard E. Hourigan post, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Obituary Record

Adjutant John Irish of Sedgwick post read the following record of those who have answered the last roll call since Memorial day a year ago:

Sabura S. Stocking—Co. —, 15th Mass. Infantry, died Sept. 4, 1924, aged 92 years.

Henry H. La Pierre—Co. B, 26th Conn. Infantry, died Sept. 15th, 1924, aged 84 years.

Lincoln's Gettysburg address was recited by George A. Keppler, whose rendering brought out the full significance of the words of the Great Emancipator.

The wreath to decorate the Soldiers' monument was placed by George A. Turner and the response was given by John H. Barnes, commander of the Sons of Veterans. Wreaths were also placed on the World War monument.

After the memorial hymn by the band and the memorial address by Rev. Mr. Graham, the band played for the singing of America and taps was sounded to conclude the exercises.

The parade was reviewed by Mayor Waters upon the conclusion of the exercises at the monument and the line of march was resumed down Broadway towards the Buckingham Memorial. The parade disbanded at Union square, but the Spanish War Veterans escorted the Sedgwick post members to the Buckingham Memorial and stood with open ranks as the gray haired men alighted from the automobiles and passed into the building.

Soon the executive committee of the Woman's Relief corps announced that dinner was ready and the veterans passed up into the dining room, while one of their number, Thomas Wormsley, drummed for their march to the tables. At the head of the room the four color bearers of the Relief corps stood with their flags as the veterans filed into the seats. Mrs. Charles S. Twist was at the piano.

Rev. C. H. Ricketts asked the blessing and about 100 were served an appetizing menu that included cold ham, baked beans, rolls, pickles, doughnuts and coffee. Mayor Waters was seated at the head table with the officers of the post. The Spanish War Veterans, Relief corps members and Daughters of Veterans had dinner with the Sedgwick post members.

Memorial Day Notes

All Legion members wore the real French poppy, the gift of Edward A. Harris, and also carried canes with American flags attached.

The beautifully decorated float of the Daughters of Veterans, which was dedicated To Our Daddies, was prepared by Mrs. Alice Brinkman, Mrs. D. Louise Atterbury, Mrs. Annie Turner and Miss Gladys Newbury. The Daughters of Veterans riding on the float were the president, Mrs. Alice C. Brinkman, Miss Gladys Newbury, Mrs. Annie Turner, Mrs. Jennie Newbury, Miss Dorothy Brinkman, Miss Ruth Brinkman, Miss Marie Atterbury, Mrs. Hattie Parsons, Mrs. Carrie Prentice, Miss Lillian Carpenter, Mrs. Cora Botham.

The motor truck for the Daughters of Veterans float was kindly donated by Harry N. Ford.

The weather for the exercises was very favorable, but rather warm for the marchers and Officer Elmer Allen of the police escort was so much affected by the heat that he was obliged to drop out of the line on the way up Washington St.

ARREST FOLLOWED BUMP ON COLCHESTER AVENUE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, May 31.—Jal Musial, of 37 Brick Row, his seven-year-old son, and a companion, John Mijcher, of 18 Lafayette street, Willimantic, sustained severe cuts about the face and head from flying glass, and the Maxwell touring car in which they were riding was badly damaged, when the machine driven by Musial crashed into the rear of a Studebaker sedan, on Norwich avenue, Colchester, at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The Studebaker was owned by Isadore Miller, of Hartford, and was being backed out of the driveway into the Main road when struck. Musial left immediately after the accident. He claimed that he wanted to have a physician attend his injured son. He first went to Westchester. He was apprehended in this city at 10 o'clock in the evening by Officer Merrott, of the local police department, after word had been received of Musial's doings from Constable John Riley, of Colchester.

Constable Riley had the man examined by Dr. Turcott, of this city, in an endeavor to fix the evidence that he had been drinking. Musial's wounds were dressed by Dr. M. D. Riordan. Musial is charged with reckless driving and evasion of responsibility. He secured a bondsman and will be presented before Fred E. Baker, J. P., of Colchester, at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. The occupants of the Studebaker escaped injury.

The polls will be open in the four city districts today from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m., daylight time.

FRANKLIN'S OBSERVANCE PROVES MOST INSPIRING

The observance of Memorial day in Franklin was most successfully planned and carried out, the program being varied and impressively patriotic. Following the noon lunch, there was the formation of schools at the church steps and the salute while veterans passed through into the church, while the piano was played. Then followed this inspiring program:

Salute to the flag, after which the Star Spangled Banner was sung; schools recited the Gettysburg Speech, greetings, F. S. Armstrong, prayer, Rev. Charles Smith, recitations, Decoration Day, Doris Newman; The Boy and the Flag, Howard Date; song, Columbia, The Gem of the Ocean, schools; recitations, In Flanders Field, Mary Idakowski; Memorial song, Marian Robinson; Cover Them Over, by Stanley Yurcik; song, Battle Cry of Freedom, schools; recitations, Cover My Defenceless Head, Edna White; My Pledge, Stephen Armstrong; solo, Song of the Flag, Grace Johnson; recitations, The Blue and Gray, Mary Berkman; The Name of Old Glory, Nathaniel Manning; My Country's Flag, Burton Smith; song, American the Beautiful, schools; recitations, For My Country, Earl Holden; The Revolutionary Rising, Palmer Rathbun; play, The First Flag by four pupils from Coole Hill school; Rally Round the Flag, Boys; address, Rev. Charles Smith of Uncasville; song America, school and audience; schools marched out, while the piano played Battle Hymn of the Republic.

Very impressive words of greeting were spoken by F. S. Armstrong, who traced the development of liberty in this glorious land and the effect of freedom in its wonderful expansion.

Rev. Mr. Smith, in his address held the close attention of all, as he dwelt especially upon the principle of unite se conspicuous, for example, during the world war, when there was no south or north, but one undivided nation.

Religious Meeting at the Jail

Representatives of the local Y. M. C. A. conducted a religious service at the county jail Sunday morning at 9.15 daylight time. Edmund A. Prentice read the scriptures and offered prayer. Hugh Kinder rendered two vocal solos which were much enjoyed. General Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief address taking for his scripture parts of the first chapter of St. John's Gospel, relating to various men discovering the Christ.

About twenty men asked to be remembered in prayer.

Communion Class of 138

At a special mass in St. Patrick's church at 8 o'clock Saturday morning a class of 138—66 girls and 72 boys received first holy communion. The mass was offered by Rt. Rev. Mgr. M. H. May, who also addressed the children on this important event in their lives. The confessions of the children had been heard by the three priests of the parish the previous afternoon.

RULES FOR YOUNG WRITERS

2.—Use pen and ink, not pencil.

3.—Short and pointed articles will be given preference. Do not use over 250 words.

4.—Original stories or letters only will be used.

5.—Write your name, age and address plainly at the bottom of the story.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Haste Not, Rest Not!

Without haste! Without rest!
Bind the motto to thy breast;
Bear it with thee as a spell;
Storm or sunshine, guard it well!
Heed not flowers that round thee bloom,
Bear it onward to the tomb!

Haste not! Let no thoughtless deed
Mar for aye the spir it's speed!
Ponder well, and know the might!
Haste not! Years cannot atone
For one reckless action done.

Rest not! Life is sweeping by,
Go and dare before you die;
Something mighty and sublime
Leave behind to conquer time!
Glorious 'tis to live for aye
When these forms have passed away.

Haste not! rest not! calmly wait;
Meekly bear the storms of fate!
Duty be they polar guide;
Do the right, whate'er betide!
Haste not! rest not! conflicts past,
God shall crown thy work at last.

—Johann Wolegang Van Goethe.

The Nightingale and the Glow Worm

A nightingale that all day long
Had cheered the village with his song,
Nor yet at eve his note suspended,
Nor yet when eventide was ended,
Began to feel, as well he might,
The keen demands of appetite;
When, looking eargerly around,
He spied far off, upon the ground,
A something shining in the dark,
And knew the glow - worm' by his spark.

So, stooping down from hawthorn top,
He thought to put him in his crop.
The worm, aware of his intent,
Harangued him thus, right eloquent:
"Did you admire my lamp," quoth he,
"As much as I your minstrelsy,
You would abhor to do me wrong
As much as I to spoil your song;
For 'twas the self-same Power divine
Taught you to sing and me to shine,
That you with music, I with light,
Might beautify and cheer the night."
The songster heard his short oration,
And, warbling out his approbation,
Released him, as my story tells,
And found a supper somewhere else.

—William Cowper.

UNCLE JEDS TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

An erect posture is a real important aid to good health. People who slouch when they walk, slouch when they stand and slouch when they are sitting are simply inviting rounded shoulders, poor health and disease. If you slouch along you are not giving your vital organs a chance to do their work properly. You should keep your body erect when sitting, walking or standing. This allows free circulation of the blood through the organs of the body. A slouching position slows up the circulation and may cause tiredness, headaches and nervousness.

Deep and regular breathing will keep your chest up where it belongs and tend to keep your body healthy, and ward off disease. Proper and regular exercise is another aid to good health. Outdoor games, like baseball, for instance, swimming, hikes through the woods and fields are all healthy pastimes. Another important thing to remember if we want to keep ourselves healthy is that we should always be cheerful. It is a well known fact that discontent, envy, anger, etc., may seriously injure one's health. Remember the things which make you happy and try to forget the things that go wrong and make you unhappy.

LETTERS OF ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Emma I. Roode, Voluntown—I received the interesting prize book entitled The Motion Picture Boys Producing a Success. I have started reading it and find it very interesting. I thank you very much for it. I like it very well. I will take the best care of it. It is a fine book and I enjoy it very much.

Sarah Yakus, Danielson—Thanks for the book you sent me. I have read it and find it very interesting.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

Hazel-Nuts and Filberts

Dear Uncle Jed: Nuts are not only good to eat, but they are very nutritious as well. Much attention of late has been given to the food value of nuts, and in the future they will be more largely used than in the past. One of the most interesting and valuable of all the nuts is the filbert which we find on sale at the stores. It is a species of hazel, and grows very much like our own hazel, which so much abounds by the roadsides and the woodland borders. It is a shrub-like tree, growing from ten to twenty feet high, while ours rarely grows more than six. There are no less than seven species of the hazel, and three of them are natives of North America.

The hazel has interesting and curious flowers. The male flowers grow in the long catkins which are formed in the fall ready to burst into bloom with the first warm days of spring. Near by on the same twig is the delicate female flower. In the spring you may see the delicate crimson stigmas almost too small to make any show, but in the autumn from each of these there grows a cluster of nuts.

The squirrels know all about these nuts and are very fond of them. If you do not find any on the bushes in September you may be sure the squirrels have been there before you.

Fourteen Hundred Chicks

Dear Uncle Jed: We have fourteen hundred baby chickens. They are White Leghorns. We have lost 99 of them. When they were smaller they had three little yards. Now we have one big yard. We have three brooders in the hen house to keep it warm. The chickens are one week old today.

My Trip to New Hampshire

Dear Uncle Jed: We were invited to spend last fourth of July with relatives in New Hampshire. I was very anxious to take the automobile trip and as they have a dear baby boy was more delighted. Eight of us started on Thursday in two autos. It was a delightfully cool summer morning, growing warmer toward noon. We passed many beautiful places and saw Camp Devens, where in the field were many horses. On the way wer some boys selling pond lilies. We bought some to tie onto the cars to decorate them. We reached our destination about half past nine, very tired.

The next morning we were awakened by the celebrations for fouth of July. In the afternoon we rode up into the White Mountains. We had luncheon and registered at a tea room at Lake Chocorua. Mt. Chocorua is at the side of the lake and rises to a good height.

Most of the autos that go by there hace camping utensils in them. It is very calm and peaceful there. On Sunday morning we started for home and saw many more beautiful views. We reached home about evelen o'clock Sunday evening. I hope all the Wide Awakes can take the trip to New Hampshire and the White Mountains.

The Midnight Sun

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write you. Where the Sun Shines at Midnight.

The Scandinavian peninsula is often called the land of the midnight sun, because its northern part lies within the Arctic circle.

In Christiania and Stockholm you can read after ten o'clock at night in summer out of doors. Some people who can not sleep when it is light pull down their curtains.

Scandinavia is the peninsula of Europe. It is a vast body of land. The land is rugged and mountainous. In the north there are snow clad peaks, and enormous glaciers. Some of the mountains are steep and countless streams dash down their sides.

The houses are like wooden boxes on foundations of stone. The walls are painted red, white, grey or yellow. The buildings look very pretty.

In Trondhjim there are many people. The streets are wide, and have many fine buildings. It has shipbuilding yards, lumber mills and fish packing houses.

Trondhjim is the third city of Norway, and is an important seaport and railroad town. It is connected with Christiania by a railroad three hundred and fifty miles long. It has much shipping and its harbor is opened all the year round. It is nearer the north pole than the Ykon river in Alaska.

A part of Sweden is much colder in winter than Norway. The people go about with sleds and skates. There are many Laplanders there. Some of the Laplanders live in tents made of skins.

Others have huts made of stone and earth. The people dress in reindeer skins with the fur inside. They belong to the yellow race, they have high cheek bones, flat noses and black eyes.

HELGA ROBERTSON, Age 13.
Moosup, R. F. D.

The Teutons

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing what kind of people the Teutons or early Germans were. They dwelt in the northern part of Europe, and were a simple and barbarous people. The Teutons were tall and fair, and were clad in skins of beasts. When they rushed to the attack with their fierce blue eyes gleaming through their long yellow or red hair they seemed like giants to the Roman soldiers who fought them. They delighted in war and loved to plunder large cities and towns. They were free and didn't have to go to war unless they wanted to.

The worshipped many Gods, among them are Odin, Thor, and Frigga. They despised cities and often destroyed them. After some of them came to Rome and became good citizens. But though many went to Italy there were always more left in Germany. Finally whole tribes came to Italy and the Roman legions could no longer keep them back. The Teutons destroyed many cities and plundered them. At last they settled down in peace and became Romans.

Had An Accident

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing you about Safety First, that we wrote about in school am in the third grade.

One day my mother, brother and father and I went to Mystic, Conn. We got there safe and had a nice time but on the way back we had a little accident. We came up against a snow bank and the car almost turned way around.

In New Hampshire

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written to you in a long time so I thought I would write and tell you about the time I went to New Hampshire. We went on a Wednesday, we got there at six o'clock at night and started at six o'clock in hte morning. We saw many beautiful sights on our way. I saw many things then that I have never seen before.

If we wanted to go to the store we had to walk or ride two miles. On our way going to the store there is a river.

Across from my aunt's house and across a large field of hay was a big lake where we went in bathing almost every day. The water of this lake was very cold, but we didn't mind that and had just as much fun.

I saw the White Mountains which are very high. There was snow on the mountains when I was there and it was in June. At night when it begin to grow dark the mountains became all misty so that we couldn't see anything.

VIVIAN PARSEAU, Age 12.

The State Road

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time that I have written to you. I will tell you about the state road past our house.

A new road was put past our house. Part of it was done last year and part this year.

Last year they were talking about it and at last began to do it. It was to be from the Willows Four Corners at Salem to North Plain.

There was one steam shovel in front of our house for seven days.

When they blasted they broke out 24 panes of glass. Once they had 18 blasts in a very few minutes. When the road was finished they blasted three times more and rocks and sticks went over the house.

We were very much frightened when we heard the glass break, and the heavy report.

We hear they expect to have a bus line from Norwich to Middletown which will go past our house.

Next year we expect a bus line from North Plain to Moodus to carry the children to high school, a distance of twelve miles or more. I guess they will be some tired children.

ANNA E. MAYNARD, Age 10.

My Operation

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to relate to you an incident that occurred to me lately. It was around Jan. 12 that I felt sick. My mother called a doctor and he said that I had a ruptured appendix, which proved very serious. It was necessary that I should immediately be removed to the hospital. Dear Uncle Jed and Wide Awakes you can all just imagine how I felt being carried away in the ambulance to the hospital, which was a serious question of life and death. When I was brought in the hospital I was immediately prepared for an operation. You can again imagine how I felt when I was being whisked to the operating table. The attendants put me on the operating table, which was covered with hot rayed blankets. I still remember myself begging the attendants not to give me too much ether, but before I could utter another sound I noticed four doctors coming in with masks on their faces. I happened to see one doctor wink to another which meant that the operation was soon to be in action. Then occurred one of the most fateful moments in my life. The ether was put on my nose, but I tried to prevent them from accomplishing their deed, which I might call brutal, but in vain. Their deed had been accomplished, and the next moment found my head turning all around and hard knocks seemed to be heard in my head, as it seemed to me I endeavored to open my eyes but everything in my presence seemed blurry and shaky. That is all I could remember of the most terrible incident that I have ever gone through in my life. I was quite surprised to find myself at last the next morning. But Oh! What pains I did have. I could have just imagined the feelings of my dear parents the night I was operated upon.

The day I was operated upon a Wednesday, and Saturday was the day my parents could have a chance to be permitted to see me. I can just imagine my parents most impatient waiting for the looked for day. I remained four weeks more in the hospital, half of which were full of pains. Then came the day which seemed to me the most happy of my life. That day was the day when I was allowed to go home. But still I had to remain in bed five weeks, the cause of which was an attack of heart trouble, which was a result of the operation. But I was afterwards sent to a convalescent home, where I regained my health in A shorter time than thought I would. I had to remain there four weeks, but I had regained my health.

I hope the Wide Awakes in fact everybody will not have such an experience as I have just related to you.

Spring

Dear Uncle Jed: The chirping of the birds, the awaking of the trees has told us that spring has come. How glad are the birds to build nests for their young ones once more. We can see them flying everywhere looking for straw, hay and grass. Every morning we can hear them singing their morning song telling us that spring has come once more. Deep in the wood is the violet so sweet and tender. On cliffs and hedges is the Mayflower very glad that spring has come again. In the fields is the dandelion waving her golden hair in the soft breeze.

By the brookside is the white violet who just waked from her long winter's sleep.

The children will put away their sleds and skates and again will play with their tops, balls, and dolls. I think that spring is the best season. Don't you Uncle Jed? I hope that all the Wide Awakes will enjoy reading my story about Spring.

Columbus

Dear Uncle Jed: Columbus was born in Genoa, Italy. He liked to sit and watch the ships sail on the sea. Columbus believed that the earth was round. The other people believed the earth was flat. He discovered America in 1492.

The Fire Department

Dear Uncle Jed: The fire department is a very important thing to have in a town. If a building is burning, most of the time the flames cannot be extinguished with out the aid of the fire department. The firemen must be brave and daring. I think the lives of the fire men are very adventurous. Years ago they drew the fire engine by fast fire horses. But now they draw it by motor and in this way they can go faster.

ANGELINA FERRO, Age 13.

Proper Foods

Dear Uncle Jed: The body is like an engine because it needs fuel to make it run. The fuel we need for our body is called food.

Our foods consist of five groups, proteins, carbohydrates, fats, mineral matter and water.

Proteins are found in meat and grains and are used to make muscles and form the body cells. To supply the body with protains one must eat meat, eggs, milk, cereals, bread, fish, beans, and peas.

Carbohydrates are starch and sugar. They furnish heat and energy for the body same as fats. They are found chiefly in sugar, beets, ripe fruits, corn, rice, wheat, potatoes and a little in all the grains.

The fats are obtained from fat meat, cream, butter and olive oil. They give us heat and energy for the body. This is the reason why the Eskimos eat so much fat.

The minerals needed for the body are salt, lime and iron. We need salt to help build our bodies and make us want the proper amount of water. Lime is needed to harden our bones and teeth. We need iron to strengthen our bodies. Salt is supplied as seasoning in nearly all foods which is a little lime and vegetables. Little babies are generally given a little lime water each day. All vegetables and fruits furnish iron, especially, tomatoes, prunes, greens and oranges.

The body consists of a large percentage of water, and it is obtained in nearly all foods, especially vegetables. One should drink eight glasses of water a day.

A person's diet should give one the proper amount of these five foods. Meat should be eaten only once a day by most people. It may be eaten twice a day by men who do hard work. The American people eat too much sweet things and too rich foods. I will close for this time.

EMMA ISABELLE ROODE, Age 13.

Philadelphia

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell the Wide Awakes some intereseting facts about Philadelphia. It was founded by the famous Quaker, William Penn. The name Pennsylvania means Penn's words, and Philadelphia means brotherly love. The famous Independence Hall, is in Philadelphia where one can see the old bell that first rang out the good news that the Declaration of Independence had been signed. The city is located on the Delaware river and is one of the largest and best seaports of the United States. Before the opening of the Erie Canal it was the first city of the country. Philadelphia is a great industrial center.

MARY MACKIE, Age 12.

My School

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my school. It is the White school. I am in the third grade. I like to go to school. I like all my lessons. We go and kill snakes and if it isn't time to go in we play ball. I have to walk about a mile and a half to school.

HERBERT CAMPBELL, Age 9.
Jewett City.

Public Drinking Cups

Dear Uncle Jed: In school and railroad cars, and at drinking fountains where many people drink from the same cup, persons who have a cold, or other disease often leave germs on the cup. Any one who drinks from a public cup is likely to take disease germs which an unhealthy person has left on the cup. Some states have laws that drinking cups, which are to be used more than once shall not be placed in schools, railway cars or other places.

The best is to bring your own drinking cup to school and not loan it to anyone. When you travel take your own cup, so you will not have to use any other cup. If you should drink from a public cup, do not take the rim of the cup between your lips, but drink by touching both lips to the water just inside the rim. In many fountains running water bubbles up in a little column. This kind of fountain is safe, because the lips touch nothing but running water. Paper cups are now manufactured and sold cheap. Each cup is to be used only once and then thrown away.

Lost in the Haybarn

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought you would probably like to hear my story, Lost in the Haybarn. One bright summer day I went over to my grandma's for a visit. She has two brothers. Their names are John and Joe. My name is Michael. Finally John said, "Come on in the haybarn, and have some fun playing tag. I will be it for tag said John. John was running after me. I ran all around the haybarn. Finally I fell in a deep hole. It was dark in the hole and the hay was coming down on my face. John said, "Where is Michael?"

I think Michael is down in the hole. Finally they heard a cry, "Help! Help" "Michael where are you?" "I am in the hole."

"Joe, get the ladder" and put it down in the hole. Finally I came up and was all out of breath. When we got home we ate our supper and we all went to bed at 7 oclock.

A Visit To the Beach

Dear Uncle Jed: One hot day last July my uncle asked us if we would like to take a trip to the beach. He took my mother, sister, cousin and myself. I was very anxious to go in the water as I am very fond of bathing. We spent most of the afternoon in the water and on the beach playing ball and tag. I was sorry when we had to go home.

Curing Snake Bites

time have written to you. I'm going time have written to you. 'm going to tell you how to cure snake's bites before going to a doctor.

First when a person gets bit, we should take our handkerchief, tie the ends together around the person's arm with a stick in between, then turn till the blood stops. Then suck the blood out.

After that put some leaves on the wound.

Then bring the person to a doctor for further treatment.

JOHN GIBSON, Age 9.
Voluntown.

The Japanese

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write you what I have read about the Japanese. The Japanese live far across the Pacific ocean near Asia. Their country is made up of islands. They belong to the yellow race. The Japanese have black hair and slanting eyes, like the Chinese.

The children wear long loose robes, with long sleeves and use them for pockets. The older girls carry their brothers and sisters on their backs. This is the way all babies are carried in Japan.

Their tables are little mats. The beds are on the floor. They have wooden pillows to lay on to keep their hair smooth.

The children go to school and learn the same things that we do. They are very polite to their teachers and playmates.

A great many toys are made in Japan. The American children like to play with them so the United States buys toys from Japan also much silk, rice and tea.

The White Robin is Left Alone.

Astonishing it is and queer
How many folks are ruled by fear.
—Old Mother Nature.

My, such a lot of gossip as there was in the Old Orchard over that white baby in the nest of Welcome and Mrs. Robin! Everybody had something to say about it. Of course everybody came to look at it. Welcome and Mrs. Robin had all kinds of advice. You would have thought it was a disgrace to have a baby with a white coat could you have heard some of those feathered folk talk.

Of course the little white Robin knew nothing of all this for he couldn't understand. He just went right on eating and growing as a healthy young Robin should. Welcome and Mrs. Robin did their best by the little fellow. They took great care that he should have his full share of food. In fact, Mrs. Robin often picked out the biggest and fattest worms for him. You see, she had a feeling in her bones that when this young Robin started out in the Great World he wouldn't have an easy time. So she meant that he should at least have a good start.

He Was Alone in the Midst of Many.

When it came time for the young Robin and his brother and sisters ot leave the nest and try their wings out in the Great World, all the sharp eyes in the Old Orchard were watching. The other young Robins were dressed as young Robins should be dressed. They were properly speckled on their breasts to show that they really belonged to the Thrush family. But there were no speckles on the White Robin. His brothers and sisters seemed not to know just what to make of him. In fact, they treated him very much as if he were a stranger. His father and mother looked after him as best they could, but just as soon as he was big enough to have learned how to find his own food they gave him little attention. In fact, he was the first one to really start out by himself.

It didn't take that young Robin long to find out that he simply wasn't wanted around by his neighbors. If he flew over to join his own family they separated and left him alone. Other birds moved off when he came near. They were suspicious of him. Yes, sir, they were suspicious of him. You know people are very apt to be suspicious of other people who are a little different from themselves. It is just the same with the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows.

So though this young Robin acted just like other young Robins, and had a voice just like other young Robins, and, in fact, did everything just as a young Robin should, he seemed to be regarded as something queer and to be avoided, all because of his white coat, which of course was no fault of him. Old Mother Nature had given it to him, and he had had nothing to say about it.

Now there is no loneliness like the loneliness of one who is alone among others. Here were other feathered folk all about, yet this White Robin had no one to talk to, no one to make friends with. He was alone in the midst of many. It seemed very hard Do you think it was unkind of the others to have nothing to do with him? Well, there was a reason. All of those other feathered folk were afraid of the White Robin. Yes, sir that is what was the trouble. They were not afraid of him personally, but they were afraid of danger that he might bring to them. You see, they knew that with that white coat he could easily be seen by enemies. They knew it would be very difficult for him to keep out of sight. So they didn't want him around where they were.

So the young Robin soon found that he was not wanted in the Old Orchard and he left it. He didn't feel so very badly about it because, although he was lonesome, he didn't know how lonesome he was. You see, he had been alone all his short life, so he was used to it. He wasn't unhappy. In fact, life was very good to the young White Robin. You see, he didn't know how handicapped he was.

JEWETT CITY

Considering the threatening clouds of the early morning, the weather man changed the plan when the grand parade was ready to start, shortly after 9 o'clock, Saturday morning. The Wauregan Cornet band of 25 pieces, Henry Leach, leader, had the right of line. The committee were fortunate in securing these musicians, whose playing was most inspiring. The band were followed by the main body of the procession, with Edward Wyatt in charge of 26 Legion men; mainly from Orville LaFlamme post, veterans of the world war. Men from both the Spanish and Indian reservations war, together with a delegation of the Sons of Civil war veterans. Commander of the Legion, P. W. Chase was in charge of the firing squad, who discharged a twenty-four shot salvo, at the three cemeteries and at the Quinebaug bridge, where John Driscoll and William Sharkey, scattered flowers upon the water, in memory of those who sleep in the deep. The members of the squad were, John Hanson, Herbert Gray, Adelbert Babcock, Victor St. John from the army and from the navy, E. H. Hiscox, Jr., George Cyr, Napoleon Cyr and Irving Thornton.

Dr. G. H. Jennings, was chairman of the arrangement committee, and marshal of the day. He marched with his aides, George Hiscox, Adrian Maynard, and Alex Desjardines. Adjutant Gilbert Miner, was color bearer, with Walter and Carl Benjamin as color guards.

An attractive division of the parade, was the platoon of 18 Boy Scouts in uniform, in charge of Scout Master Lemuel Green. There were eleven automobiles in line, with Mrs. P. W. Chase at the right. Her mission was as grand as her service was gratuitous, for her passengers were Lewis A. Thornton, Griswold's only surviving member of Sedgwick Post, No. 1, G. A. R., and the marshal's brother, James Jennings of West Willington, also a member of the G. A. R. Griswold has one other veteran of the Civil war George Lindell, who was absent in another state.

Riding in the other automobiles were members of Anne Brewster Fanning chapter, D. A. R., Jewett City chapter, American Red Cross, Woman's auxiliary, American Legion post, Mrs. LaFlamme, a gold star mother, world war veterans' mothers with service flags. Mrs. Azilda Maynard, proudly carried a five-star flag. Mrs. F. X. Desjardines' showed three stars, her two sons were in the ranks and a daughter was an army nurse in France. Woman's Relief Corps, Daughters of Veterans, guests of honor the clergy and town and borough officials. Traffic regulations arranged by Officers Viegard, Sibellaud and Bacon kept vehicular movements in perfect order.

The line first halted at Slater library, where, on the lawn, the town's honor roll and the D. A. R. memorial tree were decorated. The latter by Miss Ida P. Foster, for Anne Brewster Fanning chapter. Miss Eva LaFlamme, sister of Orville LaFlamme, for whom the post was named, pleacing the wreath at the foot of the memorial boulder.

At the Jewett City, St. Mary's and Baptist cemeteries, the customary exercises were carried out. The prayers at the cemeteries were offered by Rev. A. H. Clement and Rev. J. J. McCabe. At David Hale Fanning park, the ceremonies were very impressive. A chorus of pupils from the sixth and seventh grades of the Riverside grammar school sang patriotic songs: Eilen Prior, Claire Shea, Marjorie Webster, Grace Jeffers, Eunice Webster, Catherine Jodoin, Mildred Gilbert, Herbert Webster, Ruby Gray and Janet Wilcox placed wreaths and bouquets about the granite bases of the monument, under the direction of Miss Alice A. Brown.

Following the prayer by Rev. J. W. Carter, over a thousand persons listened with attention to the Memorial address by Rev. John J. McCabe, pastor of St. Mary's church, the eloquent and scholarly speaker of the day. Father McCabe in his opening sentences paid tribute to the patriots, living and dead, of this glorious united republic of the Western world. Attention was called to the debt of love we owe; there is reverence and respect due from us to honored dead and present heroes all over our broad land of liberty who partook, some at awful cost, in the fiercest struggle this world has ever known. "Let us pray to almighty God," he said, "for unity in a closer spiritual bond, ever remembering that true religious is the solid foundation of all government.

"Let our prayers be, that we are not to become merely a powerful nation, but a God-fearing nation, recognizing that love is the greatest thing of all, unsurpassed by any military conquests on the fields of war.

"This nation," said he, "stands today attention, as one man to salute the remnant of the fast failing columns, of the one great and honored Grand Army of the Republic.

"As we stand upon the hillside at sunset, we must note the ever widening gaps in their passing ranks; there is borne upon us the greatest of truths, we must never forget, we must never prove faithless. "Reverently attending these services today all over this great land, are the gray men and frail, tottering at the edge of the grave young and stalwart men and the sick of the nation's hospitals. Then here in the silent cities of the dead are those who gave their very life's blood making the great sacrifice at their country's call. Let us, as a Christian nation, offer our prayers to the high God that they may rest in peace.

"There is no fear," said the speaker "for a nation as long as we faithfully observe this great day; the tide of business stops, the schools are closed and there is a grand uniting in the service which reinembrance demands. Attention was called to the duty that will devolve upon the rising generations. It will be the business of the young, to soon take up the fallen staff, to perpetuate these grand customs, wherein each must render his meed of reverence for the living patriots and those that have gone before.

Attention was called to the grand customs of the southern women, wherein no line was seen in harsh segregation of those who wore the Blue or Gray, followed soon by an established Memorial day, with its privileges and duties. The seeds sown: the speaker said, on that first Decoration day have borne fruit a thousand fold, over the great white fields of the silent bivouac of the dead.

"Let us with Christian zeal do our utmost to perpetuate the welfare of our nation, so that, when we are called to pass on to that undiscovered country from whose bounds no traveler returns, we shall receive the reward of those who have proven faithful to their country, and faithful to their God."

Dinner was served to one hundred and fifty persons in the Methodist vestry, under the direction of Mrs. G. H. Thornton. The menu included baked beans, cold fresh ham, potato salad, brown bread, rolls, pickles, cake and coffee. The committee in charge of the dinner was Mrs. Thornton, Mrs E. B. Cheney, Mrs. Irving Thornton Mrs. Dora Johnson, Mrs. Ella Geer Mrs. M. E. Shea, Miss Roxanna Desjardines, Mrs. Frank Leyden, Mrs Louis Gingras, Mrs. E. M. Gray, Miss Ruby Thornton, Mrs Jennie Wild, Susie Morgan, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, Mrs J. T. Stewart and Miss M. A. Burdick. The waitresses were Margaret Driscoll, Claire Berard, Leocard Couture, Anna Ruszenas, Helen Babcock Ruth Hewlitt, Emma Dearnley, Mary Howes, Ruth Thornton, Arlene Burdick, Frances Bugbee, Martha Mell Gladys Marian and Grace Jeffers Ethel Thompson and Minnie Hiscox.

The committee appreciated the generosity as to both food and money and other very valuable assistance that the whole town gave in order to make the day a success. The local American Legion Post were in charge of the arrangements for the day.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

A wonderfully balanced program of B. F. Keith vaudeville and a fine photoplay opens at the Broadway theatre starting today. This is the only vaudeville in town now, and the management advises that the same high standard will be maintained as heretofore.

The opening offering will be Takio and his jungle film, who stands alone when it comes to producing the sounds of his wild animal films.

Songs, steps and smiles constitute the offering by Hare and Hare, which is very well assembled and presented.

John Philbrick and Loretta Devoe appear in a comedy oddity entitled "Samples." You will be delighted with their comedy methods.

Carlo DeAngelo and Willis Claire in the "New Citizen" offer a splendid bit of Italian character comedy bit.

Closing the show will be Frank Reckless and Company in a very pleasing closing novelty.

"The Dressmaker from Paris" arrived in town yesterday and will be here until Wednesday.

It's a new Paramount picture, featuring Leatrice Joy and Ernest Torrence.

The story is a romance which begins in Paris in the war-shrouded days of 1918. The picture marks Miss Joy's return to the screen after an absence of nearly a year. She is cast in the role of Fifi, French midinette who becomes a famous designer of fashions.

Torrence plays Angus McGregor, tight-wad department store proprietor. Allan Forrest, leading man in the picture, is McGregor's partner, Forrest, as Billie Brent, meets Fifi first in France and later when the girl comes to the Emporium to put on a fashion show. She is known now as Madame Louise, and Brent almost passes out of the picture when she shows up.

Fourteen International Beauty Models, selected after a world-wide search, are cast as "The Dressmaker's" manikins in the picture, written directly for the screen by Adelaide Heilbron and Howard Hawks and adapted by Adelaide Heilbron.

Breed Theatre.

It seems to this reviewer that those who go to the theatre seldom, as well as those who go more or less regularly, cannot afford to miss the Hobart Henley production So This is Marriage, which came to the Breed theatre Sunday for three days.

This is one of those rare pictures which possess not only unusual excellencies in the matter of direction, acting, suspense and plot, but also includes a feature—an insert in natural colors of the Biblical story of David and Bath-Sheba—that is extraordinarily beautiful and out of the ordinary in every way.

This sequence, which includes five hundred players clad in the vivid colors of King David's day, which are translated to the screen by the Technicolor process, is an insert in an otherwise ultra-modern story of the gay and extravagant wife (Eleanor Boardman), the (to her) humdrum husband (Conrad Nagle), and the sympathetic bachelor friend (Lew Cody). The remark of the wife to the husband, "Why don't you earn more money; other men do?" is significant of the situation that develops between them.

The insert in colors was directed by Mr. Henley from the 11th and 12th chapters of the second book of Samuel. It tells of the steal of Uriah's wife, Bath-Sheba, by King David, their marriage after Uriah had been sent to his death by David, and later the death of their child. These scenes take place during a great feast and a vivid pageant and long will linger in the memory.

Palace Theatre.

Tonight is the Grand Opening of the Augustin Stock Co. at the Palace Theatre and will inaugurate its first week of stock plays, presenting The Brat. Miss Ruth Floyd, who was leading lady with Lou Tellegen in Blind Youth for one solid year, will take the role of The Brat. Miss Floyd is an actress of rare acting ability, magnetism, personal charm, and one who combines unusual comeliness with those little arts which makes the acting of a clever lady effective. You will like Miss Floyd. Mr. William Augustin will head the company. Mr. Augustin directs the company as well. Others in the company include Arthus Behrin, second man, who starred in the original production, East is West. Frank Sadler will be the juvenile man. Claire Maslin will be the character lady. Nelly Grey, ingenue leading lady, was with the New York production of Irene and has been playing the same roles with this company for the past four years. Bernard Pate, Joe Angel, Jean Arden and others complete the cast.

The Brat is a comedy drama full of romance and pathos and is sure to please. A large attendance is expected at its opening tonight.

Outlines of moving human faces have been photographed through the air by a wireless process, according to the claim of J. L. Baird, a Scotch engineer.

BROTHER APPEARS AT NEW LONDON TO CLAIM SUICIDE'S EFFECTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 31.—Bernard Maguire, 37 Park street, Attleboro, Mass., brother of Patrick Maguire, who committed suicide by jumping from the deck of the steamer Chester W. Chapin on the night of Feb. 24, 1924, while the steamer was off Bridgeport, and who has been appointed administrator of the Maguire estate, came to New London Saturday evening for the purpose of taking over the effects of the dead man, which have been in possession of the police since a day or two following the suicide. A bank book showing a considerable deposit in a New York bank was given the administrator and wearing apparel also held by the police will be forwarded to the brother of the dead man within a day or two.

Commander Hickey, United States Coast Guard academy, complained to the police early Sunday morning that a group of male Italians was outside the Fort Trumbull reservation and were annoying officers at the academy because of loud talking, an experience that the coast guard officers have been subjected to frequently within the past few weeks. Sergeant Patrick Murphy was sent to the coast guard entrance, but did not find the disturbers. The officer did find them near a dance hall on Smith street and ordered them off the street.

An automobile owned and operated by William McKee, colored, of 115 Green street, crashed through the plate glass window of the store of Charles L. Raub, 111 Golden street, early this morning. The accident occurred when McKee, in attempting to turn the machine around, guided it upon the sidewalk when the brakes refused to operate, the car hitting the big window with such force as to completely demolish it. McKee reported the accident at the police station and stated that he would defray the cost of a new window.

Charles R. Stoll, 174 Bank street, complained to the police this morning because of an alleged nuisance existing in the building, 166 Bank street, where a so-called "pet shop" is maintained. Numerous young animals, particularly dogs, are stored in the building, together with birds, chickens, etc.

George Peterson, 1069 Boulevard, West Hartford, will be in the police court Monday morning, charged with violation of the automobile law in operating a motor vehicle without having a license. Peterson is a minor, being 17, and his machine was held as surety for the appearance of the accused in court. Peterson was operating his car through Bank street Saturday afternoon and when the machine owned and driven by Robert Rice, athletic instructor of the public schools, came to a stop, the car driven by Peterson hit the rear end of Rice's car, slightly damaging the tire rack. Rice lodged complaint against Peterson and the latter was taken into custody by Sergeant Samuel Hick.

A group of sailors congregated at the corner of Howard and Hamilton streets, early Sunday morning, and created such noise that complaint was lodged with the police by residents of that locality. When officers arrived, the sailors had disappeared.

The largest crowd of the season visited Ocean Beach this afternoon. It being estimated that there were close to 25,000 persons about the shore resort between 3 and 4 o'clock. All trolley cars were filled leaving the State street terminal while hundreds of automobiles were parked on the various avenues about the resort.

Guy Underwood, 27, of 672 Main street, a mechanic, was taken into custody late last night by State Police Officer Robert Bobnick charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. Underwood's arrest resulting when he was detected driving the machine in Waterford. Underwood was made a prisoner at the New London police station over night, but this morning he was taken before a justice of the peace in Waterford and admitted to bail. He will be given a hearing tomorrow evening.

David Hullivan, a former resident of New London, now residing in Salt Lake City, Utah, is spending a few days in this city.

Representative George Sisson, formerly of New London, now located in Hartford, spent the week-end with relatives here.

Memorial day was observed here Saturday by a very general suspension of business, the marching of soldiers and sailors to the cemeteries, accompanied by Spanish war veterans, Sons of Veterans and the surviving members of the Grand Army of the Republic. There are but few of the last named, four or five automobiles being sufficient to transport them to the burial places of their former comrades in arms. A detail of police headed the column that formed at Union street and proceeded direct to the cemeteries, headed by the band from Fort Wright. The column elicited applause as the band struck into a march and headed up State street. The march and the ceremonies at the burial places consumed three hours. On the return the column halted in the square between Union and Washington streets on State, where the coast guard troops came to battalion front and stood at attention while the colors passed. Spectators stood with uncovered heads during that ceremony and the band played "The Star Spangled Banner." Then the column was dismissed and, headed by the coast guard men and followed by the sailors, the line of march was to the fort and to the boats that conveyed the troops to their stations.

Two drunks appeared for discipline in the police court Saturday morning. They were John Carney, who claimed to be a carpenter from Waterbury and to be on his way to Fort Wright, where he had been promised work. He didn't look the part he essayed and his story had some elements of fictitiousness, but the court accepted what he said as the truth and he was allowed to get over to the fort on suspension of judgment. The other man accused was Thomas A. Canning. He seemed to have been canning booze for he was very drunk when he was taken into custody at the railway station. He represented that he came from the soldiers' home at Taugus, Me., and that here he struck up an acquaintance with a former comrade in arms and they "had a few" together. Canning, too, was allowed his freedom, on a suspension of judgment.

Desk Sergeant James C. Sullivan began his vacation of two weeks today and during his absence his duties will be filled by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock. Sergeant Sullivan left this noon for Detroit, Mich., where he will spend the greater part of the fortnight with his daughter.

Walter Beaney, 29 Linden street, was arrested Saturday afternoon by Traffic Officer William Graham, charged with violating the automobile laws, being at the wheel of an automobile on Main street and not possessed of an operator's license. He furnished a surety on his bond for his appearance in the police court Monday morning.

Leon Colby, 73 Riverview avenue, reported to the police late Saturday that he had taken a small boy to his home, the youngster having strayed away, and that the child was unable to make known the address of its parents. The police took charge of the child and later decided that he was Fred Nahas, Church street, and he was delivered to his parents.

The meeting of the council, sitting as a committee, in the council chamber, Municipal building, Friday night, did not result in anything like a certainty of a member of the New York police force being brought to New London for the purpose of advising as to better regulations and rules of the department, as was recommended by City Manager William A. Holt at the meeting of the city council a week ago. Friday night City Manager Holt explained that he had the names of five or six New York officers, whose services could be obtained for the purpose wanted by him and that each man was highly recommended. It also developed that the hiring of such a man would entail a considerable expense, especially for salary, while an additional expense was anticipated to cover the New York officer's living expenses during his stay in New London. After discussion of the matter three hours the meeting adjourned without any definite plans being formulated, but it is probable that a report will not be submitted to the council at the regular session to take place Monday night.

Robert Price, 34, colored, residing at 48 John street, was arrested early this morning by Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray and Patrolman Edward Riordan charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. In default of a surety on his bond of $100 Price was locked up to await a court trial Monday morning. Price was in the vicinity of John and North Bank streets and as he had been drinking freely and was loitering about, Patrolman Riordan ordered him to go to his home. Instead, Price, it is alleged went to the vinicity of North Bank and Douglass Sts., where he assumed a defiant attitude. Officer Riordan again approached Price and again ordered him home. Price went to John street where he removed his coat and is said to have made threats against the officer. When Price emerged from the store, Riordan placed Price under arrest and Motorcycle Officer Ray, who had stationed himself at the corner of North Bank and John streets to be on hand should Price attack Riordan, accompanied his associate officer and the prisoner to the police station.

The police received complaint from C. Harrison Whittemore, 63 Fair Harbor place that a bullet had been fired through one of the windows of his home. Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray was assigned to conduct an investigation and quickly decided that the bullet, a 38- calibre, had been fired by Otto H. Schroeter, 58 Fair Harbor place. Schroeter had been annoyed because of cats killing birds and eating goldfish on his property. Observing a cat prowling about his home about 8.30 o'clock, Schroeter seized his revolver and fired at the animal. The bullet missed its mark and after caroming off the granolithic sidewalk, went through the Whittemore window on the opposite side of the street.

FOUR MEN IN LAUNCH WERE TOO NEAR RUM SHIP

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 31—Albert Roberts of Boston; John Allen of Wickford, R. I., John Sears, Somerville, Mass., and Walter Taylor, Hamilton, R. I., are prisoners at the New London police station, the quartet being charged with violations of the maritime law in attempting to communicate with a foreign ship. The men will be given a hearing tomorrow before United States Commissioner Russell Corcoran, at the customs house.

Roberts, Allen, Sears and Taylor were made prisoners a considerable distance off rum row, this morning, by the crew of the United States Coast Guard patrol boat, 237 when the boat the imprisoned men were aboard, attempting to deliver mail to the crew of one of the foreign ships bottled up, by the fleet of government craft that is engaged off Montauk Point and Block Island, attempting to put an end to the trafficking in liquor.

The boat, a launch equipped with four Liberty motors and capable of developing great speed, was sighted moving suspiciously within a short distance of the rum row fleet. The 237 started towards the suspicious craft and pulling up alongside, she was boarded by coast guard officers. No sign of liquor was revealed in a search of the craft, but a quantity of mail was found destined to the master and crew of one of the liquor supply boats. The crew of the launch were taken aboard the 237 and brought into port, reaching New London in charge of Chief Petty Officer Lawrence Bracks during the forenoon.

The launch was taken in charge by officers of government boats, and it is expected will be brought into port during the night. The launch is a costly one and of steel hull, while the windows of the cabin and pilot house are provided with bullet proof glass windows.

A very pleasant evening was spent, with singing and games, after which refreshments were served.

OLD MYSTIC

The Mystic Grange club met Monday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Haley. The guests were delighted to meet in this most interesting house, as, according to Grace D. Wheeler in Old Homes in Stonington, it is the oldest house in the village. It is a one-story building and called the Chester house, or more familiarly, the Washington house, as it is said that George Washington once dined here when passing through the place.

It is covered with old-time shingles three feet long. As one enters the front door the square hall speaks of hospitality. Mr. Haley has put it in first class condition, installed a hot water heater, electric lights and furnished it in antique style with expensive furniture. In one room guests can listen to a victrola, while in another is an up-to-date radio. The former owner, J. Benton Copp, put on an attractive porch, changing the outward appearance. The timbers and the whole house is in such an excellent condition it bids fair to stand another century.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Joseph Austin. The principal business was discussing plans for the lecturer's hour in the contest with Mystic grange. The members have the advantage of the others in being last and they are hoping to win in the contest and be entertained by the two losing divisions.

The territory of the club extends to Bindloss mill, on the west side, and Elm Grove cemetery on the east side. They have 40 active and 4 honorary members. Thirty-one were present at this meeting. Sandwiches, cake and coffee was served. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Chappin will entertain the club at the next meeting.

Fev. Francis Mitchell was engaged to supply the pulpit of the Baptist church on Sunday.

The Ladies' Aid society met with Mrs. Lillie Tinker Wednesday afternoon.

It is reported another tea room is to be opened here. Two are already open.

The new state road from the New London bridge over the old turnpike to the village has increased traffic enormously here.

POETRY

A GARDEN HYMN

I never knew Thee, Lord, until
My garden brought me face to face,
Revealed Thy gracious miracle
Of sun and seed in little space.

Since I have seen Thine alchemy
Change the earth-brown bulbs to living gold
Of daffodils, Eternity
Has seemed a simple truth to hold.

The incense-breath of mignonette
Has summoned me to vespers too,
And may I nevermore forget
To lift my heart, as pansies do!

No dim cathedral is as still
As twilight in this holy place;
I never knew Thee, Lord, until
My garden brought us face to face.
—By Molly Anderson Haley.

TREES

In the Garden of Eden, planted by God
There were goodly trees in the springing sod—

Trees of beauty and height and grace,
To stand in splendor before His face.

Apple and hickory, ash and pear,
Oak and beech and the tulip rare,

The trembling aspen, the noble pine,
The sweeping elm by the rover line;

Trees for the birds to build and sing,
And the lilac tree for a joy in the spring;

Trees to turn at the frosty call
And carpet the ground for their Lord's football;

Trees for fruitage and fire and shade,
Trees for the cunning builder's trade;

Wood for the bow, the spear, and the flail,
The keel and the mast of the daring sail;

He made them of every grain and girth
For the use of man in the Garden of Earth.

Then lest the soul should not lift her eyes
From the gifts to the Giver of Paradise,

On the crown of a hill for all to see,
God planted a scarlet maple tree.
—By Bliss Carman.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Gotta match?" "I'll give you one for a cigarette." "All right—that's what I want it for."—Georgia Tech Yellow Jacket.

"What is an opportunist?" "One who meets the wolf at the door and appears the next day in a fur coat."—University of Michigan Gargoyle.

Howell—We are never too old to learn.

Powell—And we are never too young to know it all, so we haven't anything to learn.—Life.

"I hear you gave a party last night, old chap. What was it to celebrate?"

"It was for my wife. It was the 10th anniversary of her 30th birthday."—Tit-Bit.

First—The bathtub at our house hasn't been working for three months.

Second—When did you find that out?

First—This morning.—Caveman.

We've all heard about the absent-minded professor who poured the syrup down his back and scratched his pancake, but the one that worries us is the one who poured catsup on his shoelace and tied his spaghetti.—Everybody's.

Bystander (to movie sheik)—What're you doing?

Bystander—You don't have to pick them up; they'll jump.—Cornell Widow.

Preacher—And do you take this woman for your lawful wedded wife?

Rastus—Judge, Ah ain't takin' nuthin'. But she kin trail erlong if'n she wants to.—Denver University Parrakeet.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Not until 1840 were watches successfully made by machinery.

Apple cider may be kept sweet for an indefinite time by pasteurization.

Benjamin Franklin was the first to devise a method of firing gunpowder by electricity.

A public bath for dogs has been established in Munich, Germany, and is open daily from 8.30 a. m. to 7 p. m.

Maps for tax assessing purposes have been made in Connecticut from photographs taken from an airplane.

One new small all-metal airplane designed in Germany is built wholly of aluminum, and another has a nickel steel body and aluminum wings.

An enamel coating for cast iron propellers for ships to make them as smooth as bronze ones and prevent corrosion has been invented in Europe.

Pingpong has returned to favor in Berlin. A table tenis club recently was established and fifty organizations joined it. A tournament is being planned for next fall.

Twenty thousand school children of London are to be taken to theatres to see Shakespearean plays during the year. The cost, $6,000, will be borne by the London county council.

American tobacco has supplanted the British weed in the esteem of Chinese smokers, who bought 10,000,000,000 American cigarettes in 1923 against 2,000,000,000 British, according to the commerce department.

When Mrs. Henry Wood wrote "East Lynne" she had much difficulty in finding a publisher. Since then the novel has been translated into some thirty languages, and in Great Britain alone its sales have totalled many millions.

Shoe dealers in France suffered from the effects of an unusually mild winter last year. Many dealers were forced to drop part of their sales corps while some found it necessary to close down. Dealers in Paris, however, were able to stand the conditions by offering fancy high-priced shoes.

Since 1919 production of coal in France has increased steadily and in 1924 reached a new level, though still inferior to the output of France and Lorraine, combined, in 1913. The total of 44,955,000 metric tons in 1924 was an increase over 1923 of 17 per cent., and was 10 per cent. above the 1913 output of France before the return of Lorraine. This increase in output for 1924 was made possible largely by the further reconstruction in the devastated mining area.

A copy of a resolution adopted by the Lancaster (O.) school board in 1823 was read at a recent convention of the American Society of Civil Engineers at Cincinnati. In its greeting to the civil engneers of those days it says: "You are welcome to use the schoolhouse to debate all proper questions in. But such things as railroads and telegraphs are impossible, and rank infidelity. There is nothing in the Word of God about them. It is a device of Satan to carry the souls of the faithful down to hell."

CARBRAY IN HOSPITAL FOR OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS AFTER SHOOTING

Presented in the city court Saturday morning on a charge of assault with intent to kill John Carbray, 31, of Boswell avenue, was ordered held in bail of $25,000 by Judge Arthur F. Libby, who continued the case until next Saturday, June 6th. Carbray, unable to raise the required bond of $25,000, was taken to the New London county jail on Cedar street. Carbray, who is held by the police, in connection with the shooting of his divorced wife, Anna Weitin Carbray, and her alleged affinity, Herman Greiner, early Saturday morning, suddenly developed symptoms of appendicitis at the county jail Sunday and during the afternoon he was removed from the jail to the W. W. Backus Hospital, Dr. Louis T. Cassidy being called in on the case. Police Officer William Sharvan was detailed to guard Carbray at the hospital. Neither Carbray's divorced wife nor Greiner who are patients at the Backus hospital know that their alleged assailant is also a patient at the hospital.

It was at 12:35 o'clock Saturday morning that Captain Thomas P. Murphy, on duty at police headquarters, received a telephone call from Mrs. E. B. Worthington, No. 632 Main street, just above the silk mill on Fox's hill, to the effect that a woman had been shot. The patrol wagon and officers in charge of Sgt. John H. Casey were hurriedly despatched to the scene and Dr. William T. Driscoll was summoned by Captain Murphy. When the police arrived, they found Mrs. Carbray, lying on the porch, badly wounded and Mr. Greiner sitting in a chair in the house with a bullet wound in his lip. Both were rushed to the Backus hospital in the patrol wagon.

Mrs. Carbray was lying across the threshold and had lost considerable blood.

Greiner's watch was found on a bureau and Greiner, fully clothed, was sitting in a chair with the bullet wound in his face. Greiner's automobile was outside the house.

Louis B. Weltin of No. 614 Main street, father of the wounded woman, said that she was planning on going to a picnic at Beach Pond with Mr. Greiner and intended to start for the picnic grounds early Saturday morning.

The police found and took to police headquarters a white bed spread with two bullet holes in it. The bullet holes showed powder burns and the bed spread was saturated with blood around each bullet hole. Greiner's face shows bad powder burns and this coupled with the powder burns on the bed spread and on Greiner's face indicates that the bullets were fired at close range. A bullet was found in the bed clothing and this also was taken to police headquarters.

The police found that the telephone wire leading to Mrs. Carbray's tenement had been cut and it is said that a screen had been removed from a window in the tenement which is on the ground floor making it easy to gain entrance to the house. It was learned that Carbray had borrowed a pair of wire cutters from Louis Hawkins of Hawkins, The Florist, Friday afternoon and the theory is advanced that he used the borrowed cutters to cut the telephone wire before he climbed through the window and fired, at close range, the shots at his former wife and Greiner.

Although the police were at the scene of the shooting within the space of a very few minutes the assailant had gotten away. Police headquarters sent out emergency calls to all officers on duty to be on watch for Carbray and to arrest him on sight. As it was thought that Carbray would make for his home on Boswell avenue, where he lived with his mother in the house known as the old engine house, Sergt. Matthew Delaney was rushed by automobile from Greeneville to Boswell avenue and with Officer Joseph P. Farrell maintained a watch at Carbray's house. Officer Luke Riley hurried through Eighth street to the Eighth street bridge and Officer Quinn was on the watch for Carbray lower down in Greeneville. All other officers on duty were on the lookout for Carbray.

About 1:30 o'clock Officer Riley nailed Carbray on the Preston side of the Eighth street bridge and he was taken to police headquarters in the patrol wagon. A .32-calibre revolver was found on Carbray and investigation at police headquarters revealed the fact that four of the five bullets in the chamber had been discharged. The theory is advanced that Carbray, after discharging the four bullets at his former wife and Greiner, had reserved the fifth bullet for self-destruction but lost his nerve when it came to turning the gun on himself. Carbray was evidently intoxicated when he was booked at headquarters. On his person was found a half bottle of Jamaica ginger which, it is assumed, was responsible for his intoxicated condition.

Although the man and woman showed some improvement at the hospital Sunday their condition is still considered as serious. The bullet aimed at Greiner entered his lip and lodged in his cheek just below his eye, probably tearing the carotid artery. The wounded woman has two bullets close together in front of her windpipe, a dangerous place, and up to Sunday neither had been extracted. She was shot through both arms, the bullets entering between her elbow and shoulder, taking an upward course and lodging almost together in front of her windpipe, as shown by the X-ray pictures. She was much weakened by the large quantity of blood she lost.

Mrs. E. B. Worthington who resides in the tenement immediately above that occupied by Mrs. Carbray, and who sent in the call to police headquarters, said Sunday evening that she would rather not make any statement in regard to the shooting. It is understood that she was notified of the shooting by one of Mrs. Carbray's children, by a former husband.

George C. Conrad of No. 311 Palmer street, a motorman in the employ of the Connecticut company, was on his way home after his last run of the night, when his attention was attracted by some one screaming. Mr. Conrad who runs on the Norwich-New London line had driven his car into the barn in Greeneville at midnight and according to his daily custom left the car barn on the trolley car due in Franklin Square at 12:20 a. m. He was walking on East Main street from the Marguerite corner towards his home and he reached a point near the silk mill when he heard some one scream. Just at that moment an automobile came dashing down East Main street towards the city and Mr. Conrad thought at first that the machine had run over some woman.

Investigating he saw Mrs. Worthington coming from the second story of the house in which Mrs. Carbray resides and inquiring what the matter was, was told that a woman had been shot. Mr. Conrad found the woman lying on the front porch partly within the door and discovered that her side was covered in blood. A small girl was there and he asked the girl if she couldn't get something with which to cover her mother up. The child promptly brought something to cover the wounded woman with, and Mr. Conrad did what he could to stop the flow of blood.

Mr. Conrad in the meantime told Mrs. Worthington who had told him about the woman being shot, to call a doctor and to notify the police. Mrs. Worthington replied that she had already notified the police. About this time Sgt. Casey and police officers arrived. They found Mr. Greneir sitting in a chair in the house, with a bullet wound in his lip.

The charge upon which Carbray is held, assault with intent to kill, carries the death penalty upon his conviction, should either of his victims die from their injuries.

PAY HONOR TO NORWICH HERO OF WORLD WAR

At the Sunday morning service at the First Congregational church, the pastor, Rev. Gurdon P. Bailey, paid a fitting tribute to the memory of Private William M. Durr, when referring to the granite block set recently on the church grounds, by the W. I. T's., the organized class of young men of the Sunday school, of which he was one of the founders. Rev. Mr. Bailey said in substance: I have a very unusual announcement this morning regarding the dedication of a marker for one of our church boys who gave his life in the World War. This club of young men the W. I. T's., have had it in their hearts and minds for some time to commemorate to his memory this permanent emblem of their love and esteem. A few years ago, April 26th, 1918, a Colorado spruce tree was set out by this class. This last week these same young men purely out of the love in their hearts for one who was their first president, one who held offices in the Sunday school and Christian Endeavor society, had this granite marker which had been suitably inscribed, set near the memorial tree for their loved member who gave his life in this service. William Durr was less than 20 years old when he enlisted and crossed the sea's in April 1918. Shortly after landing in France, a division was formed comprising 12,000 infantry, 9,000 artillery, 1,000 machine guns, double trench motor wagon trains, headquarters staff, military police etc., making a total of 28,000 men. In that division William Durr served and gave his life, July 23rd, when he was killed in action.

At this point, Rev. Mr. Bailey read an account by General Pershing, who in a very conservative way quoted the following: May 27th German Alsne offensive began and Allies faced a crisis. Every available man was placed at General Foch's disposal. The Third Division had just come from its preliminary traiping in the trenches and was hurried to the Marne. Its machine gun battalion proceeded the other units and successfully held the bridge head at the Marne opposite Chateau Thierry. July 15th, the Third Division was holding the bank of the Marne from the bend east of the Surmelin River to the west of Mezy, opposite Chateau Thierry, where a large force of the enemy sought to force a passage under support of powerful artillery concentrations and under cover fo smoke screens.

A single regiment of the Third wrote one of the most brilliant pages in our military annals on this occasion. It prevented the crossing at certain points on the front, while on either flank the enemy had gained a crossing and were pressing forward. Our men firing in three directions met the enemy attacks with counter attacks at critical points and succeeded in throwing two enemy divisions into complete confusion and capturing 600 prisoners.

July 18th, the 26th Division in cooperation with a French Division took the village of Torcy while the Third Division was crossing the Marne in pursuit of the retiring enemy. The Third Division continuing its progress took the heights of Mt. St. Pere and two villages—Chatebes and Jaulgonne, in the face of both machine guns and artillery fire, (between July 21st and July 24.)

In conclusion Rev. Mr. Bailey said: It has been a very splendid thing that these boys should place this marker for the boy who went out as a volunteer, took his place, did his duty and gave his life. We must not forget that these boys who went into this war were told that it was a war to win. I believe these men felt when they went into the war, in 1917-1918, that it was the last war of the world, this war just passed with such a tremendous loss of young men. If we can only make that the last war, we can make the dead a pledge and rejoice that they did not die in vain. From All Thy Saints Who From Their Labors Rest was sung at the request of Rev. Mr. Bailey who expressed the thought that it would be most fitting at his time.

William Durr was born in Norwich, Dec. 12th, 1898, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Durr of Lathrop avenue, Norwich Town. He enlisted in February, 1918, and went to France in April, was killed in action July 23rd, of the same year, being a member of Company E, Fourth Infantry, Third Division. He was an attractive young man with many lovable qualities, possessing magnetism that made him a leader among the boys. When graduating from Town Street school he was valedictorian of his class. He was deeply interested in athletic sports and was a member of the Young Men's Christian association. He was a member of Miss Jessie E. Hydes Sunday school class which, with the teacher, feels the loss of a loyal friend. At present the W. I. T's., including the leader, Miss Hyde, have a membership of twenty. The club was formed in May 1914, since then two have died—Private William Durr and Earl Kinney, two of the earliest members.

"THE UNKNOWN GOD" IS FR. GALVIN'S SERMON THEME

Sunday was Pentecost, the day commemorating the coming of the Holy Ghost upon the Apostles; it is also called Whitsunday, from the white robes of those who were, by ancient custom, baptized on the eve. All over the world, the epistle read in all the masses of the Catholic church was Acts 2, 1-11 and the gospel was John 14, 23-31. Preaching at the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church, Rev. Myles P. Galvin chose his text from the gospel: "But the Paraclete, the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, He will teach you all things, and bring all things to your mind, whatsoever I have said to you."

The preacher took his hearers back to the time when St. Paul, having been preaching to the Jews during his visit to Athens, had attracted the attention of the Greeks, always as the Scripture tells, eager to know every new thing. When the Athenians assembled to hear this stranger, preaching a new doctrine, Paul, in his eloquence spoke of the fact that in his entrance to their city his attention had been attracted by their numerous altars, erected to so many gods and goddesses—finally by that dedicated "To the Unknown God." Now he had come to teach them the Unknown God, Who was Jesus Christ.

Father Galvin declared that this incident in Paul's preaching always reminded him of so many in the world to whom the Holy Ghost is virtually unknown, although the Third Person of the Blessed Trinity, equal with the Father and the Son. The love of the Father and the Son is the Holy Spirit. It is the Third Person of the Blessed Trinity Who inspires man to wisdom and knowledge, Who directs and counsels the Pope, the bishops and the priests of the church. The preacher advised an ever-increasing devotion to this Holy Spirit, meditation upon His attributes, recourse to Him in times of temptation. He regretted that during the past week's novena or nine days' devotion in honor of the Holy Ghost such a small proportion of the over 4,000 members of the parish had been present at the nightly devotions. He expressed the hope that more and more this Spirit of Wisdom, Who had made the former timid Apostles bold to preach Christ crucified, might be studied and revered in the parish; until the time would come when no longer would the Holy Ghost merit the title of "The Unknown God."

Closing the month of May, a large number received holy communion from Rev. John J. Reilly, who read the low mass, Father Galvin assisting in giving communion.

Charged With Theft of $10

George Scott, colored, was arrested Saturday night by Officer William Sharvan on a warrant charging theft of a ten dollar bill from Robert Frost, colored. Frost made the complaint about ten days ago, claiming that Scott was seen to take the bill out of his pocket when they were in a restaurant.

EDUCATIONAL FEATURES STRESSED AT CAMP HAZEN

The management of Camp Hazen, the state boys' camp of the Y. M. C. A., believe the camp is fortunate in having secured the services of J. C. Neff, formerly of the history department of the New Haven High school and now in charge of the history department of the public schools of Nutley, New Jersey, to serve in the capacity of educational director at the camp this summer. Mr. Neff is well known to many of the boys who have been at Camp Hazen in other years, as he served for two years as assistant camp director.

Quite an elaborate program of educational clubs has been outlined for the summer season and the boys will be kept busy in worthwhile activities.

Cooperating with the Junior Achievement league, of Springfield, classes will be taught in pyroxlin, craft metal work, wood working and reed work. In addition to these subjects, other groups will receive instruction in camporaft, first aid, life saving, swimming, boy leadership, radio, sketching, orchestra and dramatics.

Although the educational work of the camp will occupy a large part of the program, care is taken to provide a well balanced schedule of events so the boys will receive a full rounded development. The physical, social and religious activities of the camp will also be under the leadership of experienced instructors.

The camp opens on Wednesday, July 1st and closes Wednesday September 2nd. Further particulars can be secured at the local Y. M. C. A.

COMMISSION SAYS STATE AID RETARDS EDUCATION

The present system of state aid for schools in this state is severely criticised in a report to the general assembly by a special commission headed by former senator Charles M. Bakewell, of New Haven, and including Judge Alfred C. Baldwin, of Derby, former senator Hermon J. Gibbs of Yantic, representative George R. Sturgis, of Woodbury, representative Helen E. Lewis, of Stratford, former representative Frank P. Fenton, of Willimantic, Newton D. Holbrook, of Thomaston, Charles H. Warren, of New Haven, and senator Frederic C. Walcott, of Norfolk.

This commission was appointed by the general assembly of 1923 to revise and codify the school laws of Connecticut and in its report it says, "It was the conviction of the commission that any basis of distribution in which the grand list played a large part was subject to violent fluctuations and inconsistencies. It was furthermore clear that the present enumeration grant and the method of its distribution has no immediate relationship to school needs."

The state enumeration grant consists of the payment of $2.25 per pupil annually anumerated over 4 and under 16 years of age and the total appropriation for the present fixed period was $1,665,569.

The support of schools grant takes about $400,000 annually and is based directly on the grand lists of towns, going to those with grand lists under $2,500,000. There is also a high school tuition grant of about $125,000 a year, dependent on town grand lists and a high school conveyance grant available to the same towns.

Retarded Education.

In connection with the distribution of the high school tuition grant and the high school transportation grant, the commission says, it recognizes the existence of "certain ineptitudes" and the report declares that "the present methods of distribution the support of schools grant had retarded somewhat, rather than accelerated, educational progress."

The commission reports that it worked out a plan designed to correct the deficiencies which it believes exist in the present system but that its completion has been delayed for various reasons and that the general purpose of the commission can be accomplished only after further study by qualified experts.

Need More Time.

"Merely to detail a plan for distributing state aid with the present organization of administrative unity is to experiment," says the report and the commission asks that it be continued until the rising of the general assembly of 1927 so that it may continue its study of the situation. A bill providing for the continuation of the commission is now before the legislature.

First, to secure the maintenance in every town and city of the state, regardless of local financial resources, a minimum standard of elementary education as measured by the per capita cost based upon average daily attendance.

Second, encourage the maintenance of elementary school standards higher than the minimum by means of an encouragement grant, which grant would encourage local effort.

In the third place, provide a high school grant which would insure to every youth the opportunity of high school education of an approved standard, and through state aid meet equitably the town's effort in providing such an education either within the town or elsewhere.

The plan also provided for more immediate control of the enumeration grant in forming educational standards.

Radical Changes Needed.

Regarding its general purpose of revising the school laws of the state the commission finds that there is such a lack of organic unity in the present educational structure of the state that an attempt to secure "mere verbal unity" would not result in any practical gain. Radical changes in the whole body of Connecticut school law will be necessary, the commission concludes, and it does not feel that it is empowered under the act creating it to undertake such a task.

The commission finds that there has been practically no attempt to create a body of uniform school laws and in this connection says:

"It was also clear that the state through its general assemblies for two hundred years at least, had not attempted, except in the early part of the 19th century under the leadership of Dr. Henry Barnard to create a constructive state system of schools through a unified body of school laws, but rather had sought to encourage, and to some slight degree to force local communities to bring their schools up to the standards of the more progressive towns and districts. In pursuing such a policy, much of the law relating to schools must necessarily be partial and in the nature of expediency legislation."

HIT CAR AHEAD WHEN SUDDEN STOP NECESSARY

The Ford sedan owned by Augustus Gregory, of Colchester, and a Nash touring car driven by Robert C. Woodmansee, of 7 Penobscot street, were damaged Friday afternoon when they came together on the Military highway below the Norwich State hospital. Mr. Gregory was forced to bring his car to a sudden stop when a car ahead of him stopped without warning. Mr. Woodmansee, who was third in line, was unable to stop before bumping the car ahead. The Ford had a damaged tire carrier, two punctured tubes, and broken stop light, while the Nash suffered a bent left front mudguard. The driver of the first car drove off before he could be questioned by either driver following.

NORTH COVENTRY ROAD WHITE WITH HAILSTONES

Norwich people riding through North Coventry Saturday afternoon ran into one of the worst hail storms in many years. Hailstones as big as marbles fell for nearly half an hour and the ground was white for miles. Practically all traffic was at a standstill as drivers were afraid to proceed in face of the driving wind.

Early planted vegetables were completely blotted out and although the storm lasted but a half hour it left in its wake thousands of dollars worth of damage to crops and fruit trees.

The same storm was met by another Norwich man near Albany, N. Y. early in the afternoon and a driving hailstorm was noted there also.

Struck by Trolley Car.

A Nash touring car owned and driven by Bernard Cohen, of 329 Laurel Hill avenue, was damaged Saturday when it was in collision with Laurel Hill trolley at the Laurel Hill bridge. A front fender and wheel were smashed.

SPEAKS WITH APPROVAL OF REV. H. E. FOSDICK

Rev. A. N. Foster spoke at the Sunday morning service at the Church of the Good Shepherd upon the topic "Rev. H. E. Fosdick and the Meaning of the Present Unrest," expressing his admiration of Dr. Fosdick's interpretation of the Bible. Using the text II Timothy 2:15; Give diligence to present thyself approved unto God, a workman that needed not to be ashamed, handling aright the word of truth, Rev. Mr. Foster spoke in part as follows:

The three general creeds of the Christian Church were originated in the early medieval period of history when the glory of Greece had faded and the grandeur of Rome had mostly passed away. The new and diverse elements which were later to be constituent parts of modern society had not yet found adjustment or amalgamation. The known world comprised hardly more than the northern and eastern border of the Mediterranean Sea. Commerce and manufacturer and education, as we understand such, were almost unknown. It was the day of small things in startling contrast to the present day when every nation must live in neighborly contact with the nations of the earth whether they be pleasant or dangerous neighbors.

Strange that men should assume that creeds devised by medieval people living in the fragmentary nations of the Mediterranean should meet the requirements of the vastly enlarged world of the 20th century. More strange that they should insist that men who today question such should be branded as heretics. Such creeds lack the true perspective and do not command the right focus of 20th century problems.

During the last half dozen years a preacher has arisen whose word, through the pulpit, the platform and the radio, has been carried to more people than were addressed by Beecher in his day and it may be doubted if any other present day American preacher has so large a constituency. As a "Liberal Evangelical" Prof. Fosdick is in the line of succession to Beecher and Lyman Abbott. He is not sensational and he is scholarly. His message is not new, indeed it has been a common place with every avowed Liberal Biblical scholar for the years of a generation, and yet as it is given from Fosdick's pulpit today, it arouses antagonism to the point of bitterness and marks a deepening line of cleavage between liberal and conservative or fundamentalist and wins a popular support vastly larger than could be won by an avowed liberal. Dr. Fosdick's rational interpretation of the Bible, his estimate of God's nature and of human nature and of the method of salvation, approach very closely to the teaching of the avowed liberal. His epigrammatic command to disciples to "take Jesus in earnest" has been widely and sincerely quoted by liberals as the very essence of Christian discipleship.

On two of the crucial questions of our day Dr. Fosdick has spoken with the insight and the emphasis of the true preacher. First on Christian unity—a subject which is so hedged about with sectarian jealousy and denominational rivalry. He finally advocates interdenominational exchanges as the expression of a deeper Christianity, and is even ready to drop his historic sectarian name and omit the cherished rite of immersion and open his church to all people as an inclusive and not an exclusive institution and all for the sake of showing loyalty to high ideals of Christian service.

The second subject is that of international war. War nullifies the Mosaic command "thou shalt not kill" and defies the teaching of Universal brotherhood. War is organized, legalized murder by wholesale. War does not settle anything but on the contrary it unsettles everything. Many leaders of men who gave a somewhat reluctant support to the "World War" as a "War to end War" are pledged to refuse countenance to any later 20th century war. Furthermore, the most trenchant criticism of the life of today is this; there is no outreaching zeal to convert and bless the world; no quickening altruism corresponding to the missionary zeal which animated our grandfather to compass land and sea for the sake of a convert. On the contrary, we rebuff and repel the world when its people ask for admission at our gates to the broad acres of our continental domain. And then we are prone to add to our refusal the words, "we don't want you but we do want your trade".

Is the spirit of Isaiah clean gone forever? John Knox in passionate fervor cried out, "O, Lord, give me scots or I perish." Beecher preferred Broadway with its crowded and tumultuous humanity to the wonders of Niagara. Dr. Fosdick's appeal shows that the preacher's passion for humanity is yet with us and the popular response to his word is reassuring.

POWER TO VETO PLACING GAS STATIONS

Local authorities in Connecticut municipalities of more than 10,000 population are given the power to veto plans for the establishment of new gasoline stations within their confines, except on trunk line or state-aid highways, under a pending bill. The bill was recommended to the legislative committee on roads, bridges and rivers by the state motor vehicle department and brought out by the committee with a favorable report.

Final approval of all applications for stations, to be determined from the aspect of safety, is left with the motor vehicle commissioner for the sake of uniformity, but gasoline stations proposed in cities and towns of 10,000 inhabitants or over cannot be passed by him until the applications have been passed by the mayor or selectmen as the case may be, unless the proposed sites are on state highways. Where the locations are on trunk line or state aid highways, the approval of the commissioner alone is sufficient under the new bill. The same is true of proposed locations in all municipalities of less than 10,000 inhabitants, which will remain subject to the provisions of the existing law.

Commissioner Stoeckel recommended such a change in the law in his last two reports to the governor, but no action was taken on the matter by the last session of the legislature. Several controversies have arisen in different cities concerning proposed locations for gasoline stations, in which the effect on real estate values, esthetic surroundings and competition have been the principal bones of contention. When applications in such cases have been presented to the motor vehicle department and it has been found by department inspectors that the locations were manifestly safe the department had no alternative under the law but to grant the applications. Such action has frequently created an erroneous impression in the communities affected that the department was deliberately disregarding the objections of the citizens most concerned. The state law specifically restricts the commissioner of motor vehicle to consideration of whether "the location of such station or place of business will be such as not to imperil the safety of the public."

Now legislation also gives to the department of motor vehicles authority to require the removal of gasoline pumps which had been established in dangerous positions prior to the passage of the act requiring approval of locations by the department.

SWIMMING CAMPAIGN WILL HAVE THREE CLASSES

Some real fun and excitement is in store for many boys of the city when they take their initial plunge into the sparkling water of the rood old "swimmin' hole" at the Y. M. C. A. this (Monday)" afternoon, in the opening lessons of the "Learn to Swim" campaign.

Instead of being thrown overboard into deep water and told to swim, the lads will be taken into the safe and shallow end of the big pool and in an interesting way be taught the proper breathing, floating and various other aunts designed to make their introduction to the water a day of real sport.

The principal classes are to be the "Polly Wogs" which will meet at 4 p. m., followed by the "Wiggle-Worms" which will meet at 5 p. m. The evening class is to be known as the "Sink Easys" and is to hold forth at 7.30. The classes will meet Monday, Wednesday and Friday during this and next week.

As announced the swimming lessons during the campaign are to be absolutely free to every boy who applies, and since there are probably many lads in the city who would like to take advantage of the course who have not yet registered at the Y, boys may continue to enroll all this week. Late comers, however will be handicapped and be missing some important instruction, so all boys should lose no time in visiting the "Y".

PATRIOTIC SERVICE IS HELD AT NORWICH Y. M. C. A.

A good sized audience enjoyed an impressive patriotic service Sunday afternoon at the local Y. M. C. A. The opening exercises consisted of hymns, scripture reading and prayer, and vocal solos by Hugh Kinder who also ably officiated at the piano for the pictures.

The pictures included a beautiful scenic of the beauty spots of America, the photography was most beautiful. Two reels on Abraham Lincoln including the very crucial days just before the call to arms, the call and the response by three hundred thousand. There was one reel on "The Flag, Hath Off," the pictures were impressive to all present.

Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, delivered a most inspiring address on "The Call of America" and he told of four calls that the country makes, first to call to us to explore, to go out where others have not had the courage to go. Lincoln did this very thing as shown in the pictures, the country needs men to go out into paths hitherto untred. Then the country calls for men to test these things that the explorer has found for us, and many are needed who are willing to test the things that others have found. Then the country calls for the intelligent use of these things that men have explored and tested for us. Then there is a fourth class of people; those who simply take things for granted; there are too many of this kind; we need more who will explore, and test and with intelligence practice the things. The country calls. And best of the country does this ap- er for boys and girls and men and women to come up from the lower grade to the higher grade, and not to be satisfied with things that are common when we can come up to the uncommon and higher things of life.

LEG BROKEN WHEN STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE

Charles Noyes, of Adelaide street, Hartford, who is a former Norwich man and a brother of W. C. Noyes of Sunnyside avenue, this city, is in a serious condition at the Noble Memorial hospital at Westfield, as the result of being struck and knocked down about noon Sunday by a car driven by a man whose name could not be learned here. He is suffering from a broken leg below the knee and other possible injuries.

Mr. Noyes, who is the operator of a bus between Hartford and Westfield, had stopped his car at a point between Simsbury and Westfield, after the bus had been sideswiped by a machine and was awaiting the arrival of the state police, whom he had called, to investigate the accident. Before the appearance of the state police Mr. Noyes was engaged in conversation with a woman, who had parked her car on the other side of the street opposite the bus, when the other car, traveling at a rate of 60 miles, it is alleged struck him and pinned him between the two cars. There is no fault to be found with the manner in which the occupant of the parked car drove.

It happened that Mr. Noyes was visiting another driver, who when notified of the accident hurried to the hospital, where his brother had been taken. The injured man is resting comfortably as can be expected. An X-ray will be taken of the leg today (Monday) to ascertain the extent of the injury. At the hospital, it was said, Mr. Noyes was unable to give a very clear account of the accident.

The driver of the automobile which struck Mr. Noyes, was arrested shortly after the accident and will be given a hearing today (Monday).

EIGHTY-TWO NEW MEMBERS JOIN CHURCH SOCIETIES

New members were received into two of the organizations of St. Patrick's parish at the regular vesper hour Sunday afternoon, closing the May devotions, The Children of Mary, the Immaculate Conception Sodality and the Holy Angels' society assembled in the lower church, marching in procession through the grounds and to the upper church. As they entered the crowded auditory, Organist Frank L. Farrell played an inspiring processional. The exercises began with the crowning of a statue of the Virgin, by Miss Lorette Bellefleur, president of the Children of Mary. She had the assistance of ten members. Singing of two hymns, "Hail Virgin Dearest Mary," and "Maculate non est in Te," by the societies followed.

This preceded the reception of new sodalists into the sodality, and congregational singing of the Hymn to the Holy Ghost. The sermon on devotion to the Virgin was delivered by the rector, Rt. Rev. Mgr. Michael Henry May.

Solemn benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was given; the choir sang Divine Praises and the congregation sang "Mother, Dear, O, Pray for Me."

Thirty-four new members were received into the Children of Mary and 48 joined the Immaculate Conception sodality.

Seventeen Calls For Firemen

During the month of May, the fire department answered a total of 17 alarms, one of which was a bell alarm and the others telephone calls. The month was a light one in regard to the fire loss, the loss at most of the fires being very small.

DEATH OF FORMER VICE PRESIDENT MARSHALL

End Came Unexpectedly at the New Willard Hotel in Washington—Was Reading the Bible When Stricken With Death—Slumped Down on Pillows and Died Without a Word—Had Been Ill Several Days With a Cold and Heart Affection—Served as Vice President From March 4, 1913, to March 4, 1921—Was Governor of Indiana in 1909-13—71 Years Old.

Washington, June 1—(A. P.)—Thomas Riley Marshall, vice-president of the United States for eight momentous years of its history, has followed his chief, Woodrow Wilson, into death.

Recurrence of a heart attack, which sent him to his bed last Monday immediately af a trip from Indiana, brought on the end unexpectedly today, after reports had come from the sick room throughout the week that, despite his 71 years, he was steadily recovering from nervous exhaustion and a cold.

Death came to him quietly in his room on the fourth floor of the New Willard hotel, where he lived during his two terms as vice president, propped up in bed with pillows, after eating his breakfast with an enjoyment that strengthened the impression of those about him that he was regaining his health, he was smoking a cigar and reading a favorite passage of his bible.

THOMAS R. MARSHALL

Suddenly, but without nervous haste, while Mrs. Marshall was in an adjoining romo, he laid the bible face downward, open where the fourth chapter of the gospel of St. Mark ends and the fifth begins. His cigar dropped, and he fell gently back, without speaking and apparently without pain. The nurse, who had been at hirside, quickly summoned aid, but he was dead.

Brief services, atended the nation's highest officials, will be held late tomorrow in the hotel, and then the body will be placed aboard a train for Indianapolis, where the funeral party expects to arrive at noon, Wednesday. The funeral will be in his home there, at 10 a. m., Thursday, under the auspices of the Scottish rite masons, among whom he held high degree.

His body will be placed temporarily in a receiving vault at Crown Hill cemetery in Indianapolis. It had been planned, first to hold the funeral at Marion, Indiana, and lay his body close beside those of his parents and his foster child, Clarence Ignatius Morrison, whose death at the age of 10, brought one of the greatest sorrows into his immensely kindly life. It was decided, however, that Mrs. Marshall should determine later his final resting place.

Telegrams of condolence and more personal messages to his widow bore witness to the esteem in which the former vice president was held by those who knew him, regardless of party difference. President Coolidge, who followed Mr. Marshall in the vice-president's chair, wrote a letter expressing his sorrow to Mrs. Marshall as soon as he learned of his death, and later, with Mrs. Coolidge, called at the hotel and sent up their cards.

Mrs. Marshall bore the shock bravely, and Senator Swanson, Democrat, Virginia, one of the former vice-president's closest friends at the capitol, immediately came to render any assistance he could. Others many of them high in the Wilson administration, called or sent messages to offer their services.

Senator Watson of Indiana, of different political faith, wired his sorrow, and Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, in telegraphing his sympathy asserted that Mr. Marshall "represented in the highest degree the best type of American citizen and American statesman."

Career of Thomas R. Marshall.

Coming from Virginia stock but a Hoosier by birth, Thomas Riley Marshall, while a successful lawyer, never courted national prominence until it was thrust upon him in 1908 by his nomination as governor of Indiana and again later when he was selected as President Wilson's running mate in 1912 and 1916.

Mr. Marshall was born in North Manchester, Wabash county, Indiana, March 14, 1854, the only son of Dr. Daniel M. and Martha A. Patterson Marshall. He attended the public schools and his mother had dreams of of him becoming a famous preacher but the trials of a circuit rider in those days did not appeal to him and after being graduated from Wabash college at Crawfordsville, Indiana, at nineteen years, he read law and was admitted to the bar at Columbia City, Indiana, upon his twenty-first birthday. The story of his life from then on until he was elected governor of Indiana, which opened the way for him to become a national figure, is a plain narrative, his entire time being devoted to the practice of law.

Shortly after taking up law, Mr. Marshall was nominated for prosecuting attorney in a Republican stronghold but defeated. His next political venture did not come until early in 1908 when friends suggested he become a candidate for congress from the twelfth Indiana district. He declined, however, explaining he was afraid he might be elected. When it was suggested that he seek the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in Indiana, Mr. Marshall replied that while his one ambition was to become governor of his home state, he would do nothing to attain the nomination, although his friends could do what they pleased. When the state convention was held, in Indianapolis later, he was selected as a compromise candidate between the forces of Thomas Taggart, former United States senator, and the anti-Taggart forces, and won in the bitter 1908 campaign in which he carried the state by 10,000.

During four years as governor, his administration was characterized especially by the enactment of legislation looking to the moral and physical welfare of the state's unfortunates. One policy inaugurated by him was that of never allowing a child to be born in prison or a person to die behind the bars if there was a home to which they could go.

Mr. Marshall was nominated for the vice-presidency in Baltimore in 1912 after his name had been before the convention for a number of ballots as a presidential candidate with the Indiana delegation solidly behind him. He was again renominated with President Wilson at St. Louis in 1916.

Mr. Marshall prided himself on the fact that he had always been "just a plain every day average American citizen," democratic and unconventional, and to his neighbors in Columbia City was always affectionately referred to as "Tom."

He married on Oct. 2, 1895, Miss Lois I. Kimsey, of Angola, Indiana. Because of his deep love for his mother he did not marry until she died. The same devotion always existed between him and Mrs. Marshall, who always accompanied him on campaign or lecture trips. With the exception of never missing an opportunity to see a baseball game, Mr. Marshall was not an enthusiast over outdoor sports.

As for hobbies, he had just one, and that was Clarence Ignatius Morrison, his little adopted son. While Mrs. Marshall in 1917 was directing a diet kitchen in Washington maintained for the poor children, she was attracted to a sickly little year-old waif. When they went to their summer home in Michigan that summer, Clarence Ignatius accompanied them. With the mother's consent, the child upon their return was permanently made a member of their household although no steps for its legal adoption were then taken. In order that the child's mother might be near the baby boy Mr. Marshall secured employment for her at their hotel.

Possessed with a wealth of human sympathy for his fellow men, Mr. Marshall had a quaint and subtle sense of humor, which the pall of senatorial dignity failed to dampen. Many times the humor was expressed at the expense of some senator. Mr. Marshall was a good story teller and nothing delighted him more as vice-president than to steal out of the senate chamber into his private office, smoke a pipe and entertain friends by reciting instances of his experiences as a country lawyer.

Mr. Marshall was an omnivorous reader but, as he once expressed to a friend, "not as all a thoughtful reader." He had a penchant for detective or mystery stories and frequently sat up all night to complete the reading of a tale. He also was a Bible student and often times while serving as vice-president, could be seen sitting in his office reading from the little vest pocket testament which he always carried. Of moderate financial circumstances, he was always interested in educational, church and charitable work.

Mr. Marshall was a Presbyterian, an active thirty-third degree Mason as well as a member of the Phi Gamma Delta and the Phi Beta Kappa fraternities. He also held the honorary degree of LL.D. from several colleges and universities.

INDIANA TO RECEIVE BODY OF MARSHALL WEDNESDAY.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 1.—(A. P.)—Indiana will receive the body of Thomas R. Marshall next Wednesday with all honors for its former governor and the nation's former vice-president, his widow will permit. He was born in this state and spent nearly all the years of his life here with the exception of the time given to the service at Washington.

If Mrs. Marshall's first expressions in favor of a simple Scottish rite ceremony are carried out this will be performed at the home which the Marshalls purchased after their return from Washington upon the expiration of Mr. Marshall's term as vice-president.

Then the body will be taken to Crown Hill cemetery for an indefinite rest in a receiving vault there.

Mr. Marshall's death in Washington came with shocking suddenness to his friends and associates here. His recovery had been confidently expected.

Tributes were on the lips of many today. All spoke of his odd sayings, his epigrams and his quaint philosophies.

"This great son of Indiana was a man of real ability," said United States Senator Samuel M. Ralston. "He had a brilliancy that but few men possess. He was witty and humorous and was always popular with a public audience. He commanded a hearing by the multitude in every section of the nation and enjoyed international goodwill. Indiana deeply mourns his death and her citizens will earnestly seek to emulate his virtues."

Upon receipt of news of Mr. Marshall's death the flag on the state Capitol was set at half mast.

Governor Ed Jackson sent a message of sympathy to Mrs. Marshall and asked if she would permit the body to lie in state in the Capitol rotunda. Word from Washington indicated, however, she would be adverse to this. State officials will attend the services here.

EPIGRAMS ATTRIBUTED TO THOMAS R. MARSHALL

Indianapolis, June 1—Thomas R. Marshall, Indiana's former governor and the nation's vice president, was full of epigrams, many of which have been widely quoted.

In nearly every speech he made was at least one odd observation on current events. Some of these sayings follow;

"The only difference between this generation and my generation is that they have different ways of making fools of themselves."

"A man should marry and then kiss his wife every day as an evidence of good faith."

"Let us live our democracy. Let us level all distinctions on class and make this America really democratic."

"I believe in vested rights but not in vested wrongs."

READING PABABLE OF THE SOWER AS EYES CLOSED

Washington, June 1—When the eyes of Thomas H. Marshall closed in death today, they were fixed upon the words of the Bible in which Jesus interpreted to his disciples the parable of the sower.

Just before he died he had taken up a hotel Bible, and as it fell from his lifeless hand it lay open at the fourth chapter of St. Mark,—a favorite story concluding with the promise:

"With what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you."

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Actor Lucien Guitry Dead

Paris, June 1—The death is announced of the French dramatic actor Lucien Guitry, former manager of the Theatre De La Renaissance.

Lucien Guitry, born in Paris in 1860, made his debut in 1878 in "La Dame Aux Carmelias." He resided for several years in St. Petersburg, where in 1885 his son, Sacha Guitry, dramatic author, was born.

Guitry played important roles in many productions, among them Edmund Rostand's "Chantecler," in 1910. Three years ago he was divorced from his wife, Mlle. Jeanne Ducles, the author of numerous plays, who first gained fame in Chantecler.

BRYAN'S VIEW OF THE TENN. EVOLUTION CASE

Chicago, June 1—(A. P.)—The test cast in Tennessee to determine the constitutionality of the state's law against the teaching of evolution in the public schools "is not a joke, but the beginning of the end of attacks upon the bible by those teachers in the public schools who have been substituting the guesses of scientists for the word of God," William Jennings Bryan said in a formal statement here tonight.

"There are four sources of control of the public schools, Mr. Bryan who will act as counsel for the state in "the Tennessee case said. He termed them as the state legislators: second, board of education acting under authority of the legislature: third, the teachers themselves, and fourth, about 11,000 scientists.

Regarding legislative control, he said:

"Legislatures fix the death penalty for crime, and the form and extent of other punishments. Legislatures regulate marriage and divorce, property rights, descent of property, care of children and all other matters between citizens. Why are our legislators not competent to decide what kind of schools are needed, the requirements of teachers, and the kind of instruction that they shall be given."

Boards of education act under authority of the legislature and finally of the people themselves, he said. Concerning the control by scientists, he added:

"If the number of scientists is put at 11,000, it makes about one scientist for every 10,000 people—a pretty little oligarchy to put in control of the education of all of the children."

Teachers are only employes, he said. Teachers would not be allowed to slander presidents or libel our form of government.

"A teacher," he asserted, "must respect the wishes of his employers on all subjects upon which the employers have a deep seated conviction. The same logic would suggest that a teacher receiving pay in dollars on which is stamped 'In God we trust' should not be permitted to teach the class room that there is no God.

"Neither should he be permitted to accept employment in a Christian community and teach that the bible is not true. This is the Tennessee case.

"Evolution disputes the bible record of man's creation, and the logic of the evolutionist eliminates as false the miracles of the bible, including the virgin birth and the bodily resurrection of Christ."

Christians, he declared, build their own colleges to teach christianity, and he suggested that atheists and agnostics build their own schools to teach what they believe.

SEC'Y. WEEKS REPORTED MORE COMFORTABLE

Boston, June 1—Secretary of War Weeks after a restless 24 hours when his physicians described his condition as not entirely satisfactory was more comfortable this evening. The bulletin issued by his physicians read "Secretary Weeks was more comfortable this afternoon and his condition tonight was improved. Pulse 90. Temperature normal.

Signed) "DANIEL FISKE JONES
F. GORHAM BRIGHAM."

Secretary Weeks was operated on for gall stones last week at the Massachusetts General hospital and his convalescence had been favorable until yesterday. At no time has his condition been considered alarming by his physicians.

Newspaper Aid For Law Enforcement

Urges President George W. [illegible] of the National Editorial Association.

Richmond, Va., June 1—An appeal to newspaper publishers to lend their strength and space to the enforcement of law, especially in the direction of enforcing the prohibition laws, was made before the fortieth annual convention of the National Editorial association here today by President George W. Marble, Fort Scott, Kansas. Declaring the association had gone on record at previous conventions "deprecating the widespread tendency on the part of metropolitan newspapers and more or less influential citizens to join with lawless elements in flouting the prohibition amendment to the constitution," Mr. Marble said:

"There can, of course, be no just criticism of sincere efforts by fair means to repeal an objectionable law, but to tolerate the assumption that because a law is unpopular in a community it may be disregarded there, is to concede to impotency of the essential principles of our whole system of government.

"As sacred as those provisions vouchsafing liberty and protecting the rights of prosperity is that provision prohibiting the manufacture and sale of liquor."

Governor Trinkle also urged the closer cooperation of newspaper editors and publishers in the maintenance of law and order.

FORMER MARQUISE IS CHARGED WITH MURDER

New York, June 1—Mrs. Anna Mayer, who once called herself by the proud title of marquise, but who of recent years has sunk to the lowly state of scrub woman, came today to occupy a cell on a charge of hacking a deckhand to death with a Bowie knife.

In court Mrs. Mayer showed a handful of yellow clippings from newspapers of 1908 recounting her marriage to the venerable Marquis De Clermont Ferrault. At the time of the marriage, according to the clippings, the marquise gave his name as Hubert Noman, but said that he was a nobleman in France. The marquis was then a resident of North Adams, Mass.

Mrs. Mayer said that the marquise left her after two months and later she married William Mayer in Hoboken. At the time of her marriage to the marquise she was a seamstress and after her second marriage she said that reverses forced her to seek humbler and humbler positions until she finally became a scrub woman.

The clippings displayed by Mrs. Mayer recorded that when reporters found the marquise and his bride after their marriage they were occupying an East Side hall bedroom and the marquise was smoking a clay pipe with evident relish.

Mrs. Mayer is charged with stabbing Charles Enjelka with a Bowie knife she carried in her handbag when she said he confronted her with a revolver at the entrance to her lodgings Saturday night.

The case was adjourned until Friday.

TO DEFER THE TRIAL OF WALTER E. SHEAN

Hartford, Conn., June 1—A decision not to present Walter E. Shean of Springfield, Mass., at the June term of the criminal superior court on some charge in connection with the murder of a New Britain policeman for which Gerald Chapman was sentenced to die was announced today to State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn. The reason given was that Shean's lawyers had not insisted on his presentation at this term. According to James A. Curry, counsel for Shean, they preferred to wait until the Chapman case, which is in process of appeal to the supreme court, was finally disposed of.

The decision of the state's attorney means tha the earliest that Shean can be presented is the October term of the criminal superior court, and it is possible that this case may even go over to the December term.

COAST GUARDSMEN TO USE FORMER RUM-RUNNING YACHT

New York, June 1—The Cigarette, twice seized as a rum-running yacht and reputed to be the speediest boat ever to operate in connection with rum row, was brought to the barge office today from Bayonne, N. J., and held by coast guardsmen for operating under both a motor boat and yacht licenses.

The yacht license, the coast guardsmen alleged, had the same number as that of the license of another yacht operating in the harbor. They also charged that the Cigarette had recently cancelled her yacht license and obtained a motorboat license at Bridgeport, Conn. The Cigarette is said to have a speed of 42 knots.

Marco Manella, owner of the schooner William A. Morse, the first to be seized by the coast guard since the start of the blockade, and eight members of his crew were released today and indicated that they would try to secure the release of their vessel.

FIRES WERE CAUSED BY STORM IN WORCESTER

Worcester, Mass., June 1—Thousands of dollars damage was caused, numerous fires were started, animals perished, homes were wrecked and trolley service was brought to practically standstill during the severe storm which swept over Worcester tonight.

The most serious damage in the county was in Oxford, Spencer, the Brookfields and Fitchburg.

On the east shore of Lake Lashaway in East Brookfield cottages were wrecked, century trees were uprooted and rofos were torn from buildings. Four persons narrowly escaped death in Fitchburg when the sedan in which they were riding, was caught in a mass of live wires which came to the ground when the pole crashed.

ONE MORE JUROR FOR TRIAL OF SHEPHERD

Chicago, June 1—Working in a torrid courtroom, the prosecution was able to cull only one prospective juror from twenty-seven veniremen examined today in the Shepherd trial.

The twelve men locked up tonight included three jurors sworn ten days ago, two veniremen tantatively passed on by the prosecution, and six veniremen who had not been reached for examination as to their qualifications when court adjourned until tomorrow morning.

Shanghai Placed Under Martial Law

Dispatch Says Police Fired Upon Rioters, Killing Twenty and Wounding Others.

THREW JAPANESE POLICEMAN INTO CREEK

Shanghai, June 1—A mob of 2,000 students and workmen formerly employed at the Nagai Wata Kaisha cotton mill, closed owing to the labor disorders, this morning attacked a Japanese constable on the West Soochow ferry road and threw him into a creek. Clambering out, he opened fire killing one and wounding another rioter. The defense units dispersed the gathering.

FINAL ACTION IN EFFORT TO SAVE GERALD CHAPMAN

Hartford, Conn., June 1—A motion to correct the finding of Judge Newell Jennings in the appeal proceeding of Gerald Chapman to the supreme court, was made by Chapman's junior counsel, Nathan O. Freedman today. Following the motion, Judge Jennings acted on it. Chapman had been sentenced to die for murder of a New Britain policeman. The motion asked that the judge's finding be corrected to include that a time table went to the jury after the case was closed, that there was "sent into the jury room without the consent of counsel a magnifying glass and that three men stood up during the testimony of one witness to create an atmosphere. Judge Jennings allowed the first part of the action, not as it appeared in its narrative form in the motion, but as it appeared in the record.

The motion said in part on this point: "That the said time table on its face showed that it was subject to change of schedule by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad on October 11, 1924, said time table may not have been in effect.

The time table was wanted by the Chapman jury to check up the bandit's alibi, as to whether he could have gotten from Springfield, Mass., to New York on Oct. 11, 1924, by starting at about 4 p. m., and arriving about 8 p. m., as he testified.

On the second part of the motion that there was sent into the juryroom without the consent of counsel for the accused a magnifying glass. Judge Jennings said, "I haven't any recollection of any such occurrence."

The third part of the motion was a request to add to the finding "the fact that three men stood up during the testimony of Officer Feeney who was testifying for the state, said men were deputy sheriffs or officers in the employ of the state's attorney and were guarding the accused close at the counsel table and in front of the jury. Reason; this is essential, as it is part of the defendant's appeal showing prejudicial atmosphere was being created about the accused."

SEARCHING FOR SLAYER OF FLORENCE KANE

New York, June 1—The search for the murderer of Florence Kane, strangled early Friday near her Brooklyn home, today led detectives to a West Side tenement after a taxicab driver said that a young man, whose face was bleeding was picked up by him early Friday near the lot where Miss Kane was killed.

A negro, Walter Johnson, was held today for questioning. Two young women recently attacked near the spot where Miss Kane's body was found, said that their assailant was a negro. A dozen witnesses have been summoned by District Attorney Dodd to verify Johnson's story of his movements Friday. Another negro arrested near the lot satisfactorily explained his whereabouts at the time of the murder.

The taxicab driver who supplied the freshest lead said that the young man who hailed him near the place of the crime had a large roll of bills and offered a liberal tip. Detectives this afternoon began a census of all residents of the tenement district to which he was driven.

DENIAL OF RUMORS THAT AMUNDSEN HAS RETURNED

Oslo, Norway, June 1—The Norwegian Aeronautic association tonight issued a denial of the rumors that Captain Roald Amundsen had returned to Spitzbergen from his Polar expedition. The association announced that a message had been received this evening from the supply ship Hobby that the situation was unchanged.

Rumors of Amundsen's return have been current since early yesterday, but bulletins were posted in the windows of the newspaper officer declaring they were untrue. Early inquiries among the relatives of the members of the expedition failed to confirm the report in any way.

Recently efforts were made to reach Amundsen's old ship Maud, which is frozen in somewhere in the new Siberian archipelago. Official notification was received by the Associated Press today that a wireless message sent to the Maud on May 29 could not be delivered, as there was "no communication."

BURGESS RESIGNS FROM THE TRAFFIC COMMISSION

Washington, June 1—The resignation of Commissioner William Burgess of the tariff commission, was announced today at the white house.

The resignation, which is effective today, has been contemplated for some time by Mr. Burgess because of family and business reasons.

Mr. Burgess, whose home is in New Jersey, was a republican member of the commission. His resignation, following closely that of William S. Culbertson, vice chairman, leaves two republican vacancies to be filled by the president.

ANOTHER HEAT RECORD BROKEN IN CHICAGO

Chicago, June 1—Another heat record was broken in Chicago today when the temperature mounted to 91.5 degrees at 2 p. m. The previous hottest June 1 was in 1923, when 88 degrees were registered. The prospects were for thundershows tonight or tomorrow, with lower temperatures.

CONSTITUTION GUARANTEES THE RIGHTS OF PARENTS

Supreme Court Decides Against Unreasonable Interference by State Governments—Finding Excludes Rights of States to Force Children to Accept Instructions From Public Teachers Only—Decision Rendered in Two Cases Appealed by the State of Oregon.

Washington, June 1—The "liberty of parents and guardians to direct the upbringing and education of children under their control" without unreasonable interference by state governments was upheld today by the supreme court.

Deciding two cases appealed by the state of Oregon, one against the Society of the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary, and the other against the Hill Military Academy, the court unanimously held unconstitutional the law under which all children in the state between the ages of 8 and 16 would have been required to attend a public school after September, 1926.

The right of parents and guardians to direct the education of their children is guaranteed by the constitution, the court declared in an opinion by Justice McReynolds, and cannot be abridged by legislation which had no reasonable relation to some purpose within the control of the state.

"The fundamental theory of liberty upon which all governments in this union repose," Justice McReynolds asserted, "excludes any general power of the state to standardize its children by forcing them to accept instructions from public teachers only. The child is not the mere creature of the state; those who nurture him and direct his destiny have the right, coupled with the high duty, to recognize and prepare him for additional obligations."

The Oregon cases, the court pointed out, did not raise any question as to the power of the state reasonably to regulate all schools, to inspect, supervise and examine them, their teachers and pupils; to require that all children of proper age attend some school, that teachers shall be of good moral character and patriotic disposition, that certain studies plainly essential to good citizenship must be taught, or that nothing be taught which is manifestly inimical to the public welfare.

DECISION ON THE FRICK INHERITANCE TAX CASE

Washington, June 1—States, in imposing excise tax on the transfer of estates of deceased persons, can tax only that part of the personal property which is situated within their borders, the supreme court decided today in four cases from Pennsylvania involving the estate of Henry C. Frick, the late Pittsburgh steel magnate.

The estate was roughly estimated at $145,000,000. A part of it, in New York, was valued at more than $13,200,000 and a part in Massachusetts, at more than $325,000.

The federal government imposed a tax of $6,338,898 upon the estate, and Pennsylvania sought to collect its transfer or excise tax on the total estate, also, before this or other such items were deducted and without any allowance for taxes paid in Kansas, West Virginia and other states for the transfer of stocks in corporations under their jurisdiction.

The two Pennsylvania senators appeared in the supreme court in the argument of the case. Senator Pepper representing the Frick heirs in their appeal from a decision of the Pennsylvania supreme court upholding the state's contention, and Senator Reed appearing on behalf of the state government.

RIFFIAN INVADERS FAIL IN ANOTHER ATTACK

Fez, French Morocco, June 1—(A. P.)—The Riffian invaders today launched another attack upon the heights of Bibane, on the Ouergha front, but with little success. The Riffs appeared hypnotized by this sector, where they had their first success against the French, but where more recently they have suffered two serious defeats.

Concentrations of Abd-El-Krim's forces continue to be reported from different parts of the troubled zone, without seemingly brining any nearer the decisive push that the French have anticipated for some time.

Reports from the central sector of the front state that 2,500 men have been observed there, although with the exception of sharp fighting in the region of Bibane, only desultory firing has occurred.

The attack today was made with machine guns; previously the Riffs have used 75 and 100 millimeter pieces against the Bibane stronghold.

BUNGALOW BLOWN FROM FOUNDATION IN MERIDEN

Meriden, Conn., June 1—A two room bungalow was lifted from its foundations, carried sixty feet and dumped into an apple orchard, a farmer's silo was blown over, and innumerable trees and telephone and telegraph poles were bowled over by a terrific wind storm which struck this city and vicinity a terrific blow early this evening.

The wind storm, of but a few minutes duration, was followed immediately by a severe electrical shower, accompanied by hail, which leveled many family gardens.

Street lights in two-thirds of Meriden were temporarily out of commission and telephone service seriously impaired. Fire apparatus responded to an alarm at 11 o'clock when swaying trees brought street light wires together, causing them to flare into flames.

TO CONSTRUCT FLEET OF ARMORED RUM RUNNERS

New York, June 1—The New York Times, will say tomorrow that it has been learned that a New York bootlegging ring is having constructed a fleet of armored rum runners which will battle the coast guard boats blockading rum row.

All the new vessels which will attempt to smash the blockade, will be capable of making about 40 knots and will be modelled after the Cigarette, which was captured for the third time today.

SEVEN PERSONS INJURED BY WIND STORM IN IOWA

Sioux City, Iowa, June 1.—(A. P.)—Seven persons were injured, two probably fatally, and more than a dozen homes were leveled as the result of a storm which approached the proportions of a tornado, struck here late today. The damage was estimated at $100,000.

SUFFERED SERIOUS INJURIES IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, June 1—Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Small, 151 Willetts avenue, are patients at Home Memorial hospital, both suffering from injuries they sustained Saturday near Niantic when the automobile in which they were passengers and which was operated by Mrs. Small, collided with a tree. Mr. Small sustained a fractured skull and numerous lacerations and contusions while Mrs. Small suffered a fractured leg and lacerations and bruises. Mrs. Small's condition is considered good, but the outcome of Mr. Small's injuries is problematical. Mr. Small is well known and for several years was a member of the city council, having been elected an alderman from the fifth ward and served two terms. During his membership in the city council Mr. Small served upon several important committees.

Mr. and Mrs. Small left their home Saturday afternoon for an automobile ride into the country. After leaving Norwich an electrical storm occurred, accompanied by heavy rain. When near Yantic, a congestion of automobiles took place and to avoid possible collision, Mrs. Small caused the brakes to be applied suddenly with the result that the machine skidded considerably and before Mrs. Small could get control of the machine it plunged across the highway and against a tree, causing both the driver and her husband to be hurled to the highway. Mr. and Mrs. Small were given emergency treatment, after which they were removed to the New London hospital, where Mr. Small remained in an unconscious state until this afternoon.

CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE BY STORM IN NEW BRITAIN

New Britain, June 1—(A. P.)—A severe electrical storm, accompanied by a heavy wind which broke over this section tonight, did considerable damage and left a path of wreckage. Between 300 and 500 telephones were reported out of commission here and many branches were torn from the trees. Many electric lights were out with broken wires.

In Plainville, men tonight were chopping away trees which had fallen across the highways. Trees fell on telephone wires in Berlin putting many telephones out of commission there. Lighting struck a wire leading to the Power house at the Powers brick yard in Berlin and fire practically destroyed the place at a loss of $2,000.

Lighting struck the home of August Knopf in Henry street here damaging the building to the extent of $500. Lightning also struck a trolley car in West Main street, blowing out the controler and also a car coming from Hartford, blowing out a fuse.

The trolley signal apparatus between New Britain and Meriden was out of commission for two hours and the Farmington avenue branch of the Connecticut company was blocked by a tree falling across the track.

MAY PRODUCE FILMS OF NAVAL ACADEMY LIFE

Washington, June 1.—(A. P.)—Secretary Wilbur will discuss with President Coolidge, tomorrow, arrangements the navy has made for production of a motion picture of Naval academy life at Annapolis in connection with which scenes will be photographed during the commencement Wednesday, when the executive will distribute diplomas.

Mr. Wilbur said today the navy had arranged all plans for the filming but he declined to discuss them or say what modification, if any, may have been made in the original plan to have Ramon Navarro, actor, receive a dummy diploma from the president. Although there have been reports that the president might decide against being photographed under the circumstances, no official comment has been made at the White House.

Mr. Wilbur will go to Annapolis tomorrow afternoon and remain through Wednesday.

She is survived by her husband and a son, Joseph, of this city. Funeral services were held from the family home Monday morning with requiem high mass at St. Joseph's church at nine o'clock, sung by Rev. Charles M. Kelly. The organ music was by Mrs. E. R. Portelance with L. Monica McKeon as soloist. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where the committal service was read by Rev. Father Kelly. The bearers were Frank Melo, Sabeatiano Catalano, Anthony Catalano, Marianna Mangano, Luciano Mangano and Sidney Pompery. Funeral arrangements were in charge of the Hurteau-Bosse Corp.

Attorney Harry S. Gaucher appeared in the role of prosecuting attorney in the local police court for the first time Monday morning. He has not yet, however, received his official appointment, which is expected within a few days. On his first day he had eight cases brought up for his consideration. All were disposed of but two. Vincent Latuzek of Ash avenue, charged with reckless driving and Fred Boucher, cotton weaver, charged with intoxication. These cases were continued until this Tuesday) morning.

No action was taken at a special meeting of representatives of manufacturing concerns of the city and town, held Monday afternoon, to take up the question as to whether or not the plants of the city would operate on a daylight saving time schedule. Another meeting will be held Monday, June 8, when it is hoped that a larger representation of the plants will be present so that all may voice their opinions. Representations at the meeting are from: The Rossie Velvet company, American Thread company, Smith-Winchester Mfg. company, Willimantic Machine company, Windham Silk Mfg. company, the Holland Silk Mfg. company and the Goyer company.

A civil suit has been brought by Louis A. Girouard against Martin L. Tressler with whom Frank J. Watson has been in litigation over the possession of the Hotel Hooker property for some time. The case will be heard later this month. Damages of forty dollars are claimed. Constable Joseph Peck served the papers.

Charles, six year old son of Adam Malachick, of Columbia, sustained internal injuries Sunday afternoon when his father's automobile struck a state fence at the intersection of the Rockville-Stafford Springs highways in West Willington and the child was thrown to the ground.

Damages of fifteen dollars are claimed in a civil suit instituted by the A. Sussman Coal company against Harold L. Colley.

Miss Elizabeth Flynn of this city, selected teacher in the commercial department of Stafford High school, is a teacher at Terryville High school at present and has been re-elected to teach there.

At twilight Sunday, automobiles from Willimantic and vicinity joined others from the neighborhood of Columbia, at the Green behind the town building, where the occupants attended a beautiful twilight vesper service. Rev. F. C. Williams, rector of St. Paul's church, officiated, also preached on the Parable of the Valley of Dry Bones, emphasizing the power of the Holy Spirit to awaken and revivify dead souls and nations tending toward death. For the singing, music was by an orchestra, led by Bert Lyman.

Miss Amanda Scott, of Newark, N. J. spoke for the first time to the local strikers, at their mass meeting Monday morning. Miss Scott is an organizer of the United Textile Workers. At the meeting Miss Amy L. Hooker and Miss Mary Kelleher presided. The day marked the beginning of the thirteenth week of the strike at the local mills of the American Thread company. The mass picketing in the morning and the procession to the meeting place were conducted in an orderly manner.

The Pomeroy family held its annual reunion and dinner at the homestead on South street, Sunday. There were fifty-seven relatives present. Thy included the following and their families: Dr. H. S. Pomeroy, of Peabody, Mass.; Marvin and Edward E. Fuller, Hartford; Miss Pamela Starr, New Orleans, La.; Charles Edgerton, Bristol; John Edgerton, Vernon; Mrs. Edna L. Hurlburt, Miss Hulburt and Willard Kellogy, Springfield, Mass.; Mrs. Robert Russell, Hazardville; Daniel E. Starr, Worcester, Mass.; Norman Cooley, Mrs. Minnie P. Cooley and O. S. Wright, New Haven; J. Frank Hayward, Wellesley, Mass.; Homer Turner, Windsor; Lucius P. Fuller, West Hartford, and the Litchfield and Everest families of this city.

Guests and Tourists

Miss Helen M. Lathrop of New London, was a Memorial Day guest of Mr. and Mrs. N. D. Webster and family.

Holiday guests of Mrs. Felix Lessard were: Mr and Mrs. Delphis Audette, Mr. and Mrs. Thilias Audette, of New Bedford, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Beaudoair, of Fairhaven, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Harroun entertained over the week end Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Collins and son, Wesley, of East Hartford and Kenneth Harroun, of Bridgeport.

Mrs Sarah Pendleton, of South Windham road, is the guest of friends in Worcester, Watertown and Cambridge, Mass., and Providence, R. I.

Russell Noyes and George Barker, of Newington Heights, students at Cushing academy, Ashburnham, spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Noyes.

PASTOR, AN EX-SOLDIER, HAS NO USE FOR PACIFISTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, June 1.—A ministerial controversy which has been impending for some months past, over the subject of "pacifism," came to a head and its existence became known far and wide Sunday, when Rev. James O. Graham, the "fighting parson" of Windham Congregational church, in his sermon at the morning services, took exception to the pacifist attitude of other ministers of this vicinity. The trouble started at the April meeting of the Willimantic Ministers' union, when Rev. F. W. Tholen, of Stafford Springs, read a paper entitled, "The Conscience of the Church in Relation to War." Rev. Mr. Graham then and there declared the treatise anarchy pure and simple. He requested the privilege of reading a paper in answer to these questions, but April 14, Rev. Frederick C. Williams, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, and president of the Union, refused him the right. Rev. Mr. Graham went to the May meeting, held in Lebanon on the 11th, and there presented his resignation and left the meeting. The written request to be allowed to answer Rev. Mr. Tholen, which he sent to Rev. Mr. Williams, with copies to Rev. William Martin Brown, of Windham, and Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones, of Mansfield Center, both officers of the Union, follows: "We have heard the 'pacifists' in public meeting yesterday. In the interest of common decency and fair play, I demand a similar right to present a paper at the next meeting: 'Pacifism and Individualism' versus 'Christianity and Democracy.' I regard it as a disgrace to Christianity, disloyalty to our nation and an insult to the lives sacrificed for the protection of home and country, that such views as expressed by Rev. F. W Tholen and Rev. E. E. Sundt should be heard in public. They cannot go unanswered."

The strong feeling entertained by Mr. Graham relative to these so-called pacifist talks, boiled over Memorial day when he heard remarks favoring of that tendency delivered at the Windham Center, North Windham and Willimantic cemeteries, by Rev. F. C. Williams, during the annual exercises at the cemeteries.

Referring again to Rev. Mr. Tholen, Mr. Graham states that one of the former's statements which nettled him the deepest was to the effect that "one cannot see why the clergy could render or offer their services in any future wars of the country, on the basis of the last war that America had part in."

Mrs. Graham states that her ideas are in the same vein as her husband's and stated with emphasis that our country at all times must be prepared, as we cannot afford to be in such a condition as were were before we entered the last great war.

Local World war veterans are approving Rev. Mr. Graham's viewpoint. Rev. and Mrs Graham are both natives of Washington, D. C. They have two children—two boys whom they say are going to be given military training when they become of age. During the early part of the war Mr. Graham was engaged in Y. M. C. A. work. He later resigned and took a commission as a lieutenant in Company B. 110th U. S. Infantry. In the Second Battle of the Marne, July 18, 1918, he was wounded, and taken prisoner of war.

As the conflict subsided he was a patient in hospitals in France and in this country for over two years and still bears the marks of his injuries. He became pastor of the Foxon Congregational church, East Haven, after attending Yale Divinity school. In September, 1924, he became pastor of the Windham church.

His sermon, which he gave in answer to the "pacifist attitude" of clergymen of this section, was on the text, "The good shepherd layeth down his life for the sheep." In closing his sermon he said: "Today we honor our dead. We are deeply conscious of our debt for the blessings they have given to us by self-sacrificing love. Let us train the youth of today to uphold the ideals of our nation. Let us send our boys to the citizens' military camp at Camp Devens, that they may learn the principles of service and be prepared as men to shoulder the responsibility for national defense. Let us, above all, inspire in our children the principle that love is expressed in the performance of duty and in sacrificing service. Not in the cowardly shirking of duty or responsibility, not in a selfish individualism can we exemplify the teachings of Him who said, 'The good shepherd layeth down his life for the sheep.'"

President Rev. F. C. Williams, of the Ministers' union, makes known his position in the controversy by stating that he himself is not an extreme pacifist, but he stands ready to approve all good things that would prevent war in the future, and in this sense he feels that he has the support of other members of the Union.

SEMI-NAKED FASHIONS DEPLORED BY FATHER QUINN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, June 1.—Immodesty of modern dress was the subject of a sermon by Rev. Henry Quinn, pastor of St. Joseph's church, at the Sunday morning masses. Fashions in the dress of girls and young women today have reached extremes and in many instances they border upon immodesty. He deplored the wearing of low-necked dresses, abbreviated skirts, sleeveless waists and all other apparel which suggests semi-nakedness. He advised the feminine members of his congregation to use good judgment and attire themselves in such a way that the sensitive would not be scandalized. He hoped that his advice would be observed and that bold displays, the sacrifice of modesty to style, would be avoided in the future.

JEWETT CITY

There were three weddings in Jewett City on the first day of June, the first one being that of Oscar Lefevre, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lefevre and Miss Leoza Cyr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Xavier Cyr. Rev. J. J. Tyler performed the ceremony at St. Mary's church and sang the nuptial high mass. The bride was attired in white satin with overlace and pearl trimmings. She wore a veil caught with a wreath of pearls and lilies-of-the-valley. Her shower bouquet was roses and carnations. The bridesmaid was Miss Irene Lefevre, who wore pink georgette with hat to match and carried pink roses. The best man was Arthur Cyr. A breakfast was served at the bride's home on East Main street. Her gift from the groom was a large purse of gold. The bridesmaid received an aquamarine dinner ring, and the best man a white-gold chain. The bride's gifts to Fortuna and Joseph Cyr, who assisted at the wedding were silk shirts. She received numerous gifts of linen, silver and money. Mr. and Mrs. Lefevre went to New York and other points of interest for a wedding trip. They will live in Jewett City, and on their return will hold a reception in Dionne hall. Seventy-five guests attended the wedding.

Donohue-Roberts

Daniel T. Donohue and Miss Irene Roberts, R. N., both of New London, were married that a nuptial high mass by Rev. [illegible] at St. Mary's church at nine o'clock Monday morning. Jewett City is the bride's home town, and many friends gathered to see her married. Her dress was tan georgette over a pink slip, with Venetian lace. She wore a picture hat of transparent straw. Her bouque was Ophelia roses. The bridesmaid was Miss Margaret Donohue, the groom's sister. She wore apricot bengaline and carried flame-colored gladioli and sweet peas. The best man was the bride's brother, Clarence Roberts, of Pawtucket. Another brother, Herman Roberts, of Pawtucket sang during the mass. Breakfast was served to a party of twenty-five at the Waurekan, in Norwich. Mr. and Mrs. Donohue went to New York on their way to Niagara Falls and Utica to visit another brother of the bride, and then will go to Canada. They will live in a newly furnished home in New London. The bride's travelling dress was tan Romaine crepe, and blue henge-line coat with fox trimming and brown turban hat. Her gift to the bridesmaid was a gold niece and the best man received cuff links. The bride, who is a graduate nurse from Lawrence Memorial hospital, New London, received cut glass, linen, money and household a very large number of gifts of silver, furnishings.

Stafford-Thornton

The marriage ceremony for Miss Olive Stafford, of Jewett City, and Verne Cline Thornton, of Dowagaic, Mich., was performed at 10 o'clock Monday morning at the rectory of St. Mary's church, Rev. John J. McCabe officiating. The bride was dressed in old rose and gold, with hat to match and carried American beauty roses. The bride's sister, Miss Elizabeth Stafford, was bridesmaid. She was dressed in orchid and gold lace with a picture hat to match, carrying a bouquet of roses. The best man was Francis Crotty, of Westerly, R. I. After the ceremony the bridal party returned to the home of the bride at 104 Main street, where breakfast was served to about 75 guests, from Providence, Westerly, R. I., Norwich, Taftville, Greeneville and Jewett City. In the afternoon the guests motored to the Ashland casino where dancing was enjoyed and light refreshments were served.

The groom's gift to the bride was a string of Tiffany pearls. The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a purse with gold gift and the groom's gift to the best man was a K. of C. charm. The bride received many useful and valuable gifts, including silverware, cut glass, linen, etc. In the late afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Thornton left on a honeymoon trip to Canada over the Mohawk Train, making the trip by motor. Upon their return they will make their home in Westerly, R. I. Those present were: James Furey, Miss Mary E. Furey, Miss Anna Dolan, Miss Helen Lewis, John O'Connell, Mrs. Peter Nolan, Miss Ethel Nolan, Joseph R. Stafford, James C. Stafford, Roger F. Stafford, John F. Allen, Michael McGarry, John McGarCoyle, Francis White, all of Provi-ry, Mrs. William Murray, Edward dence: Mrs. Maurice Shea, Mrs. Michael Shea, Thomas Mulcahy, of Norwich: William Rogers of Moosup; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gill and family, Adelaide LeClair, Mrs. John W. Blake and family, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Blake, Lione Boucher, Charles R. Carey, Stephen Foley, Diana Cretien, Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Liberty, Cecile Liberty, Mr. and Mrs. John Donavan, Mrs. Daniel Gagnon, Miss Grace Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peterson, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peterson, Sr., and family, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Peterson, Miss Evelyn Wilbur, Mr. and Mrs. James Brennan, Jr., Miss Delia Shea, John Shea, George Toomey, Valeda Boule, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moriarty, Miss Alice Brennan, Mrs. Elizabeth McGill, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Stafford, Miss Elizabeth Stafford, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stafford, Marjorie and Katherine Stafford, James Stafford, all of Jewett City.

Dr. Jennings, after years of hunt, came without looking for it, accidentally upon one of the exceedingly rare floral freaks that may occur in a given locality once in a hundred years—perhaps never. It is an albino ladies' slipper, the flower is normally red. This find was pure white, without blemish, and as spotless as a calla lily.

The local Red Cross chapter received a telegram from the Travelers' Aid society in New York Monday, asking that the case of a girl from town now in their care be investigated. Miss Catherine Barnett is the Travelers' Aid committee on the Red Cross executive committee, and immediately got in touch with the mother. The girl, who is only fifteen, has been gone a month and her whereabouts was unknown. She apparently has been incorrigible. The father is away, looking for work and the mother has no money. The circumstances have been written to New York and money will be forwarded for the girl's return when further disposition of her case will be considered.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Talking Hupmobile Mystifies Hundreds.

Crowds visit the demonstration at the show room of C. V. Pendleton. Public invited this afternoon and evening; also Wednesday.

The "talking Hupmobile" at the show room of C. V. Pendleton, 118 Franklin street, mystified and amused several hundred people yesterday afternoon and evening. It does all sorts of seemingly impossible stunts, even to answering questions. Although primarily an advertising stunt, it is pronounced by those who have seen it one of the cleverest things ever. The demonstration will continue this afternoon and evening; also Wednesday.

The demonstrator told of an amusing incident that occurred while he was in San Francisco. In the crowd of spectators was a large man who watched and listened with the greatest interest. At the close of the demonstration he approached Mr. Van and said, "I drive a Hupp car myself, but if my car should start talking like that I'd drive it straight into the bay and sink it."

Palace Theatre

The Augustine Stock company made their initial bow to Norwich theatregoers last night at the Palace theatre before a crowded house and scored a big hit in Maude Fulton's three act comedy drama, "The Brat" which pleased the large and enthusiastic audience. The impression made was most favorable and Mr. McElroy and Mr. Augustin were congratulated on bringing to this city the best company ever seen here in stock. Judging from the manner in which they acquitted themselves last night they were here for some time to come. Of the play much should be said. It is clean, wholesome and above all thoroughly human, telling the tale of a simple manner of a girl wrongly accused who is rescued from the clutch of the law by an author who invaded the night courts in search of material for his novels. This girl, who does not even know her own age, is nameless and like Topsey, "just growed" and the author names her "The Brat." The title role played sweetly and sympathetically by Miss Ruth Floyd, who created a decidedly fine impression upon the audience, runs much to comedy when the "brat" is taken to the home of the author. In the new environment she blossoms forth as a thing of charm and admiration of everyone about her, and all ends well. The play is certainly worth seeing and it deserves the attendance of everyone in this city. The production is cleverly presented and deserves much praise. There are most delicious comedy bits in the play and some tense dramatic scenes as well. Miss Ruth Floyd who won instant recognition, gives promise of becoming a big favorite here. She is demure, winsome, possessing a most pleasing personality. Her conception of "The Brat," was the outstanding hit of the evening. William Augustin who is both leading man and director, presented a dignified and convincing combination in the role of the author and bids fair to become decidedly popular. Frank Sadler, as Steve Forrester the black sheep of the family, gave a very pleasing performance, and his impersonation of being overcome with liquor was especially vivid, as was also that of Arthur Behrins, who appeared as Timson, the butler. Bernard Pate was decidedly realistic as the bishop.

Ten Years in the "Home Town" Newspapers

In 1915 there were 2,445,666 automobiles in this country.

It seemed a tremendous number.

Some people were already talking about "the saturation point" being not far ahead.

But if there were some men who couldn't see the woods for the trees, there were others whose faith never faltered.

It took a lot of vision for them to see that the true market for the automobile had hardly been touched.

It took a lot of courage for them to bank on the ultimate success of the automobile in that market.

They had both.

Back in 1915, the United States Rubber Company said "The real future of the automobile is not in the big cities but away from them."

It is not in short runs on city streets, but in mile after mile on country roads.

So back in 1915 the United States Rubber Company began to prepare for this movement—and to help it.

In 1916—ten years ago—the first U. S. Tire advertising began to appear in the home town" papers.

Few realized the influence they had on what the people thought and did and wore and bought. Because few people realized the place they filled in the minds and lives of their readers.

The United States Rubber Company saw.

So ten years ago people began to read the first U. S. Tire Advertising in their "home town" paper—over the name of their "home town" dealer.

They have seen these home dealers develop their little "side line of tires" into real business—always with the support of "U. S." Advertising in these local papers.

Co-incident with the tenth anniversary of "home town" advertising by the United States Rubber Company, the company announces another long step forward in the perfection of automobile tires—the greatest since the introduction of the cord itself—in its perfected Latex treated—Web Cord Royal Balloon Tire with the flat low pressure tread.

Today there are 16,000,000 automobiles in the country.

80 per cent of them are owned by men and women on the farms and in the smaller communities.

Where, there was one U. S. Tire dealer in the small towns then there are hundreds today—real merchants.

What was only a vision in 1905 has come true in 1925.

Special Summer Rates at the Local Y. M. C. A.

Recognizing that many men and boys will desire to have the privileges of the Y. M. C. A. swimming pool and shower baths during the summer months, the management has arranged a special summer privilege ticket which entitles the holder to the privileges of the entire Y. M. C. ## ANNOUNCEMENTS

TEXTILE PRODUCTS EXHIBIT AN EDUCATIONAL PROMOTION

As the time draws near for the big Textile Products Exhibit, which the Eastern Connecticut Mills association is promoting at Danielson June 11th, 12th and 13th, everything would indicate that this exhibit will prove the necessary stimulus that the textile industry in this part of the state along with the rest of New England so badly needs.

Twenty spaces have been taken by mills that are members of the association and these will display a variety of fabrics which would rival any similar exhibit that might be undertaken in any part of the country. The remainder of the 41 spaces are taken by allied industries.

It is a fact that eastern Connecticut is more dependent on its textile industries than any other and the quality and variety of its products are the equal of any textile fabrics made, but it is also a fact that the majority of the people in this section do not realize this and give little thought to the importance of boosting the product that is the one big instrument in the progress of eastern Connecticut.

The Eastern Connecticut Mills association, which is promoting this exhibit, is composed of overseers, agents and superintendents and the venture is not primarily a financial one, but rather, an honest effort to do something worthwhile for the industry which is so vital to the welfare of this section.

Aside from the beautiful display of fabrics which will be seen at the show, there is to be considerable textile machinery in full operation and the various processes through which the raw material, cotton, wool and silk passes from the opening of the bale to the finished product will be interestingly illustrated and in many cases the booth attendants will even be dressed in the fabrics which they have helped to make. This feature will be as interesting to the mill operatives as it is to those of other vocations, due to the fact that many of the mill operatives are acquainted only with the process on which they work.

The allotment of space has been in charge of Prentice W. Chase of the Ashland Cotton Co., at Jewett City, who is secretary and treasurer of the association, and the aim from the beginning has been to make the show as attractive as possible with no duplicate displays. In this respect he has been particularly fortunate as the only duplicate displays will be four looms which will be in operation, but even these cannot be considered as duplicates as each of the four will be weaving an entirely different fabric.

One exhibit, which promises to be one of the hits of the show will exhibit miniature textile machinery in operation. Included in this exhibit is a loom which is but a few inches in height.

For the opening night the association has been fortunate in securing E. Kent Hubbard as the speaker of the evening. Mr. Hubbard is president of the state manufacturers' association and a member of the state board of finance. He will give a short address as a part of the opening ceremonies of which speaker of the house, Darbie will act as master of ceremonies.

Owing to the educational nature of the exhibit, children will be admitted free when accompanied by an adult and on Saturday afternoon June 13th, it is expected that many of the schools will attend in a body as the result of invitations which are being sent out.

Broadway Theater

Another one of those exceptional programs of vaudeville and pictures was seen by a capacity house at the broadway yesterday, and all were enthusiastic in their praise.

Lawton that comedy juggler opened the bill with a fast routine of difficult and comical juggling oddities that were enjoyed by all.

Carlo DeAngelo and Wills Claire offered an Italian character comedy bit called The New Citizen. It affords a splendid piece of character acting and as many laughs as could be crowded into a short space of time.

Frank Reckless and Co. closed the bill with a fast routine of real attention getting stunts that held everyone in until the final curtain.

That's The Dressmaker from Paris, featuring Leatrice Joy and Ernest Torrence.

A carnival of youth, romance and gorgeously gowned feminine beauty. A big comedy-love story laid in Paris and a town in the American west. And the fourteen international beauty models, chosen by famous judges as the 14 most beautiful women in the world! Playing real parts in the picture and showing the last word in women's attire straight from Paris.

The Dressmaker from Paris, featuring Leatrice Joy and Ernest Torrence in the leading roles with Allen Forrest, Mildred Harris and others just as well known in the strong supporting cast.

The story is an original for the screen by Adelaide Heilbron and Howard Hawks. Paul Bern, who made Worldly Goods and others, directed. It is Leatrice Joy's first picture in nearly a year.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

It is taken as an index of steady employment enjoyed by residents of Danielson and surrounding towns that the report of progress submitted by the savings department of the Windham County National bank to the institution's board of directors shows very encouraging growth during the past six months. At the regular meeting of the directors the semi-annual dividend at the rate of 4 per cent., and an extra dividend of 1-2 of 1 per cent., a total of 4 and 1-2 per cent., was declared on savings deposits, this dividend payable June 1.

Danielson had no specified period for cleaning up and polishing up this spring. But the arrival of June finds the borough looking spic and span—living up to its reputation of being one of the most attractive towns of its size in New England. On their own account citizens have gone ahead with the work of making their premises attractive. Numbers have had buildings on their properties painted within the past few weeks, much of this sort of activity being noticeable in the business section.

There is encouragement for thousands of textile employes in mills here and hereabouts in the prediction of experienced observers in the textile distribution center of New York that business is going to improve; that the re-establishment of the gold standard in Great Britain and other parts of Europe is a big contributing factor in this. The forecast appears to be for a greater volume of sales in the textile field, and the promise of an active market until at least late next winter. While this area is fortunate in the fact that its textile plants are operating on full time with few exceptions, it is also a fact that the mills are operating at scant margins of profit or no profit at all. That's why the promise of a bigger volume of business, with a prospect of an equitable profit, is so pleasing to the thousands who are getting employment from textile concerns.

Of interest to many who have had a chance to view it during the past few days was the skin of a diamond-back rattlesnake killed by Clayton F. Wright, of this town, while he was spending the past winter in Florida. The skin is about six feet in length, indicating a reptile as large as many scoffiaws think they see at various times in northeastern Connecticut.

Many people were amazed over reading in a recent issue of The Bulletin of the thousands of fingerling trout released in streams in Windham county during the past year by fish and game clubs and by individuals. Notwithstanding these releases the aggregate of trout caught to date this season is not as great as one might imagine. However, the re-stocking process will be continued, and in another year or two the real benefits of the work seem certain to be manifest.

Four additional officers are assigned to the state police barracks here while certain of the officers are on duty at Willimantic. Among the special duties at present assigned to state officers of the Danielson barracks, is guarding the movement of one-way traffic through Plainfield street, where state highway construction is under way and will be until well into the summer.

It has been hinted that Danielson might stage a real observance of the Fourth if it would, something it has not done for years, but no one seems to have any interest in doing the necessary work and boosting.

Francis Jaegar, Civil war veteran, who has been ill at his home for about three weeks, is able to be out.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Heal and children have returned to their home in Winsted, after spending the holiday with Michael Head and family, of Academy street.

Representatives of savings institutions hereabouts are watching with interest the legislative proposal, and what becomes of it, providing for the payment of dividends quarterly, instead of semi-annually, by savings institutions of Connecticut.

Several thousand dollars were represented in the flowers placed in cemeteries in the town of Killingly and immediate vicinity on Memorial day and the period so observed.

No indication has been given here as to what action the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad may take as to giving additional night protection at the Main street crossing following the traffic check-up made a few days since.

Indicative of the traffic moving between Danielson and Willimantic via Brooklyn and Hampton Sunday afternoon, a Danielson business man counted four hundred cars moving in one direction in a single hour.

The Eastern Connecticut Mills association is pushing its preparations for the Textile Products exhibit it is arranging for the state armory, June 11-12-13. This exhibit will be the finest thing of the kind this section of the state has seen and is certain to attract thousands of visitors to Danielson.

There were no serious accidents, no arrests in Danielson over the double holiday. In carrying out local policing arrangements, Chief John McFarland had three extra officers on duty.

Further investigation into the cause of the death of Michael Reynolds, at Central Village, last week, tends to upset the theory that he was killed by an automobile. The possibility that he was killed by an electric car has been given consideration by the state police department.

St. James' Band, outfitted with fine new uniforms, has a plan to celebrate by giving a series of concerts, gratis, on Davis park. The first of these concerts is scheduled for June.

The Crusaders of the Baptist church have a meeting planned for this Tuesday evening.

Children's night was observed at Monday evening's meeting of Killingly grange. Mrs. Ella Lathrop was in charge of the program.

Misses Ruth Litch and Flora Keech will represent the Congregational Sunday school at the Connecticut Summer School of Religious Education at Middletown, June 23 to July 4.

Comment has been made on the heavy percentage of cars bearing New York registrations that figured in the traffic of the holiday period here. The majority of these cars were on long trips, and indicate the popularity of the Danielson-Providence highway with tourist parties.

One man out of a party of four was injured Sunday night, when a coupe skidded and rolled over, at Wauregan. The car was not badly damaged.

After holding impressive Memorial services, East Killingly is now turning its attention to the observance of the Fourth, as in other recent years.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorimer Dixon, of Waterville, Me., are visiting here with relatives. Mr. Dixon, now with a bank at Waterville, was for years with the Windham County National bank at Danielson.

Abner Weisberg, of Hartford, was a visitor here Monday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Weisberg, of Academy street.

June asserted itself right at the start with something approximating summer weather. A maximum of 84 degrees was registered here Monday afternoon.

A gross of $358 has been realized from the sale of poppies, it was announced here Monday morning by Miss Laura Pike. From this sum certain expense and purchase money must be deducted.

An additional slot in the lobby at the post office allows people an opportunity to separate their mail into lots destined for Danielson and for despatching to other points.

Mrs. John McFarland and her grand-daughter are now at Mystic, visiting Chief and Mrs John McFarland's daughter, Mrs. George Stott.

All deposits made in the savings department of the Windham County National bank, Danielson, Conn., on or before June 5th, will participate in the dividend payable June 1st.—Adv.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday are legislative days this week, and members of the legislature from this section were at Hartford to open the week's work on Monday.

The newly authorized town court of Plainfield will begin to function July 1. Justice George Torrey has been named as first judge of the new court.

PUTNAM

The pump on No. 1 fire truck has been thoroughly overhauled by a representative of the company from which it was purchased and a new hose attached. It was given a severe test and Fire Chief Thurston states that the pump showed better than the required capacity. The first piece of motor driven fire apparatus purchased by the city is now in excellent condition.

Edward J. LaFlamme of Arcadia, is in Putnam visiting relatives and renewing friendships. He left Putnam about fifteen years ago with but a few dollars in his pocket, drifted west and located in California. He is now in the haberdashery business in Arcadia and has also been dealing extensively in real estate. Mr. LaFlamme expects to sail June 13 on the Leviathan for an eight months tour of Europe. He will be accompanied by his wife and her mother.

Miss Claire Bonneville, Miss Bella Bonneville, Miss Cecile Bonneville, Charles Lacroix and Henry Lacroix attended the wedding of Miss Yvonne Lacroix of Baltic.

Dr. and Mrs. M. Roy Sharpe of Uxbridge, Mass., spent the week end with relatives in Putnam.

Since the list of events and prizes for Headquarters Company's field day to be held June 6, a number of merchants who had not been asked to donate prizes are now in touch with the committee in charge. As a result the committee finds it necessary to revise the events and to add to the number in order to award the large number of prizes so generously donated. This will add to the interest and create new incentive to make the field day a success.

Captain McGarry of the Headquarters Company has received his commission as a captain from the president of the United States, ranking him as a captain in the U. S army, from September 24, 1924.

Herbert Clarke spent the week end with relatives and friends at Middletown, Conn.

Mr. and Leslie Heath and two children of Hartford spent the week end with Mr. Heath's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Heath.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Pierce entertained Mr. and Mrs. Carl Pierce and daughter of Hartford, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Holman and Miss Blanche Munyon of Worcester over the holiday and week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fuge of Worcester, Mass., spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Roy A. Paine.

The infant death rate has been cut in half during the last twenty years. Last year in a certain Connecticut town, 125 babies were saved, who, under the knowledge and conditions of 1920 would have been a loss to society. The knowledge that will help to save the babies in this town acquired at the Well Child conference held on the first Tuesday of every month from 2 to 4 p. m., in the High School auditorium. The next conference will be today (Tuesday) June 2.

Dr. and Mrs. F. G. Coolidge have opened their summer home in Abington.

Chandler Morse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Morse, and a sophomore at Amherst, recently represented his fraternity at a conference in Hanover, N. H., held at Dartmouth Fraternity house. While in Hanover he called on a former Putnam High school friend, Sidney Hayward, and Professor and Mrs. Malcolm Willey.

All but one of the cottages connected with the Ben Grosvenor Inn has been open since last April and more or less filled to capacity, which is unusual at this time of the year. There has been many visitors to enjoy the apple blossoms and the beautiful countryside. Among recent guests were Mrs. John Delafield, Mr. and Mrs. John Ormsbee, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Burnham of New York, Mr. and Mrs. William Forster and Miss Schultz of Erie, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. John Batchelder and Marcus Kimball of Boston.

Mrs. William Gagnon of Worcester, Mass., has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Peter E. Belair.

Miss Emma Kinney attended the meeting of the recent Connecticut Library association at South Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Magnan and daughters, Fernande and Jenelle, of Stamford, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Roy A. Paine.

Miss Elizabeth Russell of Worcester visited over the week end with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Russell.

Mrs. Emma Cote has returned to her home in Woonsocket after a visit with her sister, Mrs. P. Marquis of Church street.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Danforth and daughter, Miss Florence Darforth, of Holyoke, Mass., were in Putnam Sunday to attend the funeral of John A. Dady.

A crowded house greeted the state college players at Woodstock Academy hall when they gave three comedies under the direction of Professor H. A. Seckerson. The performance was given under the auspices of the Woodstock Alumni Association for the benefit of the gymnasium fund. The plays were "Moonshine" by Arthur Hopkins; "The Mayor and the Manicure," by George Ade and "Spring" by Colin Campbell.

GEN. NATHANIEL LYON, HERO, BURIED AT PHOENIXVILLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, June 1—Special memorial services for Gen. Nathaniel Lyon were held Saturday at the cemetery in Phoenixville, town of Ashford, where he is buried. He was the first general officer to lose his life in the Civil War, and is also credited with having kept Missouri from joining the Southern Confederacy. He was killed August 9, 1861, at Wilson's Creek, Mo.

At the services Saturday, Ralph C. Jenkins, orator of the day, recalled the following facts in connection with General Lyon's service to the Union.

Nathaniel Lyon was born at Ashford, July 19, 1819. In 1837, when he was eighteen, he entered West Point, from which institution he was graduated eleventh in his class. He was appointed a second lieutenant of infantry, and served in the Seminole war, on the Mexican frontier, and in the Mexican campaign, where he was promoted to a captaincy. When peace was declared, he was ordered to the West, where he was engaged for several years in warfare with the Indians. He was in Kansas and Nebraska during the political troubles there, and exerted an active influence in the cause of freedom for the slaves. At the time of the Rebellion he was a supporter of President Lincoln, and as a captain of infantry in the regular service was stationed at the arsenal at St. Louis.

When President Lincoln issued his call for volunteers, he called upon Missouri for its quota of four regiments. In consequence of the refusal of the governor of that state to help comply with the requisition, the loyal men of Missouri were left helpless, unorganized and unarmed. Captain Lyon, and a St. Louis congressman, took upon themselves the work of the governing of the state.

The two began the formation of the required companies of infantry and within three weeks of the date of the president's proclamation, they were able to turn over to him the Missouri quota.

By dressing in a woman's garb, Captain Lyon was able to make a complete tour of Camp Jackson, on the outskirts of the city, note the strength of the fortifications and the rebellious attitude of the garrison. He then assembled several companies of militia and marched down the streets of St. Louis to Camp Jackson. There he demanded the surrender of the camp and its forces. The surprised leader, General D. M. Frost, offered no resistance, but surrendered his entire force of 800 men, expressing consternation at the plans of the northern men in surrounding his camp, when hostilities were not yet open. This event occurred May 10, 1861. Four days later General Lyon was promoted to brigadier-general of the Missouri volunteers and received a commission from the President. Then after three weeks, General Carney was sent west to take command of Missouri. After his return east General Lyon again assumed control.

He distributed his forces to Volunteers as widely as possible over the state, holding the capital city and many of the important places.

On the first of August he moved his little army forward from Springfield, Mo., in pursuit of enemy forces. On the third, he encountered them in a valley called Dug Springs where a brief skirmish took place, after which the southerners retired without battle. Fearing lest his communications with headquarters at Springfield should be cut off, General Lyon returned there and the enemy followed, encamping ten miles out, at Wilson's Creek.

In spite of the fact that he had only 5,000 men against the enemy's 20,000, General Lyon attacked them, August 9. His army was divided, one section under his own command and the other under that of Colonel Sigel. The latter outfit was struck with confusion and was useless in the battle.

General Lyon's men secured an advantageous position and withstood drive after drive by the Confederates. Wherever the missles of death flew thickest and the peril of battle was imminent, there General Lyon was to be found. His raw troops needed encouragement on the part of their leader and it inspired them with bravery as nothing else could have done. His horse had been shot from under him, three times he had been wounded and though faint from the loss of blood, he refused to retire, even to have his wounds dressed.

Finally, as the last enemy drive was repulsed and the victory for the North was complete, General Lyon was struck twice in the breast by bullets. As he fell, one of his men asked, "Are you hurt," "Not much," was the faint reply. These were his last words.

In commenting on his funeral, the New York Tribune said: "Funeral honors have attended General Lyon, from the battle field where he fell across one half a continent, taken from state to state, from city to city, from village to village, and been carried forward nearly 3,000 miles amid the tearful eyes, the bowed heads and the deepest expressions of personal sorrow of hundreds of thousands of grateful people. Such honors were never before, perhaps, paid to so young a general."

At the military funeral, held for him at Eastford, as the funeral party arrived from the west, were more than 20,000 people, the largest assemblage ever gathered in Windham county. It was attended with military honors, with many officials paying last homage to him. Governor William A. Buckingham, of Connecticut and Governor Sprague of Rhode Island besides civil and military officials and thousands of country folk were present at the last rites for the man who doubtless saved Missouri for the Union.

Through the inspiration received by attendance at the funeral services of Gen. Lyon, many youths of this section enlisted in the Union ranks, and thus hastened the realisation of the cause for which he gave his life.

Although it was only sixty years ago that Gen. Lyon did his inspiring work for the cause of freedom, now not one in fifty of the automobilists who daily pass within a few yards of his grave remember him. Even right here in Windham county there are many people who do not know the story of Gen. Lyon, do not know that such a conspicuous war figure is buried at Phoenixville. Through several editions of a popular tourist's guide a comment on Phoenixville was to the effect that here lies buried Gen. Nathaniel Lyon of Revolutionary fame, killed in battle at Eastport.

WESTERLY

The June session of the Westerly town council Monday in Westerly town hall, with Councilman John D. Nichols the only absentee, lasted from 9:30 to 12 noon.

Zoning Expert Robert Whitten, of Cleveland, O., was present for a short time, when the only amendment to the zoning ordinance made an 800 foot stretch of business area at Atlantic beach and its extension from the pond to the Atlantic ocean for a cross section, and the ordinance vote was adopted. The appointment of a zoning board of five members was next taken up. Councilman G. B. Utter of the council zoning committee named the following five mem with the term of office as members of the Westerly zoning board and stated the reason for their selection: Arthur L. Perry, 5 years, chairman of the Westerly town planning board; Frank A. Sullivan, 4 years, chairman of the Pleasant View fire district; Charles L. Fontana, 3 years, William A. Broadfoot, 2 years, both familiar with the Bradford district, and D. Harold Rogers, 1 year, familiar with the Weekapaug section of the town. The appointment of these men was voted by the council.

Expert Whitten said that it now remained for the board to organize and then appoint a building inspector. The most of the difficulties with zoning regulations, the speaker said, was when the administration had been lax or inefficient. The board's duties were very important and needed the co-operation and backing of the town council, which was assured by them. A meeting of the board with Mr. Whitten is to be held soon, when the inspector will be appointed and the work begun.

Mr. Walter Flynn, Jr., appeared for the Italian Athletic club, as this session of the council was a hearing on their petition filed April 29th for the playing of Sunday baseball at Riverside park from May 10th, to Oct. 11, 1925. There being no remonstrants, Councilman Utter moved the granting, seconded by Council Smith; permission was voted granted. The same permission was given for an outdoor professional boxing and sparring match on Riverside Park field in July, to the same petitioner, who has run football and baseball matches on the same grounds, where bleacher seats are available, the motion made by Councilman Utter was seconded by Councilman Fowler.

Mrs. Flora Mooney, proprietor of the Mooney busses out of Westerly, asked that protection and taking care of her passenger patronage be given by the council. Mrs. Mooney said that contrary to reports she was the owner of the busses and that she and her husband had everything tied up in it. In reply to President Campbell, Mrs. Mooney said that Weekapaug service would begin about June 15th with four or five trips daily. Councilman Smith asked Town Solicitor Ferguson what the situation was regarding the carrying of passengers to Bradford by Fred Tuckerman. The town solicitor said that for Mr. Tuckerman or anyone else to operate along these lines would require, when the jitney law was passed, certificates of necessity from the state board. "No one has a right to carry passengers from point to point, like Westerly to Bradford as a business, and there is no question in my mind that Tuckerman and others have been violating the law, in carrying some of the 150 employes to the B. D. A. plant and it is not justice to Mrs. Mooney, if they are allowed to run 'free lance,' and Chief Brown intends in inforce the law," said the town solicitor. President Campbell thought Mrs. Mooney should be given all the protection possible.

E. Howard Clark, who appeared before the council relative to the Fourth of July sale of fireworks, was told that the ordinance of last year was still operative.

From a question asked it was learned that in the zoning act no change had been made in the minimum area for building purposes to 5,000 sq. ft. but had been left at 3,000 feet.

L. L. Maynard and J. O. Duchesneau of Providence, representing the Maynard Land Co., which is developing the Melrose Heights tract off School street, filed a plat of their development, and as no grades of profiles accompanied the map, although it was accompanied by a letter declaring the layout accepted by the Westerly Highway Commission, the vote of acceptance was held up.

A letter of resignation from Charles J. Butler, chairman of the Westerly Highway commission for the past thirteen years since the commission was adopted, was read by Clerk Whipple. The discussion of the appointment of a successor for the remaining two years of the term was followed by the laying of the letter on the table.

The Hackney-Carriages ordinance was adopted by the council after a reading by Clerk Whipple. It gave the council authority to name a superintendent for licensing of hackney carriages for hire, to drivers of 21 years or over, resident of state, and not convicted of any crime in the previous three years, the fee to be $2 per seat exclusive of driver and a fine of not more than $20 for violation of regulations, with all licenses to expire on June 15th.

Various police bills were voted paid for May amounting to $175.46, of which amount $24.50 was for auto hire, $15.31 for telephone and telegraph and $135.65 for miscellaneous amounts.

Town bills voted paid amounted to $11,161.28, of which $4,167.90 was to pay water works bills; $5,899.59 to pay sewer bills; and $442.10 for poor department; town hall expenditures $103.30; miscellaneous $353.20; printing and advertising $29.80; dog damages $15.00 and interest charges $1,536.64 with postage.

A deed from the Westerly Lumber company for a strip of land at the corner of High and Oak streets 6 feet wide and 30 or 40 feet long was presented by Councilman Rossi for widening of the highway and improving corner. Voted accepted.

The application of James McC. Thompson for appointment as police patrolman was voted referred to the police committee.

Authority was voted the Town Treasurer's note of $23,200 due Dec. 30th. President Campbell asked the town treasurer if it was not possible for the town to secure a better rate and Treasurer Pendleton said he thought that with the handicap of the tremendous indebtedness of the town which made the notes unacceptable in Massachusetts, he congratulated himself on his ability to secure as low a rate as he obtained.

Complaint was received from Alonzo Champlin, living in the old Collins house at the rear of the Maxwell-Davey block on Main street, that a nauseous stench there from adjoining property had caused many unfruitful complaints to Westerly Health Officer Dr. S. C. Webster and even groverymen had refused to visit the place. Town Treasurer Pendleton said when he was the health Officer of the town in 1892 complaint had been made of the conditions there from what was formerly the Episcopal church property and nothing had been done about it since. Referred to the police committee for action.

Milk dealers' licenses were voted to Ralph Perle Wheeler, Selden M. Young, Pasquale DePlacito, James A. Koulhanie, John D. Avery, Charles F. Andrews, John S. Cole and John L. Davis.

Report of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown for May showed 27 arrests, among them being 8 for intoxication and one for assault. Report of Health Officer Dr. S. C. Webster for May showed 9 cases of contageous disease, 3 cases of German measles and 7 of scarlet fever. Numerous tavern, victualising licenses and one for a shooting gallery and pool parlor were granted with the sanction of the police department.

A petition signed by most of the Merchants of Main street was read by Clerk Whipple in which the request was made that the cros walk on Broad street be moved back to the head of Main street from the middle of the Washington Trust building where it was laid out by the police and traffic committee.

Dr. John Champlin addressed the council stating that they as business people and users of Main street had "waited fifty years for someone of the present generation to come along and tell them when they should cross the street or walk after it had been successfully done at the head of Main street for the past fifty years." He thought the head of Main street to be the safer and shorter one to the post office or to the railroad station. Although the place had always been a dangerous one, yet there was a plate glass window on the two streets through which one could look and see approaching danger in time. Now a solid wall of masonry cuts off all view, although the building had been set back a short distance. In causing people to turn the corner and get bumped before crossing the street by having the crosswalk at the middle of the block, there was a menace that zoning had not cared for. Although the treasurer of the Washington Trust Co., which building was the cause of the "blind" corner, had just been elected by the council the first member for a five year term on the Westerly Zoning board, Dr. Champlin said, "Zoning wasn't timed just right to prevent the erection of the building in this manner at this point and now you have a solid mass of masonry in the way." Referred to the police committee.

James McCormick, a Main street store proprietor complained of the loss that the Main street merchants had sustained at the time of the construction and from the present crosswalk.

At the conclusion of the council business a conference was held with Town Treasurer James M. Pendleton relative to the new system of town accounting which was prepared by a committee of the council, Charles S. Fowler and G. Benjamin Utter.

Treasurer Pendleton stated that to him it seemed that the system required the naming of a town auditor, who would necessarily be an expensive man, if the results looked for were to be obtained.

In view of the fact that the present term of the council was but six months longer, he thought the matter should be carefully looked into. The result was that the committee and Mr. Pendleton were told to bring a definite and tangible arrangement before the July meeting of the council for action.

Many members of Westerly Fire department will visit Plainfield, Conn., June 13th to take an active part in celebrating the firemen's field day and muster, to be held on that date.

The funeral of Mrs. Orville M. Briggs, was held at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon at her home, 101 West Broad street. Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, pastor of the Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church, conducted the services. The bearers were Elmer Babcock, Bourdon A. Babcock, Earl Babcock and C. T. Cundall. The body was placed in the receiving vault at River Bend cemetery, where Rev. Mr. Burdick conducted the committal service.

George E. Phillips of Providence, a summer cottagers at Pleasant View, was in Westerly Sunday for the first time in two weeks, having been confined to his shore cottage with an attack of influenza.

This NEW way solves woman's oldest hygienic problem in a way centuries of women hoped for

THROUGH the ages, women have suffered a hygienic handicap.

Now it has been largely overcome. There is a new way in personal hygiene.

A way that supplants that uncertainty of the old-time sanitary pad with scientific safety.

Today, women live every day of every year . . . not a moment's charm lost. Dance, motor, wear filmy frocks and gowns in full confidence.

It absorbs 5 times the moisture of the ordinary cotton pad. And that means great protection.

It is as easily disposed of as a piece of tissue—that ends an old-time embarrassment.

It is deodorized. And that prevents danger of offense.

You get it at any department store or drug store, just by saying "Kotex." And that banishes the embarrassment of asking for a "sanitary pad."

8 in every 10 women in the better walks of life have adopted it. Which proves its benefits.

It will mean much to you in health, in daintiness and protection. It proves old ways a needless folly.

KOTEX DEODORIZED

1 Protection: 5 times as absorbent as cotton pads. Absorbs 16 times its own weight in moisture — and scientifically deodorized.

2 No laundry. Discard as easily as a piece of tissue.

3 Easy to buy, anywhere. You ask for them by name. Many stores keep them ready-wrapped — help yourself, pay the clerk, that is all.

TONIGHT'S TOWN MEETING

For a long time surprise has been expressed at the low valuation placed upon property for taxation purposes in Norwich, also at the inequality of the valuations. Likewise there has been astonishment expressed at the tremendous tax that has been levied both in the town and the city. The situation has been one that not only invited criticism but created a bad impression in the minds of those who might be considering Norwich as a place for locating, or who might be comparing it with other cities of the state or with those of similar population.

The situation is one which has long needed correction. It cannot be said that Norwich has displayed any undue haste in applying a much needed and long recognized remedy. The condition is the result of standing by old time practices under marked changes and developments. Norwich has been satisfied too long with standing by old methods, and sanctioning the neglect of periodical reassessments.

Tonight's special town meeting has been called for the purpose of taking action that will overcome the existing situation, set in motion a thorough reassessment and provide for keeping such assessment thoroughly up to date from year to year.

Recommendations which are ready for the town meeting tonight are the result of long deliberation and study by a committee of representative citizens, whose only object is to correct the existing situation and to do it in the most effective and satisfactory manner possible. It is to be noted that the recommendations represent the unanimous sentiment of the committeemen.

It is to be expected that the committee will be prepared to answer all question tonight in regard to the recommendations and to give enlightenment possible upon the situation as it now stands in contrast with that what will be accomplished by the change, which should not be effective of course until the entire town has been reassessed and all lists can go in at the same time on the new basis.

It is the duty of the taxpayers and citizens of Norwich to be at the town hall tonight for this meeting whether are not only interested but directly concerned.

The recommended change is one which it is believed should go through and with a proper understanding of the matter it is believed that it will be approved.

ROADSIDE CLEANUPS

There are motorists who recognize that the days and the pleasures of the roadside picnics are subject to serious curtailment unless they respond to the need of cleaning up after themselves and refrain from defacing and destroying private property.

There isn't anything much more delightful than to go off into the country or to the shore, for a picnic and eat at some attractive spot, but one of the great troubles is that too many such parties have worn out their welcome by leaving the places in a disreputable condition, breaking down the fences and trees and in general becoming a nuisance.

An automobile company among others, has recognized the fact that these conditions have got to exist, that the opposition to the picnics is due to the conduct of the picnickers and for their own good they should make strenuous efforts to overcome the poor impression which the careless ones have created.

In behalf of such an effort it offers these rules, which are worthy of careful study and respect:

Never invade property which is posted or fenced in.

Never build a fire. A gasoline, or alcohol stove is better, safer and more convenient.

Never cut or break trees.

Never strip a bits of flowers or foliage.

Leave no rubbish of any kind. Carry it home with you.

Don't be too proud, or too lazy, to pick up some of the other fellow's refuse. The effects of his thoughtlessness may reflect on you.

Don't leave the place as you found it. Leave it better.

Don't toss your rubbish overboard on your way home.

It is because of the failure to respect such rules of common decency in the past that many a picnic spot has been posted and the pleasure of many motorists denied. The many are obliged to suffer for the acts of the few. It cannot be expected that abuse is going to be tolerated and the way to preserve the picnic places is to show proper respect for the rights and property of others.

ENFORCEMENT ALONG BORDER

What must be looked upon with sincere interest is the effort in behalf of the new treaty between this country and Mexico which aims at the ending of the deplorable conditions which have been experienced along the border. The aim to strengthen enforcement, and to put a stop to the wide open border conditions which have long since needed attention.

Whether it was rum, aliens or drugs, the feeling has prevailed for a long time that the smugglers were doing a big business through Mexico as well as Canada. If respect for our laws are to be maintained there is need for checking this traffic, but while it might be expected that the promoters of such schemes would be located in Mexico the investigators discovered that the real center of the ring was on the American side of the border with Mexico being used as the landing place for [illegible] which could be easily pushed over the border.

There is nothing new or exactly startling in such a revelation for it is along the border that the lawless element can be expected to be found. Being on this side it imposes a greater duty upon this country to break up such headquarters, and yet the importance of a new treaty between the nations looking to the stopping of the smuggling is quite as apparent as the treaty arrangement with other nations concerning the limit at which ships can be searched for liquor.

It can be appreciated that such an element is quite as obnoxious to the peaceful situation in Mexico as it is to this country. There can be a mutual desire to eliminate such organized efforts to violate the laws and create trouble. Thus for the good of the neighboring countries it is well that such a treaty has been conceived and negotiated. Both countries can well stand by each other in the upholding of law enforcement. The treaty appears to be highly desirable and it is to be hoped that there will be no obstacles thrown in the way of its ratification by each country.

THE CITY ELECTION

By the result of Monday's election, when the entire republican ticket was swept into office with the exception of the city treasurer, the voters have insisted upon getting just as much republican influence into the conduct of city affairs as it was possible for them to do at this time.

It was the off year and a small vote was cast, but with the majority against the democratic ticket there was not only a refusal to place the entire city government under solid democratic control but the result is certainly open to the interpretation that thereby was registered a refusal to give endorsement to the administration of city affairs during the past year which has been under the control of a democratic majority.

Dissatisfaction has been manifested in various directions not only with what has been attempted and accomplished but by what is contemplated. Under it Norwich is facing larger expenditures and consequently larger taxes, and in certain instances this will mean a permanent rather than a temporary charge upon the community.

By the election result the control of the city government does not change. It remains in democratic hands, but there was no chance to do otherwise at this time. The voters have however spoken their minds. They have withheld their approval of the city government and in view of that result they have expressed themselves in no uncertain terms as to what they desire for the ensuing year. The sentiment of the people certainly deserves to receive attention.

Those were certainly highly complimentary votes which were received by City Clerk Pullen and City Treasurer Avery.

THOMAS R. MARSHALL

Throughout the country there will be sincere regret at the death of former Vice President Thomas R. Marshall. He was the holder of that office for a period of eight years during the terms of Woodrow Wilson was president, and came before the country most conspicuously as a public speaker and writer.

As vice president he was a skilled leader of the senate during a most trying period, but he was never brought into the committee of the cabinet as was his successor. He was not a holder of many political offices but came into prominence through the four years that he served as the governor of Indiana, so much so that he was urged for the presidency and supported in that former Baltimore convention only to result in his selection as the bearer of the democratic vice presidential standard.

During his term of office he became widely known for his humor and was much sought as a public speaker, and since concluding his office for which he once declared the title of His Superfluous Excellency or His Excellent Superfluity had been suggested he has devoted much of his time to public writing in which the common sense that was outstanding in his makeup was refreshingly maintained.

His death comes after a well rounded career, most of which was devoted to the practice of law. He was known as a plain and kindly man. He was decidedly human and the country has time and again been forced to remark that what he urged and said reflected sound judgment. His end came when it was believed he was on the road to recovery and his death removed a prominent man, if not one of the greatest men of the country.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Don't forget tonight's special town meeting.

June certainly provided ideal republican weather.

Perhaps the anti-prohibition forces do not figure that their cause has been strengthened by the enlistment of Harry Thaw.

We continue to have with us those who tell us how much waste can be eliminated in the conduct of our government, and it is well we have.

The strangest part of the defense of his jail by a sheriff, during which five of the lynching mob were shot down, is that it happened in Texas.

That Pittsburgh whiskey which is going to be disposed of for medicinal purposes ought to mean a lively business for those who fill the prescriptions.

Remember tonight's special town meeting when revaluation recommendations are to be acted on. It should have a large and representative attendance.

THE DOMESTIC SCENE

"I wonder where Elizabeth can be," remarked Margaret.

"She's probably going out to dinner tonight," said Norah.

"You're right, she is," stated Laura, "but how did you happen to guess it? She's coming to my house this evening."

The three were sitting at their lunch club, engaged slowly finishing their dessert.

"How did I guess?" answered Norah. I have noticed that Elizabeth never eats lunch when she is dated up to dine with a friend. In fact, she puts it this way ,that she doesn't like to take the keen edge off her appetite by eating anything between breakfast and dinner when she has a homecooked dinner in prospect."

"How she does love and appreciate home cooking!" said Laura. "I've asked mother to get up quite a spread for tonight, although Elizabeth declared that she would be satisfied with just hot biscuits and coffee. She didn't wish us to go to any trouble at all, but she did say she knew that mother was just the kind of old-fashioned cook that could make perfectly delicious biscuits. Of course we shall have them for her."

"Isn't it funny? She asked for hot biscuits when she was coming to our house a week ago," mused Margaret. "Neither of us, my sister nor I is a biscuit artist, so I got the woman who lives in the flat across the hall to make us some. The lady across the hall was glad to earn a little money for her favorite charity."

"I made hot biscuits for her myself the first two times that she went home to dinner with me," remarked Norah, "but the last time I decided that bakery rolls would do, and I gave her some hash from the delicatessen and we finished with canned plum pudding. I decided not to have the meal entirely home cooked. I did make the coffee, but somehow I let it boil too long. It was bitter."

"Why Norah," exclaimed Laura.

"And for some reason Elizabeth hasn't asked to come to dinner with me since," Norah laughed.

"Why, Norah!"

"Well, I'm not mean, but I believe in reciprocity. Elizabeth is the most successful business woman that any of us know, but has she ever invited either of you to dine at the Princess-Royal hotel, where she lives?"

"She told me that she was going to some time. She told me that the other day when she asked me to have her out to our house tonight," said Laura.

"Exactly," remarked Norah, "And whenever she has suggested going home with me to dinner she has mentioned a nebulous banquet at the Princess-Royal, but so far it's failed to materialize."

"She has told me over and over again that she wanted to have me dine at the Princess-Royal and she has even asked when I could come," said Margaret. "And once when I mentioned it might it was not a convenient one for her."

"Exactly," remarked Norah again. "Now, my little dears, don't you think we are silly to let her get away with that? We all live simply, and we can entertain in our home and we do it by the exercise of our own muscles. Liveried servants aren't in the picture of our domestic scenes.

"The next time she tells me how tired she is of hotel cooking, I'm going to tell her how tired I am of home cooking. This going every night from the office to the kitchen isn't so hilarious as little Lizzie may think."

"I wish I could live at the Princess-Royal," sighed Laura.

"Perhaps you could if you had a good free dinner route," laughed Norah.—Chicago News.

Today's Birthdays

Thomas Hardy, whom England considers her greatest living novelist, born in Dorsetshire, 85 years ago today.

Mrs. William Howard Taft, wife of the chief justice and former mistress of the white house, born in Cincinnati, 64 years ago today.

Ruffin G. Pleasant, former governor of Louisiana, born at Shiloh, La., 56 years ago today.

Richard H. Alahton, who rose from axman to the executive head of the Chicago & Northern railway, born at Evanston, Ill., 65 years are today.

Harry London, who has attained prominence as a professional pugilist, born in Russia, 36 years ago today.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

In his ivy-clad home overlooking the gorsy downs of his own beloved "Wessex," the great English novelist, Thomas Hardy, will receive messages of good wishes from all parts of the world today, on the occasion of his eighty-fifth birthday anniversary. The last of that great band of literary giants who made the Victorian era glorious, Mr. Hardy stands alone at the age of fourscore years and five looking back across the years to his great contemporaries—Tennyson, the Brownings Dickens, Thackeay, Trollope, Charles Reade, Lytton, Rossetti, Morris, Ruskin and Meredith—all have passed away, and he alone of his generation survives. Mr. Hardy began his career as an architect, but not satisfied with his success in that profession he turned to the writing of fiction. As a novelist he was successful almost from the start. It was not, however, until 1891, when Tess of the D'Urbervilles made its appearance, to be followed four years later by Jude the Obscure, that the Author's fame became world-wide.

From Small Beginnings

Jeremiah Jones Colbath was never made Vice president of the United States. Jeremiah Jones Colbath was a very poor young fellow who had a little shoe shop. He had been a farmer, and he had no money. In Stevenson's famous story, Dr. Jekyll took a powder and changed himself into the villainous Mr. Hyde. In real life Jeremiah Jones Colbath took the opportunity to do better and better work, and changed himself into Henry Wilson, Vice-President of the United States.

The poor shoemaker became the running mate with no less a man than General Grant. Like Grant, the shoemaker had fought his fight, both at home and in the war. He was a worthy man to name as the companion of the great soldier. Jeremiah Jones Colbath, born up in the hills of New Hampshire, had to go to work pitching hay when he was 10 years old. From then until he was a man of 20, he drove horses, dug potatoes, mended wagons, and made rail fences.

Stories That Recall Others

Descriptive Powers

Della's sister was telling her how one of their neighbor's three dogs had been ill for a short time and died. Della listened with growing excitement, and then breathlessly inquired:

"Was it the white one trimmed with black ?"

The Incident Was Closed

Henry, age four, knows how to close the files on a finished business transaction. Accompanied by his mother previous to the holidays he was making a round of duty calls on the Santa Clauses, and stopping at the stores. At one of the stores his eye caught the very automobile that his mind had been visualizing ever since the season opened and he promptly placed an order for the car.

At the next store he visited it was suggested that he had better establish friendly relations with the Santa Claus there on duty, but the lad pushed by without deigning even a glance of favorable interest. "No," he explained, "I've already given my order," and the incident was closed.

A Handicap That Helped

A handicap you'll sometimes find
Will aid and stimulate the mind.
—Old Mother Nature.

The White Robin, whom everybody thought queer simply because his coat was white, was out in the Great World. No longer did he have his father, Welcome Robin, and his mother to look after him. The fact is, Welcome and Mrs. Robin were already busy preparing for another family. It didn't take the young White Robin long to understand that he wasn't wanted about by his brothers and sisters or by any of the feathered neighbors. They would have nothing to do with him,

"It ought to be easy to find him," grumbled Hooty and if he chanced to meet any of them they would stare at him and then hurry to get away from him. If he tried to follow they would drive him away.

So you see, that white coat handicapped him. To be handicapped, you know, is to have things made harder for you. Now that young Robin was handicapped because that white coat made it very difficult for him to hide. This meant that his enemies could see him easily and from a great distance. It was because of this that his feathered neighbors would have nothing to do with him.

At first the young Robin thought nothing about it, but as he went about in the Great World he soon discovered that he had more narrow escapes than any of the others. One day he sat thinking about it.

"It is all because of this white coat of mine," said the young Robin, talking to himself. "Just why I was given a white coat I don't know, but I can't change it, so there is nothing for me to do but make the best of it. It is plain to me that other Robins and other birds can hide a great deal easier than I can. More than this, they are not so easily seen when they are not hiding. I cannot move without being seen. That means that if I am to live as long as other Robins I must be a little bit smarter than others. I must keep my wits working all the time. It won't do for me to ever forget that I am different from other birds and that I must be on the watch every second. I must even take extreme care in finding a roost for the night. This white coat of mine must show up in the dark, and it would be easy for Hooty the Owl to find me."

So young Robin soon became the smartest Robin in the neighborhood. It came about that he seldom had a narrow escape, because he seldom gave his enemies a chance. He never for an instant forgot how easily he could be seen and so he never was careless. His brothers and sisters, whom he saw once in a while, often were careless simply because they had nothing to worry them and keep them always on the watch. While that white coat handicapped this young Robin, it actually helped him by making him use his wits all the time in order that he might live.

He became famous. Everybody for a long distance around knew about him. On many a night when he had nothing else to do, Hooty the Owl hunted for that White Robin. He had heard about him, but he had never seen him, because, you know, Hooty comes out at night and sleeps by day, while Robins come out by day and sleep through the night.

"It ought to be easy to find him," grumbled Hooty. "If he is as white as they say he is, he ought to show up in the dark. One of these nights I'll find him.

But Hooty never did. You see, that young Robin wasn't content to spend the night as other Robins did. He knew that he could be easily seen by eyes that see in the dark. And so each night he spent in a very secret hiding place where the sharpest night-seeing eyes passing by could not possibly see him.

Gained Two Years, Believed by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Marshalltown, Iowa.—"At the time I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was a telephone operator and had been suffering for two years with headaches, pains and cramps in my legs so I could scarcely walk. At times I could not do any kind of work on account of my trouble. My mother was taking the medicine for the Change of Life and she thought it would help me and it did. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills. I recommend your medicines to my friends and I will answer all letters asking about them."—Mrs. P. E. EVERTS, Box 148, Marshalltown, Ia.

Mrs. Norton's Experience

"Before I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was weak and nervous, and had such terrible dizzy spells that I could not stand some days. I had no appetite, was restless at night and felt all run-down. My husband got me a bottle of the Vegetable Compound and I am surprised at the results after taking it."—Mrs. CLARENCE S. NORTON, 18 Pierce St., Dover, N. H.

He Will Tell

He had no look beyond his Granite State hills, and he had no education except the little that he could pick up by his own efforts in the evenings, by the light of tallow candles. At 21 he took his fate squarely by the collar and went to Natick, where he pegged away at shoes and whistled at his work.

"Why ye thinkin' 'bout, Hen?" asked an acquaintance—for with his new residence the young man had taken the name of "Henry Wilson." "All these shoes," the young shoemaker answered, "it's a lot of work for one man—but why one man? Why not a lot of men? I thing there's something in it."

There was. His idea grew, and he set up a shoemaking factory that at last brought him power and money. "What ye thinkin' 'bout?" asked a man again. "All these black people," he answered, pointing at a negro who had escaped from slavery.

So he set out on an active campaign against it. Even before this his friends had seen his power to think and had sent him to the State Legislature and to Congress.

The war came. This time he needed no time in which to think. The war had no sooner been declared than Henry Wilson was up and raising a regiment, and to the field at its head. After the war the admiring people who had seen him win in every fight he had ever engaged in, whether with bad luck and lack of education, with poverty, or with slavery, sent him to the United States Senate. He was the man the people nominated with U. S. Grant—he, the cobbler, who had learned to do things and to do them well. He died in 1874 at the age of 62, one of the most admirable of Americans.

Life Savers were all he could afford—but what could have been better?

His first romance

"I brought a package of Life Savers, Emily," he lisped as his chin drooped bashfully onto his starched collar.

It was his first romance and he didn't forget to bring the girl some candy. His mother had taught him to choose the right kind of candy.

• • •

Every growing child craves sweets. Active little bodies demand sugar. But children's candy must be pure—and they should not overeat.

Life Savers, the little candy mints with the hole (life saver shape), answer this problem in just the right way. They are china-hard and deliciously flavored.

This means that Life Savers are eaten slowly. Children suck them to make those wonderful flavors last longer. Little tummies are not upset. And Life Savers are kind to tiny teeth.

They're safe and wholesome. You may conscientiously be generous with Life Savers for they are the ideal candy for little folks.

Six flavors are displayed at all good stores so you may help yourself: Pep-o-mint, Wint-o-green, Cinn-o-mon, Lic-o-rice, Cl-o-ve and Vi-o-let. Five cents a package.—Life Savers, Inc., Port Chester, N. Y.

CRESCENT BEACH COTTAGE IS DAMAGED BY FIRE

Fire of unknown origin caused slight damage at about noon Monday to a cottage at Crescent Beach, Niantic, owned by Mrs. Daniel Chase of Middletown. Painters who were working nearby saw the sparks issuing from the roof of the dwelling and by use of ladders which they had with them, they climbed to the roof and emptied several buckets of water on the flames checking the blaze before extensive damage was done. Mrs. Chase, who is spending a few days at her summer home at Crescent Beach, said that she had started a fire in the fireplace in the morning but when she left the house she believed the fire had been extinguished. A hole, about a foot in diameter was burned in the roof of the cottage.

An alarm was sent in to the Niantic fire department but the painters had extinguished the blaze several minutes before the firemen arrived.

Motor Truck and Auto Collide.

Slight damage to two cars resulted from a collision on Railroad avenue Friday afternoon. A Chevrolet truck owned by George Kyle and driven by Mazzareno Ruffo, of 84 Lake street, and a Gardner touring car driven by Edward F. Bozdanski, of 85 North street, were the cars. The Chevrolet was only scratched slightly and the Gardner had a right front mudguard dented.

As an all-around optimist Cupid is pretty nearly the real thing.

A wonderful new flavor

that makes salads more temptingly delicious

"EAT more and more salads" is the advice of food authorities today. Gulden's new Saladressing Mustard adds that tempting taste which makes every salad a treat. Your family won't tire of the healthful salad on the daily menu with this appealing flavor to give it added zest.

This new Gulden's blend retains the pungent appetite-arousing mustard tang, but moderated for delicate-flavored foods. The world's choicest mustard seeds—pure vinegar aged in wood for years—imported olive oil—rare spices—are blended with the skill that only Gulden's 61 years of experience can match.

Why Gulden's is digestion's best friend

NOTHING equals mustard for bringing out the flavor of foods. It awakens your tastebuds—the sensitive nerves of the mouth. They quicken and increase the flow of saliva and other digestive juices. Thus Gulden's helps digestion.

YOU can mix Gulden's Saladressing Mustard with mayonnaise or other dressings. Or you can make a special dressing from recipes on label. This mild mustard is also splendid as a sauce for fish, for creamed or stuffed eggs, as a batter for fried tomatoes, etc. It is delicious on all meats and many vegetables.

Try this mild Saladressing Mustard. Give your family a new surprise. Generous-sized bottle; 15 cents, at your grocer's.

MEMORIAL DAY EXERCISES HELD AT MONTVILLE

Residents of Montville paid tribute to the hero dead on Memorial day with appropriate services at Comstock cemetery at 10 o'clock in the forenoon. The observance of the day was planned by the American Mechanics in honor of the old soldiers and the attendance at the service was large.

The service opened with the salute to the flag, after which there was music by the band. Rev. Edward L. Neild, pastor of the Union Baptist church, gave the opening prayer and his was followed by an exercise by pupils of the Palmer Memorial school and a selection by the band. The oration of the day was delivered by Rev. Charles Smith, pastor of the Montville Methodist Episcopal church, and there were exercises by pupils of the Uncasville and Oakdale schools.

The decorating of the graves of the soldier and sailor dead was the closing feature of the memorial exercises, this work being done while the band played an appropriate selection. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Mr. Neild and taps were sounded.

The parade then reformed and marched to the community house where veterans and participants in the parade were served a dinner by the ladies of the Montville Methodist Episcopal church.

REPUBLICANS WIN ELECTION AND COUNCIL REMAINS EQUALLY DIVIDED

Every republican candidate except the city treasurer was elected in the city election Monday when approximately 50 per cent. of the qualified voters, men and women, came to the polls. Estimated on the vote for collector, where Harold T. Robinson was the only candidate, the republican majority was 35, but it varied considerably on the different candidates and City Clerk Weston C. Pullen was re-elected by the largest majority on the republican ticket leading his opponent, M. Frank Leonard, by 117 votes.

The present democratic city treasurer, Senator Charles S. Avery, went back into office by defeating his opponent, Stephen H. Reeves, by 9 votes. Senator Avery's 2,024 votes was the highest polled on the democratic ticket.

ALFRED G. LILLIBRIDGE
Elected Alderman

The election placed in the council Aldermen Alfred C. Lillibridge and Frank Russell Smith, both completing terms as councilmen, and councilmen Maurice Looby, Dr. Clarence G. Thompson, Harold C. Dahl and Lee Clegg, the last named re-elected. This will maintain the party division just as it has been in the council, six republicans and six democrats, with Mayor Waters, a democrat, holding the deciding vote in case of a tie.

This year was the first time that the longer time for the polls to remain open was in force due to the increased number of electors because of the women's vote. The polls did not close till 7 o'clock, standard time, giving half an hour longer than in previous years, and Moderator M. E. Jensen at the first district polling place in the town hall kept a record of the hourly vote to determine what proportion of voters used the early hours or chose to make use of the extra late time. Frank I. Royce, naturally keeping many from the polls who might have come at that time.

| Time | Voters | Women |
|---|---|---|
| 7 to 8 | 100 | 26 |
| 8 to 9 | 125 | 32 |
| 9 to 10 | 154 | 50 |
| 10 to 11 | 152 | 50 |
| 11 to noon | 158 | 38 |
| Noon to 1 | 209 | 100 |
| 1 to 2 | 187 | 80 |
| 2 to 3 | 170 | 82 |
| 3 to 4 | 194 | 100 |
| 4 to 5 | 221 | 86 |
| 5 to 6 | 182 | 60 |
| 6 to 7 | 148 | 63 |
| | 1995 | 769 |

Out of the 4,847 men and 3,469 women voters registered only 2,481 men and 1,601 women voted, practically 50 per cent. of the voters. By districts the vote was cast as follows:

| District | Men Registered | Men Voting | Women Registered | Women Voting |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1 | 2258 | 1228 | 1911 | 769 |
| 2 | 994 | 493 | 616 | 345 |
| 3 | 877 | 578 | 563 | 435 |
| 6 | 430 | 274 | 270 | 152 |
| | 4547 | 2481 | 3460 | 1601 |

Promptly at 7 p. m., just after three men had cast their ballots in the final minute, Moderator M. E. Jensen declared the polls closed in the central district in the town hall and fifteen minutes later the entire vote for the district had been taken from the three machines by Moderator Jensen with the assistance of registrars Tyler D. Guy and Cornelius J. Downes. The district showed a republican majority.

Seven minutes later the officials from the West Side, second district, reported with their vote, which was also a republican majority. Shortly afterwards the officials from the sixth district, East Side, brought in their figures which also gave republican majorities. The third district, Greeneville, was last to report, about 7:45, with democratic majorities around 180.

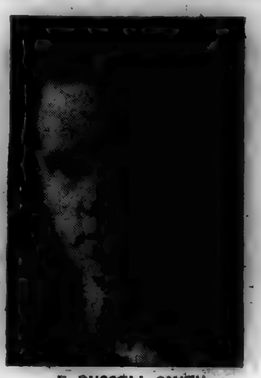
Elected Alderman



LEE CLEGG
Elected Councilman

Moderator Jensen announced the election results at 8 o'clock, standard time, and the annual city meeting adjourned to next Tuesday evening when action will be taken on the estimates.

Election Officials

In the central district Martin E. Jensen was moderator with James P. Sheridan, for the men, and Frank I. Royce, for the women, as checkers. Harry W. House and Edward G. ### GOVERNMENT COSTS ARE $71 FOR EACH PERSON

Connecticut people are contributing $71 a year each as their share of the expense of maintaining the federal, state, county and municipal governments, according to a statement issued by the legislative finance committee through the chairman, Senator Frederic C. Walcott of Norfolk. The financial policy of the session of the legislature which is to adjourn Wednesday will probably not change this figure. Taxes controlled by the state will not be changed appreciably, so far as the effect on the individual taxpayer is concerned.

Only $14.20 of the $71 paid in taxes each year for every person in this state, goes toward the running expenses of public institutions. It is estimated that, for every man, woman and child in the state, Connecticut pays $56.80 a year to meet expenses arising directly or indirectly from the game of war.

Chairman Walcott's Statement.

The following is the statement issued by Chairman Walcott:

"The financial policy of the state of Connecticut may be expressed in four words, 'Pay as you go.'

"That means balancing the budget every year or two, paying cash without borrowing.

"It requires courage to maintain this policy for the easy, and unhappily the unusual method, is to postpone a large percentage of state and municipal obligations by borrowing through the issuance of bonds and notes.

"War is destruction upon a national or an international scale and leaves in its wake a long train of vicious influences and pernicious habits which threaten not only the individual but the state and the nation.

"One of the most insidious and subversive habits which lifts its hideous head out of the desolation of war's aftermath is a kind of fatalism which is expressed in utterly reckless extravagance.

"War, the most unintelligent and wasteful human activity in both life and materials, invariably begets extravagance which continues long after war itself has ceased.

War's Effect on State.

"The direct result of the World war on Connecticut was an influx of gold from Europe in payment for war materials which required skilled workmen, in which Connecticut was and still is pre-eminent. This demand was so great, so unprecedented, that plants were doubled and quadrupled over night. Our population increased nearly 30 percent between 1915 and 1920, requiring extensive building operations for housing, enormous sums of money for better roads and bridges, improved school facilities, more teachers, a larger and more efficient police force.

Unexpected Burden.

"A heavy and unexpected financial burden was thus suddenly thrust upon the municipal, state and federal governments, particularly the more important manufacturing sections of the country—the middle and northeastern states.

"The war over, the decline in these war activities was as abrupt and unsettling as the rise. The industries of the country were suddenly left suspended in mid-air, their capacity two or three times greater than the normal demand, the bottom had to drop out and did all over the producing part of the world, and great was the crash which came with deflation.

"All of this means that here in Connecticut where wealth comes chiefly from manufactured products we are going through a period of readjustment, we are being forced to a more economic, simple, less wasteful mode of living.

"But as the state is no better off in any respect, no wealthier than the sum of its individuals who support that state and all its institutions, both state, county and municipal, it follows as the night the day that the state must change its course and pursue for some years the strict economy.

"The estimated population of the state in 1913 was 1,161,793 or approximately $22.50 for every man, woman and child in the state, which is roughly one-third the per capita tax burden of 1924.

"Suppose the financial advisers of this state during the last six years, this period of deflation and readjustment, had adopted the easy, the politically expedient and popular course, and issued bonds for the payment of these current state obligations. They could easily have held the taxes down to a lower rate and postponed the settlement of these enormous debts for several years; in a weak and cowardly fashion shifted the financial burden to those who were in no wise responsible for it, but at the terrible cost of principal plus interest. Furthermore the lessening of this present burden would have encouraged much larger current expenditures to the point of recklessness. Many states and cities in this country have followed this easy course through these trying six years and a day of reckoning will soon be upon them, because a state or a city unlike a business enterprise is not operated for profit, therefore should not borrow its working capital.

Must Face Obligations.

"To sum up: The determined financial policy of Connecticut has been to keep the state out of debt that the people of the state may face squarely their obligations and discharge them each year in order to enforce necessary economies of retrenchment following a period of unprecedented inflation and extravagance, and so long as the present authorities remain in power, this policy will be rigidly adhered to.

"More specifically, this policy includes the fostering in every possible way all Connecticut industries, realising that upon the success of these, the state is dependent; the protection of the public health in conformity to the best methods of modern science; sound practical public education for the betterment of our citizenship, the improvement of our highways to be paid for by those who use them and in direct proportion to the wear and tear and a more equitable and scientific system of direct taxation.

"Of course it must be remembered that the dollar will purchase only about two-thirds as much today as it would in 1913 and this depreciated dollar must not be confused with extravagance."

NORWICH TOWN

"Love's Offering" was the theme of the sermon at the First Congregational church, Sunday morning, when the pastor, Rev. Gurdon P. Bailey preached from St. Marks 14-8, "She hath done what she could," was the text.

During the announcements, the minister extended a cordial invitation to all those who desired to have children consecrated by baptism, to bring them to the church, Children's Day, June 14th, when the hour for morning worship would be turned over to the children for their special exercises.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the evening was in charge of Miss Ethel Whaley and Miss Dorothy Waterman. The topic used was "Christian Traits Worth Striving For." Phil. 4:4-8; Matt. 16:1-5.

The Congregational mid-week service for conference and prayer, Thursday evening, will have for its theme—

NOTICE

All Graduate Nurses are cordially invited to the graduation exercises of the William W. Backus Hospital Training School at the Hugh Henry Osgood Memorial Parish House at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening and the reception at the Wauregan Hotel immediately after the exercises.

"Miracle and Law," the fifth in the series of lectures on Dr. Fosdick's book, The Modern Use of the Bible.

At the First Methodist Episcopal church, Sunday morning, Rev. James B. Aldrich used for his sermon theme "The Lord's Prayer," with reference to the sixth chapter of Matthew.

There was no evening preaching service, the minister having had a part in the Young People's Christian Endeavor meeting, when the leader was Joseph Olsen. The topic was The World's Need of the Unfinished Task. Matthew 28:16-20.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Smith and son, Albert, have returned to their home in Brooklyn, Conn., after passing Memorial Day and the week end with Mr. Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan L. Smith, of Town street.

A former Norwich Town, young man, Sumner Willard, of New York, who spent the holiday and week-end with relatives in Norwich and New London, was cordially greeted by many Norwich Town friends Sunday, when brief calls were made on old acquaintances and neighbors. He was accompanied by his nephew, Richard Farnham, of New London, also formerly of Norwich. Mr. Willard who is the last of his family, one time residents of Norwich Town, is now making his home with his aunt, Miss Martha Hyde. Since locating in New York he has held some very fine positions.

Word comes from Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Hitchon of Washington street, who are passing several months in European travel, that they are now in Scotland, having previously spent some time in Paris.

Miss Florence Sterry of Connecticut College, Storrs, who with a school friend, Miss Pearl Tiffany of Windsor, spent the week end at Miss Sterry's home on Lee Avenue, also had as her guest over Memorial Day and Sunday, Miss Leona Vibber, of New London.

SMALL BOY SUFFERS NUMEROUS SERIOUS INJURIES

Ralph Stark, the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Stark, of Putnam, is in the Backus hospital with serious injuries from being struck by an automobile driven by James J. Murphy, of Bozrah, on the Fitchville road Monday afternoon about 7 o'clock, d. s. t. The boy has been visiting his grandmother, Mrs. Phebe Barber, and his aunt, Miss Barber, and it was reported that he ran out into the road just in time to be hit by the fender of Murphy's car and dragged several rods.

Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, who responded to the call for a physician, took the boy to the Backus hospital, where it was determined that his injuries consisted of both legs fractured, one above and the other below the knee, left knee dislocated, concussion of the brain and a possible fractured skull.

Mr. Murphy made report of the accident at Norwich police headquarters.

Dr. Leonhardt's Hemroid will surely and safely relieve any form of piles—quick action in even old, stubborn cases. No cutting—no greasy salves. A harmless tablet that removes the cause. Money back if not satisfied. Ask Lee & Osgood Co., or any good druggist for Hemroid. Be sure it's Dr. Leonhardt's.

MISS CHAPMAN LEADS FIELD IN FIRST ROUND FOR STATE GOLF TITLE

Waterbury, Conn., June 1—Mrs. M. G. Reycroft and Miss C. E. Chapman, both of the Brooklawn Country club, of Bridgeport, carried off the prizes in the qualifying round of the eighth annual championship tournament of Connecticut women's golf association this afternoon at the Waterbury Country club. Mrs. Reycroft, with the remarkably fine card of 90 carried off the gross prize while Miss Chapman's net score of 80, resulting from a gross of 93 and a handicap of 13, earned for her the net award. The competition for the gross prize was very keen as three golfers, Mrs. Charles J. Downey, of Springfield, Mrs. C. H. Porter, of New Haven, and Miss George Anne Bishop, of Brooklawn, finished right behind Mrs. Reycroft each with cards of 91.

There were no upsets in the qualifying round. All of the entries considered to have a chance for the title were able to come through successfully and make places for themselves in the championship round. Among these was Mrs. C. H. Porter, of New Haven, the defending champion, who served notice upon all the other contestants that she would make a vigorous defence of her title by turning in a gross score of 91. Miss Chapman and Mrs. Reycroft, the two prize winners give the Brooklawn club an excellent chance for the title if they continue the fine golf which they played today. Four members of the home club are included among the first 16 and it is possible that one of those may gain the championship. The scores of the first 16 qualifyers follow:

Miss C. E. Chapman, Brooklawn, 93-13-80.

Mrs. M. G. Reycroft, Brooklawn, 91-9-82.

Mrs. F. P. Guilfoile, Waterbury, 95-11-84.

Mrs. Charles J. Downey, Springfield, 91-6-85.

Mrs. M. J. Lawlor, Waterbury, 94-8-87.

Mrs. F. P. McAvoy, Waterbury, 100-13-87.

Mrs. Arthur Collens, Hartford, 105-17-88.

Mrs. C. H. Porter, New Haven, 91-2-89.

Mrs. F. W. White, Hartford, 99-10-89.

Miss Georgianna Bishop, Brooklawn 91-0-91.

Miss Priscilla Maxwell, Hartford, 92-1-91.

Mrs. J. E. Owsley, New Haven, 97-6-91.

Miss Lucy Smith, Waterbury, 102-11-91.

RED SOX DOWN ATHLETICS IN OPENING GAME

Boston, June 1.—Boston celebrated its homecoming today by defeating the pacemaking Philadelphia Athletics, 5 to 3. Boone bounded a home run into the right field bleachers in the first inning off Walberg. Heving's double off the same pitcher in the seventh scored two runs and put the Red Sox ahead, 4 to 3. Groves relieved Walberg and his wildness in the eighth forced in the fifth tally. The score:

BAKER GETS VERDICT OVER LARRY ESTRIDGE

New York, June 1—Fighting through intermittent showers at the open air Queensboro Stadium show tonight, Sammy Baker, an army sergeant, won a 10-round decision over Larry Estridge, negro welterweight, of New York. Estridge substituted for Willie Harmon, who injured his right hand in training.

Baker forced Estridge to break ground with terrific right leads to the head and floored the negro in the eighth round. The soldier was on top of his opponent throughout the bout, pelting him with crosses and uppercuts as Estridge covered on the ropes. The weights were announced as Baker 147; Estridge 154 1-2.

Edouard Mascart, of France, scored impressively in his first appearance in a Metropolitan ring coming through a ten-round featherweight bout to a point victory over Carl Duane of New York.

After surviving a storm of Mascart punches for seven rounds, Duane rallied gamely in the eighth and dropped the Frenchman twice. The latter regained his stride in the ninth and tenth and won in a finish of furious mixing in the center of the ring. The weights were 125 1-2 pounds for both boxers.

PHILLIES OUTSLUG BRAVES IN BATTING CONTEST

Philadelphia, June 1.—Philadelphia outbatted Boston in a freefor-all slugging game here today and won, 12 to 10. Thirteen doubles, two triples, and a pair of home runs were walloped during the course of the game, in which all six hurlers found it impossible to stem the tide of hitting. Score:

BERLENBACH MATCHED TO FIGHT JACK DELANEY

New York, June 1—Paul Berlenbach as today signed to defend his newly acquired light-heavyweight crown against Jack Delaney, of Bridgeport, Conn., at the Yankee Stadium on the night of July 2. Negotiations were made by Dan Hickey, Berlenbach's mentor, and Tex Rickard.

Berlenbach won the championship a 15-round match with Mike McTigue Saturday night and, besides Delaney, has Harry Greb and Jimmy Delary as prospective opponents.

GIANTS MAKE IT TWO STRAIGHT ROM DODGERS

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 1.—New York defeated Brooklyn today, 8 to 4, making it two straight over the Robins and the fifth consecutive victory over that club this season. The Giants have yet to lose to Brooklyn. Meusel, Giant outfielder, hit two home runs, both off Grimes, one in the fourth and the other in the fifth, with one on base. Score:

WILLIAMS WINS MEMORIAL DAY TENNIS TOURNAMENT

John Williams, instructor in physical education at the Norwich Free Academy, won the Memorial Day tennis tournament at the Norwich Golf club courts. Williams played a strong game throughout the tourney disposing of Wells Lyman in the first round, 6-7, 6-3, 6-1. In the second round Williams beat Powers in straight sets, 6-4, 6-2. In the semi-finals he beat Disco easily 6-1, 6-1 and then met Scott in the finals, winning from him in straight sets, 6-3, 6-2, 6-0.

There was some very good tennis during the tournament which opened on Saturday morning and continued through to Sunday afternoon. One of the closest matches was in the first round when Weymouth eliminated Percy Harwood, runner-up in last years tourney and a favorite to reach the finals this year. Harwood took the first set 4-6 and the second set ran into extra games, Weymouth winning 12-10. Weymouth took the third set 7-5.

Much interest was shown in the play and a large gallery followed the tourney which was one of the best of the season. It is expected that the Fourth of July invitation tourney will draw even a larger entry list.

TIGERS NOSE OUT WHITE SOX IN NINTH

Detroit, June 1—Detroit won the opening game of the series with Chicago here 8 to 6. The outcome of the game was in doubt until the last inning. Going into the ninth with the score tied at 6-6, Doyle doubled to left and Haney fanned. O'Rourke hit the ball into the left field fence, the ball rolling into the street for a home run. Neun, running for Doyle, scored ahead of O'Rourke. The score:

RUNNERS WILL FEATURE BAY STATE AT WORCESTER

Worcester, June 1.—A running race each day will be a feature of the three-day race meeting of the Indian Lake Driving club at Greendale's fairgrounds, June 11-13.

The meeting will be the first of the season in the Bay State Circuit, and in compliance with requests from a big number of jockey racing enthusiasts the driving club committee has arranged with Crompton Smith, son of Harry Worcester Smith, to manage the events for the runners.

There are now about 10 runners at the track, and by race day Mr. Smith promises that they will be in shape for real fast miles.

RUTH FAILS TO BRING YANKEES ANY LUCK

New York, June 1.—The Yankees' losing streak continued today, despite the return of Babe Ruth to the lineup, the Senators winning, 5 to 3. Ruth, who has been absent from the game for eight weeks due to illness, played six innings for his first appearance this season in major league games. Veach replaced the heavy hitter in right field in the seventh, it being considered advisable not to allow Ruth to exert himself. Score:

ASHLAND WINS EASY GAME FROM WESTERLY

The game at Ashland park Sunday was a farce, the Geo. C. Moore team being no match for the home club, which scored at will and drove three pitchers from the mound, winning 24 to 3.

Stanley pitching his first game for Ashland, showed up well and was never in trouble.

Ashland batted hard, getting many long hits which, coupled with the visitors' errors, accounted for the big score.

Next Sunday Ashland plays the Tabs from New London at Jewett City.

Ashland is looking for a game either at home or away for the 14th. Tel Jewett City 100.

Hardigs Win Both Week-End Games.

The fast Hardigs, of Norwich, defeated Montville Saturday morning at Montville by a score of 6 to 4 and Sunday defeated the Yantic Mills baseball team, 6 to 5. Rankin, who pitched Saturday's game, and Segal, who pitched Sunday's game, were both in rare form.

The Hardigs, who are without a game Sunday, would like to hear from some fast team as Plainfield, Pioneer Hose, Lebanon or Colchester.

If challenge is acceoted write to Charles Heebner, 148 Elizabeth street, Norwich.

BABE RUTH FAILS TO MAKE GREAT SPLASH AS HE RETURNS TO THE GAME

New York, June 1—Babe Ruth made [illegible] season today and failed to get a hit.

In the clean-up position of the Yankees' batting order again after almost two months' confinement to a hospital with influenza and indigestion, Ruth's opening successes were limited to fielding features. Both of the opportunities were presented the champion hitter of the American league in the fifth inning of the New York-Washington game, when he speared a high fly off the bat of Ruel and then made a spectacular running catch of Judge's drive, rolling over on the ground as he speared the ball.

Three times Ruth went to the plate to sample the pitching of the veteran Capitol hero, Walter Johnson. Once he reached first base on a pass. On two other attempts he grounded out to Johnson and to Harris.

Ruth's return to the game was the signal for a rousing outburst by 18,000 fans and the frantic clicking of cameras. He was the first batter up in the second inning, and Johnson's initial pitch looked good to him. He lunged at it with a full swing, but the ball rolled weakly to the Washington pitcher.

In the fourth with Combs on first as the result of a single, Babe drew a pass. Meusel's doubled scored Combs, and Babe tried desperately to count also, but failed to post his first run of the season after a headlong slide to the plate as the ball arrived ahead of him by seconds.

After grounding out to Harris in the sixth, Ruth gave way to Veach. Manager Huggins considering it inadvisable to permit him to over exert himself in his first game of the year.

JONES SETS RECORD FOR WORCESTER COURSE

Worcester, Mass., June 1—Walter Hagen, Pasadena, Fla., British open and American professional champion and Bobby Jones, Atlanta, national amateur champion, held the spot light today in the practice rounds for the United States open golf championship to be contested at the Worcester Country club Wednesday and Thursday.

Hagen, for the first time in his long career as a golfer made a hole in one when he dropped his tee shot at the 180 yard sixth hole. This hole had never been made in one until Hagen holed his number one iron today. He was playing in a match with Bobby Jones, Joe Kirkwood and Tommy Armour.

Jones made a 65, a record for the championship course and a score which tied the best previous mark at Worcester, made by Willie Ogg, the club professional, before the course was changed for the open championship.

Jones' card:
Out 344 353 434—33.
In 344,324,555—3—66.

BROWNS WIN EASILY FROM CLEVELAND INDIANS

Cleveland, June 1.—St. Louis won the first game of the series from Cleveland today, 10 to 2.

Cleveland made three hits off Bush in one inning but Van Gilder, who relieved him, held the Indians to five hits in eight innings.

Williams made a home run, a triple and a single in five times at bat. Rice made two triples and a single in five times up. Score:

RAIN SAVES CHAPMAN FROM DEFEAT BY WINDHAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 31.—With a prospect of breaking the long losing streak which extended from the first game this season, Windham High lost a golden opportunity to come out of its losing rut because old Jupe Pluvius sent down a rain storm which washed away the ball game. Windham was leading by a 1 to 0 score, as a result of Praters home run which was terribly and woefully misjudged by Everts, the Chapman Tech left fielder. The game had reached the fifth inning when rain called a halt on hostilities for about half an hour early in the afternoon. The clouds began to marshal themselves for a final attack upon the struggling players and to rob Windham of a ball game. One man was put out on Chapman Tech's order in the last half of the fifth, and then the deluge came. After mutual agreement, seeing that further play was impossible, the game was called off by Umpire Cranker.

TOOLE EXPLAINS TRANSFER OF NEWARK TO PROVIDENCE

New York, June 1.—(A. P.)—John Conway Toole, president of the International league, today issued a statement explaining the transfer of the Newark, N. J., franchise, to Providence, R. I.

The statement follows:

The transfer of the Newark club and franchise to Providence is as absolute and permanent as any such event can be. The owners of the former Newark club asked for permission to move and it was granted.

"The right to play in the Newark territory belongs to the International league and is in no manner under control of the former owners of the Newark club. Any statement to the contrary appearing in the Newark papers is incorrect and has not been made or authorized by me."

STORM CAUSES YALE TO HALT PRACTICE

Gales Ferry, Conn., June 1—A violent thunder storm interfered with the practice of the Yale crews here today but the boats were on the river for a short time. They are preparing for the regatta with Harvard later in the month.

Coach Ed. Leader made a change in the first varsity boat this afternoon when he tried Ficks and Russell, both members of the Junior varsity crews in Prud Homme's seat at number 3 in the first boat. It is not known whether these changes will be permanent.

No changes were made in the other boats with the exception of the combination where Goodwin replaced Quarrer at number 6. Coach Morse has not decided which man he will use.

Red Top, Conn., June 1—The first practice for the Harvard crews in preparation for the regatta with Yale later this month was held tonight when Coach Stevens sent the boats down the river for a four mile row, turning at the na

NORWICH ZONING BILL IS PASSED WITHOUT OPPOSITION IN THE HOUSE

(Special to the Bulletin)

Hartford, June 1—Zoning bills relating to Norwich, Darien and Greenwich were up for action in the house today. When the first on the list that of Darien, was taken up, Representative Hungerford of Watertown objected to its passage. Bell of Salsbury said the proposed bill was a good one and should pass. The same view was taken by Cassidy of Norwich, Havens of East Hartford and Williamson of Darien.

The bills were passed with no other opposition.

The bill amending the charter of the New Haven and Shore Line Railway company, provoked a long debate in the house. The bill allows the company which was abandoned some years ago and was granted a charter upon its reorganization in April the right to run busses over the old route and from the main line to the beaches. While the road was not operating the busses were granted a franchise to operate. The bill as presented was passed. The small loans bill also received considerable attention. It reduces the amount of interest that may be charged from 3 1-2 per cent to 3 per cent. and permits the repayment of the loan at any time. At present it must continue for one year. It had passed the senate. Chairman Tracy of the banks committee sought to have recommitted. This was vigorously opposed and the bill was placed on the calendar.

Two bills that have occupied the attention of the state for some time were passed in the house today. They were passed in the senate last week. They relate to the certificates of registration for the practice of medicine, also establishing a state board of healing arts.

A notice was given that a Windham county caucus will be held on Wednesday at 12.30 for the purpose of nominating a county commissioner. Also that the regular county meeting would be held at 12.10 on Wednesday.

The house at the afternoon session cleaned up all matters that were starred for action as well as several that would have come up tomorrow.

THE HOUSE

The house was late today on account of waiting for the committee on roads, rivers and bridges, which was holding a hearing on the recommitted bill that concerns the elimination and addition of certain highways to the trunk line system. It was 10:53 when Speaker Darbie called the house to order. Prayer was made by House Chaplain Lewis.

Senate bill 601 that had passed that body was before the house on the calendar today. The bill amended the charter of the New Haven and Shore Line Railway companies in that it permitted the operation, by the trolley company, of busses over territory that had been allotted to the "bus" companies. Chairman Pond, of the railroads committee, gave an explanation of the difficulty they had had in forming the bill. The two senators on the committee were divided in their opinion as well as the representatives who stood 4 for and 7 against the bill that would grant the powers sought by the trolley company. The amended bill puts the entire matter in the hands of the public utilities commission.

A motion by Mr. Sisson, of New London, for the previous question was lost. Later Judge Peck moved under the joint rules that the debate close at 12:23, this was passed and at the time named had arrived, the vote was taken and the bill was passed.

Many members of the house started to leave the chamber and the speaker ordered the doors closed in order to preserve a quorum. Chairman Tracy of the banks committee, to recommit the bill relating to small loans. This was opposed by Finkelstone, of Bridgeport, and Mrs. Alsop, of Avon. Miss Cheney wanted to know if the bill was recommitted, it would be reported back to the house. Mr. Tracy said he could not promise. The motion to recommit was lost.

At 12:45 the house recessed to 1:20.

At 1:40 the house resumed consideration of matters on the calendar.

Matters on the calendar having been disposed of, it was voted that all matters remaining on the calendar be starred for action Wednesday. The bill re-appropriating the amount made two years ago with an addition of $10,000 for the purchase of additional land at Niantic was passed after objection by Miss Cheney.

The bill was supported by Chairman Clark, of the committee, Miss Green, of Granby, Sturges, of Woodbury. The bill giving a charter to the community center of Bridgeport was passed, after being amended.

Appropriations were made of $50,000 tothe state board of control, $50,000 to the stream pollution commission, 1927, $50,000 in 1923 and $50,000, 1929. The bill was passed.

The bill providing for state aid to towns having a grand list of less than $3,000,000, on public health nursing, which had been recommitted was again reported unfavorably. Chairman Clark said it was time to call a halt on these increasing demands. The bill was tabled. The house adjourned at 3:20 until 10:30 Wednesday.

Matters passed on the calendar were:

Senate

The senate was called to order at 10:30, standard time, by Lieutenant Governor Brainard. Prayer by Chaplain Ayer.

On the recommendation of the committee on appropriations a bill providing that when the treasurer has charge of a fund for a special purpose he shall keep it apart from the general funds of the state and not include it in his report of state receipts for the fiscal year, was passed.

An appropriation of $12,000 was voted to the commissioner on diseases of domestic animals for the protection of poultry from disease.

On the unfavorable report of the committee on appropriations the bill to appropriate $15,000 for the remodeling of the house of representatives was rejected.

Passed: Approximately $60,000 for improvements at the state tuberculosis sanatorium at Norwich; validating the transfer of a strip of land from Loomfield to Windsor; appropriating $2,000 for the state water commission; authorizing the Greenwich Water company to supply water to the town of Rye, N. Y.; that the proceeds of a previous bond issue for Waterbury shall be used exclusively for the construction of a trunk sewer; authorising the city of Bridgeport to issue pavement bonds, series E," to the amount of $500,000 and shall bear interest at not more than 5 per cent; for the appointment of 3 appraisers with co-ordinate authority for the city court of Ansonia, each to receive a salary of $1,000; authorizing the Widow's Son lodge, A. F. and A. M. to erect and maintain a building on Branford green; appropriating $50,000 to the board of control to meet deficiencies; appropriating $200,000 for the joint use of the borad of fisheries and game and the park and forest commission in the acquisition of land; concerning appointment to city commissioners in Waterbury.

Senator Pierson objected to the passage of the bill from the house concerning weights and measures and on his motion the bill was tabled. The senator asked Senator Child, the chairman of the committee on agriculture which reported the bill to explain the effect of the provision relating to the giving credit, and Senator Child replied that it referred only to the seller. The answer did not satisfy Senator Pierson who had the measure tabled.

A bill was passed authorizing the board of control to make an examination of the construction of the capitol and cause working plans and specifications to be prepared for the remodeling of the hall of the house of representatives with apurtenant changes, according to such plans, as it may approve and authorizes it to expend an amount sufficient to carry out the purpose of this act from the appropriation made to the board. The bill was favorably reported by the committee on capitol grounds and furniture.

The nomination by the governor of Harry J. Beardsley of Waterbury to be a judge of the district court of Waterbury for four years was referred to the judiciary committee.

The sum of $15,000 was appropriated for the Soldiers' hospital borad for temporary repairs at Fitch's Home for Soldiers.

The bill relating to the fees of coroners and medical examiners was passed in concurrence with the house.

The bill authorizing the city of Hartford to create zoning districts was passed after a brief explanation by Senator Smith the chairman of the committee on cities and boroughs. The senator said there was another bill to provide a general zoning bill for the state. Hartford found it necessary to have a special law to meet its local conditions.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

The month of May saw several records broken in the line of building permits issued by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton. The total number of permits issued was 57, 18 for new houses and 18 for new garages and the remaining permits for alterations and additions to present buildings. The total valuation as placed in the application by the owner is $268,775 which includes $120,000, the estimate of the cost of the new Polish school. These permits do not include buildings that have been erected outside the city limits. Outside the city, especially in the East Great Plain section of the town near Dunham street where at least ten new houses have been erected or are in the process of erection, there have been as many if not more new houses erected or started during the month.

The permits issued by Fire Marshal Stanton for the last week in May are as follows:

To Rev. R. Ostrowski to erect a 2-apartment house on Silver street. The house is to be for the Polish National Catholic church and will be 24x26 feet and of frame construction. The foundation and cellar will be of concrete with brick underpinning. Each flat will have seven rooms and bath and will be finished in hardwood and hard finish plaster. The exterior will be in clapboards with fire-resisting shingles on the roof.

To Arthur Grodotske to erect a frame house on Dunham street for Arthur Kruck. The house will be 23x34 feet with concrete foundation and cellar. The building will be two stories high and will contain six rooms and bath. The interior will be finished in N. C. pine flooring and trim with hard finish plaster walls. The first story will be finished on the outside in clapboards and the second story in shingles. The roof will be covered with asphalt shingles. There will be a piazza on the ground floor.

To John C. Tracy to add a veranda to the present house on the corner of Hickory and Prospect street for Peter Sullivan. The veranda will be 7 x 23 feet and of frame construction with fire-resisting shingled roof.

To August Bergman to erect a frame house on Dunham St., for himself. The house will be 28x31 feet with concrete foundation and cellar. The superstructure will be of frame with clapboard sides and paper shingle roof. The interior which has six rooms and bath will be finished in hard pine and plaster.

To H. Apthorp to build an addition, 15x28 feet, to the house of Hannah E. Sullivan on Tenth street. The addition will have a concrete foundation and the exterior finish will be in clapboards. The interior will be finished in sheet-rock with hard wood floors. The addition will be one story with a small attic.

Healy and Washburn have the contract to build an addition to the frame house on Maple Grove avenue owned by J. McManus. The addition will be 10x12 feet. The outside finish will be in clapboards and shingles and the interior will be a hardwood and sheet rock.

Sealed proposals will be received until 3 p. m., June 19, for miscellaneous interior remodeling and repairs, including alterations to the mechanical equipment at the post office building on Main street. Plans may be obtained at the office of the custodian of the building.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS REACTIONARY.

New York, June 1.—(A. P.)—Marking up of the call money rate was followed today by the heavy selling of stocks, which developed a reactionary tone after a relatively firm opening. The decline, which ran from one to four points in many popular shares, was generally described as a correction of a weakened technical position resulting from the recent sustained advance. The absence of many traders was reflected in the reduced volume of business, total sales falling well below one and one-half million shares.

The decline, however, was by no means general as more than a score of issues, including several public utility, motor and merchandising shares were lifted to new high records for the year. Included in this list were American Water Works common and six per cent. preferred, American Telephone, International Telephone, Nash Motors, Maxwell Motors A, Paige Detroit, International Paper, Woolworth, Brown Shoe, International Shoe and Frank G. Shattuck.

Steel shares yielded readily to selling pressure which was inspired by rumors of another large decrease in the unfilled tonnage report of the United States Steel corporation for May, which will be made public June 10. United States Iron Pipe dropped four points to 180 and then rallied one, while net losses of 1 to nearly 3 1-2 points were recorded by United States Steel common, Bethlehem, Republic, Gulf States and Youngstown Sheet and Tube.

Weakness also developed in several of the other standard industrials, American Can showed a net decline of 2 3-4 at 188 1-8 and Baldwin closed nearly two points lower at 117 1-4 after selling down to 115 3-4. Among the many other issues to show net declines of 1 to 3 points were American Agricultural Chemical preferred, American Woolen, Associated Dry Goods (new), Central Leather preferred, Consolidated Cigar, Davidson Chemical, Famous Players, General Motors, International Harvester, Mack Truck, New York Canners, Pullman, Studebaker, Texas Gulf Sulphur and Willys-Overland preferred.

Rails yielded with the rest of the list, but not until after Reading common and second preferred had attained new peak prices at 99 1-4 and 44 1-4 respectively. Atchison, Chesapeake and Ohio, New Haven, Norfolk and Western, Southern Railway and several others showed net declines of a point or two.

A sudden burst of strength in American Smelting, which was run up over three points to 105, revived rumors of an early increase in the dividend. Rubber shares rallied slightly in response to the increase in tire prices, effective today, but were unable to maintain their gains. Resent weakness of the International Mercantile Marine issues was explained today by the publication of the preliminary 1924 report, showing another large deficit.

Call money renewed at four per cent. and then advanced to 4 1-2, where it closed. It is estimated that banks called about $15,000,000 in loans in order to supply funds for the first of the month requirements. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Because of the Whit-Monday holiday abroad, trading in the foreign exchange was in small volume with price fluctuations rather narrow. Demand sterling held fairly firm just under $4.86 while French francs were quoted around 5.01 1-2 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, June 1.—(A. P.)—Invigorated by the holiday rest, the bond market proceeded on its upward movement when trading was resumed today. Profit taking was confined to a few high grade railroad issues but a distinct improvement in speculative sentiment was effective in lifting prices of the lower priced rails and public utilities, as well as foreign and United States government obligations, several of which reached new top prices for the year.

Activity in the investment field continued to attract more interest than stock exchange trading. Bankers estimated that the $30,000,000 Norwegian loan, offered today, was from 2 1-2 to 3 times oversubscribed. Advance inquiries also were said to indicate over-subscription of the $45,000,000 Argentine loan, which will be placed on sale tomorrow by J. P. Morgan & company and the National City company. Heavy offerings of the outstanding Argentine 6s were absorbed in the market today at 96, the subscription price for the new bonds.

A rise in German 7s to a new record high price at 96 1-2 aroused unusual interest in bond circles and directed attention to the rapid recovery scored by these bonds since they broke to a low of 91 5-8 after the recent German elections. The rest of the foreign list also displayed a strong tone, with the French 7 1-2s mounting 1 1-8 points.

Local traction bonds were accumulated on the improved prospects for an increase in fares, leading a general upward movement in the public utilities which included American Telephone 5s, Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania 5s and Northern Ohio Traction & Light 6s.

U. S. government obligations worked irregularly higher, with the treasury 4 1-2s selling at a new peak price.

CURB MARKET.

New York, June 1.—(A. P.)—Bullish operations in the public utilities were resumed at the opening of today's market and sent several issues to new high records for the year but early gains were reduced or cancelled in the general selling movement which swept the market just before midday. Adirondack Power jumped five points to a record high at 87 1-2 and new peak prices also were established by Electric Investors, Lehigh Power securities and Southern California Edison. National Power & Light broke six points to 337, Commonwealth fell back 4 1-4 to 159 and several others closed a point or more below last week's final quotations.

Chrysler Motors was the outstanding feature in the industrial group, climbing over 4 points to a record top at 110 and then slipping back about a point. Cleveland and Durant Motors were heavy. Universal Pictures climbed over a point to a new top at 29 1-4 in reflection of expanding operations and increased earnings.

Oils turned reactionary despite the reported improvement in the so-called statistical position of the industry. Humble Oil, Prairie Pipe, Standard Oil of Indiana and Vacuum lost a point or so and several others yielded fractionally.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, June 1.—(A. P.)—Wheat values underwent a lively tumble in the late trading today, notwithstanding an earlier advance. Good rains over the northwest, together with showers elsewhere led to the selling which brought about the upset. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 2 to 2 7-8c. Net lower, July $1.60 3-4 to 1.60 7-8 and September $1.57 1-2 to 1.57 3-4. Corn finished at 2 1-4 to 2 7-8c down. Oats 1-8 to 1 1-4c off, and provisions, 15 to 50c up.

At first the wheat market was ruled chiefly by adverse crop reports, especially from Illinois and Indiana. Besides, a leading authority had issued an estimate that the total yield of wheat in the United States this season would be 200,000,000 bushels less than was harvested last year and 35,000,000 bushels less than the government's May 1 figures. Buying support for the market gave out, however, when reports of relief from drought began to come in. A decrease of 2,205,000 bushels in the domestic visible supply total failed to have any apparent effect toward stopping the downward swing of prices.

Conspicuous in the late selling of wheat was a house supposed to be acting for a prominent speculator. This selling soon made the fact evident that for at least the time being the market had absorbed about all the wheat possible unless prices gave way. Firms with eastern connections did considerable buying when the declines got well started, but only did so in acceptance of current offerings.

Corn and oats down as a result of sympathy with the decline in wheat. Most commission houses were buyers early, but afterward were inclined to sell.

Demand from small packers and from export interest tended to lift the provision market.

N. LONDON AUTHORITIES WATCH FOR BODY OF DROWNED L. I. SEAMAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, June 1—Mrs. H. J. Wilshen, of Cgram, L. I., today communicated with the New London police and requested that the local authorities be on the alert, should the body of Wilshen, who is believed to have been drowned by the capsizing of his boat in Long Island sound on the night of May 20th, appear in local waters. When Wilshen, who was 55, disappeared, he wore a blue shirt and blue trousers. Wilshen was five feet in height, of dark complexion, had dark brown hair and gray moustache.

Danceland, the immense dance hall at Ocean Beach, owned by Louis Markow and Philip J. Hendel, was threatened with serious damage by fire, early this morning. About 12:30 o'clock Patrolman George Perkins in making his rounds on Bentley avenue detected the odor of smoke, but could not locate the cause of the odor. A half hour later and after remaining in the vicinity of Bentley and Stuart avenues a considerable time and continuing to smell burning wood, Perkins went to the dance hall and peered through the windows, but he could not observe any signs of fire. He then walked along the approach to the dance hall and discovered a flame beneath the flooring. Perkins called up the police station, resulting in a still alarm being sent to fire headquarters. The Pequot Hose company was dispatched to the shore resort and by the time the firemen reached the dance hall a lively blaze was progressing. A quantity of chemicals thrown on the burning timbers resulted in the subduing of the fire and before damage of consequence resulted.

The crew of the speed launch, 291—G were seized off Rum Row, Sunday morning by the crew of the United States Coast Guard patrol boat, 327, charged with violation of the navigation laws in attempting to establish communication with a foreign ship by attempting to deliver mail to one of the several liquor supply ships bottled up there by the government craft. The men were before United States Commissioner Russell Corcoran this afternoon at 1 o'clock. At the request of counsel for the accused, Albert Roberts, Boston; John Allen, Wickford, R. I.; John Sears, Somerville, Mass., and Walter Taylor, Hamilton, R. I. the case was continued a week. The accused furnished a cash bond each for appearance at that time.

The 291—G is owned in Providence and the owner of the craft came here early this morning and arranged for bail being provided the crew. This boat is still in charge of the fleet of coast guard craft patrolling between Block Island and Montauk Point, but will probably be brought into port before the trial of the crew takes place.

Guy Underwood, mechanic, of 672 Main street, who was arrested in Waterford late Saturday night by State Police Officer Robert Bobnick, charged with violation of the automobile law in operating his machine while under the influence of liquor, did not go to trial in Waterford this afternoon as was anticipated, because of a controversy as to the justice who will hear the case.

Lucien Firmin, about 48, died late Saturday night at his residence, 224 Montauk avenue, death resulting from several months' illness of lung trouble. Mr. Firmin was a fisherman, and was a member of Pequot lodge, I. O. O. F. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Albert Firmin, his wife and two children.

Mrs. Mary A. Coleman, 76, widow of Sergeant Daniel Coleman, U. S. A., whose death occurred several months ago, died late Saturday night at the residence of her son, William E. Coleman, 109 Howard street. Mrs. Coleman was born in New London and had resided here her entire life. She was the daughter of the late Morris and Ellen Nellan Enright and is survived by three sons, William E., and Thomas Coleman, of this city, and Raymond Coleman, New York. A daughter, Mrs. Stanley Badyinski, Milwaukee, Wis., and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Enright, of Alger place, this city, also survive.

Mrs. Emma A. Payne, 81, widow of Henry B. Payne, died Sunday night at her home, 161 Howard street. Mrs. Payne, who had been in ill health a long time, is survived by a son, Frank Payne.

Sarah E. Libby, Fones, 67, wife of Herbert C. Burdick, died this morning at her residence, 28 Williams street, after an illness of many weeks. Mrs. Burdick was born at Riverhead, L. I., and besides her husband, she is survived by a brother, W. A. Fones, of this city.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operator's license of Edward Schall, a member of the crew of the U. S. S.—50, stationed at the submarine base to be suspended. Schall was recently convicted of violation of the automobile law.

Henry Winthrop, of Hope street, veteran letter carrier, resumed his duties today after having been incapacitated several months as a result of injuries sustained by being struck by an automobile.

The funeral of Thomas Oldroyd was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence, 43 Sherman street, the services being conducted by Rev. Horatio J. Chase, pastor of Montauk avenue Baptist church. Relatives of Mr. Oldroyd acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Henry Manuel, carpenter, residing at 321 Crystal avenue, died Saturday night following a lingering illness. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Paul Holmes and Miss Emma Manuel, both of this city. The funeral was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the family residence, the services being conducted by Rev. C. F. Spaulding, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

In the police court this morning, Judge Crandall handed out penalties with a liberal hand, though he did not impose the hardships that he might have inflicted. He had drunks and automobile law violators to deal with. John Carney and Robert Galvin, soldiers on a mine

GALES FERRY

A Memorial day service, was held in the Methodist Episcopal church, Saturday afternoon at 3.30 with the following program, Mrs. Nelson Parker, director. Opening group of community songs, America, assembly standing, Battle Hymn of the Republic, and Keep the Home Fires Burning were sung by the junior choir of girls was leading and Miss Jennie G. Perkins was at the organ. Salute to the flag and staff, borne by C. E. Colver, Jr., invocation, Rev. George Smith Brown, Lord's prayer in unison. At the left of Rev. Mr. Brown, Charles H. Comstock, a veteran of the Civil War of Gales Ferry, was seated, and at his right was Charles W. Frink, of Norwich, a member of the famous Lost Battalion, of the World War, 77th division.

Rev. Mr. Brown addressed Mr. Comstock and then presented Mr. Frink, who prefaced his address on his experience in the world war, by paying tribute, to the civil war, veterans, to the comrades of the Spanish war, and lastly to the memory, of the world war comrades. Following this he narrated thrilling experiences, that came to him as member of the Lost Battalion in France, and held the close attention of his hearers. Rev. Mr. Brown, then spoke, on the theme, Is Democracy Going to Rule. In conclusion, the assembly, with Mr. Comstock Civil War veteran, and Mrs. Comstock and Mr. Frink of the world war, and Mrs. Frink as leaders with the flag bearer, C. E. Colver, Jr., in advance, formed a line of march, to the nearby Gales Ferry cemetery, where a bouquet of flowers and a potted geranium, were placed on thirty-six soldiers' graves, that had been marked with flags, this being done by the young people. In concluding the exercises the junior girls sang, Peacefully Slumber the Brave.

What is a 100 per cent. American, was the theme of Rev. George Smith Brown, at the Sunday morning service in the Methodist church, Rev. Mr. Brown spoke on the life of Woodrow Wilson, 28th president of the United States, illustrating the theme. The anthem following the offertory, Nearer My God to Thee (Riddle) was sung by a quartet, Misses Grace A. Chapman, Alice Satterlee, E. Colver and D. R. Povey, the solo portions by Mrs. Colver. The altar flowers were a basket of fleur de lis, and a basket of May wreath, arranged by Miss Satterlee, in memory of her father, C. A. Avery Satterlee. The church activities for the week included an official board meeting for Monday evening, Thursday evening the bible study class. At the Sunday school at the noon hour, the banner for attendance went to Mrs. R. I. Hurlbutt's class, and for offering to Rev. Mr. Brown's class of men.

Getting and Spending My Money, was the topic of the Sunday evening Epworth League service, with C. E. Colver, Jr., leader. Misses Helen and Margaret Colver sang a duet, He Shall Feed His Flock. A poem, Silver and Gold was read by Mrs. C. E. Colver. At the preaching service, Rev. George Smith Brown continued on the topic.

The attendants at the Gales Ferry public library, for May, were Mrs. Everett Noyes, Mrs. E. S. Bennett, Mrs. Fanny A. Molthrop, Mrs. J. A. Birch, Miss Gibbs, and Miss Susan Mathewson.

DISCUSS NEW METHOD IN LUNG ABSCESS TREATMENT

Hope of relief which is now felt for tuberculosis sufferers as a result of recent improved surgical methods in treating lung abscesses was the chief topic which was discussed by the medical staffs of the five tuberculosis sanateria of the state at the monthly medical meeting of the State Tuberculosis commission which was held here Monday at Uncas-on-Thames, the same recently given by the school children of Connecticut to the sanatorium in this city. The principal paper was read by Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, superintendent, and a general discussion followed by members of the staffs of the Hartford, Meriden, Shelton and Seaside sanateria. The paper was illustrated by the exhibition of cases and by X-ray pictures.

Another subject discussed was the animal and laboratory reactions to a strain of tubercle bacilli which by cultivation has been made to lose the disease-producing characteristics that it formerly possessed.

RHEUMATIC PAINS GO SWOLLEN JOINTS VANISH

Twisted, swollen, unsightly joints are rapidly freed from pain and brought back to normal with Rheuma.

Lame people walk without aid; sleep comes to those who have been unable to lie in bed; hands that were helpless because of terrible rheumatism are now able to do their share for the support of the family.

Rheuma is a wonderful remedy for rheumatism, gout, neuritis, lumbago and neuralgia.

It is a wonder-worker; it never falters, never gives up until every vestige of uric acid poison is expelled from the body.

Rheuma acts on stomach, liver, kidneys and bladder all at once and quickly brings long prayed for comforts to distressed sufferers. Lee & Osgood Co. and all good druggists sell it with guarantee of money back if it isn't satisfactory.

BURNING UNCAS POWER CO. POLE PUTS CITY IN DARKNESS FOR 20 MINUTES

Norwich was without electric lights or power for about 20 minutes Monday night between 11:35 and midnight, d. s. t., when a pole near Baltic that had evidently been set afire by lighting caused a short circuit on the Uncas Power company line which feeds the city at night.

Word was sent to the city electric plant by the Eastern Connecticut Power company about 11:30 o'clock in the evening that the pole was afire but before the city power could be built up on its own turbine the lights faded out at 11:35. Power was turned on again at 11:55 o'clock and city power was supplied throughout the night.

The storm was most severe and although of short duration was close and lightning was sharp. Hailstones damaged local gardens to a great extent, plants above ground being cut and beaten down by the force of the hail.

At the time of the storm the temperature dropped from 90 to 66 giving relief from the heat wave which had held the city in its grasp throughout the day, making it one of the hottest June firsts known to local residents.

Struck By Lighting.

The house occupied by William Dempsey, 54 Mowry avenue, was struck by lightning and badly damaged, Monday evening, during the severe thunder storm which swept over this city shortly after 7 o'clock and a number of trees were struck in various sections of the town during the half hour the storm lasted.

Coming up from the northwest with increasing fury the storm passed almost directly over the city and for over a half hour lightning played about almost continuously, the vivid flashes being accompanied by crashes of thunder which told of the nearness of the lightning.

Rain fell in torrents and city streets became miniature rivers while the storm was at its worst and for a brief period hail stones as large as marbles crashed down into the streets forcing people to cover for protection.

Following the storm Mr. Dempsey called for the fire department and Greeneville and Squad A and Deputy Chief Taft of Central station responded, going to the house to look for possibility of fire. The lightning struck the Dempsey house to the south of the center of the roof ripping a hole about six feet long in the roofing and throwing shingles into the yard. Entering the house the lightning went to the floor below tearing a door frame from its fastenings and knocking plastering from the walls in the upper bedroom. It then jumped to the lighting fixtures and burned out all the fuses in the house. The lightning evidently left the house by way of the chimney for every thimble hole cover was blown out and soot scattered throughout the house.

The family was in the kitchen at the time the lightning struck the house and this was fortunate for had they been upstairs injury would have been certain.

The air in the city was literally charged with lightning during the storm lightning struck trees and poles in many sections wrecking havoc with the lighting system causing the Gas & Electrical department no end of trouble which lasted well into the night.

Lightning struck the circuit at Sturtevant avenue and West Town street putting out lights in Norwich Town and Yantic for several hours, while another bolt hit a pole near Adams Tavern blowing out the transformer and burned up over 50 feet of wire on the pole leaving nothing but insulation. On Mechanic street a limb of a tree was felled opposite the Silk Mill putting out the street light. Transformers on Fox Hill, Mowry avenue and Cliff streets were burned out and one on Cedar street was knocked out temporarily stopping a wedding which was in progress nearby. Sparking wires were noted on the West Side and on Washington street caused by the storm.

Later in the evening lights went out on Norwich avenue, Taftville and crews went out to search for the trouble near Taft's Station.

FAY PROPERTY BRINGS $150,250 AT PUBLIC SALE

The brick building on Franklin Square known as the Fay property was sold Monday morning at public auction to Samuel Goldberg of the Max Gordon corporation for $150,250. The terms of the sale are 10 per cent. in cash and the balance of purchase price on or before August 1st, possession reserved until August 1st. The property was sold by Charles L. Stewart, administrator of the estate of Marian H. Fay, by virtue of an order of the Norwich probate court, and the sale was held in the rooms of the court of common pleas.

The property is located at the corner of Main and Ferry streets.

Over 75 property owners, real estate men and bank men of Norwich attended the sale which opened at 10 o'clock. The probate court room was so crowded by prospective buyers and bidders that it was deemed advisable by Judge Nelson J. Ayling to hold the sale in the common pleas court room, and the meeting was adjourned to that place by Administrator Stewart. After the notice of the sale had been read Lawyer Jeremiah J. Desmond asked if there was any mortgage on the property. Mr. Stewart stated that the property is free from all incumbrances except three leases held by John C. Mara, druggist, Madden's Cigar store and John A. Ferguson, jeweler. Mr. Stewart stated that there is some mortgage on the property but that this is to be cleared up immediately.

The administrator stated that Mr. Madden has a lease, expiring November 1, 1932, at a yearly rental of $1,500. John A. Ferguson has a lease expiring Sept. 1, 1932, at a yearly rental of $1,500. John Mara, druggist, has two leases, one expiring Jan. 1, 1926, at a monthly rental of $85 and the other lease expiring Jan. 1, 1933 at $1,620 a year. The assessed value of the property is $30,000.

Charles R. Butts made the first bid, $100,000. Mr. Mara and Samuel Goldberg bid $125,000 each. Mr. Goldberg raised his bid to $135,000 and William Bode, of the Shetucket Harness company bid $136,000 which was raised by Mr. Goldberg to $140,000. Mr. Bode bidding $141,000. A. Levine bid $141,500. Mr. Bods raised to $142,000 and Mr. Goldberg bid $145,000. Then occurred a lapse in the bidding. Mr. Bode bid $145,500 and Mr. Goldberg went to $145,600. Mr. Bode announced a bid of $146,000 which was raised to $150,000. Mr. Bode bidding $150,100. Mr. Levine bid $150,150 and Mr. Bods bid $150,200. The final bid was $150,250, the property being sold to Mr. Goldberg.

The building is of brick construction, three stories in height has a frontage of 71 feet on Franklin square and a depth of 38 feet. It is considered one of the most valuable pieces of property in the city. Mr. Goldberg purchased the property as a personal investment. The toys, stock and fixtures in the store conducted by Mrs. Fay for years were sold to Mr. Goldberg for $1,000.

NEW FLAG POLE IS PRESENTED TO Y. M. C. A.

A new attractive flag pole is certainly a real addition to the property of the Norwich Young Men's Christian association on Main street opposite the post office. Several friends of the association are back of this practical gift. H. F. Dawley, of the Dawley Lumber company, donated the pole, 40 feet long; W. S. Spencer, the local contractor, contributed the labor in rounding and smoothing the pole; Henry P. Beausoleil painted the pole and put gold leaf on the ball which was made and presented by Williams Brothers, plumbers. Ambrose Sullivan did the cement work at the base without cost to the association, and the Eaton-Chase company contributed the hardware and rope needed. The management of the "Y" is deeply grateful for the gift of this much-needed addition to the association property. The large flag floated for the first time on the new pole on Memorial day.

MADE 114 ARRESTS IN THIS CITY IN MAY

The Norwich police made 114 arrests in the month of May, of which 53 were for intoxication, the largest single cause.

The following were the number and causes of arrests:

Intoxication, 53; breach of peace, 26; violation of liquor law, 10; violation of motor vehicle law, 18; adultery 2; and assault with intent to kill, issuing fraudulent check, harboring female for immoral purposes, receiving stolen property, vagrancy, non-support, keeping disorderly house, one each.

DECLARES THE WORLD SHALL NOT BE DESTROYED

Sunday afternoon at the Buckingham Memorial W. L. Pellie of Brooklyn, N. Y., speaker for the International Bible Students' association, set forth the Bible evidence that the literal earth upon which we live and move and have our being will never pass away, and that upon this literal earth a condition of affairs will also come into existence that will be permanent, because it will be perfect. The speaker said:

"One of the keys to the understanding of the Scripture is the realization that the Bible contains much symbolic language. The symbolic passages can not be understood until something occurs to bring to light the meaning of the symbols used. Let us take a passage as an illustration:

"Isaiah 2:2 reads thus: 'The mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and all nations shall flow unto it.' This passage can not be accepted literally. It would be worse than meaningless to try to think of a gigantic literal mountain set on top of other mountains, and of nations becoming fluid and flowing up hill into solid rock.

"In due time the symbolic meaning of the word mountain was brought to light. It was found in Daniel's prophetic description of a great image upon which fell a stone, which struck the image on the feet, broke them up, destroyed the entire image, and ended by becoming a great mountain which filled the whole earth. And then the Divinely provided explanation is given that this mountain signifies a great kingdom that shall fill the whole earth, the kingdom of God.

"Applying this explanation to the symbol we find that Isaiah was really prophesying that in due time the kingdom of God shall be established in power in the earth, overtopping or overruling all the other kingdoms of this world; that all the people shall flow into that kingdom; and that as a result men shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks, neither shall they learn war any more.

"When the Revelator says: 'I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea,' we are to remember that the entire book of Revelation is expressly declared to be a symbolical book. The literal heavens, where the heavenly Father has his throne, will never pass away; the literal earth will never pass away; and the literal sea will remain forever, a place which men can sail up and down and travel over and enjoy without any end to their happiness.

"In the past we have had 'the old world,' the world that was,' 'the world of the ungodly,' which ceased to be at the time of the Flood. More recently we have had what the Scriptures designate as 'this world,' 'the world that now is,' or 'this present evil world,' which passed out of existence with the World war.

"The future, and the immediate future at that, holds in store for us and for all 'the world to come,' wherein dwelleth righteousness, when Christ shall reign over the earth and judge the people righteously, as our text declares. That world will be the 'world without end' of which the prohpets have spoken and for which humanity longs."

MISS DOROTHY ROBINSON ORDAINED TO MINISTRY

Miss Dorothy Robinson, daughter of Rev. E. B. Robinson of Grace church, Holyoke, kneeling behind a huge basket of red roses, had laid on her head, Sunday night, the hands of six Congregational clergymen, in the final rite that marked her ordination into the Congregational ministry. The ceremonies were held at Grace church. The ordination prayer was by Rev. Dr. Edward A. Reed, pastor-emeritus of the Second church; and with especial fitness the present pastor, Rev. Dr. R. R. Wicks, gave the formal extension of the right hand of fellowship in behalf of the other churches.

Dr. Wicks declared that there was so much going on in the world, so much being done that people were prone to forget the deeper needs of the soul. So he welcomed Miss Robinson as one more worker. And he said there was need of workers; there was need of resurrecting the old belief of the power of God; the liberals of today stand at the crossroads, they must advance or go back. And after all the power of God was needed to touch the hearts of men as Dr. Reed has preached to us so often. He rejoiced that Miss Robinson was to be at Mount Holyoke college; with her wide experience she could teach those girls that it was one thing to solve social problems at Mount Holyoke and another thing to solve them in the city of Holyoke. The ordination exercises closed with benediction by Miss Robinson and selections by the choir.

The Congregational ecclesiastical council met in the afternoon. Rev. C. N. Thorp acted as moderator and Rev. John L. Lewis, of East Longmeadow, as scribe. They held a secret session, the report favorable to the candidate being made at the ordination exercises in the evening. Rev. E. B. Robinson read scriptures following the formal records of the council by the scribe. After singing a hymn, Rev. Dr. Kingston Bloom from the Congregational Sunday School Extension society extended greetings in behalf of that organization; Rev. Dr. E. E. Nourse, professor at the Hartford Theological seminary, from which Miss Robinson was graduated last week, conveyed the greetings of that body, and Dean Florence Purington of Mount Holyoke college extended the college greetings. Miss Robinson is to teach at the college beginning in the fall for a year.

The sermon was then preached by Rev. Prof. Laura H. Wild, of Mount Holyoke college.

During the past two summers Miss Robinson has filled the pulpits in two churches. In 1923 she was pastor in the "trash pile" church in South Carolina, a church built on the dumping ground of Charlestown for want of a cheaper location. She left this church so much stronger financially and in membership that a new building is being erected. Last summer she was missionary pastor in Mission, S. D., 38 miles from a railroad. Her church was a school of three rooms and her congregation was drawn from Rosebud Sioux Indians, ranchers and storekeepers. Dorothy Robinson was born in Lisbon, Ct., in the parsonage built for David Hale, brother of Nathan Hale, the patriot. Rev. Mr. Robinson's grandfather was William Bradford who was a native of Salem and who was ordained a minister when 66 years old. Miss Robinson came to Holyoke with her parents when she was a year old.

SOWIN AND REAPIN TOPIC AT SHOP MEETING

Monday, at the plant of the Richmond Radiator Co., under the Y. M. C. A. auspices, Rev. Charles H. Ricketts gave an intensely interesting address to the employes, on the topic of sowing and reaping, taking for his scripture text, "Be not deceived, God is not mocked, for whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." The speaker told of several characters of history who had broken the laws of God and man and who have found that they could not "get away with it." Wrongdoing, said Mr. Ricketts, always finally reaps punishment; one may avoid the jury, the court, and the judge for many years, but finally if not punished by man, he cannot escape the eye of God. The question is what kind of seed are you sowing; remember, a man reaps exactly what he sows.

CARBRAY NOT OPERATED ON FOR APPENDICITIS

Until an early hour Tuesday morning John Carbray, 31, held for a double shooting, had not had his operation for appendicitis. He is still confined at the Backus hospital under observation but it could not be stated Tuesday morning when the operation would take place, if ever.

His divorced wife and Herman Greiner, whom he shot last Friday night, remain in about the same condition at the hospital as they have been since the shooting.

BANQUET AND THEATRE PARTY FOR NURSES

The class of 1925 of the William W. Backus Hospital Nurses' Training school held its annual banquet Monday evening at the Wauregan House. With the ten members of the class were officials of the hospital. Following the banquet the annual theatre party was enjoyed, the graduating class being guests of Miss Katherine Dowd.

Somehow we can't help feeling sorry for an ex-hero.

SISTERS ARE MARRIED IN OCCUM CHURCH

Two daughters of George and Lea Beallier Dugas of Versailles were united in marriage Monday morning at St. Joseph's church, Occum, when Rose Anna Dugas became the bride of Archie Brouillard of Plainfield and Mary Ann Dugas was united in marriage with Leonel Irwin Jodoin of Plainfield. The ceremonies were conducted by Rev. Frederick R. Des Surreault, rector of St. Joseph's church, and Rev. Ludovic Paradis of Voluntown in the presence of relatives and friends of the couples.

Following the weddings a reception was held at the home of the parents of the brides and wedding breakfast was served. Both couples left later in the day on their honeymoon, their friends extending wishes for a happy married life.

Mr. Brouillard was born in Natick R. I. the son of Hercule and Flora Breault Brouillard and is employed in a Plainfield mill. Mr. Jodoin is the son of Edmund and Mary Ann Filiatreault and was born in Sprague. He is also employed in the mill at Plainfield. The brides are daughters of George and Lea Bonlier Dugas and were born in Canada. Both had been employed in the mill at Versailles.

CAPT. LENNEN'S WIDOW WITHDRAWS PROBATE APPEAL

Mrs. Helen F. Lennen, widow of Capt. James Lennen who died Dec. 14, 1923, filed Monday with the clerk of the superior court a withdrawal of her appeal from probate of the will of her husband, who left an estate than inventoried $578,856.79. The withdrawal was signed in person by the appellant widow.

Mrs. Lennen started the suit in January to break the will of her husband who disposed of most of his half million dollar estate to charitable institutions and left her $30,000. At a hearing upon her petition before the probate court she was granted a monthly allowance to be paid by the executors of her husbands estate, Judge George E. Parsons and Jesse Henry Wilcox, of Stonington. With the probate appeal withdrawn it is presumed that the executors can now proceed with the details towards the settlement of the estate.

CITY COUNCIL MEETING IS CONSIDERED TAME

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, June 1—The city council held one of the tamest meetings this evening in its history. Indeed the small number of spectators was disgusted with the lack of argument and excitement. The gallery was a small one, made up of a score or so of citizens. The applications for permission to build were chiefly for garages, but there were also a few applications for additions or repairs to structures. The contract for printing the voting lists was awarded to a New London printer, though a Waterbury concern made a lower bid. It was believed that the carriage charges, the telephone talks that would be necessary and the forwarding of correction in the printed lists would make an expense that would bring the bid of the New Londoner and the bid of the Waterbury concern about equal so the contract was awarded to the New Londoner.

The council voted to award a contract for the erection of a steel bridge across Alewife cove, at Glenwood avenue, to the United Construction company of Albany, N. Y., as the lowest bidder. The price is $4370. A concrete bridge would cost $17,000 and that expense the city manager did not recommend. He did not think it warranted even though painting of the steel structure would add to its cost every few years.

The Howard Street Coal company was awarded the contract for supplying the city with coal—$8868 worth of it. The company is tied up with all sorts of restrictions deemed to be for the protection of the city.

Freeman A. Kennerson asked for the privilege of erecting a shelter and rest building in Riverside park which shall be equipped with a gas range, toilet facilities running water, etc., for the use of campers. To compensate him he is to charge for service rendered at the building and be allowed to sell eatables, confectionary, candy etc., and to have charge of the camp for a period of ten years. At the expiration of that time the building he erects is to become the property of the city. The petition was referred to the committee on public works.

The council voted to request the Old Colony Trust company of Boston, to burn the unissued bonds that were to have been issued for the purpose of erecting a junior high school building. The bonds are signed and they may be a source of annoyance to the city not cremated. Councilor Fox suggested that the bonds might be brought to New London and be buried on the site of the proposed school, but his suggestion was not adopted by the council. It was regarded rather as a bit of sarcastic statement that the building will never be erected and that there was not any probability that it would ever be built.

The New London Lions' club again asked for the removal of unsightly wharves and buildings, old steamer and barge hulks from along Pequot avenue on the plea that they destroyed the beauty of the handsomest driving avenue in the city. The city manager is to take the matter up with owners of property along the avenue and endeavor to bring about an improved condition of things.

Genaro De Luca and others asked for the acceptance of Evergreen a avenue as a street. The council was in doubt about its authority in the matter and the director of law is to be asked for an opinion. The treatment of Harris Court is in somewhat the same predicament as building lots are for sale on what would be the extension of the court when that highway is prolonged from Pequot to Montauk avenue.

It was reported that the New Haven Railroad had encroached on city land in erecting a fence at the order of the public utilities commission at Montauk avenue.

This matter is to be taken up with the railroad company.

The Pequot Hose company invited the members of the council to attend a chowder at the company's house on the evening of June 6th when Deputy Chief Shipman will have returned from New York and when he is to deliver an address touching the duties of the New York firemen and the management of the fire department in that city.

Councilor Fox insisted that members of the council have copies of the report of the committee that inquired into the efficiency of the police department and the council voted to supply each member with the information sought.

Storm Cut Theatre Attendance.

Local theatres were hurt by the storm Monday night, the attendance being small, due to the heavy rain which fell until after the opening of the shows.

Firemen on Vacation.

POETRY

A Little Dutch Garden

I passed by a garden, a little Dutch garden,
Where sweet and pretty things grew—
Heart's-ease and tomatoes, and pinks and potatoes,
And lilies and onions and rue.

I drew in that garden that little Dutch garden,
A chubby Dutch miss with a spade,
And a flaxen-haired little Dutch maid.

There grew in that garden, that little Dutch garden,
Blue flag flowers, lovely and tall,
And early bluh roses, and little pink posies,
But Gretchen was fairer than all.

My heart's in that garden, that little Dutch garden—
It tumbled right in as I passed.
'Mid wildering masses of spinach and daisies,
And Gretchen is holding it fast.

—Harriet Whitney Durbin.

Ornia Vinett

Long from the lists of love I stood aloof,
My heart was steeled and I was beauty-proof:
Yet I, unscathed in many a peril past,
Lo! here am I defeated at the last.

My practice was, in easy-chair reclined,
Superior-wise to speak of womankind,
Waving away the worn-out creed of love
To join the smoke that wreathed itself above.

Love, I said in my wisdom, Love is dead.
For all his fabled triumps—and instead
We find a calm, affectionate respect,
Doled forth by Intellect to Intellect.

Yet when Love, taking vengeance, smote me sore,
My Siren called me from no classic shore;
It was no Girton trumpet that laid low
The walls of this Platonic Jericho.

For when my peace of mind at length was stole,
I thought no whit of Intellect or Soul.
Nay! I was cast in pitiful distress
By Brown eyes wide with truth and tenderness.

—Alfred Cochrane

TRIBUTE IN WASHINGTON TO THOMAS RILEY MARSHALL

President Coolidge and Other High Government Officials Attended Service in the New Willard Hotel—The Presbyterian Service Was in Accordance With the Simplicity and Unpretentious Religious Feeling That Marked the Life of the War-Time Vice-President — Funeral Will be Held Thursday Morning at Indianapolis With Masonic Rites.

Washington, June 3—(A. P.)—Accompanied by those who most loved him among the hosts of friends won to him during his life by his unfailing kindness, fairness and homely philosophy, Thomas Riley Marshall, former vice-president of the United States, tonight began his last journey from the nation's capital to his home at Indianapolis.

The nation, through President Coolidge and other high government officials, first paid its tribute to the memory of the war-time vice-president, who succumbed to a heart attack yesterday, in a simple service late today. Then the body was reverently taken to a train which left at 6:30 p. m. and is expected to arrive at noon, tomorrow, at Indianapolis, where the funeral will be held Thursday morning with Masonic rites. Afterwards, the body will be placed in a receiving vault at the Crown Hill cemetery there, pending a decision by Mrs. Marshall as to its last resting place.

Mrs. Marshall, who has bravely faced the ordeal of final parting after nearly 30 years of married life with the former vice-president, went on the same train with the body, accompanied by Mark Thistlewaite, Indianapolis News correspondent, who was her husband's former secretary; John H. Cowles, representing the Scottish Rite Masons of the Southern jurisdiction and James M. Baker, secretary of the senate during six years of Mr. Marshall's regime as its presiding officer.

The service was held in the New Willard hotel, where he lived while vice-president and where he died more than four years after his retirement from that office, having returned to Washington for a brief visit as he had frequently done. Some 200 officials and friends, including his former page and chauffeur and capitol attaches who had known him, attended the service which was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Charles Wood of the Presbyterian church of the Covenant, where the Marshalls worshipped here, in accordance with the simplicity and unpretentious religious feeling that had marked his life.

After the invocation came the Lord's prayer. Then the fourth chapter of the gospel according to Sain Mark, on which his eyes rested when death came, was read, and the lines of the 116th psalm, another favorite of Mr. Marshall in the bible he often turned to during the leisure moments of his life. A brief oration followed, and the closing prayer was said immediately afterwards.

He was a "Puritan of the Puritans," Dr. Wood said, likening him to John Bunyan and asserting that "the secret of his life was his faith." His influence, the minister declared, "will carry ever yet further and further as the years go by," warning and restraining in political life, and because of what he was and did and said, "many unworthy things will be left undone."

"Men," he aded, "will dare to be heroic remebering his calm, smiling, confident mien, as he heard God's call to duty or privilege, to self-sacrifice or suffering or to positions of world-wide influence."

Prominent among those at the service were Chief Justice Taft, Associate Justice McReynolds, Chairman McChord of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Senators Swanson of Virginia, and Dugan of Florida; Senator Moses, president pro tempore of the senate; former Secretary and Mrs. Robert Lansing, Former Secretary William B. Wilson, Isidore B. Dockweiler, national committeeman from California, representing the Democratic National Committee; Surgeon General Ireland, Daniel C. Roper, former commissioner of internal revenue; the Rev. Dr. J. J. Muir, chaplain of the senate, and Mrs. Pat Harison, wife of the senator from Mississippi.

The Belgian ambsador, Baron De Cartier, added to the mass of mesages of condolence, with an expression of his own sympathy, a cablegram from King Albert and Queen Elizabeth to Mrs. Marshall, which read: "Our heartfelt sympathy for Mrs. Marshall. Very distressed to hear of Mr. Marshall's death."

INDIANA PREPARED TO HONOH MARSHALL

Indianapolis, June 3—The body of Thomas R. Marshall, former vice president of the United States, sped westward toward his native state tonight, and citizens of Indiana prepared to pay homage ot their former chief executive.

Masonic bodies of which he was a member, representatives of the republican and democratic state committees, former governors of Indiana, members of the state and city bar association and persons from all walks of life will be on hand when the train arrives here tomorrow morning.

The funeral party will be accompanied to the home of the Marshalls by members of the [illegible] accepted Scottish Rite [illegible] council of deliberation of [illegible] and a committee appointed by Governor Jackson.

Funeral services at the home Thursday will be in charge of [illegible] Rite while those to be held at the receiving vault at Crown Hill cemetery will be in charge of the [illegible] and A. M.

YALE MUSICIANS TO GIVE ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS

New Haven, Conn., June 2—Assisted by the New Haven Symphony orchestra, three members of the graduating class of the Yale School of Music, will give original compositions at the annual commencement concert to be given by students in the School of Music tomorrow evening at 7:15 o'clock (E. S. T.) in Woolsey hall.

The composers of the original overtures to be played are Albert Iver Coleman, of New Haven, Conn., Katherine Hazel Burnham, of Clinton, Conn., and Helen Joy Sleeper, M. A., of Putland, Mass., a graduate of Wellesley college and Columbia university, and formerly a member of the Smith college faculty.

Miss Burnham, Angeline Kelley, of Yonkers, N. Y., also of the graduating class, and four other students in the school, Dorothy Gertrude Hull, of Middletown, Giovannina Maria deBlasiis, of Glens Falls, N. Y., Frank Rascati, of New Haven, and Ralph Eggleston Linsley, of New Haven, will take part in the program.

LATEST PHASES IN PLOT AGAINST MARY PICKFORD

Los Angeles, June 2—District Attorney Asa Keyes today refused to issue a conspiracy complaint against three men arrested by the city police Saturday, accused of plotting to kidnap Mary Pickford, film star. Keyes ordered the whole affair aired before the county grand jury.

Attorneys for the defense issued a statement characterizing the arrests and reported confessions of the men as a "frameup" among police informers.

This phase, as well as any tangible evidence that the trio did plot the kidnapping, will be investigated by the grand jury, Keyes said.

The men are C. . Stephens, Claude A. Holcomb and Adrien J. Wood.

GASOLINE PRICE WAR ON IN RUTLAND, VT.

Rutland, Vt., June 2—(A. P.)—A gasoline price war in this city between he leading distributors has resulted in a drop of four cents a gallon to 21 cents retail, exclusive of tax. Prices have been cut by the Standard Oil ompany of New York, the Texaco Oil ompany, the New England States Oil ompany and the Gulf Refining company.

BEVERLY BAYNE GRANTED AN INTERLOCUTORY DIVORCE

Los Angeles, June 2—Beverly Bayne leadman known on the screen as Beverly Bayne, was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce today from her actor husband, Francis X. Bushman on the grounds of desertion. The Bushmans were married in New York July 2, 1912, and separated in Los Angeles in January 1924.

YALE FRESHMEN MUST PAY FINE AND APOLOGIZE

New Haven, Conn., June 2.—(A. P.)—A fine and an apology will be the punishment of the freshmen class at Yale university for its riotous celebration Sunday night when the old traditional freshman fence was torn down and burned and an instructor was roughly handled, according to an announcement of the rules committee of the freshman faculty tonight.

Every member of the class must pay $1, a total of more than $800, for the damage done in the outburst and each member must sign an apology to F. H. Bangs, the instructor who was attacked.

The ruling applies to every member of the freshman class, whether or not he participated in the rioting, and includes also the freshman crew now in training at Gales Ferry for the regatta with Harvard. If the apology is not signed by the entire class and a dollar collected from each man, the class will be placed on probation and will lose many of its privileges and other drastic measures will be taken, according to the rules committee.

CONDITION OF SEC'Y WEEKS IS MORE REASSURING

Boston, June 3.—(A. P.)—The report of the physicians on the condition of Secretary of War John W. Weeks, made this evening was more reassuring than that of the day. The bulletin read:

"Secretary Weeks has had a very comfortable afternoon. He is brighter and his spirit is better. Temperature normal. Pulse 95.

"(Signed.)

"D. F. JONES,
"F. G. BRIGHAM."

A somewhat longer statement was issued this morning on the condition of Secretary Weeks since he was operated upon last week for gall stones in which it was said that while no complications have occurred, his condition has been critical and he has failed to show the improvement usual at this time. His temperature was normal and his heart has been in good condition. Mrs. Weeks has been a daily visitor at the bedside of her husband.

JUNE CRIMINAL TERM OF THE SUPERIOR COURT

Waterbury, Conn., June 2—The June criminal term of the superior court opened here this afternoon before Judge E. Waldo Marvin of Hartford with due ceremony. High Sheriff James Geddes recited the official formula opening the session and Rev. Henry Baldwin Todd of Trinity church led in prayer. More than 20 persons, accused of breach of the criminal code, came before the judge at the calling of their names and following the reading of charges of State's Attorney Lawrence L. Lewis against them by George H. Freeman, pleaded guilty or not guilty and in the latter case, elected a jury or a court trial. Those pleading guilty were given immediate disposition of their cases. The court adjourned for one week.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Prince of Wales at Ladysmith

Durban, Union of South Africa, June 3—The Prince of Wales today visited Ladysmith, a little town in Natal made famous as a strategical point in the Boer war of 1899. It was here that ten thousand British troops were besieged by the Boers from October 29, 1899 to February 28, 1900 and where finally rescued by troops under Buller.

Denial by Esthonian Gov't

Stockholm, June 3—The Esthonian government has issued a formal denial of the report recently sent out unofficially from Reval that the islands of Dagoe and Oesel, in the Baltic off the coast of Esthonia, had been leased to the British government for probable use as a naval base. This follows a denial from the British Government.

THOUSANDS WATCH FUNERAL PROCESSION OF MISS KANE

New York, June 2—A dir but promising new trial was opened today in the labyrinth surrounding the murder of Miss Florence Kane, as thousands lined Brooklyn streets to watch the funeral procession from her home to the cemetery.

The actions of a white youth, reported by Mrs. Mary Rogers, whose home overlooks the lot in which the girl's body was found, [illegible] to the possible abandonment of the theory that her assailant was a negro with unusual strength in arms and hands.

Mrs. Rogers declared that her attention was attracted early Friday morning by screams and, looking from her window, she saw a man run from the lot in the direction of a confectionary store one block away.

Mrs. Anna Rubin, the proprietor, had previously reported the excited behavior of this man who had asked if she know of the "rumpus in the Montgomery street lot." He explained, she said, that a girl had been arrested for loitering there.

A notice was sent to pawnbrokers to watch for a gold wrist watch and a set of blue opal rosary beads, missing from the body and believed to have been taken by the murderer.

Standing at the head of the flower-heaped coffin, the Rev. William J. Costello, pastor of St. Matthew's church, who conducted the funeral mass, declared responsibility for the crime could be laid at the door of the city administration. Failure to provide funds for adequate police, he said, necessitated wide areas being left unprotected.

"The undertaker should take the crepe from the poor of this bereaved household," Father Costello asserted, "and place it over the door of the city hall."

WILL CLAIM NORTH POLE LAND FOR UNITED STATES

Provincetown, Mass., June 2—(A. P.)—Lieutenant Commander Donald B. MacMillan, when informe this evening by the Associated Press of the report that Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, had told the House of Commons last night that Canada claims all lands north of the dominion to the North Pole, said:

"There is nothing new in that claim, although I have often wondered on what it was based.

"Any land which we discover on the expedition which is to start this month from Boston will certainly be claimed by us for the United States. We were told of Canada's claim when we left in 1913 on the Crocker Land expedition. We sailed for 150 miles across the Polar Sea and took from the maps land which had previously been shown on them but we found none.

"This summer's expedition will seek land in a region lying partly North of the Dominion, but the greater part will be North of Alaska. If we find anything we shall claim it for the United States and I think that the nations of the world will regard it as just."

RELIEF PARTY MAY START FOR AMUNDSEN FRIDAY

Oslo, Norway, June 3—(A. P.)—Subject to final confirmation tomorrow by the commander of the Norwegian Air Force at Horten, Lieutenant Lutzow Holm, who some months ago was engaged in aviation work in California, will lead a party for the relief of the Amundsen-Ellsworth North Pole expedition. Holm hopes to leave Horten, on Christiana Fijord, next Friday for Spitzbergen.

With Holm will go Lieutenants Sven Brun nad L. D. E. Liassen, both experienced polar fliers who were associated with Amundsen's exploring ventures in 1898, and four mechanicians. The machines to be used are described as modified Hansa-Brandenburgs.

The offer of Dr. Jean Charcot, the noted French explorer, to organize a French relief expedition has been received with much gratification in official quarters here.

TROLLEYMEN STUDYING THE BUS SITUATION

New Haven, June 2—The question paramount this year with the trolleymen who work for the Connecticut company is who shall operate the busses. The state conference board of the Trolleymen's union is today conferring with President John K. Punderford with a view of having the Connecticut company agree to terms presented by the board.

The contention of the trolleymen is that seniority should rule on both trolleys and busses, and that those who have worked on the cars should be given a chance to bid in as operators of the buses. At the present time the operators are being taken from outside.

EARLY RETURNS FROM ELECTION IN PHILIPPINES

Manila, June 2.—(A. P.) — Meager returns from the national election held today indicated a victory in both houses of the legislature for the nacionalista consolidato party of which Manuel Quezon is one of the leaders.

The election in general was carried out in an orderly manner.

Returns also indicated the election of Juan Sumulong, democrata party leader, as senator from the Manila district.

ARTIST PATTEE KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT IN FRANCE

Bernay, Department o Eure, France, June 3.—(A. P.)—The American artist, Elmer Ellsworth Pattee, proprietor of the Paris-Amerikn art store, was killed in an automobile collision while returning here from Trouville. His daughter and her husband, an Englishman, Bertram Goldthrop, their eleven months old baby and the French employes were all injured, but how seriously is not yet known.

Ultimatum To Berlin Gov't Impending

Allied Ambassadors Are Awaiting Instructions Within the Next Forty-Eight Hours.

Berlin, June 2.—(A. P.)—Unless the allied ambassadors in Berlin are given fresh instructions within the next 48 hours, the Berlin government will be in formal possession of the long-expected note outlining Germany's failure to carry out disarmament as demanded by the Treaty of Versailles. The foreign office expects to receive the note late Thursday afternoon.

Meanwhile, Wilhelmstrasse officials decline to be drawn into any discussion of the possible contents of the note. They are satisfied to await its receipt with a show of resignation.

Already the press is supplying readers with extracts from the impending "ultimatum" from the council of ambassadors. Most of these advance reports come from Paris and London, and all of them forecast the note will be unusually severe in its demands.

GOV. TRUMBULL IS OPPOSED TO DEFENSE TEST ON JULY 4

Washington, June 2—Along with the messages of a number of governors expressing approval of the July 4, defense test plans, Governor Trumbull, of Connecticut, told the war department today that the choice of the national holiday as the date was not appropriate.

Connecticut, he said, was in complete sympathy with the national defense policy, but with excusionists leaving towns and cities over the Fourth, which falls on Saturday, the demonstration would be one of weakness rather than strength.

The program, he added, would be more representative of what Connecticut could do if "undertaken at a time it would not be at the expense of the workingman's holiday."

"To call out the Connecticut military organizations on that date," he said, "would be to ask the members to give up their holidays and deprive many soldiers of an opportunity to spend the week end with their families at the seashore, or in the country, and without their usual pay."

Among governors who approved the plan today were those of Oklahoma, New Mexico, and New Hampshire, while Governor Ritchie, of Maryland, declared he would confer with his adjutant general about it.

The Connecticut governor said, "While Connecticut is in complete sympathy with the national defense policy and takes pride in its traditional loyalty to the president, I am constrained to inform you that a defense test in Connecticut on the Fourth of July, instead of being an exhibition of strength, would, in my opinion, prove to be an exhibition of weakness.

"The Fourth of July falls on Saturday giving our people an opportunity to combine the day with Sunday in week end plans which usually in such cases takes thousands of them away from their homes until Monday. To call out the Connecticut military organizations on that date would be to ask members to give up their holiday and deprive many of the soldiers of an opportunity to spend the week end with their families at the seashore or in the country, and without their usual pay.

"The war department knows where Connecticut stands in time of emergency. In the World War her troops were among the first on the firing line and her factories provided most of the munitions; particularly in view of this record should we dislike to report a poor showing in a national defense test, but a call for exhibition purposes coming on a national holiday long given over to pleasure seeking would not, in my opinion, meet with the best response.

"Under the circumstances it would not be a fair defense test in Connecticut. I am in favor of the principle of a defense test but feel that it would be more representative of what this state can do if undertaken at a time when it would not be at the expense of a working man's holiday."

FOUR JURORS SWORN IN FOR SHEPHERD TRIAL

Chicago, June 2.—(A. P.)—Half of the Shepherd trial jury was in sight tonight.

At the adjournment four jurors actually sworn and two veniremen whose qualifications had proved tentatively acceptable to prosecution and defense were in the jury box.

William Darling Shepherd, accused of slaying his millionaire foster-son, 21 years old "Bill" McClintock, sat with lowered and eyes closed much of the day, as the trial dragged into its third week. He has a bad cold.

Fixed opinions were the causes of the majority of the disqualifications today. There are also a goodly proportion of prejudices against the death penalty, demanded for Shepherd by the state.

There was no development today in the search for Robert White, formerly known as Fairman's bodyguard, and wanted as a material witness by both state and defense.

SWIMMER DROWNED IN THE CONNECTICUT RIVER

Hartford, Conn., June 2—An unidentified man, seeking relief from the intense heat late this afternoon, went for a swim in the Connecticut river and was drowned. His body was not recovered. The man undressed himself on the float at the foot of State street and swam about for some time. Suddenly he shouted for help and bystanders ran to summon a policeman. The man apparently was seized with cramps but exhibited great coolness, turning over upon his back and floating with the current down stream. Off Petter street dock, he was seen to become convulsed and sank. Policemer grappled for the body for more than half an hour fruitlessly.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Defense Day was endorsed by a number of governors.

Funeral services were held for Former Vice President Marshall.

A move was begun to transfer the bureau of mines to the commerce department.

Secretary Hoover announced rubber manufacturers were preparing to reclaim more of the used products.

Court Uphold Divorce Of Mrs. Stillman

mise That a Child Born of a nise That a Child Born of a Wife During Marriage is Legitimate.

Albany, N. Y., June 2.—(A. P.)—The court of appeals today handed down a decision affirming the rulings of lower courts in favor of Mrs. Anne U. Stillman in the divorce proceedings brought by James A. Stillman, New York banker, and ruling that "the judgment appealed from should be modified by striking out therefrom reference to the legitimacy of the infant defendant (Baby Guy Stillman).

The effect of this decree, which was accompanied by an opinion written by Judge Andrews, is to leave the legal status of the child undetermined.

"The serious question and the only question we decide is whether with the infant before it, the court has any jurisdiction whatever to render a judgment not merely as incidental to a decree of divorce for the wife's adultery but an independent judgment as to the legitimacy of the infant defendant," the opinion said.

"Our conclusion is that it had no jurisdiction to render such a judgment. • • •

"A child born of a wife during marriage is presumptively legitimate. It may not be so in fact. In one case the husband may directly test this question, but not in an action brought by the wife although she be defeated because of her own adultery.

"Not in an action brought by the husband if the child is begotten before the particular offense of which he makes sufficient proof to justify a decree;

"And not if he, because of his own adultery, or because of condonation or lapse of time or his own procurement of the act of which he complains is defeated. It was never intended that a husband, entitled to no relief against his wife, might bring an action nominally for divorce but in reality solely to determine a child's legitimacy.

"Where an action brought by the husband implies an action in fact brought for a divorce and successfully prosecuted, that he may be protected if in truth he is entitled to protection. The offense must have been committed by the wife. That must be proved and found. Only thereafter does the issue as to legitimacy arise. It is merely incidental to the main determination. It then becomes one of the issues in the action—the action for divorce between husband and wife. Where the principal was dropped the incident should have fallen with it.

"The result of holding otherwise shocks our sense of fitness. If the issues of the wife's adultery and the children's legitimacy are independent questions, we might have in the same judgment a decree dismissing the complaint because of the wife's innocence and declaring the child illegitimate upon evidence not admitted as against her. No better illustration of the effect of such a rule can be given than the case we have before us for consideration. We are asked to grant a new trial because of the exclusion of evidence said to be competent on both the matter of the wife's adultery and the child's legitimacy. If that were done, the only possible issue in the trial courts would be as to the infant. We could not grant a new trial between husband and wife, first because the appellate division has not reviewed the question of her adultery and we could but remit the matter to that court for further consideration, and, secondly because in view of the conceded adultery of the husband the judgment dismissing the complaint must necessarily stand and her guilt or innocence is immaterial. We will never order a new trial where the result in the court below could not be altered. No new trial being possible as against her on the issue of her guilt we cannot order an independent investigation as to the child legitimacy, an investigation to which she is not a party.

"The judgment appealed from should be modified by striking therefrom all reference to the legitimacy of the infant defendant and as so modified is affirmed."

AN UPRISING IN SHANGHAI AGAINST ALL FOREIGNERS

Chinese Agitators Are Making Appeals to the Public to Drive Out the Foreigners—Outlook More Grave Than at Any Time in the City's History—Officials of the Foreign Settlements Expressed Confidence That They Could Handle the Situation.

Shanghai, June 3—Chinese agitators made public appeals tonight on the streets of Shanghai for a general uprising to drive out all foreigners.

Officials of the foreign settlements expressed confidence that they could handle the situation, but admitted that the outlook was perhaps more grave than at any time in the city's history.

Delegations of students are patrolling all roads into the city, preventing the bringing of good supplies into the city.

Upwards of 10,000 workers in Shanghai industrial plants are on strike. These include mechanics and fitters at the Riveraide Power station in the eastern district, from which the major part of the foreign settlement receives its electric current. Strikers also have forced the closing down of many cotton mills and lesser industrial establishments.

A tour of all sections of the city by the Associated Press correspondent at 10 o'clock tonight showed the situation generally quiet, but the tension brought by the disturbance unrelaxed.

Armed guards were everywhere to be seen; streets for the most part were deserted; usually crowded theatres were empty.

Machine guns were used to clear the streets late today, when a patrol was fired upon from houses at the corner of Nanking road and Thibet road.

One man, Thomas G. McMartin, an American dentist, was wounded, and his horse shot from under him. Machine guns were turned on a Chinese amusement resort, the "New World."

When members of the patrol entered the "New World" they found one man dead and another wounded. Any others concerned in the firing had escaped.

Further search of the building showed that the "New World" possessed two structures on either side of the Nanking road, connected by a tunnel, under the road. It is believed the rioters hid in that tunnel following the shooting and no more sale from the leaden spray from the machine guns.

At the same time fire was opened on the patrol, several shots were directed into the encampment of the American troops on the race course, just across the Thibet road.

The shooting evidently came from the rear of the "New World" building. No damage was done by these shots however.

Minor outbreaks were reported this evening from the north Szechuen road district, across Soochow creek. These disturbances seemed to be directed especially at the Japanese. Gangs stationed in alleyways, incited by Chinese soldiers, hurled all sorts of missiles at street cars and automobiles. Japanese shops also were attacked in several intances. The north Szechuen road traverses Chinese territory into which foreign settlement defense units cannot enter, thus making difficult the apprehension of those responsible for the trouble.

Protest by Chinese Government

Peking, June 2—The Chinese government today presented to the Italian minister a note to the powers protesting against the firing upon the rioters in Shanghai. In the note China reserves the right to formulate claims at some future date against the powers whose armed forces took part in attacking the rioters. It holds the authorities in the Shanghai concession as entirely responsible for what are termed the "deplorable incidents."

PROGRAM OUTLINED BY SHIPPING BOARD HEAD

New York, June 2—(A. P.)—Immediate sale of useless units of the government's merchant fleet for junking and transfer of serviceable ships to private owners "who are able to stick it out in competition with foreign vessels" was the programme outlined tonight by chairman T. V. O'Connor of the U. S. Shipping Board, to the Marine Writers' Society. He announced his intention of urging the board to adopt the programme as based upon "orders" from the American business public.

"The public is the owner of the ships," he said, "and the public seems clearly to say to me that if buyers will offer to put in modern Diesel propelling machinery, I should recommend to the board that the cost of a ship, whether $1.00 a ton or $1.00 a ship, is not important.

"I believe I have heard distinctly from a nearly unanimous public: 'Why don't you get rid of a lot of useless ships. Sell them wholesale and at once for what you can get for scrap. Sell your useful ships to American business men who will spend money to make them more useful. If they are going to spend a great deal of money to put the ships in shape to compete with ships of other nations, bear that in mind in making a price.'"

Describing the difficulty experienced in arousing public interest, Mr. O'Connor declared "except for bathing purposes, the ocean was a thing of national indifference."

"I am not surprised," he added, "a hotel veranda looks better than a coal bunker and a bathing beauty is to some more graceful than a 12,000-ton freight carrier."

BOSTON POLICE SEARCHING FOR SLAYER OF WOMAN

Boston, June 2. (A. P.)—The police gained little ground today in their search for the murderer of Mrs. Mae Price, wardrobe mistress of the "Brown Derby" musical comedy company, who was robbed and beaten in her room at the Hollis hotel early Sunday morning. The medical examiner today reported that the woman died of asphyxiation, thought to have been caused when she was thrown face downward on her bed while unconscious. Questioning of persons in the hotel that night or who had been seen loitering in the vicinity shed no new light. The police were unable to establish any connection between the murder and the reported theft of money the same night from a dressing room in a nearby theatre.

Officials tonight stated that their chief dependence was placed on the outcome of the visit of officers to New York to compare finger prints found on the body and in the room with those of members of the company which left here Sunday.

WILLIMANTIC

To correct any impression which might seem to have arisen concerning the matter of his right to deliver an address on "Pacifism and Individualism versus Christianity and Democracy" before the Pastor's Union by Rev. James G. Graham, pastor of the Congregational church, Windham, in a letter given out Tuesday, Rev. F. C. Williams, rector of St. Paul's church, Willimantic and president of the Pastors' Union, states that it was agreed, after the meeting of the Pastors' Union in Lebanon to invite Mr. Graham to write this paper and to read it at some future meeting of the union. Concerning his response to Mr. Graham's request of April 14th demanding an opportunity to present the paper, Mr. Williams replied that Mr. Graham had already been heard on that subject, at a discussion not open to the public but held in the private meeting of the Union, when Rev. F. W. Thelen and Rev. E. E. Sundt were discussing the question by invitation. As further discussion of the question in the meetings would not tend to change the minds of the members but likely only stir up more hard feeling, it was agreed in the interests of the organization, to give the topic no further consideration. The whole attitude of the Union has been very friendly to Mr. Graham. In answer to Mrs. Thelen, he spoke as long and as strongly as he wished. Mr. Williams stated that the ministers of Willimantic and vicinity stand for, and are ready to sacrifice themselves for as true a patriotism as anyone. They are willing to take their stand, also, as messengers of peace and to seek for the highest kind of national prosperity in world-wide brotherhood and friendship.

T. Frank Cunningham, president of the Business Men's association stated Tuesday morning, after meeting of that organization in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, that the merchants of Willimantic will continue to operate their stores and establishments on standard time, according to a vote taken Tuesday morning. One rear fender of the Buick was smashed. Gibbs failed to stop, and fetched in at a local garage to have a hub cap replaced, after which he reported the matter to Chief of Police Allan McArthur. In the meantime a search was being made for him. At the police station, Mr. Gibbs was reprimanded for failing to stop his car after the accident to ascertain the amount of damage done. A settlement was made with Lamotte for $25, for the damage done his car.

Close to one hundred members of the ministers in Norwich District have been in attendance at the spring gathering of the Norwich Ministerial Association, held for the past two days at the local Methodist Episcopal church. Discussions of "The Modern Use of the Bible" by Rev. H. H. Conklin, of Baltic, "Woodrow Wilson" by Rev. George Smith Brown of Gales Ferry and "The Decalogue" by Rev. N. B. Burton of Putnam were taken up Monday afternoon. Monday evening's worship period was in charge of Rev. Frank Gray of Rockville, with sermon by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott of the United Church, Norwich. The session Tuesday morning opened by Rev. C. E. Spaulding D. D. of New London, was followed by discussions on three lines of church work, by Rev. David A. Pitt D. D., pastor of Central Baptist church, Norwich, Emery J. Davis, boys' work secretary of Norwich Y. M. C. A. and Rev. Myron E. Senter, district superintendent. A paper on religious education was read by Wallace I. Woodin, of Hartford. The worship period Tuesday afternoon was led by Rev. C. E. Spaulding, followed by a debate on "Shall We Organize a District Conference?" A lunch Monday evening and dinner Tuesday noon was served by the Entre Nous Circle of the Methodist Sorority.

A concert was given by the Willimantic Normal School chorus under the direction of Morgan R. St. John supervisor of music at the Normal School Tuesday evening in Windham High School Auditorium. Members of the Bean club were entertained Saturday evening at her home in Mansfield by Mrs. C. L. Perry.

Kingsley Brown, of Windham, was a week-end guest of friends at Shechem's Head.

Mrs. H. R. Crowell, of Los Angeles, Cal., is spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Hillhouse.

It is in Hebron, too, on the old so-called Blackmar Road, once a thoroughfare between Gilead and Boston, that this year, as every year, a new flag was placed on the grave of John Knowlton Rollo, a corporal in the 21st Division, during the Revolution. Mr. Rollo's name apears on the Lexington Alram list, which went to the relief of Boston in April, 1775. Later he was made Lieutenant, and coming to his home in Gilead on a furlough contracted small pox, with which he died at the Pest House. There is no record of where the pest house stood, only the solitary grave in a cow pasture, shadowed by a stone wall some distance from the old road. It is said that after his death, the girl he was to have married, Sarah Hall, of Gilead was never known to voluntarily mention his name.

Harry Tomchin, a partially disabled veteran of the World War, was knocked down and slightly injured Thursday morning as he stood in the door of a barn owned by H. Clinton Porter of Hebron, watching the antics of a runaway horse. The animal which was standing in the road by the barn, harnessed to a business wagon became frightened, and bolted overturning the wagon, and kicking itself free from the harness. The horse raced up the green, suddenly turned, at the post office corner, and dashed back into the barn, striking Mr. Tomchin and knocking him headlong. He was left senseless by the shock, and his hands were badly bruised. The horse was caught and quieted by Mr. Porter and Allen Macklin.

Plans are completed for the third annual session of St. Peters' School of Liberal and Humane Studies, at Hebron. The faculty includes several new names, among them Louise Brown Osborn, M. A., registrar, and lecturer in renaissance literature; Edgar S. Brightman, Ph. D., professor of philosophy; Frederick M. Carey, Ph. D., professor of the classics, and Delmar S. Markle, B. A., lecturer in religion. The school was founded three years ago by Austin Warren of Stowe, Mass., and Benjamin Bissell of Los Angeles, California, in connection with St. Peter's historic church, one of the oldest Episcopal churches in Connecticut, as well as one most vitally connected with early Connecticut history. It was here that Rev. Samuel Peters was rector at the time of his spectacular escape from being tarred and feathered by the Hebron patriots for here that Ammi Rogers, denounced his adherence to king and Tory, and by the Episcopal bishops through the entire state for his private life and thundered forth a gospel that brought the people from miles around and packed the church to the doors, in his "Memoirs of the Rev. Ammi Rogers, A. M., a clergyman of the Episcopal church in the city of New York—persecuted in the state of Connecticut, on account of religion and politics, for almost twenty years—and finally passedly accused and imprisoned in Norwich Gaol for two years." Mr. Roger's claims to have officiated in every church in New York city.

'Guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Robinson at their home at Valleyvue Farm, Columbia, Sunday, were: Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Alling and family, of Windham; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tingley, of Norwich; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wolcott, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Smith, and son, of Manchester; Isaac Robinson and two daughters, Hope and Evelyn, of Long Island.

Members of South Coventry Black and White minstrels gave as surprise party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Alguire of Mansfield Depot. Lunch was served by the guests.

Miss Beatrice Bill of Willimantic, left Tuesday for Middletown, Ohio, where she is to spend the month as the guest of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jordan and daughter, Nancy, of Norwich, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert G'man, at South Coventry.

Thomas W. Morgan, eminent grand inspector of Grand Commandery of Connecticut, who inspected St. John's commandery, Monday evening at a meeting held in Masonic hall, was the guest overnight of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Abel.

During the thunder storm early Tuesday morning, a bolt of lightning struck and damaged a large locust tree, at the corner of the house on Post Hill, in Columbia, owned and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Robinson. The bolt entered one of the sleeping rooms on the telephone wire and burst in a ball of fire, breaking two windows, split open the top of a roll-top desk and shot the telephone and the telephone book into a hundred pieces, without harming the occupants of the room.

TOWN SCHOOLS CROWDED FOR NEXT SCHOOL YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, June 2—The Windham town school committee faces a perplexing problem for the next school year, it became known here Tuesday night, when Principal Edbert A. Case, of Windham High school, who is also secretary of the committee, stated that 647 registrations had been received up to the present time for the high school for the fall term, with only 666 seats available in the entire building. With more registrations anticipated, this will leave a leeway of about 10 seats for the adjustment of the classes. The need of more flooring at the school, which has been urged for some years, becomes manifest as this situation presents itself. In spite of an eight room addition to the Natchaug school, a new building in Windham Center and a new model school to be erected soon under the supervision of the state board of education, the same overcrowded conditions are predicted in the grammar schools of the town in a comparatively few years.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, June 2—A. Linn Weatherhead was elected president of the Willimantic Chamber of Commerce at the annual meeting of the organization held Tuesday night. Other officers are: First vice president, Roland B. Jordan; second vice president, John F. Ahearn; secretary, Channing H. Morrill; corresponding secretary, W. C. Norris; treasurer, Eden Cook; collector, M. E. Sullivan; board of directors, Harry Blanchette, James P. Bath, P. D. Donohue, Frank H. Foss, James B. Fullerton, George Gurley, Louis A. Kingsbury, Valentine L. Murphy, Charles B. Pomeroy, Frank P. Rafferty, John Reilly, Charles Risedorf, Andrew C. Roux, Lydon E. Little, F. J. Twomey. The resignation of Benjamin Jones as a member was accepted. Gerard E. Loisell was appointed acting chairman of the publicity committee during the absence of W. C. Norris. Judge Frank H. Foss reported for the reorganization committee and James B. Fullerton for the communications committee. The chamber now has a membership of 433, it was shown in the report of Secretary Morrill. Treasurer Cook reported that the body was in good financial standing. The closing report was that of the retiring president, James P. Bath, who thanked the officers and members for their cooperation during the year and urged them to continue efforts for the activities of the chamber.

CLUB HOUSE BURNED DURING ELECTRICAL STORM

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, June 2—The three bad electrical storms which swept this section of Connecticut early Tuesday morning effected the telephone service in many towns. Thirty telephone wires in the city were put out of commission and the service of the Rockville-Willimantic light company was put out for an hour, early in the morning. About three a. m., a bolt of lightning struck a pole carrying high tension wires of the New England Power company, igniting the wires on the terminal pole leading into the plant, south of the railroad yard. The load jumped to the terminal pole of the Uncas Power company's high tension line a few feet distant, with a pyrotechnic display that illuminated the surrounding territory for several hundred feet. Joseph Burke, night operator at the plant, tried to shut off the current but was unsuccessful. Members of Engine Co. No. 1, went to the plant. The blaze was so intense that the large glass insulators on the cross pieces were entirely melted. Five insulators were destroyed and the two high tension wires were put out of commission. Repairs were made by daybreak.

During the same storm, a bolt of lightning struck the club house of the Liberty Fish and Game club in Lebanon. The building burned to the ground in less than an hour. Edward A. Stiles, caretaker, and his wife, who occupied rooms in the building, attempted to get help, but this was impossible, the telephone service being put out of commission by the storm. The building, a two-story structure, about thirty by seventy, is estimated at a loss of about twenty-five thousand dollars. The insurance is comparatively small. Very few of the furnishings, and a few of their personal belongings could be saved by Mr. and Mrs. Stiles.

COMPETED WITH NURMI IN NATIVE FINLAND

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, June 2—Rev. Edwin E. Sundt, of South Willington, who ran races with the famous Paavo Nurmi when he was but a boy of sixteen and rose from a $4 a week job within a few years to managership of the concern with an offer of partnership gave a talk on "It Can Be Done," at the meeting of the Willimantic Rotary club, Tuesday noon. He cited a number of instances where just plain dogged determination to win had brought about great successes to men who not only worked against discouraging handicaps, but tackled jobs that appeared impossible. In reference to the world renowned runner, Rev. Mr. Sundt said that a 26-mile marathon race was arranged in his native Finland. Due to his tender age he was advised not to participate, but he persisted and finished fourth. The third man was Nurmi. Rev. Mr. Sundt came to this country when he was 19, without a penny and without knowledge of the English language. He is still but a young man. President John Ahearn was in charge of the meeting. The program was arranged by Richard E. Dodge. Minutes and communications were read by Secretary Pro Tem Gerard E. Loisell. Reports were made by Dr. R. Bullpck Jones and James B. Fullerton. The latter called attention to the new Rotary banner which adorned the wall and it excited much favorable comment. The invitation of the Putnam Rotary club to attend their evening meeting June 11th, was accepted. The Ladies' Night committee was reappointed, to act as an "On-to-Putnam" committee and arrange for a stunt. Dr. R. Bullock Jones is chairman of the committee. During a brief ceremonial, Vice President James P. Bath presented the Rotary code of ethics to the three new members, P. D. Donahue, Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock and Gerard E. Loisell. Next week the club will meet in the evening with the Exchange club, at St. Paul's parish house.

Women Who Have Found Driving a Tiring, Joyless Task—

now are turning to the car which makes driving a delightful, thrilling, healthful pastime.

Hundreds of women who find driving ordinary cars an unpleasant task, have turned or are turning to the Chrysler Six.

Hundreds of others who had actually given up driving because they found it too difficult, too nerve straining, have discovered that driving a Chrysler Six is a delightful pastime.

Hundreds of young women and girls—those whose pride is smartness, beauty, and alertness—are preferring the Chrysler to all other cars. In the most exclusive private schools, in the Junior League, in the smartest social groups, one Chrysler sells another—a growing preference that makes the youthful and red-blooded everywhere, aspire to Chrysler ownership.

Because of its ease of control—which women everywhere assure us is entirely unequaled—women have, in a special sense, made the Chrysler Six their car.

Never, say women who have driven it, has there been a car so easy to handle as the Chrysler Six.

Of course, the unique delight which comes to a Chrysler Six owner every time she or he takes the wheel, is due not to a few features—but to every feature of this remarkably engineered car.

Every woman who loves driving but finds it a task should be delighted to learn the vast difference of driving the Chrysler Six. We are eager to send a car to your door for a demonstration, yourself at the wheel if you wish to experience the newest thrill in motoring.

Riding ease and roadability based on gross tonnage, extreme wheel base and generous springs, are costly and inconvenient luxuries.

The Chrysler Six is comparatively light in weight for economy and easy handling.

It combines roominess with compactness to afford easy parking. It rides as solidly as a two-ton car; it takes the bumps as easily as the ordinary Leviathans of the road.

And wherever the Chrysler goes all women admire its grace and beauty, and envy the delighted possessor of so smart a vehicle.

MANSFIELD CENTER

Memorial Day services were held at the Atwoodville cemetery at 8.30 o'clock, Saturday, in charge of Rev. Mrs. Jones. At the same hour a well attended service was held in the cemetery at Spring Hill, conducted by Rev. Mr. Jones. At the Center a procession of children carrying flowers visited the old and new cemeteries where prayers were offered. Upon their return to the church the children of the Center, Hollow, Atwoodville and Chestnut Hill schools gave recitations and songs. Rev. Mr. Jones read the Gettysburg Address and gave a brief talk. In honor of the departed soldiers a large cross on the platform was decorated by the children with flowers, a bouquet for each man.

The Young People's club presented the play, A Box of Monkeys, at Abington, Friday evening.

The History of the Old Testament is the subject of the Bible study to be given by Rev. Mr. Jones this (Wednesday) evening. A social hour will follow, in charge of Mervyn Little.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Mosher, of Buffalo, were in town over the week end.

WAUREGAN

The surprise party and May basket given to Mr. and Mrs. Addison Tracy last Monday night was given by a few of their old friends and neighbors, instead of by the Grasmere Church people, as was stated in our issue.

PERSONAL AND PETTY NEWS

DANIELSON

Relatives and friends from Danielson will be at Warren, R. I., this (Wednesday) morning to attend the funeral services of Joseph Arthur Messier, 22, who died at the Day Kimball hospital Sunday. Mr. Messier was employed at a fruit store here when he became ill about ten days ago and was removed to the hospital, where he underwent a surgical operation. Mr. Messier was born in Warren, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Messier, and attended the public schools there, later attending St. Joliette school in Canada. He was a veteran of the World war and served overseas as a member of the 103rd Field Artillery. He was a member of Warren post of the American Legion, Jacques Cartier circle and Independent Order of Foresters at Moosup. Mr. Messier leaves his parents, six sisters, Mrs. Mary Lajeunesse, Mrs. Romeo Brochu, Mrs. Albert Blouin, Miss Dora and Miss Genevieve Messier, of Warren; Mrs. Albert Garlepy, of South Norwalk, Conn., and six brothers, Augustus, Jr., Frank, Eustache, all of Warren; Charles, of Providence, and Andrew and Philip, the two last named students at St. Lawrence school in Canada. Mr. Messier will have a military funeral.

The Danielson Farmers' exchange, which numbers about 85 members, has elected the following officers: President, C. E. Salmon; vice-president, C. Anderson; secretary, H. G. Beecher; treasurer, J. Dyer Potter. Charles S. Hyde, of Brooklyn, who has been president for several years and whose services have been valuable in making the organization a success, was not a candidate for re-election. Annual reports show that the exchange had a successful year and that the treasury balance is satisfactory. Members of the exchange buy cooperatively such commodities as grain, fertilizers and chemicals and last year spent approximately $15,000 in this manner.

The Windham County League of Women Voters has a convention scheduled to be held Thursday of this week at the Community house in East Woodstock and attendance is anticipated from many sections of the county.

Using standard time as a basis for the arrangement of the interesting programme events of the day, the convention is to open at 9:30, for reports of county officers, league presidents and chairmen of standing committees. At 10:30 the committee on civil status of women at National convention will report.

Mrs. Herbert Knox Smith, president, and other state officers will give talks, this part of the programme beginning at 11 o'clock. A nominating committee will report. A luncheon period is arranged.

At the afternoon session, opening at 1:30, Robert C. Deming, director, department of Americanization, state board of education, will give an address on Americanization of the Immigrant. An American's Experience at Geneva will be the subject of an address at the afternoon session by Miss Alice W. Hunt, vice-president of the Rhode Island League of Women Voters.

The closed season for lodging guests at the police station has arrived. Chief John McFarland has clamped the lid down for the summer. There are certain circumstances and conditions, which need not be elaborated upon here, that make it desirable not to allow wayfarers who bear no great reputation for adherence to the sanitary code to occupy cells during the hot weather season, especially as the great open spaces are now available to them for shelter. Therefore lodgings are no more to be had by wanderers, until cold nights come again.

A character who often lived up at Elmville and drove what was called a good road horse in those days used to tell of how his horse went so fast that he "drove right out from under" a man who was sitting in the back of his express wagon, collecting a ride to Danielson.

Something similar to that must have happened, when a Rhode Island car went through here Monday night. At any rate, Chief John McFarland has a spare tire rim, a tire carrier, tail-light and Rhode Island registration plate, all hooked up together and from the same car, and is looking for the owner.

My beauty parlor removed from Keystone block to 9 Center street. Miss Nellie Redman.—Adv.

Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Renehan and son have returned from a motor trip to Providence.

Albert Ledoux, of South Main street, has been a visitor with his mother, at Worcester, for her 87th birthday anniversary, all of her other children also being present. Mrs. Ledoux continues to enjoy good health.

This month's Well Child conferences is to be held at the town hall building Friday afternoon.

Scores of telephone lines were put out of commission by the electrical storm of Monday evening, and on Tuesday plant department members were busy restoring this interrupted service. Falling limbs on wire service lines caused considerable difficulty in Danielson.

COLLECTOR J. R. WALSH RETURNS IN $88,631 TAXES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, June 1.—Collector James R. Walsh turned in, on Tuesday, $88,631.15 tax collections of the town of Killingly for May. In April Mr. Walsh's return to the treasurer was $21,842.15, a total for the two months he has been engaged in active collecting of $107,473.30 out of a possible total of $132,000. Less than $400 of the amount collected during the past two months represents back taxes. This year's showing of collections is even better than Mr. Walsh made last year, when he was widely complimented for his successful work. Taxes, now All Around, continue to come in Collector Walsh almost daily and thousands of dollars more likely will be collected during June.

LIST OF EXHIBITORS E. CONN. MILLS ASS'N. SHOW

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, June 1.—The scope of the Textile Products exhibit, to be held at the state armory here Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week is suggested by the release, on Tuesday by the Eastern Connecticut Mills association, of the list of exhibitors, whose booths will occupy all available space in the big drill hall.

These concerns will have displays of their products of machinery and other things bound to amuse everyone not familiar with the extent and perfection to which the textile business has been developed. Relatively few people heretofore have had the privilege of gaining any real conception of what is being produced in the mills represented in the association. The exhibit will offer them that opportunity. It is anticipated that the exhibit will attract thousands of visitors from all the eastern part of the state, and those who come will find it well worth their while.

A popular conception is that mills in this area produce only plain cottons and woolens and a few worsteds of fancy design. The conception will go overboard, when one sees an exhibit that will include some of the finest things in cottons, woolens and worsteds made in America. Some very beautiful things the being produced by manufacturers of eastern Connecticut and as they will be shown at the exhibit, are bound to make an impression almost certain to make all residents of the eastern part of the state and neighboring territory proud of their great textile industry.

Ashland Cotton Co., Jewett City; Aldrich Bros., Moosup; Powdrell-Alexander Co., Inc., Putnam; Pace Mfg. Co., Danielson; Westfield Textile Co., Danielson; Killingly Worsted Mills, Danielson; Lorraine Mfg. Co., Westerly, R. I.; Grosvenordale Co., North Grosvenordale; Assawaga Co., Dayville; Floyd Cranska Co., Moosup; American Woolen Co., Whitestone Mill and Moosup Mill; Central Worsted Co.; Central Village; The Farnsworth Mills, Inc., Central Village; The Quinebaug Co., Danielson; The Wauregan Co., Wauregan; Ponemah Mills, Taftville; Lawton Mills Corp., Plainfield; Fibre & Fabric, Ass'n. Headquarters.

Allied Industries—American Moistening Co., Boston, Mass.; Conn. Machine & Sales Co., Inc., Norwich; Tidewater Oil Sales Corp., Worcester, Mass.; Larkin Reed Co., Danielson; Draper Corporation, Hopedale, Mass.; Root Co., Bristol; Maryotte Belt and Roller Shop, Putnam; Norwich Belt Mfg. Co., Norwich; J. B. Tatem & Son, Putnam; E. H. Jacobs Mfg. Co., Danielson; The Stafford Co., Readville, Mass.; Danielson Gas & Electric Co., Danielson; The General Supply Co., Danielson, representing The Terrell Machine Co., Charlotte, N. C.; Crompton & Knowles Loom Works, Worcester, Mass.; Hopedale Mfg. Co., Milford, Mass.; Veeder Mfg. Co., Hartford; H. C. Greenfield Engineering Co., Harrison, N. J.; Dolly's Ice Cream.

Tournament committee Owne J. White, chairman, E. Guy Howard, Richard D. Branigan.

The annual banquet given the Junior choir of the Congregational church was most enjoyable. The affair was in charge of the following committee headed by Mrs. James B. Tatem; Mrs. Harry Houghton, Mrs. George Rawley, Mrs. Herbert Johnson, Mrs. Barak Smith Jr., Mrs. E. M. Warner, Mrs. C. A. Boyce, Mrs. S. Nikolat, Mrs. A. D. McIntyre, Mrs. Walter Wheaton, Mrs. John Stembelis, Mrs. Genevieve Letters and Mrs. George E. Bradley. There was a fine supper and music and talks by a number of the members of the committee.

Rev. George C. McKay of Chester, Vermont, a former pastor of the First Baptist church has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Law, having come here to attend the funeral of John A. Dady, who was one of the leading workers in the Baptist church.

Captain George A. Hammond, one of the Civil War veterans was unable to take part in the Memorial Day exercises. To a committee who called upon him to extend the invitation he expressed his regret also paid a tribute to John A. Dady, whose death occurred last week. Mr. Dady was in his employ for twenty years when he was the head of the Hammond Knowlton Silk company, and he said he never knew a more trustworthy man and that his death meant a material loss to the people of Putnam.

Mr. Hammond who was eighty-four last week Tuesday, withdrew from business activities eight years ago, but he has kept in touch with current happenings and talks interestingly of the times when he was one of the dominating figures in business and political affairs of Windham county.

A severe electric storm with hail occurred Monday evening. Although it resulted in no serious damage it was one of the most peculiar ever known here. It came almost without warning, at the end of a sultry day. Hail stones as large as hazelnuts and perfectly white filled the streets and walks. This followed a terrific rain and thirty minutes after it began raining the sun was shining. A number of telephones were put out of commission, but other than that, there was no particular damage.

BERTHA OSSIOSKI BOUND OVER TO SUPERIOR COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, June 2—The arrest of Bertha Ossioski and her presentation in City court charged with the violation of the liquor laws recalls the wholesale raid of last January when eighteen men and women, were taken into custody charged with illegal possession of or selling liquor. Nearly all of the cases were appealed to the Superior court. The principal offender, Charles Bersuc, was sentenced to Wethersfield prison for from 4 to 5 years and is now serving that sentence. The others were found guilty on one or more counts and in nearly every case a prison sentence was imposed but the execution of it was suspended for six months during which time the accused was to report to a probationary officer. Bertha Ossioski was one of the persons arrested and convicted.

Over the week end four persons were arrested by hte police for being drunk. In the City court one of them said he procured the liquor that put him in that condition from Bertha. Armed with a search warrant, Captain Jarvis and one of his men called at her house Monday evening to look over the premises. She recognized them at the doorway and locking the door she hurried into another room and threw two jugs containing alcohol into the yard. The officers saw her and after putting her under arrest, recovered the jugs, which were unbroken and contained alcohol.

Judge Geigler bound the accussed over to the Superior Court. As she has a number of minor children to support, he released her on her own recognizance.

PLAINFIELD

Memorial day Plainfield had the biggest and most elaborate celebrations ever held in the town. The parade formed at Plainfield community house at ten o'clock. The Field Marshal of the day, riding a horse, led the line of march; following came an automobile carrying the mother and brother of Joseph Vanasse the first soldier from the town of Plainfield killed in the World war. In the next car rode the clergy of the town. Next in line came the veterans of Foreign wars and ex-service men of the town. In this detachment were United States veterans, one man from the Scotch Kilties, a Canadian soldier, and from the British army. Next in line was a delegation from the town fire department. A group which added color to the procession was the Franco-Foresters of America. The women had white uniforms and wore sashes of red, white and blue ribbon. The men were in white dress suits. The children from the public schools, led by Principal Cecil Butler, made a fine showing. St. John's Council, Knights of Columbus, were 89 strong, each knight carried an American flag. They were led by Grand Knight Edgar Goibelle and Deputy Grand Knight William Sullivan. Seventy-two automobiles brought up the rear of the parade. The line moved through the new village to the Episcopal church on the hill, where Rev. George Drowne delivered a speech on the Army and Navy of the United States. Prayer was offered for the departed service men. The band played a hymn and Bugler Krauss sounded taps. The squad in charge of Sergeant James Greenhaugh fired a salute.

The paraders then proceeded to the Congregational church where Rev. W. C. Prentiss conducted the service. The band played a hymn and the squad firing a salute. The assembly then marched to the honor roll stationed in front of St. John's Catholic church, where Rev. R. V. Morrisey conducted the services. Prayers were offered, the band played Nearer My God to Thee, and taps were sounded.

After marching through the old village the last rites for the departed sailors were held over the brook which flows through Plainfield. Four men of the firing squad were stationed on each side with six flower girls who strewed flowers upon the waters. Rev. George Drowne, of the Episcopal church offered prayer. A salute of three salutes was fired.

The procession then moved to the Community House where a community dinner was served by the patriotic women of the village. Praise and compliments were given Commander Fred Provost, of the army and navy post, for the successful manner in which the Memorial day celebration was carried out. Over three thousand men and women took part in the the parade and the veterans of the past felt pleasure and pride at the hearty welcome given them. Practically every organization in the village turned out.

The graves of soldiers were decorated by a delegation comprising Boy Scouts of the Congregational church, Daughters of the American Revolution, American Legion, Boy Scouts of All Hallows' church.

Lee Vincent son of Mrs. Rosilina Vincent and Mary Korat, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanislaus Korat, were united in marriage in St. John's church at eight o'clock Monday by Rev. R. P. Morrissey. The mass was said by Rev. Fr. McCarthy of Danielson. The bride wore a beautiful white satin and georgette gown, trimmed with Spanish lace. She wore a veil. The witnesses were Victor and Frank Vincent, the grooms brothers. After the ceremony a breakfast was served at the home of the groom. Many gifts were received. Among the guests were Miss Ruth Linkford of New Bedford, Miss Sadie Michalewics, Fall River.

The breakfast table was beautifully decorated; a bridal cake of eight layers adorned the centr of the table. After a honeymoon trip to Revere Beatrice Hebert, daughter of Mr. and will make their home in Plainfield.

Jordan Robinson, of Boston, is spending two weeks with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Robinson, while his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Robinson are on a trip to Maine.

The following scores were shot on the Voluntown Rifle club range, 50 shots on the one-inch ring target, 50 yards: Clarence Gaudette, 494; Arthur Burlingame, 482; Jih Hopkins, 70; Floyd Magrey, 468; Jim McFall, 462; John Ajootian, 461; Henry St. Peter, 449; Norman McFall, 425. 50 shots on the 1-2 inch target offhand at 50 yds.

| | | | | | | Total |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Kaufman | 94 | 94 | 95 | 95 | 95—473 | |
| Gaudette | 90 | 92 | 93 | 95 | 96—466 | |

The men who marched in the parade Saturday were inconvenienced and disgusted by the hordes of irresponsible children that swarmed through the ranks without restraint. At each emptying of the rifle magazines, after a salute was fired, the gang rushed in like a lot of rats diving for the discharged cartridge shells. The squad men were able to keep their feet with difficulty. Along the line of march, these kids seemed to view the parade as a circus, not as a solemn ceremony, in remebrance of the dead.

TOWN AND BOROUGH VOTE SUMS FOR FOURTH OF JULY

LOAN TO STRENGTHEN ITALY'S DEBT REFUNDING

New York, June 2—Establishment by J. P. Morgan and company of a $50,000,000 revolving credit for the stabilization of Italian exchange, which was announced today, was viewed in the financial district as a step of great importance, certain to strengthen Italy's position in refunding her war debts and likely to pave the way for an eventful revaluation of the lire on a new gold basis.

Thomas W. Lamont, who recently returned from a visit to Italy, issued a statement on behalf of the Morgan firm, saying that the credit had been granted to a banking group, headed by the Bank of Italy and consisting of the three Italian banks of issue—the Bank of Italy, the Bank of Naples and the Bank of Sicily. The credit, which has the guaranty of the Italian government, is to be utilized if occasion arises for exchange stabilization purposes.

An increase in the Bank of Italy's discount rate from 6 to 6 1-2 per cent. coincident with the opening of the credit, is expected here to give further support to the currency.

Italy's internal public debt within the last few years had been reduced from 95,500 million lire to 92,000 million lire while the public privately held foreign debt has been cut from $56,000,000 to $10,000,000.

Bankers described Italy's banking situation as essentially sound, pointing out that gold reserves of the three banks of issue on April 30, approximated $355,000,000.

PLAN FOR REORGANIZATION OF THE C. M. & ST. P. ROAD

New York, June 2—The complete plan for the reorganization of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, in receivership since March 19, last, made public tonight by Kuhn, Loeb and company and the National City company as reorganization managers, provides for an exchange of more than $464,000,000 in securities, makes possible the liquidation of funding of all the short term debt of the road including government loans, and invoives an assessment of $28 a share on the preferred stock and $33 a share on the common stock.

The reorganization plan has been approved and adopted by the several protective committees former to represent the bonds and stocks of the St. Paul at the time the road went into the receivership.

Completion of the plan within three months after the appointment of the receivers suggests the hopes, it was said today, that the receivership may be of comparatively short duration. Simultaneously with the announcement of the details of the plan a call is being sent forth to all security holders to deposit under the plan. As soon as deposits of securities justify doing so application will be made to the interstate commerce commission for the approval of the new securities.

UNDEVELOPED ASSETS

We can be said to be on the brink of the summer vacations. This will mean that the thousands and thousands of school children will be free for the "nine weeks" rest, that there will be a rush for the shore, the mountains, the lakes, for periods of varying length and that hundreds of thousands of visitors will pour into New England to find as much pleasure and comfort as is possible at its many delightful resorts.

This is the time of the year when New England is at its best. It is or should be ready to entertain. It should realize that there is nothing in the way of good advertising like making a favorable impression upon the visitors. Those who come for the first time and are made twice glad by what they see and the way they are entertained are quite likely to come again, and in addition they are going to be all the year advocates of New England as a vacation place.

Good roads have done much to bring out the attractiveness of New England's beauty spots, and while they have done much they are bound to do more. They are making the points which were formerly hard to reach much more accessible and they are actually serving to create an interest and a liking for such places, among those quite near home.

Eastern Connecticut is going to be the mecca for thousands of boys during the summer months. They will be attracted to the various camps which are established about the ponds and lakes in various towns of New London and Windham counties and the business of entertaining these and many other visitors will be considerable.

In many instances it requires an outsider to discover a goldmine in our very midst. It is a question whether Eastern Connecticut or New England as a whole is fully alive to the asset it has in its vacation grounds. If we have not fully appreciated them because of our familiarity with them isn't it time that a real serious effort was made to get the full benefit of them through proper development?

DEBT COLLECTION

In connection with the payment of war debts there are nations of Europe which look upon the requirement of this country for adjustments as something which we ought not to be seeking, that we are seeking to press them for settlements which they are not in a position to take and are trying to increase the burdens under which they are laboring.

Nothing, of course, could be further from the fact. This country not only loaned them money for war purposes but it has loaned them money since the war. When the money was borrowed it was with the understanding that it would be repaid but nearly seven years have elapsed since the armistice was signed and as yet these countries which are now being approached have made no move to pay the principal or the interest and have made no effort to come to an understanding with this government regarding payment.

Uncle Sam isn't pushing them for immediate payment in full. He isn't even asking that the back interest be settled, but he is desirous that there be an understanding between the nations and this government concerning a plan of moderate payment with the expectation that it will be a long term of years before there is a complete settlement and that the existing condition of the nations be taken into consideration in connection therewith.

Instead of letting the matter drift along indefinitely without a repayment agreement it is desirous that there be a business understanding regarding it and above all it is the purpose to eliminate the idea which some are still clinging to that the debts are going to be cancelled.

No unwarranted pressure is contemplated or will be exerted upon Belgium, Italy or France. This government isn't trying to embarrass them, but it does desire to put an end to false notions and to get a business agreement relative to these debts which were properly contracted and which should be paid in a manner which will not be burdensome to the debtors.

BRINDELL CASE AGAIN

Perhaps there is no parole case which has aroused more interest and criticism than that of R. P. Brindell, who was released from Sing Sing after serving three years and nine months of a sentence that was to run from five to ten years. There was much opposition to the action of the parole board when it was made public that it was about to act in this case because of the character of the crime for which he was committed and because of the manner in which he had conducted himself while a prisoner. There were ugly insinuations and these do not decrease as the days go on and the board fails to pay any attention to the charges that are made to the effect that Brindell while out on parole is again indulging in his old time activities.

Nothing of course could be said against him for resuming any legitimate business, but one of the requirements of his parole was that he should not engage in any of his former activities with the unions and the parole board has received affidavits to the effect that he has been presiding at union meetings and has extorted $2,000 for the settling of a strike.

Samuel Untermyer was the council for the committee that revealed Brindell's activities and it is he that has brought Brindell's conduct while on parole to the board's attention and even claiming that he is getting the benefit of powerful protection.

It would be expected that such charges would be good ground for an investigation and that the parole board would be anxious to perform its duty to the public by getting at the facts of the charges. If they are baseless it can be easily disclosed. If they are correct it is certainly time that the board got busy and dealt with the paroled prisoner who made light of his prison sentence and who is also seemingly operating without fear of the powers of the parole board. It is a case where the board is not getting any plaudits because of the manner in which it helps to support the claim that Brindell is getting the protection which permits him to do as he pleases in defying the parole board, the law and the public.

REASSESSMENT OF PROPERTY

Norwich is to be congratulated upon the manner in which it has recognized the need of acting in accordance with the recommendations of the tax analysis committee. This will mean that Norwich will get a long needed reassessment of property, that conditions which have long prevailed with a low assessment and high taxes and a gross inequality in assessments will be overcome.

There has been an awakening to the existing situation none too soon. We have suffered for years from the effects of sticking to a policy which was established years ago and has long since become antiquated, and yet we have invariably penalized those who have endeavored to bring about a change, even though it was sincerely undertaken for the good of the community.

The unanimity of the town meeting's action indicates how generally the townspeople recognize the need of the change that will be put into effect. It is going to involve no small amount of work on the part of the board of assessors. The reassessment will require possibly a year and a half of devoted service, and not until that time, or until the entire town has been reassessed is it to be expected that the new list will go into effect, but when it is completed there should be much less difficulty in maintaining it on a fair basis. The amount of money that is paid in taxes will depend of course upon the manner in which the city affairs are managed but there will be the satisfaction of knowing that each taxpayer is paying taxes much more nearly in accord with the actual value of his property.

Norwich has taken a long step in the right direction and as it does so it is impossible to overlook the highly valuable service which has been rendered by the tax analysis committee in giving its time for a lengthy, careful and conscientious study of the problem and the convincing report which is rendered.

SEARCHING FOR AMUNDSEN

With plans made for sending a relief expedition for Amundsen it is evident that the government of Norway is anxious over the failure to hear anything from the explorer and is determined to find out if possible what is the matter, if assistance is needed and if it is possible to render it.

There are those who contend that Amundsen is all right, that even if something has happened to his planes he has a good chance of getting back and that it may be a year before he is heard from. They do not think but what he will report "all's well."

Should there be a wait of a year to learn from any of the several possible points to which he might go, there would certainly then be slight chance of setting out for his relief with a possibility of finding him or of locating him in time to be of any service.

The situation is much different than it was when the only method of going to the relief of a lost explorer was by vessel. Today it means that more flying machines will be sent after those which have not been heard from but they will have the benefit of the aid which a vessel serving as a base can furnish. The Norwegian government in despatching relief intends to employ planes in much the same way that MacMillan will use them in his scouring of the polar regions.

Knowing Amundsen's route and covering the ground which he intended to cover ought to disclose in a reasonable time whether he is alive or has perished, whether he reached the pole or has met with an accident and is hiking to civilization over the ice.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Election results have a meaning all their own.

As we look back at May much is expected of June.

June has started promptly to force the straw hat into the open.

Thus far it hasn't been possible to get much use of the summer furs.

Germany will of course perk up when Italy says that its financial condition is much worse than Germany's.

The fight against unsavory magazines shows that there are enough to be found if a search is made for them.

The man on the corner says: How many can recall that old question that is used so frequently during hot weather?

It may have been an early spring but are you ready to take your first dip as early in June as you did last year?

It is much more difficult to pick out cases where care has resulted in death than it is to do the same thing regarding carelessness.

The final day of the general assembly, and it is a lucky thing there's a time limit for closing or it might be in session all summer.

Have you enlisted in the postoffice department's effort to bring about more economy and better service by using a bit more care in the addressing of mail matter?

IN THE BACKGROUND

For the first time in his life James Osgood thought it out in words. It had been there in the back of his head, wordless, all these years since they were little boys, but he was used to it and did not care. Now, since there was Marjorie, he cared terribly.

When they were respectively 6 and 7 1-2, Charlie had been golden of hair, brilliant of eye, had shown a vivacious and assured complaisance which pleased people. He "showed off" readily and successfully. Hanging back of a portiere in spite of his year, and a half seniority, James had often watched him with some interest but mostly indifference. James had been one of those little boys with a wide mouth, all the ears in the world and two dozen more elbows, feet and legs than he knew what to do with. He stuttered a bit and so was slow of speech.

It was the same way in school. Charlie, too popular to waste time studying, had a knack of grabbing a smattering of the subject in hand, embroidering it with fair words and getting away with good marks. When James was called on he lumbered to his feet and, swallowing hard, conscious that his hands were too big and that his coat never fitted correctly, stammered the correct answer.

It was a little better in college. He grew up to his hands and feet and made the football team and learned to stand erect and not give a darn what his face looked like. But when he got out in a crowd he relapsed into his old silence and was either bored or indifferent. He could not speak the language of these pert, sparkling girls, he could not join in with these fearfully blase, brilliant fellows like Charlie, for instance. Charlie was still "showing off" and there was no good foundation beneath it. Even then James had worried what Charlie would do when he had to buckle down to real work.

They had been out of college and in business two years when they met Marjorie. At first she was just another pretty girl to Charlie, but the moment James first laid eyes on her he knew, finally and definitely. And very soon he saw that Charlie, too, felt differently about her. That, he felt, settled him, if he had ever had any chance, because girls naturally preferred Charlie, who knew what to say to them and what tone of voice to say it in, and never sent carnations when it should have been orchids. And then he was so thoroughly good looking!

"Lend me a twenty," Charlie asked him that night. He borrowed rather frequently. "You have all the luck. I asked for a raise and they nearly fired me. They don't appreciate a man at my office. I can't get along on what they pay and I'm going to look around. You have to spend money on a girl these days before she'll look at you. Confound 'em."

James thought of this when he met Marjorie later. He recalled Charlie's harassed face. It did not seem fair that he should worry when there was no cause for worry and he spoke to Marjorie quite artfully, as he was able to do. He conveyed the idea that Charlie, as she knew, was crazy about her and, of course, she couldn't help caring about him, and why not set his mind at rest and let him know it? One would have thought he had no idea in the world beyond furthering Charlie's cause, and one would have been quite correct.

Marjorie had listened with apparent carelessness, but when he stopped speaking she just sat looking at him. And as she loooked something came into her eyes that James had never seen there before, nor in any other woman's eyes, but he recognized it instantly for what it was and his heart absolutely stopped beating for some seconds. He forgot Charlie and, what was better, he totally forgot his own idea of himself.

"Marjorie!" he gasped, going to her in one step and a half.

"Oh, you have been such—such an idiot!" she said, dropping tears all over his coat collar and laughing at the same time. Girls are like that when they are very happy.—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

George V, "by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions Beyond the Seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India," today reaches the age of threescore. During the fifteen years that he has occupied the throne the King has won the respect and love of the British people to a degree never surpassed by any of his predecessors. Of a nature shy and retiring, he never has been so close to the people as was his father, Edward VII. Nor is he to be considered as much of an man of the world as was his fathr, whose devotion to sport appealed strongly to the British masses. The dominant characteristic of King George in his fondness for domestic life. To the members of his immediate family, to the Queen as well as to his children, the sovereign is simply "Daddy." It is this phase of his personality that has done most to gain for him the affection of his subjects.

From Small Beginnings

Jean Maury, The Shoemaker, a Great Archbishop

"Who was that?" Nobody—just a shoemaker—no one who amounts to anything." So speak two men who were passing along a street in one of the cities of France. The man of whom they had spoken, a poorly dressed man, wearing the leather apron of his trade, gathered himself up, regained the hand of a little boy with whom he had been walking and, with a last look at the two "gentlemen," limped on along the street.

This little boy was Jean Maury. He, too, was "nobody," and he set to work to mend shoes. Strangely enough, the little fellow was proud when he could sit by the side of his father and do what he had seen his father do. Happy indeed is any boy who is proud of what his father does and who wishes to imitate the father. To honor one's father and mother is to take one of the first steps along the road to real usefulness and greatness.

Jean Maury reverenced his father, and worked and worked at his shoemaker's bench. The reverence that he cultivated in the home led him to a greater reverence. There came into the heart of the cobbler's boy a desire to become a priest. This was about 1760, and it was in France, when royalty and aristocracy were everything in those days. Even the church drew its recruits with great frequency from the ranks of the gentry. Nevertheless, the shoemaker's boy found his way into the priesthood. Surprisingly enough, he developed into a powerful speaker, one of the greatest orators in a land of orators.

The greatest churches in Paris welcomed Maury to their pulpits and the nobility, who would have scorned a shoemaker, summoned him to preach before them. Even the king, lolling in every luxury, found time to listen to the wonderful oratory of the man who had mended shoes. The people of France were oppressed and starving. They rose in that upheaval known as the French Revolution. Jean Maury, the shoemaker that was, upheld law and order and the dignity of government, and he defended the church with absolute fearlessness. The Reign of Terror overwhelmed all who believed in order and anarchy and bloodshed took the place of government and religion. The mob put an infamous woman on the very altar of Notre Dame cathedral, and howled that religion had been killed. Jean Maury took refuge in Rome, and later in Russia—but he continued to defend government and church. Some years later, the turmoil of the Revolution subsided and he returned to France—Archbishop of Paris. On no occasion did the shoemaker fail to uphold his trust. Those who make themselves honestly great always remain great.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Automobile Traffic

Mr. Editor: How to control or regulate the automobile traffic on the public highway has come to be a mighty problem, and is more complicated all the time. Large bodies move slow, particularly legislative bodies and when they have completed a set of laws which seem to them satisfactory and so ready for execution it seems a good deal like locking the barn after the horse is stolen. There are vastly too many automobiles in use at the same time, not only by those who cannot afford them but by those who can and abuse the privilege. We cannot question our neighbor's right to own a car, but we can appeal to his sense of moral right and justice and consideration for others and try to instill into his mind the importance of using discretion in the use of that car. It is not like a horse that needs to be taken out for exercise every day. The boys and girls of today come up with the idea that an automobile is as necessary to the family as a pair of shoes, and the great aim in life is to get it onto the street and ride, ride, ride, no place in particular to go to, nothing in particular to go for, but just ride when three times out of four it would be better for all concerned if they would put in the same amount of time walking. They might even get some pleasure in trying to do something that would benefit somebody. When we think of the number of automobiles that are being operated by young, irresponsible, unreliable, incompetent, cigarette-smoking, flapperized victims of the speed mania is it any wonder that there are so many accidents? Doubtless there are those at eighteen years of age who can be depended upon to run an automobile properly but how much better it would be if they waited a year or two longer and thus held back those of the other class who are a menace to the safety of the public and are more than liable to cause suffering and death. They would not be allowed to run a locomotive and it has the exclusive use of its own track, and many have been made sorry by attempting to interfere with that right.

We cannot stop the grass from growing by cutting off the top; we must get at the root. The examination of applicants for permission to operate automobiles should be much more strict, both as to capability and character. They were not designed to be playthings for children. The whole country is automobile mad. It has been stated that 90 per cent. of those in operation today were bought with notes. The only way to control the speed mania is to limit the speed of all motor vehicles to be used on a public highway.

On The Top Till

Alice's father is a traveling man, and she and her mother have made a number of trips with him. The child has travel across the continent and has virtually lived in a trunk. When she was nearly four, her mother took her to the theatre for the first time. Alice was enraptured with the crowds and music, and was diligently inspecting her surroundings when she spied the balcony.

"Oh, mother," she said, "look at all the people in the top till."

Many a man who prays for rain would doubtless steal his neighbor's umbrella if his prayers were answered.

CHILD TRAINING

Descended from Adam.

Manthet Howe.

"Ann, you ought to be a happy woman; Buster is a thoroughly unspoiled child," commented Grace Wilson.

"It was something of a job to see that he didn't get out of hand."

"I know, in the beginning, it is easier to give the child a penny or stick of candy to buy obedience than bother to help him to obey because it is the right thing to do. Then when a child gets beyond control the mother comes to the kindergarten and says, 'I just can't do a thing with him.'

"Do you know," Grace went on grimly, "when I get almost ready to give up my teaching, I am going to lie in wait for one of those asinine mothers. When she comes to school tugging some sinned-against child by the hand and complains how bad he is, I'll tell her—'Woman, you are too ignorant to be trusted to rear a child; if you spent half as much time reading up on child training as you spend on a permanent wave or on bridge you wouldn't have a spoiled child.' Then I'll resign before that mother gets a chance to have the school board dismiss me."

"I wonder, though, if some children aren't so full of the old Adam that they can't be made to behave."

"Whenever you see a child that seems incorrigibly full of the old Adam," retorted Grace, "just remember that luckless youngster is paying for having had an Adamish ancestor."

The speaker halted, amazed. There was a yowling and wailing at the front door.

"That is Mrs. Joselin and her little daughter, Pauline," explained Ann hurriedly.

Presently the yowls ceased. Grace Wilton waited, curious to see what manner of callers would appear. The mother entered the room first.

She greeted the kindergartner amiably: "So glad to meet you. Mrs. Amberson tells me you are wonderful with children. I suppose you heard Pauline screaning like a young wildcat; she's simply impossible. O, Mrs. Amberson, what a lovely chrysanthemum!"

No further attention was paid to the little girl.

"She's a darling baby," the kindergartner decided, "and bright as can be. The mother is foolish if she thinks she can drive or ignore Pauline."

Aloud, Miss Wilton remarked: "Pauline, let's go over and see if Buster can find something for us to play with."

Miss Wilton rejoined the adults just as a domineering voice was raised in command: "Now you remember what I told you, Pauline, before we came in." She winked at Ann and Grace. "I told her if she was good I'd buy her something at the ten cent store and if she wasn't good she would get a whipping she would remember."

Ann did her sprightly best to keep up a conversation, but the call was not much of a success and Mrs. Joselin soon left.

"Thank goodness, she's gone," sniffed Grace. "Pauline is an abused lamb. Mrs. Joselin ignored the child in a way she would not dare treat any grown-up. Then see the way she contracted for the child's good behavior. She did not urge that it was the kind and friendly thing for Pauline to be a good child when visiting and so make her friends happy; no, she bribed her with something from the ten cent store as a reward for goodness and threatened a whipping for naughty behavior."

"But," protested Ann, "Pauline is usually a terror. She will scream half the day if her will is thwarted."

"Of course she will. She has learned that her mother will not dare whip her too hard. Being a natural fighter, Pauline is willing to stand a fair amount of physical pain for the sake of the principle of getting what she wants. That child has the potentialities of a splendid woman if she gets the right training for she has grit, determination and a keen mind. I'm sick of the idea that a child should obey a command no matter how unreasonable.

"Pauline ought to obey, yes—because we must have laws and rules to govern life. Every one has to obey. I am willing to wager that Pauline would be as good as Buster if she were brought up in a home where she was treated with the same respect and consideration demanded and received by the average grown-up. If she knew that every request was backed by a real reason and if she could be sure of getting even a semblance of justice, she would be an entirely different child."

MISS L. A. CURRAN TO WED DONALD FALVEY

The following item from the Boston Globe will be of local interest:

His Eminence, William Cardinal O'Connell, assisted by Boston and Swampscott clergymen, will officiate at the Curran-Falvey nuptial mass next Saturday morning at 11 o'clock at St. John's church, Humphrey street, Swampscott, Mass., when Miss Lidwine A. Curran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Curran, will become the bride of Donald Falvey, of Strathmore road, Brookline.

Immediately following the mass, a wedding breakfast and reception will be held, to which 800 guests have been invited.

Miss Curran, a graduate of Marymount school at Tarrytown, N. Y., class 1925, is prominent in social circles of Greater Boston and the North Shore, spending her winters in Andover and Florida, and summering at the Curran estate at 107 Atlantic ave nue, Swampscott. She will be attended by her sister, Miss Margaret Curran, as maid of honor; the bridesmaids will include Mrs. Maurice Curran, jr., of Andover; Mrs. Leland Evans, of Belmont; Mrs. Harold Abbott, of Andover; Miss Helen Dwyer, of Kingston, N. Y.; Miss Adele Jaegel, of Rock Island, Ill., and Mrs. F. S. Ritchie, of Montclair, N. J.

Wallace Falvey will be best man. Ushers will be Maurice Curran, jr., brother of the bride-to-be; Donald MacDonald, of Methuen; Leland Evans, Belmont; Thomas S. Woods, jr., of Boston; Thomas E. Lunt, of Rochester, N. Y.; A. Lawrence Peirson, jr., of Essex Falls, N. J.; Paul Corcoran, of Cambridge, and William Nolan, of New York city.

Mr. Falvey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Falvey. He was graduated from Phillips Andover academy in 1916 and from Harvard in 1920. He is a member of the Hasty Pudding club, the Institute 1776, the Fox club, the Harvard club of Boston and the Belmont Springs Country club. He is associated with the Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance company.

The parents of the young man were both former residents of Norwich, his mother's maiden name being Minnie Cosgrove. His father is president of the Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance company, one of the big national companies, with the home office in Boston, dealing in fidelity and surety bonds, liability, automobile, accident, health, plate glass, burglary and theft insurance.

FUNERALS.

Frank O. Coman.

Funeral services for Frank O. Coman were held Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from his late home at Hilltop, Uncasville, the service being conducted by Rev. Charles Smith, pastor of the Uncasville Methodist Episcopal church. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the service and the floral tributes were most beautiful.

Burial was in Comstock cemetery where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Smith. The bearers were Jerome House, Mr. Kellogg, Mr. Matterson and Charles Perry. Arrangements were by C. A. Gager.

Mrs. Mary A. Drohan.

Funeral services for Mary A. Dowling, widow of John E. Drohan were held Tuesday morning at 8:30 o'clock from her late home, 29 Fairmont avenue with requiem mass in St. Mary's Memorial church at 9 o'clock. Rev. William A. Keefe celebrated the mass and Henry LaFontaine was at the organ. For the offertory Mr. LaFontaine sang Pie Jesu and as the waiting hymn he rendered Abide With Me.

Burial was in the family lot in St. Mary's cemetery where the committal service was read by Father Keefe. The bearers were John F. Twomey, Patrick Dowling, Daniel Maher, Michael Bray, John Walsh and Jeremiah Corcoran.

There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the service and the many beautiful floral forms were evidence of the esteem in which the deceased was held by many relatives and friends. Arrangements were by Shea & Burke.

Joseph Blais.

Tuesday morning at 8:30, the funeral of Joseph Blais was held from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Joseph LeClair, on Merchants Avenue, Taftville. Solemn requiem mass was celebrated at 9 in Sacred Heart church by Rev. Henri F. Chagnon, with Rev. U. O. Bellerose deacon and Rev. William Scriva, of St. Josephs church, Norwich, subdeacon. There was a very large attendance. Burial was in Sacred Heart cemetery, where Rev. Father Bellerose read the committal prayers. The bearers were Joseph LeClair, Hormisdas Gladue, O. Mgrancy, Samuel Gladue, T. Lariviere and Adolph Germaine.

George G. Grant was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

TRANSFORMERS TAKE FIRE AT E. C. P. TAFTVILLE STATION

An overload caused a fire which did considerable damage to the Eastern Connecticut Power company's branch plant at Taftville about 4:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Two 11,000 volt transformers took fire at the plant and had it not been for efficient work on the part of Squad A., of the local fire department, the plant would have been badly damaged.

At it was the firemen had to use 56 gallons of chemical on the blaze before it was extinguished. They emptied the big tank on the Squad A wagon and then refilled and emptied it again besides using several cans of chemical.

EX-GOVERNOR LAKE BUYS EASTERN POINT PROPERTY

Recent property changes at Eastern Point, include the purchase by former Governor Everett J. Lake of Hartford, of the Cushman house on Tyler avenue and the purchase of the Lewis house on Shore avenue by Rosalie Hubbard Lee, formerly of this city. The latter house is one of those once included in the Sturtevant property.

Both are fine pieces of real estate, situated in very eligible locations. A price of around $32,000 is reported to have been paid by Mr. Lake for the Cushman house and about $17,500 by Mrs. Lee for the Lewis house.

Philathea Class Mat

The Philathea class of the First Baptist church held its meeting Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Frank Davis at East Great Plain. There were 21 members present and the usual business session was held preceded by a supper at 6.30.

SPECIAL TOWN MEETING ACCEPTS REPORT OF TAX ANALYSIS COMMITTEE

The recommendations of the tax analysis committee for a revaluation of property in the town of Norwich and for a $600 increase in salary for the members of the board of assessors who are to do the work of revaluation were accepted Tuesday evening at a special town meeting held in the town hall. The meeting was very evidently in favor of a revaluation of property in the town from the result of the vote taken on the committee's recommendations. Most of those present at the meeting were evidently familiar with the findings of the committee for they accepted the committee's report without reading. G. Warren Davis wanted it read to the meeting but a motion to this effect made by Mr. Davis was snowed under, the vote showing that those present at the meeting were willing to accept the report without the necessity of listening to it. Charles L. Stewart wanted to increase the assessors' salaries another $600 and strongly urged the adoption of an amendment to that effect but the town meeting felt that $1,800 a year was enough for the assessors and Mr. Stewart lost out, his amendment being decisively defeated.

Electric Light Line Extension.

There were about 175 men and women present when the meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock by First Selectman William S. Murray. The warning for the meeting was read by Town Clerk Charles S. Holbrook, after which Chairman Murray stated that the meeting was open for action on the petition for the extension of the electric light line from the city line on West Thames street to the Montville town line. Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, superintendent of Uncasville-Thames, the tuberculosis sanatorium in Thamesville, presented and moved the adoption of a resolution authorizing the extension of the street lights. The resolution was unanimously adopted.

The report and recommendations of the tax committee then came up for action. Chairman Murray stated that he had a copy of the report and that if the meeting wished it read he would have it read. G. Warren Davis moved that the report be read but his motion was lost. C. E. Smith moved that the report be accepted and it was so voted.

Resolutions on Property Revaluation.

James L. Case then presented a resolution approving the recommendations contained in the report and increasing the salaries of the board of assessors to $1,800 a year for the balance of the town's fiscal year. The resolution was as follows:

Resolved—That the recommendations of the tax analysis committee, which was authorized at a special meeting of this town held on May 3rd, 1924, which recommendations are contained in their report to the town dated May 23rd, 1925, are hereby approved and adopted.

And be it further resolved that so much of the vote passed at the annual town meeting held on October 6th, 1924, relative to the salaries of the town officers as fixed the salary of the board of assessors at the rate of $1,200 each per annum with $300 additional for the member of the board who shall act as clerk thereof be rescinded and repealed.

And be it further resolved that the sum of $4,800 be and the same is hereby appropriated for the purposes of carrying out the recommendations contained in said report, said sum to be used as follows; the sum of $2,500 for the purchase of necessary equipment and installing a system for carrying out a revaluation of the taxable property and for traveling expenses of the board of assessors; the sum of $1,800 for the purpose of paying the assessors' salaries at the rate of $1,800 per annum for the balance of the fiscal year of the town, said salary to commence on the 3rd day of June, 1925, and the sum of $500 for clerical assistance to the assessors for the balance of the fiscal year of the town at the rate of $125 per month.

And be it further resolved that for the purpose of carrying out the purposes of this resolution and making the aforesaid payments, the board of selectmen be and they are hereby authorized to borrow, on behalf of the town, a sum of money not to exceed $5,400 on such terms and conditions as they shall deem proper and to execute and deliver notes or other evidences of indebtedness of the town therefor.

In explaining his amendment Mr. Stewart said the amendment departed from the original resolution only to the extent of increasing the assessors' salaries to $2,400 per year for the balance of the town's fiscal year. Mr. Stewart said that he was not appearing as an attorney for anyone but was speaking only as a citizen and taxpayer. Mr. Stewart went on to say that property values fixed 45 or 50 years ago have not been changed in the tax list although the property values have changed, and that many pieces of property are in the list far below their real value. As an example he quoted an incident that occurred only Monday when a piece of property which was in the list for $30,000, sold for $150,000.

We have abandoned the plan of calling in outside experts to fix the valuations. Our problem is a local one. If we did not have confidence in our assessors we would not have elected them. Shall we pay them a fair living wage? Under the original resolution these men will receive $6 a day. If this amendment passes they will receive about $8 a day. If the board of assessors don't meet our requirements it is a perfectly easy matter to remove them. The power lies with the voter. Let's pay them what the job is worth.

G. Warren Davis said he was not going to oppose the amendment but said it seemed that in the original resolution there was a hitch about the rescinding of the previous resolution fixing the assessors' salaries at $1,200 a year. He thought the previous resolution should be reconsidered. Chairman Murray said he did not think that was necessary.

Speaks on Salaries

Michael J. Curran, a member of the tax committee, said he wanted to say a word on the committee's decision to fix the salaries at $1,800.

We thought that when we fixed the salaries at $1,800 a year we were very liberal with the board, said Mr. Curran. We have increased their salaries 50 per cent. In these troublesome times $1,800 a year is not to be sneezed at. Try them out first at $1,800 and if they show a disposition to earn it then increase the salaries.

Mr. Stewart again spoke briefly in support of his amendment. Is it not fair to pay these men what the job is reasonably worth if we expect high quality service? he asked in the course of his remarks.

Thinks Salaries Enough

Albert Boardman, a member of the tax committee, said that if the committee had made any error in its recommendations, it was in placing the salaries too high. I did stand for a raise to $1,800, he said. There is only one way to reduce taxes and that is by cutting down expenses.

The vote on the amendment was called for and was lost by an overwhelming majority. There were a half dozen "ayes" which were followed by a thunder of "nays."

The original resolution was then taken up for action. With the exception of one or two "noes" its adoption was unanimous. The meeting adjourned at 8:35 o'clock, having been in session 35 minutes.

The adoption of the tax committee's report and recommendations brings to a successful close a movement originating with the Norwich Chamber of Commerce for a revaluation of property in the town, which chamber officials recognized long ago as imperative. The chamber, persistent in its efforts finally got favorable action on the matter at a special town meeting with the result that in May of last year, a tax analysis committee of fifteen members was authorized. At the town meeting Chairman Ely, John P. Rogers, Daniel T. Shea, Jenkin L. Cale and Arad R. Manning were appointed to the committee.

By virtue of the authority created under the resolution, the following ten citizens of the town were added to the committee of five, thereby creating a committee of fifteen: Messrs. Casper K. Bailey, Albert Boardman, Charles R. Butts, Michael J. Curran, Samuel Goldberg, Herbert M. Larcom, Robert McNeely, Charles D. Noyes, Shepard B. Palmer and Frank B. Richetson.

The committee elected as its chairman, James L. Case and elected John J. O'Rourke secretary. The report and recommendations submitted to the town meting Tuesday night are the result of considerable thought and lengthy discussions of the entire tax matter on the part of the public spirited citizens who served on the committee. The committee received much valuable aid from Mr. O'Rourke who handled in a very capable and efficient manner, the mass of clerical work connected with the committee's deliberations.

PRESTON CITY FARM STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

During the storm that prevailed in this section Tuesday morning about 3.15 S. T., lightning struck the house owned and occupied by Starry F. Pierce at Preston City and also a barn some fifty feet away from the house. The lightning gained entrance through the telephone, located in the dining room, opening the phone box and then knocking the phone to the floor, following the partitions to the door sills which it splintered. The bolt then followed the wall and ceiling to the east living room, knocking off the plastering and following the wall to the piano. The lightning buried the top of the piano in the air and dropped it on the stool, chipping the bottom of the piano, then knocking off vases from the shelf and tearing pictures, making its exit down through the celler and splitting two floor sleepers of good size. The lightning tore up shingles the whole height of the roof and loosened the saddle board, splintered the rafters into many pieces and then striking a covered wagon and burning the top. Following the tire of the wheel, the bolt went through the floor, killing two hens and then made its exit to a well near by.

Fortunately for Mr. Pierce and family they were all dressed and as it struck the barn it ignited the hay. The family members rushed with water and subdued the flames which were getting good headway. There was very little hay in the barn at the time. If there had been much the barn could not have been saved. The house was not damaged by fire. There were two horses in the barn at the time and they were not injured although much scared.

SUPERIOR COURT OFFICIALS ARE GIVEN REAPPOINTMENT

State's Attorney Arthur M. Brown of Norwich was reappointed to that office at the annual meeting of the judges of the superior court held at Hartford Monday. The reappointment of Mr. Brown is for a term of two years beginning June 30 when his present term expires.

Five other state's attorneys whose terms expire this month were also reappointed, they being Aaron A. Alling at New Haven, and Lawrence L. Lowrie at Waterbury for New Haven county; William H. Comley, Fairfield county, and Thomas F. None, Tolland county.

Attorney Charles L. Stewart of Norwich was reappointed public defender for New London county for a term of one year from July 1 next. Arthur E. Story, of Norwich and Almiran T. Hale of New London were appointed jury commissioners for terms of one year each, dating from their appointment. Attorney Jeremiah J. Desmond of Norwich was reappointed coroner for this county.

George E. Parsons of Norwich was reappointed clerk of the New London county superior court at a salary of $4,300. Attorney John H. Walker was reappointed assistant clerk at a salary of $3,000 and Attorney Charles E. Hickey of New London, was reappointed as assistant clerk at a salary of $700.

In Windham county the court appointments are Edgar M. Warner, clerk, $3,400; Frank H. Foss, assistant clerk, $100. Marjorie C. Bradford, assistant clerk and in Tolland county, Willis H. Reed clerk $3,000; Dennis J. McCarthy, assistant clerk $500.

Charles L. Torrey is named as public defender for Windham county and Robert H. Fisk for Tolland county.

Jury commissioners for Windham County are Charles S. Hyde and Charles H. Brown and for Tolland County, Lewellyn J. Storrs and George Sliwick.

NORWICH BOY SCOUTS' CAMP AT BEACH POND

Camp Tippecan, Norwich Council Scout Camp, will open July 6th at Lake Paucamac (Beach pond) for the fifth season. Plans are under way for a larger and better camp than ever before.

Every scout will be interested in this camp which will not only furnish an opportunity of learning much but also give him plenty of freedom in recreation, good companionship, and the best of camp food, plentiful and well cooked.

Tippecan is situated on that gem of lakes, that to the observer might have been picked up from the Maine woods on a magic carpet and dropped down between Connecticut and Rhode Island. Wild nature surrounds it. The evergreens and deciduous trees creep down to the water's edge. The lake, placid and clear in the summer morning invites the boater, the swimmer and the fisherman. Birds, deer and smaller animals are found and a great variety of trees, flowers, shrubs, ferns, mushrooms, and interesting natural features abound.

A new fleet of row boats is being provided, a new raft constructed for diving, the log cabin will be finished and Harry Jordan will be there part of the time for his woodcraft work. A responsible staff under the direction of F. A. Benton, camp director, will put the camp in an up-to-date degree of efficiency.

Real, red blooded scouts under the rebime and regularity of a training camp will return to the city built up in body and mind for the duties and tasks of the fall. Rev. Frederick C. Williams, Victor Davis and Harry Jordan are to be at the camp again and junior members of the camp will be Thomas Baldwin, Jr., Edward Preston, Irving Manning, and scout masters. Chef John Jenks will bake the beans and prepare the French toast, rice pudding, etc., for his fifth season.

Nolle in Lobster Pot Case

A charge of lifting lobster pots standing against Lucius Cameron of New London, was nolled in the criminal court of common pleas here Tuesday. Several months ago Cameron was fined $10 and costs in the New London city court and appealed the fine to the common pleas court.

TAFTVILLE SCHOOL GETS WORK OF BANK DRAWING TEST

The thousands of children in the public schools and parochial schools of the city of Norwich are interested in the little paper titled "Zest", which is put in their school rooms through the efforts of the officials of the Norwich Savings Society. This interesting little paper is published by the Savings Bank Journal, New York, and is the national savings newspaper for children.

The Norwich Savings Society now has each of the 16 local school buildings supplied with a savings stamp machine, as an encouragement to even the youngest pupils to save regularly.

"Zest" recently requested its school children readers to submit original drawings, for what is headed "Aunt Katy's Column" in that paper. Six or seven were selected from the number received at the Norwich Savings bank. The result is indicated by the following letter:

Guy B. Dolbeare, treasurer,
The Norwich Savings Society.

My dear Mr. Dolbeare—I desire to acknowledge receipt of your letter of May 26th, together with the drawings submitted by pupils of some of your schools.

The drawing submitted by Miss Jeanette Dupont, of the Sacred Heart school at Taftville, is so good that I am entering it in the "Zest Artists' Contest" at the convention at Poland Springs, opening June 17th.

Sincerely
AGNES WIEDENBECK,
Director of Education in Economics

A copy of this pleasing letter was sent by Mr. Dolbeare to Mother Superior Geraldine of Sacred Heart school and was read to the pupils, who were delighted at the honor brought their school, by Miss Dupont's success in this competition, as well as impressed by the fact that her prize drawing is to be shown at the big convention of bankers at Poland Springs.

This is only one of the many ways which the Norwich Savings Society has adopted to maintain the school children's interest in systematic saving. All have the approval of President Charles R. Butts.

This bank has regular juvenile depositors who began their education in thrift when the president of the bank, the late Arthur H. Brewer set aside as his personal gift $2,000, with the offer that, for each dollar deposit made in the bank by a school pupil, the banking house would advance a dollar from this fund. The act was only one of the many fine and public-spirited deeds of the late Mr. Brewer, although it was always his resolution that whatever he did in this regard should not be made public.

WEST END ASSOCIATION HOLDS JUNE MEETING

With an attendance of about 30 the June meeting of the West End Community association was held Tuesday evening at the Elizabeth street school house. In the absence of President Paul A. Brown, who was in Hartford, the vice-president, C. Edward Carpenter, presided. The matter of setting the posts for the tennis ground and the back stop for the baseball field was discussed and will be taken care of this week by volunteer workers under the direction of the playgrounds committee.

S. Sloeberg and S. Ableman offered signs which will be painted and marked for the athletic field. The association is making plans for an all-day picnic to be held probably at the fairgrounds on the Fourth of July with a pageant in the evening. A committee is to be named by the president, the secretary and board of control to make the arrangements for the Fourth of July celebration. Two new members, A. Ableman and A. Silverman, were voted into the association.

All residents of the West Side were urged to go to the annual city meeting next Tuesday evening to support the appropriation for the new fire station on the West Side, and also the appropriation for the new macadam road on Spring street. The committee on the recent food sale of which Mrs. Charles B. Carpenter was chairman reported that over $50 has been raised towards the prizes offered for those who lay the first new sidewalks on the West Side. A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Carpenter and her committee.

At the close of the business session the meeting was turned over to the entertainment committee, Robert W. Otis, chairman. Mrs. Helena M. T. Church, with Miss Louise Fuller at the piano, sang Roses in June (Bingham), for which she gave as an encore Little Maid of Arcadia, and later she rendered I Bring You Roses (Carso) and The Captain (Rogers), as an encore number. There were selections by the community orchestra and Henry Brynan, violinist, played Berceuse (Jocelyn) and as encores, Gavotte (Gossec) and Serenade (Gounod). After cheers for the orchestra and entertainers the meeting came to a close with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

BOYS BEGIN SWIMMING LESSONS WITH ZEAL

"Oh, boy, she's great." "Gee, it's some swell," and other youthful expressions indicated the feelings of the lads when they were admitted to the big "Y" pool for their first swimming lessons in the "Learn to Swim" campaign which began at the association Monday afternoon.

It soon became evident that many of the boys were taking their "duck" for the first time, so the work of the first session consisted mainly of encouraging the young "sinkers" to overcome their fear of the water. This was accomplished by ducking under the water and catching their toes, blowing bubbles while submerged, jumping into the water in various ways and other stunts. The boys, however, made a good start and in Wednesday afternoon's lessons will be taught how to imitate a hungry duck when she goes under the water for food, how to take a sleigh-ride in the summer, how to imitate a steamboat and other interesting stunts that will not only prove barrels of fun but help the boys to learn the fundamentals of the art of keeping afloat in the water.

Over a hundred boys have applied for the lessons and although new boys have been enrolling daily the slogan of "the more the merrier" still holds good and new boys may enroll in one of the classes anytime during this week.

Assisting Physical Director Fritz with the instruction work are Howard Ludlow, Cecil Henschel and Herbert Harkness who are members of the "Y" gym leaders' club.

WILLIAM FALCONER DIES IN NEW YORK HOSPITAL

Monday afternoon George Falconer, professional at the Norwich Golf club, was notified by telegram that his cousin, William Falconer, had died at the Bellevue hospital, New York city. Mr. Falconer was well known in Norwich as for two years he was assistant to the local professional about four years ago. Later he was employed at the plant of the United States Finishing company, in Greeneville, and then accepted a position as saddle master at Shawner, in Delaware, Pa., where he remained until taken ill with dropsy.

He was born in Scotland and was 23 years old. He was a member of Somerset lodge, No. 34 F. and A. M. of this city. Mr. Falconer leaves his brother, Thomas, an engineer on a steamer plying between New York and Panama. His father served in the World War, being in the mine sweeping division of the British navy. He was on a sweeper which was torpedoed by a German submarine and suffered so badly from exposure that he died. George Falconer left Norwich for New York immediately upon receiving news of his brother's death.

PUTNAM BOY DIES FROM INJURIES BY AUTO

Injuries received Monday afternoon by Robert Stark, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Stark, of Putnam, proved fatal about 2:30 this (Wednesday) morning when he died at the Backus hospital where he was taken unconscious immediately after the accident.

The boy was struck on the Pinfield road by an automobile driven by James J. Murphy, of Bosrah. It was reported that the little fellow ran out in the road in front of the machine. He had been visiting his grandmother, Mrs. Phebe Barber, for a short time.

Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve took the boy

PLAINFIELD CHAMP'S STAFFORD SPRINGS TEAM IN HARD-HITTING GAME

Continuing on its winning way Tuesday, the Plainfield High school baseball nine added the name of Stafford Springs High to their increasing list of consecutive victories, bringing their total to five. The Plainfield team was out for revenge for the loss of a twelve-inning battle early in the season by the score of 3 to 2, and they found this revenge by severely pounding the whole Stafford Springs' pitching staff and driving in a total of 14 well-earned runs and allowing the visitors but 1 tally.

Mercier, diminutive Plainfield twirler, was in rare form, allowing only 4 hits and these were scattered. Mercier, who has been successful in all his starts this year, is a powerful addition to the Plainfield pitching crew and if he continues to burn 'em over in the future as he has in the past, not a few of the eastern Connecticut High schools will find the Plainfield team as pretty tough opposition. "Jim" Wallace was the big man at the bat drawing a pass and hitting safely 3 times out of six. The infield lived up to its reputation and gave the battery the best of support.

The Stafford Springs aggregation started trouble in the first frame when Armstrong drew a pass, went to second on Eaton's sacrifice and scored on August's single. Ricci went out, Brown to Maggia and Moseley fanned. In their half of the first inning the Plainfield boys took a fine hold on the game when Stevens walked, French singled and Stevens scored on Gallup's sacrifice fly. Wallace drove a hot one into left field scoring French. Shipple caught the fever and delivered a pretty bingle to center scoring Wallace, Brown doubled to left and Shipple came tearing home with the fourth run. Brown was caught stealing third and Maggia struck out. The second inning found neither team scoring but in the third a single by Wallace, a pass to Haggis and a screeching single to center by Shipple, brought in two more runs. In the fourth Plainfield increased their lead by one on a pass to Gallup and a single to right field by Wallace. The fifth and sixth gave Plainfield five more runs on hits by Wallace, French, Shippie and Mercier. In the eighth and ninth the home-team drove in two more for good measure ringing the final score to 14 to 1.

The Plainfield ball-tossers appear to have hit their stride as "Big Bill" Baker turned back the fast North Attleboro High team 3-2 on Memorial Day before a record crowd. The N. Attleboro team is considered as one of the fastest nines in southern Massachusetts and to defeat them is quite a feather in the Plainfield twirler's cap. The score:

ACADEMY PLAYS LEAGUE GAME AT STONINGTON TODAY

This afternoon the league leading Academy baseball team travels to Stonington to engage the Stonington High School in one of the decisive battles of the league race. If the Red and White emerge the victors, they will top the unting which heralds them as champions of the Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic League.

The Red and White aggregation has met the Stonington machine once before at the beginning of the season, the home team taking the game by a score of 13 to 1. Stonington has nevertheless greatly improved as the season has grown older and has the best team in a number of years. Although not considered a contender for the cup, the Brown and White will do everything possible to win the game and it will take the Academy's best to beat them. Emmet, the Stonington speed artist, will probably pitch, and is out to give a good account of himself. It must be remembered that in the previous contest, he dazzled and held the local batters for five innings. By all means, Stonington will present a strong fighting combination and the locals are not under estimating their ability and are not overconfident.

The Academy mentor, Mr. Brigham, plans to take the game at all costs and he will have "Lefty" Jarvis, the portsider from Jewett City perform in the box for the Academy. Lloyd's work this season needs no introduction to the fans. He is by far the most effective twirler in the league and with the locals playing ball as it should be played and giving their star southpaw their support the Red and White should take the bacon and with it become champions of the league.

With theor recent win over the strong and fast playing Storrs Freshmen team last Saturday, the boys are up to pitch in confidence and should prove and exhibit better playing than ever before this season. There are but few games more to be played and the locals are out to finish the season in a flashy, snappy style. Watch them!

The rest of the lineup will probably be Jack Hinrichs c, Jerry Burke 1b, "Rabbit" Carlin 2b, "Lee" Carroll, 3b, "Chimmy" an, Captain Art McGowan lf, "Smiling" Johnny Greene cf, and "Radio" Ed Brewer rf. A fast working bunch who can play real ball.

DODGERS WIN 12 INNING BATTLE FROM GIANTS

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 2—Brooklyn nosed out New York today, 6 to 5, in the 12th inning, a pass to Hargraves, pinch-hitter, forcing home the winning run. The Robins came from behind in the ninth and tied the score, 5-all. It was the first victory the Brooklyn club won from the champions this season and came on the 43nd birthday of Wilbert Robinson. ## SOCONY TEAM AND TABS PLAY TO A TIE SCORE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 2—The Tabs with a reinforced lineup met the Standard Oil Co. nine at Morgan Park in a regularly played City league game and held the Oilmen to a tie score, 5 to 1, that went eight innings, the game finally being called due to darkness. The Tabs played errorless ball behind the twirling of Dickson and they deserved to gain at least a tie. They played better ball than previously shown this season. A vast improvement as well as a number of new faces on the nine makes this team a threat in the race for first place.

Socony scored first when Beaney doubled. Barry singled and a sacrifice bunt by Burns brought in the lone tally. But the Tabs retaliated in the next frame with a counter. Dickson singled and attempted to stretch the hit into two bags. He succeeded to get away with it when Burns dropped the ball and Dickson was safe. Ryan walked, and when Angeles attempted to sacrifice he hit into a double play. Ryan taking third. Ryan scored when Foote dropped Potter's throw in an attempt to catch him napping.

Fielding features came in the way of spectacular grabs by Ryan who had two, and the one hand spearing of McKernan's drive in the eighth by Haven's which would probably have netted the batter at least a double. Lemley also contributed several catches. Hitting by Barry and Beaney featured the attack of the Standard Oil men. Score:

FAVORITES IN CONN. GOLF TOURNEY REACH THIRD ROUND

Waterbury, Conn., June 2—Favorites in the eighth annual tournament of the Connecticut women's golf association which held forth for the second day at the Waterbury country club won their way into the third round without any trouble. Mrs. C. H. Porter of New Haven, the champion was matched with Miss C. E. Chapman of Brookhaven, who on the net award in the opening day with a card of 86 and the title holder continuing to play her usual brilliant game, won 7-6. Mrs. M. G. Reycroft of Brooklawn who carried off the grass prize on Monday eliminated Mrs. J. E. Owsley of New Haven 4-3. Mrs. Charles J. Downey of Springfield won 1 up over Mrs. H. A. Martelle in one of the best matches of the day of the first sixteen division while in the second sixteen, Mrs. J. House of Farmington was forced to play 21 holes with Miss Balch of Hartford before being returned the winner 1 up.

The champion Mrs. Porter and Mrs. M. J. Lawlor, Waterbury's leading contender for the title are scheduled to meet tomorrow and the match is attracting considerable interest in local golf circles. Mrs. Lawlor won her way into the third round when she eliminated Mrs. Frank P. McEvoy of Waterbury, 7-6.

GASTON HOLDS INDIANS WHILE BROWNS WIN

Cleveland, June 2—Milton Gaston's pitching proved too much for the Indians today and St. Louis won 5 to 2. It was a real battle for seven innings until Walter Miller, recruit southpaw, gave way to a pinch hitter, with Edwards pitching in the eighth. Bill Jacobson tripled two runs over while later in the same round Gaston doubled three runs across on Carl Yowell's first offering. Score:

RUTH'S HITTING HELPS YANKS BEAT SENATORS

New York, June 2.—With second stringers replacing slumping regulars, together with the presence and hitting of Babe Ruth today, the Yankees ended their five-game losing streak by repulsing the Senators, 8 to 5. Bob Meusel knocked out his 13th and 14th home runs, the first coming in the third and the other in the eighth with two on base.

Ruth made his first hits of the 1925 season, singling in the fourth and doubling in the eighth, his last blow sending in the score that tied up the game. Score:

TIGERS BEAT WHITE SOX IN SLUGGING CONTEST

Detroit, June 2—Detroit won a batting orgy from Chicago here today 16 to 15 after the White Sox came from behind and wiped out the 10 run lead that the Tigers had at the start of the sixth inning. With the score tied at 15 all, in the ninth, with one out, and the count three and two, Cobb lashed out a home run into the right field bleachers, giving the Tigers their fourth consecutive series.

OLYMPIC COMMITTEE STILL MAKING RULES FOR 1928

Prague, Czechoslovakia, June 2—(A. P.)—The Olympic Technical Congress decide to ask the International Sports Federation to do away with their world championship competitions on the year the Olympic games are held, and to accept Olympic results as their own championships for the year.

An effort was made by some delegates to establish a rule allowing only a single starter for each nation in each Olympic event, in order to establish equality of representation from the various countries, but the congress decided only to ask the International Federations to reduce entries to the technical minimum necessary for each country to defend its record.

Today's session of the congress ended by wiping off the Olympic records the pending dispute that occurred during the games in Paris last year. The penalties applied to the Russian team upon that occasion were declared effaced.

YALE CREWS HAD TWO PRACTICE SESSIONS TUESDAY

Gales Ferry, June 2—The Yale crews here for practice for the regatta with Harvard, were out on the water tonight for the second time today, the varsity and junior varsity going the stream separately. Coates was tried out as stroke in the varsity boat today and Russell at number 3 but they were later replaced by Laughlin and Prud 'Homme and indications were that the lineup will remain the same as that used all spring.

The freshmen and combination crews also were on the river tonight and several two minute runs were held. Coach Moore tried out the relative merits of Quarrier and Goodwin at number 6 in the combination crew. Goodwin was in the boat at the end of practice.

ALBANY WINS OUT OVER BRIDGEPORT IN THE NINTH

Albany, June 2—McCorry's single after Butler had been passed purposely scored Emmerich in the ninth inning and gave Albany a 2 to 1 victory over Bridgeport today. Batch and Lutz made a triple play in the eighth inning. With the bases all occupied Batch made a clean pick-up of a line drive from Genin's bat, threw a runner out at the plate, took Lutz return throw and touched third and second to complete the play. Albany runners holding their bases under the impression Batch had made the catch. Score:

| | | | | | | | | | | |
| Bridgeport | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 1 | 0—1 |
| Albany | 0 | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 1—2 |

GOLFERS ARE BUSY AT NATIONAL OPEN TOURNEY AT WORCESTER TODAY

Worcester, Mass., June 2—(A. P.)—Leaders among the nation's wielders of driver and mashie, both amateur and professional, were assembled here tonight awaiting the opening of the national open golf championship which will be played over the course of the Worcester Country club tomorrow and Thursday. Seventy-two holes of medal play will be spread over the two day programme.

By noon tomorrow, according to the programme, 90 professional and four amateur golfers will have started on their way around the links on the first 18 holes and by evening all will have completed the first half of the tournament. Of this number five qualified on the Pacific Coast; 29 won their right to compete in the mid-Western qualifying tournament and 59 qualified from the East. Bob Gardner, who qualified in the mid-Western play, decided not to compete and Isaac S. Mackie, Summit, N. J., professional, sent notice that he had withdrawn. The 84th player is Cyril Walker, Englewood, N. J., defending champion.

Par was shattered several times in the course of the day—four times alone in the match in which the New York Metropolitan District team defeated a picked aggregation of golfers from outside by a score of 10 1-2 points to 4 1-2.

In this match Mike Brady of New York, came within a stroke of the 66 set by Bobby Jones, national amateur champion, in practice yesterday. Brady's 67 was followed closely by a 68 shot by Walter Hagen, British open and national professional title holder, and 69 by Joe Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., and Jock Hutchinson of Golf, Ill., going around in practice this morning. Cyril Walker proved that he may be a figure to be reckoned with—despite his illness—when he, too, shot a 69. Par for the course is 71.

HARVARD VARSITY GOES ENTIRE DISTANCE OF COURSE

Red Top, Conn., May 3—The Harvard varsity crew, preparing for the regatta with Yale here later in the month, had another practice row tonight, the second of the day. The crew rowed and paddled down the four mile course and return, the longest distance covered by any of the crews since their arrival on the river. The varsity was not paced and the stroke varied from 28 to 36.

The freshman and combination crews were given a six mile row together down stream tonight, starting soon after the varsity left the float. Coach Haines had charge of the two latter boats.

Coach Stevens of the varsity crew expressed satisfaction with the work of his men today and said there would be no changes, barring sickness.

ARRANGING BOUT FOR FIRPO IN BUENOS AIRES

Buenos Aires, June 2—(A. P.)—A local boxing promoter is endeavoring to arange a bout for Luis Firpo to be held early in August during the visit of the Prince of Wales. The promoter announces that he has cabled Jack Renault, Bartley Madden, Tony Fuente and Ermino Spalla for terms, and that the man submitting the most favorable conditions will be selected as the Argentine heavyweight's opponent.

BASE RUNNING FEATURES HARTFORD'S WIN OVER HILLIES

Fiddes et ux, a tract or parcel of land on the south side of Franklin street.

John Bennett, 64, a carpenter, employed in the pattern room of the C. A. Cottrell & Sons company, died suddenly late Monday night at his home in Pawcatuck. Early in the evening he attended the annual meeting of the fire district of the P. S. Barber hose house on Liberty street and returning home at 10 o'clock, sat down, smoked and talked with members of the family. Retiring, he arose to take some medicine for what he thought was indigestion, and returned to bed. His wife heard a slight commotion in his room and entering, found him dead. Dr. William A. Hillard who was called pronounced death due to heart trouble.

Mr. Bennett was born in Ledyard, Conn., Jan. 28, 1861, when a young man he was employed at "Harborside" by the late Fred Wheeler. He then went to Mystic, and was employed on the fishing boat of Capt. Eliza Wilcox. He married Ella E. Davis of Quinebaug and to them was born one son, Robert who died when eleven months old. Coming to Westerly he was employed as baggage master at the Westerly station of the New Haven road, for fifteen or twenty years he was in the employ as a carpenter of the R. A. Sherman Sons Company and for the last ten or twelve years has worked for the Cottrell Print Works.

Paul M. Hillard, assistant engineer of the New York Telephone Co., and Earl R. Redding of the Research Department of the A. T. & T. Co., with their wives motored to Westerly Saturday and were guests of Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Hillard.

Miss Mary T. Annie M., and Gertrude O. Kelcher spent the holiday in Springfield, Mass., went by motor, John F. Tuite of Somerville, N. J., was at his home, 180 West Broad St., over Memorial day.

C. Bajsire and family of Greenwich, Conn., arrived in Westerly on Tuesday noon in the private Pullman "Chicago" attached to the east bound Shore Line express on the New Haven road. The private car was side-tracked near the west-bound train shelter, previous to the party's going to Watch Hill in the afternoon, their summer residence, "Wind Swept" cottage.

Drs. C. P. and H. S. Atwood returned to Westerly Monday afternoon after passing the Memorial day week end in Pittsfield, Mass., and on an automobile trip over the Mohawk Trail.

Franklin lodge, No. 20, F. and A. M. of Westerly, Frederick N. Robinson, master, held a stated communication in the Masonic rooms on High street, Tuesday evening when the usual adjournment of the stated communications for July and August were made.

Almost without warning Monday night great black clouds gathered in the northeast skies above Westerly and the accompanying strong wind whipped the loose dirt on the streets and highways into clouds of dust. The greater part of the thunder and lightning which accompanied the clouds was well to the northward. Shortly after 8 o'clock there was a sudden and severe downpour of rain, but it did not last long. Another thunderstorm occurred about 4 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Arrested by Officer William Kay of Hope Valley, Monday night, George Monjeau was brought to Westerly and lodged in the police station on the charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. The arrest was the outcome of a collision between the Monjeau car and and automobile driven by Florence Richmond of Arcadia which was captured, although its passengers escaped injury when thrown out. Monjeau was before Acting Judge M. Walter Flynn, Jr., in a special session of Third district court, Tuesday afternoon about 5:30 o'clock.

At the regular session of Third District court, with Judge Michael J. Turano on the bench, Clerk M. Walter Flynn, Jr., read the following: Civil Docket—Abraham Capland vs. Ben Alper. Ready. Sears, Roebuck & company vs. Vernon Palmer alias. Decision for plaintiff. Elmer C. Smith, collector of taxes, town of Hopkinton, vs. Lawrence H. Hepworth, administrator. Continued two weeks. Josephine L. Melville, of Providence, vs. William Jackson, of Charlestown. Continued one week. Julia H. Trefes vs. Joseph Scillano on mid docket. Bertha M. Cooke vs. E. Allston Blackler. Continued one week. New writ—The Upco company vs. Wilbert A. Clark. Continued to June 13.

Criminal Docket—State vs. Fred T. Mitchell vs. Elmer Nelson. Ready. State, Thomas E. Brown vs. Frisco Bovearso (two cases). State, Thomas E. Brown, complainant, vs. Concetta Liotta. Ready.

Judge Michael J. Turano called the case of Benjamin Rawling, of Providence, for reckless operation of an automobile on the Boston Post road, just beyond Dunn's corners. The defendant was represented by Attorney W. Herbert Rathbun, who admitted sufficient evidence to convict. Town Solicitor Ferguson told the court that the defendant was driving his car in the direction of Providence and going to Quonochontaug. The solicitor said that he personally examined the conditions and was satisfied that three cars, the total number in the outfit were operated at a reasonable rate of speed, but with two cars in front of the defendant he attempted to pass both, struck a fence and then the car to his right and then the car ran up an embankment, turned over on its side and capsized. Attorney Rathbun told the court that he thought the second car ahead, one from Pawtucket, was more or less responsible for the accident. Judge Turano ascertained that no one suffered physical injuries nor were the automobiles badly damaged. He imposed a fine of $30 and costs.

Louis Daran, 38, pleaded guilty May 28th of being intoxicated when, after he was ejected from the Martin hotel he was arrested on Canal street by Patrolman George H. Champlin. He was fined $10 and costs.

Elmer Nelson was sentenced to seven months in the state house of correction for disorderly conduct when the court was shown that his own mother stood in fear of him.

Decision was given for the plaintiff to recover $18.45 in the case of Catlin vs. Alper, for junk sold to him.

Frisco Bovearso was found guilty of having intoxicating liquors in his possession and was fined $75 and costs. Joseph Gabriele was found guilty on a second complaint of having intoxicating liquors and was fined $150 and costs, entering into recognizance in the amount of $500 surety.

Concetta Liotta was acquitted on the complaint of selling gin to Frank Cahoon, of Ashaway, after a lengthy hearing in which Judge Turano decided there was not sufficient evidence to hold the respondent.

Williams, on Granite street, when his thoroughbred bulldog, Buster, was acting queerly when taken ill. The police officer shot the dog and the body was sent to Providence for examination for rabies. This is the first case in Westerly this season where the dog was supposed to be affected by the warm weather.

A COVINGTON, KY., WOMAN Makes Remarkable Recovery

Mrs. Harry Ashcroft Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieved Her of Severe Illness and Pain

MRS. HARRY ASHCROFT
622 BEECH AVENUE, COVINGTON, KY.

Covington, Ky.—"I was so weak and nervous I could hardly do my housework as I could not stand because of the bearing-down pains in my back and abdomen. I sat down most of the time and did what I could do in that way—as washing dishes, etc. One day a book describing Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines was put in my mail box. I saw how the Vegetable Compound had helped others so I gave it a trial. I had to take about a dozen bottles before I gained my strength, but I certainly praise this medicine. Then I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine for poor blood. I was cold all the time. I would be so cold I could hardly sit still and in the palms of my hands there would be drops of sweat. I also used the Sanative Wash and I recommend it also. You may publish this letter and I will gladly answer letters from women and advise my neighbors about these medicines." —Mrs. HARRY ASHCROFT, 622 Beech Avenue, Covington, Kentucky.

Mrs. Boyer Also Found Help

Gilman City, Missouri.—"I was in such a condition that I could not eat nor sleep to do me any good and I felt draggy all the time. My head ached, my right side and back would almost kill me at times, and I could be on my feet only a short while at a time. I was irregular and so nervous, irritable and despondent that I thought I could not stand the strain much longer. I had been this way more or less for ten years, but the last two years was just terrible. I took medicines, but got little relief until I began to take the Vegetable Compound. I took three bottles before I could see any change at all. I have taken seven in all and am improving right along. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and take the Liver Pills. I can do most of my work now, and I live on a farm and there is lots of it to do. I wash, iron, hoe the garden, raise chickens and tend to the milk." —Mrs. T. M. BOYER, Gilman City, Missouri.

Captain Lodowick Fish Packer, 66, who died Sunday morning at his summer home at Groton Long Point after a short illness, was born in Mystic, August 23rd, 1858, the son of George W. Packer and Martha Goodhue, He married Miss Fanny Alexander who survives him. He leaves also three brothers, Warren of Sag Harbor, N. Y. and Ernest C. and Henry E. of Mystic. He was baptized in the Union Baptist church in 1882 during the pastorate of Rev. Charles H. Rowe and always retained his membership in the church.

He had been a captain of the Clyde steamship line for many years and was on his way from the South to Boston when taken ill. As soon as he reached Boston, Wednesday, he was brought here and lived until Sunday morning. He was well known and commanded the respect of all who knew him. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon with prayer at his home and services at the chapel in Elm Grove cemetery conducted by Rev. Byron U. Hatfield, of Westerly, a former Mystic pastor.

HOUSES RUSH LEGISLATIVE BUSINESS AS ADJOURNMENT NEARS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, June 2.—With every item on the calendar starred for action, the house entered upon the last day but one of the General Assembly of 1925.

Wheeler Island, situated in Gardner Lake, was declared to be the property of the state in a bill passed today. It is to be under the care and management of the state park and forest commission.

The laws concerning dogs which are many and in some cases conflicting, have been revised and codified in a bill passed by the house. Among the provisions, Sec. 24 allows any owner or agent of any owner, of any domestic animal, to kill any dog which he shall find pursuing or worrying any such domestic animal Any straying dog on any farm, where sheep or lambs are kept may be killed. Sec. 27 says that: Any person owning or having the custody of any dog accustomed to go out on any highway or common and growl, snap or bite, or otherwise annoy any person or horse lawfully using such highway or common, shall be subject to the penalties of Sec. 22 of this act; provided written notice of such custom shall have been given to such owner or custodian, by a grand juror, justice of the peace or prosecuting attorney of the town where such dog is owned or kept.

Sec. 32. If any person shall make complaint in writing to the selectmen of a town, the warden of a borough or the chief of police of a city that any dog owned or harbored within such town, borough or city is a nuisance by reason of vicious disposition or excessive barking or other disturbance, or that any dog by such barking or other disturbance is a source of annoyance to any invalid or sick person residing in the vicinity, such selectmen, chief of police or warden shall investigate such complaint and may make such order concerning the restraint or disposal of such dog as may be deemed necessary. Any person owning or harboring such dog who shall fail to comply with such order shall be fined not more than twenty-five dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days or both.

The usual validating act which corrects errors and omissions in performance by towns, school districts and corporations, containing thirty pages, was passed today.

The bill appointing a state commission on hair dressers and cosmeticians was explained by Mr. Higgins, of the public health commission. It caused considerable mirth and jollity among the members and Mr. Higgins was pied as to the intent of several sections of the bill.

At the afternoon session of the senate, Senator Robinson succeeded in securing the passage of the bill that provides for the building by the highway department of the road leading from the state hospital to the inebriate asylum. The bill came before the house this afternoon and concurrence was voted by the house.

The house was called to order at 10:25 by Speaker Darbie and prayer was offered by Rt. Rev. Edward H. Cooley, Episcopal bishop of central New York. Permission was given to the committee on education to retire for consultation. A motion to limit debate to five minutes by any member except chairmen of committees, was opposed by Lincoln, of Ashford, and others. Miss Cheney said that no one wanted to listen more than five minutes and moved the previous question, which was carried and the resolution was adopted.

Resolutions were passed that all matters acted upon today requiring action by the senate or engrossing clerk be immediately transmitted. The petition for an appropriation for the observance of the bi-centenial of the birth of George Washington was rejected.

Under suspension of the rules, the bill increasing the number of deputy sheriffs from 30 to 34, in New Haven county, was favorably reported and was passed.

An appropriation of $150,000 for the securing plans and specifications for the remodeling of the hall of the house was rejected.

The bill regarding hair dressers and cosmeticians, appointing a commission of three members to examine and license qualified applicants, was adopted.

A communication was received from the governor, regarding the appointment of a commission on participation by the state in the sequi-centenial in Philadelphia.

The committee on roads, rivers and bridges reported the bill sent back to them last week. It casts out all the eliminative features of the former bill that caused the obstructive tactics last week. Gibbs, of Harwinton, offered an amendment that would require the building of a road in Bethel during 1926. Averill, of Branford, said that would hamper the work of the highway commissioner. The amendment was rejected and the bill as reported was adopted on a rising vote.

At 12:23 a recess was taken to 1:30.

At the afternoon session the matters on the calendar were taken up.

The bill providing a zoning commission for the city of New London was withdrawn. The bill concerning the consolidation of school districts was indefinitely postponed.

The appropriation for the State Firemen's association was increased $3,000, making a total appropriation of $31,000. The act increasing the salaries of certain court officials was opposed by Johnson, of Kent, but the bill passed notwithstanding. When the bill concerning a constitutional amendment that provides that each town shall have at least one representative in the General Assembly, aroused the ire of Representative Kent who thought there was a joker concealed somewhere in it. On explanation by Averill, of Branford, his objections were withdrawn. This is a new bill and will have to come before the next assembly before it can be submitted to the electors of the state. The act providing for a tax upon motion picture films from which pictures are exhibited in the state was opposed by Fournier, of Plainfield. He said if this bill was passed the people of the small towns would never see a decent picture again. He was an exhibitor and he considered it an unjust imposition upon motion picture theatres. Mr. Durant said the tax would not fall upon the exhibitor but upon the producer. It was decent and constructive legislation. Mr. Bernier replied, saying that the tax would eventually fall upon the exhibitor. The bill was defended by Judge King, of New Britain, and Sturgess, of Woodbury. The motion to pass was adopted. It is expected that the bill will produce a revenue of over $50,000 per year for the state.

The small loans bill, which has been up several times, was again before the house, as amended in the senate. It provides that no loan shall exceed 3 per cent. interest not payable in advance and no brokerage commission can be charged, and the loan can be repaid at any time. Senate bill 4 permits any savings bank to pay dividends quarterly instead of semi-annually. Some banks are now doing this but there is a doubt in the mind of the bank commissioner as to the legality of this custom. This bill clears up the question. The bill is not mandatory, but permissive. The bill is unanimously endorsed by the Savings Bank association of the state. The bill was passed after being explained by Judge Peck, of Bristol. The Bridgeport matter was again before the house on a bill that came in from the senate. It provides that no action can be taken by the board of aldermen of Bridgeport to enact any legislation that will prevent the operation of the bill passed last week. The bill was passed.

Henry J. Beardsley was elected judge of the district court of Waterbury. A large number of bills were rejected that had been taken care of in other bills that have been passed. Among the bills passed this afternoon was one that provides for the making of electors in the town of New London every year, instead of two years, as is now the custom. The calendar was cleaned up and only a few unimportant matters remained unacted upon in either house and they will come up tomorrow morning. House adjourned at 4:43 S. T., until 10:30 Wednesday morning.

Senate.

The senate was called to order at 10:40 (standard time) by Lieutenant Governor Brainard. Prayer by Chaplain Ayer.

The senate concurred with the house in passing a bill to allow the clerk of the court the fee of $1 which is paid by the state for returns to the motor vehicles department of cases for the violation of the motor vehicle law.

On the motion of Senator Smith, the chairman of the committee on cities and boroughs, the senate concurred with the house in passing a bill changing the hours for voting in Farmington.

On the motion of Senator Anderson, the chairman of the committee on incorporations, the senate concurred, without debate, the bill authorizing the trustees of the Loomis institute at Windsor to purchase land not immediately contiguous to "the Island" in Windsor for a site for a department for girls. The bill reads as follows:

"The trustees of the Loomis institute, a corporation chartered by an act approved July 8, 1874, and located in the town of Windsor, and their successors, shall have power and authority to acquire by purchase, devise, lease or otherwise and to hold, subject to the provision of said act as amended, real estate located in the town of Windsor not immediately contiguous to 'The Island,' so called, and to establish and maintain upon the real estate so acquired and held, a department for girls."

On the motion of Senator Smith the bill from the house amending the charter of the city of New Haven to provide that every elected officer of that city shall be a resident elector of it, and providing that nothing in the act shall prevent the appointment of a woman to any board or commission in the city.

Senator George E. Hall wished the bill tabled for amendment.

Calendar.

Passed—To allow the admission of electors every year; appropriating $9,600 to the state department of health for a laboratory; providing for the pensioning of policemen in Waterbury at one-half salary; bill concerning rules of the road; imposing an excise tax of one cent a mile on public service motor busses from outside the state traveling on the highways of Connecticut and as amended on the motion of Senator Redden to deduct the local taxes paid on real and personal property.

The bill providing a town plan commission for Manchester was passed after a brief explanation by Senator Smith.

Employment of Detectives.

Senator Shaw, in a speech in support of the bill which allows a state attorney to appoint detectives, with the approval of the governor, said that some people attached a great deal of importance to the position of state's attorney which is not, however, claimed by the incumbents of the position. "The state's attorney is not greater than the governor," said Senator Shaw and continuing added: "Some people think the state's attorney is a little God and was above all." But he did not think the state's attorneys themselves felt that way.

The remarks of Senator Shaw were in reply to the speech of Senator Wilder in criticism of the bill. Senator Wilder wondered "if there was a nigger in the bill" and he "would like to know where the nigger was located."

Senator Shaw said there was no "nigger in the bill," and it merely provided that the appointments of detectives by state's attorneys should be approved by the governor.

Senator Brixham opposed the bill because he thought it would handicap the state's attorneys in the performance of their duties.

Senator Cronin urged the passage of the bill and assured the senate that it did not interfere with the state's attorneys in their work. It merely provided that the governor should have the power to approve the appointment of detectives by the governor. The bill would not handicap the state's attorneys.

The bill was passed.

WINDHAM COUNTY CAUCUS FAILS TO CHOOSE COMM'ER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, June 2.—A spirited meeting was held by the members from Windham county, during the recess today. Resolutions of respect for the late John H. Daly, county commissioner for a long term of years, and of sympathy for his family were adopted. Twenty-eight ballots were taken trying to select his successor as commissioner but no choice was made.

Reps. Rich, of Putnam; Clark, of Canterbury; Perrin, of Woodstock; Aylward, of Killingly; Weatherhead, of Windham, and Jewett, of Hampton, all received votes in the several ballots. At the close of the twelfth ballot, with no choice made, adjournment was made to the close of the afternoon session.

The ballot at the time of adjournment stood Rich 6, Clark 6, Perrin 4, Weatherhead 2, Aylward 2, Jewett 1.

The caucus met again after the adjournment of the house at 4:45 and resumed balloting. Twenty-eight ballots were taken without a choice being made. From the 23rd to 28th ballot, Samuel Rich, of Putnam, maintained a lead with ten votes, except in the 26th ballot when he received nine votes. The 28th ballot resulted with 10 for Rich, one for Weatherhead, one for Clarke and one for Aylward. As it requires 11 votes to elect, 20 being the number that were voting, no choice was made. A suggestion was offered that the names of all the contestants be placed in a hat, one name to be drawn by some disinterested party, to be declared the successful nominee. Mr. Rich contested against this action, saying that it would be unfair to him, as he had maintained a lead from the beginning and he thought that he should receive favorable consideration on that account. The suggestion was not acted upon. At 5:45 the caucus adjourned without date, having made no choice. The officers of the caucus were Senator LaFrance, chairman; Representative Weatherhead, clerk; J. Nelson Platt and Elbert L. Darbie acted as tellers.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The White Robin Is Comforted

This much to me is very clear:
I'm not alone if I am queer.

Of course no one can be made to feel that they are queer, and because they are queer are not wanted, without having their feelings hurt somewhat. While the Robin whose coat was all white didn't mind so very much being left severely alone by all the other feathered folk, there would be times when he felt badly because

"Who are you?" de demanded bluntly and most impolitely be was queer, but he knew that his neighbors did.

"If only I could find some one else also queer, I would feel a whole lot better," thought the White Robin. "Yes, sir, I guess I'm the only one."

Now at this time the White Robin happened to be sitting in a tree on the edge of the Green Forest. As always his bright eyes were watching every instant that no enemy might take him by surprise. Suddenly he gave a little gasp, and leaned forward that he might see better. His eyes had caught sight of something moving on the ground just within the Green Forest, and that something was white. He blinked his eyes very fast to make sure that there was nothing in them and that he was seeing all right. Then he flew over to another tree and as he did so he saw another small person, also dressed all in white, and this small person was scurrying up a tree. When he reached a certain branch he promptly sat up with his back to that branch and a flat bushy tail curved over his back.

The young Robin caught his breath. "It's a white squirrel! I never have heard of such a thing, so it can't be, yet it is,"

He flew right to that very tree. "Who are you?" he demanded bluntly and most impolitely.

The little stranger in white stared at him very hard. "I don't know that it is any business of yours who I am. But if you really want to know, I'm a Red Squirrel."

"You're not either. You're a white Squirrel," retorted the White Robin.

Right away the Squirrel lost his temper, just as a Red Squirrel would. "I tell you I'm a Red Squirrel," he sputtered. "My father is Chatterer, the Red Squirrel, and if that doesn't make me a Red Squirrel I don't know what would. Who are you?"

"I'm a Robin," was the prompt reply.

"You're not either," retorted the White Squirrel. "Whoever heard of a Robin with a white coat?"

Then for a full minute they stared at each other. It had come to each that here was some one who knew exactly how the other felt. "Say," said the young squirrel, "Do folks call you queer?"

The young Robin nodded his head. "They certainly do," said he.

"And do they refuse to have anything to do with you?" continued the young Squirrel.

The young Robin confessed that this was the case. Then he sighed and it was a happy sigh. "Do you know, said he, "I'm feeling comforted?"

"Why are you feeling comforted?" demanded the young Squirrel.

"Because you are queer," replied the young Robin.

"No such thing. I'm not queer," sputtered the white Squirrel, and jerking his white tail as if he would jerk it apart. "I'm no more queer than you are."

"But I am queer," replied the young Robin. "Anyway, that's what every one says. But now I feel better."

POETRY

My mind to me a kingdom is;
Such present joys therein I find,
That it excels all other bliss
That earth affords, or grows by kind:
Though much I want which most would have,
Yet still my mind forbids to crave.

No princely pomp, no wealthy store,
No force to win the victory,
No wily wit, to salve a sore,
No shape to feed a loving eye—
To none of these I yield me thrall—
For why? my mind doth serve for all.

I see how plenty surfeits oft,
And hasty climbers soon do fall;
I see that those which are aloft
Mishap doth threaten most of all:
These get with toil, they get with fear;
Such kinds my mind could never bear.

Content I live—this is my stay;
I seek no more than may suffice;
I press to bear no haughty sway;
Look! what I lack my mind supplies!
Lo, then I triumph like a king,
Content with that my mind doth bring.

Some have too much, yet still do crave;
I little have, and seek no more;
They are but poor, though much they have;
And I am rich with little store;
They poor, I rich; they beg, I give;
They lack, I leave; they pine, I live.

I laugh not at another's loss,
I grudge not at another's gain.
No worldly waves my mind can toss;
My state at one doth still remain;
I loathe not life, nor dread my end.

Some weigh their pleasures by their lust;
Their wisdom by their rage of will,
Their treasure is their only trust,
A cloak-trust their store of skill;
But all the pleasure that I find
Is to maintain a quiet mind.

My wealth is health and perfect ease;
My conscience clear my chief defense;
I neither seek by bribes to please
Nor by deceit to breed offense.
Thus do I live, thus will I die;
Would all might end so well as I.

—Edward Dyer: 1550-1607.

A Town Window

Beyond my window is the night,
Is but a drab inglorious street.
Yet there the frost and clean starlight
As over Warwick woods are sweet.

Under the gray drift of the town
The crocus works among the mould
As eagerly as those that crown
The Warwick spring in flame and gold.

And when the tramway down the hill,
Across the cobbles moans and rings,
There is above my window-sill
The tumult of a thousand wings.

—John Drinkwater.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

As we expected The Brat which the Augustin Stock company is presenting all this week at the Palace theater is proving to be one of the best plays ever offered to the theater going public of this vicinity at popular prices. All comment about the play and the company whether heard on the streets or in the stores is most favorable. The members of the Augustin stock company are giving faithful interpretations in their different characterizations proving that a sweet, wholesome, humorous and entbrelling story is bound to please the masses. The Brat, isn't a play in the sense of the accepted word. It's life spread out before you. Its characters are real people who live, laugh, love and suffer and make you live, laugh and suffer with them. It possesses that indescribable something that makes a great play. If you want good comedy that will keep you in "stitches," touches of real pathos, moments of genuine drama and a splendid romance, showing the evolution of a nameless charity waif brought up in the charity schools and in the slums of New York and later into the chorus of a cheap musical show, who by a strange whim of fortune which has never been kind to her is salvaged from a night court by a famous author who wants her for an inspiration for his new novel and who eventually makes a fine lady out of her, don't miss seeing The Brat this week. It deserves the attendance of everyone. There will be a popular matinee at 2:15, all seats $.25. The standing order list is open for the season. This costs you nothing. Stop in at the box office and we will be pleased to explain it to you. Seats are now selling for all performances and reservations can be secured by calling 1645.

Broadway Theater

Some lucky person is going to win the complete summer ladies outfit which is to be given away to the person holding the lucky number at the Broadway theater tonight.

The management in conjunction with the following merchants have arranged to give this outfit away. All articles furnished by followin~ merchants:

The Manhattan Ladies Den't, a summer dress and a distinctive hat.

Smith's Pharmacy, one vanity case.

Here is a list of wearing apparel that is worth winning. There is no red tape to go through. All you have to do is attend a performance at the Broadway theater, where you will receive a free ticket giving everyone the same chance. The lucky ticket will be drawn from the stage tonight, and the person who has the number corresponding to the number drawn will receive orders on the above merchants which is good for the items mentioned. It is not necessary that you wait until tonight, for if you are not in the theater to receive the prize, the winning number will be announced in this paper Thursday.

There are five fine Keith acts on the program and the Paramount Picture The Dressmaker From Paris, featuring Leatrice Joy, Ernest Torrence and the fourteen international beauty models.

Don't fail to attend a performance today.

Double Feature Program at the Bread

A fine double feature bill is booked for Wednesday and Thursday at the Bread theater. Jack Pickford's new photoplay, entitled Waking Up the Town, is scheduled as the feature offering.

Practically all of the action in this picture takes place in a thriving little country town, the provincial spirit of which does much to develop the story. There is a simplicity and realism expressed in the sets and locale which offers an interesting contrast to the elaborate costume plays that have been holding so important a place on the screen of late.

One distinction, however, must go to Waking Up the Town. It boasts the most unusual set ever built—an astronomer's observatory in a tree-top, 40 feet above the ground.

Other sets include a garage so realistic that it stopped motorists on the highway; also the humble interior of the hero's home contrasting with the elaborate mansion of the town banker, and also with the overfurnished quarters for his mother after fortune smiles upon him. In this set everything works by electricity, even the stairs. There are also the Rainbow Falls, and many beautiful exterior scenes graced by the magic touch of the cameraman. The rustic simplicity of the picture give it an unusual charm.

Have you ever thought about the young mother who is suddenly faced with the double problem of supporting herself and caring for her young baby? She has no relatives—no one to stay with the child while she goes out and works. If she stays home and cares for her baby, they will both starve. What is she to do? Put her baby in an institution? Her mother heart can scarcely stand that. Sacrifice herself for money? She could no longer look into the innocent eyes of her child if she did that.

You probably have never realized how many mothers are confronted with this problem. It is one of the greatest social questions of the day.

Frank E. Woods, well-known author-producer, writer of the scenario of The Birth of a Nation, has taken this great theme as the subject of his new photoplay What Shall I Do, in which beautiful Dorothy Mackaill is starred. Her supporting cast is made up of well-known players, among them: John Harron, Louise Dresser and William V. Mong.

RETIRED NEW YORK POLICEMAN WOULD COACH NEW LONDON COPS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 3—Frank Watters, caretaker at the duthrie estate, Pequot, and a former member of the New York police department, having been retired several years ago, this afternoon had a conference with City Manager William A. Holt, for the purpose of offering his services as adviser of the city manager in the matter of attaining greater efficiency in the police department, should the council adhere to the recommendation of the city manager in hiring a member of the New York police department for the purpose. Mr. Watters was in conference with City Manager Holt about 15 minutes, but nothing definite was assured Mr. Watters that his services would be sought. City Manager Holt made it known that he has five or six names of members of the New York department under advisement and that he will go to New York within a few days for the purpose of acquainting himself as to the officers best qualified for the work that will be expected of them, should the city fathers decide to expend $5,000 or more to obtain the increased efficiency of the local department.

A fire at 3:45 o'clock this afternoon threatened to cause serious damage to the former Beckwith block, Winthrop street. An oil stove in the kitchen of the apartment of John W. Stevens became ablaze, the flames spreading to the furnishings of the room. An alarm was sent in from Box 53, corner of Harrison and Tenth streets, summoning the major portion of the city's apparatus. The flames had gained considerable headway, but with the liberal applying of chemicals the blaze was subdued and with damage not estimated beyond $300 resulting.

Charles W. Brooks, 4 Marshall place, a chief petty officer, who has been on cruises of the fleet of government craft stationed at this port, returned to his home today, after an absence of eight months.

Joseph W. Sleeper and Joseph A. Fleming, soldiers, stationed at Fort Wright, where they are radio operators, together with Andrew Langeon and James R. Jackson, sailors, attached to the coast guard fleet at the state pier, hired a room at the Hotel Winthrop last night and before they retired they took a sailor named Ditz, a member of the crew of the U. S. S. 231, also stationed at the state pier, to their room for the night. While Sleeper, Fleming, Langeon and Jackson slumbered, Ditz arose and is accused of rifling the clothing of his companions. When the others awoke about 5:15 o'clock this morning, Ditz was missing and so was $100 that had been in Sleeper's trousers and $35 that Langeon had in his clothing. Sleeper reported the losses to Patrolman John Foley and George Laboue. Investigation by the officers failed to locate Ditz, neither had he reported back to duty aboard his ship.

The deed transferring the property, corner of Green and Golden streets, from John C. Geary to Louis Markow, was received for record this afternoon at the office of the city clerk. The price paid was $30,000. The property consists of three stores on Green street and a two-story lodging house and a store on Golden street. Mr. Markow contemplates many improvements to the property.

Allen T. Huxford has sold to the Ideal Coat & Apron Supply company the building in the rear of Truman street at present used by the purchasers, the structure being of two stories and of brick.

John J. Ryan has sold to George Ryan a tract of land on Ocean avenue.

Thomas F. Moran has sold to Mary McCarthy a house and lot on Bank street.

Mae G. Currier has sold to George H. Godfrey a house and lot on Beckwith street.

John C. Geary has sold to Giovana Baldelli a parcel of land on Crystal avenue.

The deed transferring the property on Main street, formerly owned by Thomas F. Foran, to Walenty Tonaszewski, was received for record at the office of the city clerk today. The property a two-story wooden structure was recently sold by Thomas C. Dillon appointee.

Paul Hoen, of United States Coast Guard, destroyer Cunningham; Tony Ragoneed 670 Bank street; Thomas Dougherty 135 Bank street; Mrs. Joseph Morello Waterford; Mrs. Elizabeth Uguccioni 35 Bank street; Thomas Morton Green street; Mrs. Joseph McGuinness and infant daughter Connecticut avenue, and Edward Gately, Niantic, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were dismissed today.

Mrs. Mary E. Taylor, of Brooklyn, N. Y., is being entertained by Mr. and Mrs. David Quinn of Green street.

The funeral of Mary A., widow of Sergeant Daniel Coleman, U. S. A., was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church and was attended by many mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimmons. At the conclusion of the mass Edward F. Murray sang "Some Sweet Day." The bearers were James H., William T., and John J. Neilan, Henry S. Dorsey, Michael Lougharan, of Springfield Mass., and Thomas Carroll, of Naugatuck. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Funeral services for Lucien H. Firmin were held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at his residence, 234 Montauk avenue and were attended by a large gathering of mourners. Rev. Horatio J. Chase, pastor of the Montauk Avenue Baptist church, officiated. Members of Pequot lodge, I. O. O. F., of which order Mr. Firmin was a member, were bearers and conducted the committal service in Jordan cemetery.

When Parker Pillow was arrested Monday evening he put up a cash bond of $25 for his appearance in the police court this morning. He did not show up, so his bond was called and his cash was forfeited to the court.

On the 29th of May Walter Casey and some companions were auto riding. They passed a traffic officer heedless of his signals to stop and then ran into a car owned by James Doyle that was parked at the curbing, damaging the Doyle car to the extent of $75. Casey saw that there was serious trouble ahead for him, so he agreed to pay the expense of repair to the Doyle car. With that understanding the case was nolled. But Casey did not to this date keep his agreement with the police court and with Mr. Doyle, so Prosecutor Hollandersky brought the matter back to the court. Judge Prince continued the matter a week, to give Casey a chance to make good the promise to the court and to Mr. Doyle. Instances in which agreement is made with court to make certain settlement and then the agreement is violated are very few, for the consequences are not such as any one desires to risk.

Three bums were taken from a train on the New Haven railroad when it reached here from Providence late last night. They were riding between cars and in that way came here from Providence. Railroad officers took them to the police station instead of an undertaker moving their bodies to the morgue. The gang admitted that they had been drinking. They said they engaged with some man in Providence to go to Fort Wright to enter employment, but they "lost" their employer before they got away from the Providence depot. That story may have been true, but the chances are that it was untrue. Their presense in New London was not desired so they were allowed time to get away.

Sam Williams, a handy man about garages, was charged with intoxication; complaint having been made by Mrs. Williams at 3 o'clock this morning. Sam declared that he was not intoxicated though he admitted he had "a few" during last night. He said the trouble was over his food, which was not ready for him when he woke from a sleep. Williams would not admit that he was intoxicated for he had been asleep a few hours. His wife persisted that he was drunk. The court turned the case over to the probation officer for adjustment.

Mrs. Bessie E. Annis, 28, wife of Clyde T. Annis, died Saturday night at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Bartlett on Fishers Island, death resulting of a complication of diseases.

Joseph Paretta has sold a two family dwelling on Jay street to Helen P. Auld. Deeds transferring title in the property will be passed within a few days.

Patrolman Edward Riordan reported for duty tonight, but was unable to take his patrol because of an attack of stomach trouble, the officer reporting off duty and consulting a physician.

Day Baker, 33 Mott avenue, complained to the police this evening that one of the windows of his home had been broken and by the appearance of the break, it was apparent that a bullet from an air rifle had done the damage.

Policewoman Jane H. Cassidy has resumed her duties, having been absent from the city two days, visiting relatives.

The railing along that part of the foot bridge of the Central Vermont railroad used by pedestrians is in a dangerous condition owing to a section of the railing having been ripped from its support. The condition was reported to the police tonight and tomorrow the matter will be turned over to the highway department for attention.

Ignatous Ramistalla, 33 Spring street who yesterday requested the police to assist him in locating his son, Eugene, 15, who had run away from home and who, the parent believed, had gone to New York to join the United States Coast Guard service, this forenoon received a communication from the commander of the coast guard cutter Redwing, now moored at the Brooklyn navy yard, that Ramistalla had enlisted for a term of three years.

Rev. and Mrs. Henry W. Hulbert of Monument street, Groton, have gone to Boston, called there because of the serious illness of an intimate acquaintance.

The authorities of the borough of Groton are to follow their course of the past year or two, endeavoring to promote a safe and sane fourth of July this year. The wardens and burgesses have decided to prohibit the sale of blank and solid cartridges again this year. During the week the police will notify all dealers of fireworks that the sale of this form of explosives will not be permitted. In continuing their stand of previous years the wardens and burgesses believe that there will be a lesser number of celebrators injured, to say nothing of the annoyance of elderly people by the loud and unexpected explosions.

With many of the sailors attached to the submarine base and coast guard being given shore liberty every night, a navy patrol is kept on the streets in the heart of the city each night from 7 until 12 o'clock.

The Connecticut Company is causing added repairs to be made to the electric switch at the State street terminal and within a day or two the repairs will have been completed and the switch, that has caused several derailments, will probably be in proper working order. A few nights ago the switch caused the derailment of a Norwich-bound trolley car, with the result that traffic to certain parts of the city was held up an hour and traffic between New London and Norwich was interrupted for a like period.

Additional complaints have been received by the police because of the alleged nuisance caused by the existence of the so-called "pet shop", 166 Bank street, where puppies, chicken, parrots, monkeys and other animals are harbored, the nuisance being due, it is claimed to the cries of the various animals. Today Captain Charles A. Pinney instructed Dog Warden John Sweeney to investigate the complaints and if conditions warranted to seek a warrant for the arrest of the proprietor from Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky.

Meyer Rubin, proprietor of the Yellow Cab, operators of several public service cabs here, today caused an in junction to be served on Murray Cash, another taxicab driver, alleging that the operation of a meter-cab by Cash is an infringement upon the rights of Yellow Cab. The injunction was issued by Judge Charles B. Waller of the court of common pleas and was served upon Cash tonight by Deputy Sheriff Manuel J. Martin. Cash recently caused a drab and brown colored cab to be put into operation at the union station stand.

Still another cab, a red painted vehicle and designated as the "15 and 5 Cents" Cab, has been put into operation by Tony Caldrello. This cab is also a metered vehicle.

BRITISH CRAFT SEIZED WITH $40,000 RUM CARGO

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, June 2—The British trawler, Baltimore I, Halifax, Captain C. H. Hood, master, owned by the Portland Shipping company, Halifax, laden with 1500 cases of rye and Scotch whiskey was seized off the mouth of the harbor this afternoon by the crew of the United States Coast Guard patrol boat, 175. The rum runner was the first of craft trafficking in liquor which has been seized since the federal government caused a flotilla of approximately 20 coast guard craft to patrol the New England coast in an effort to put an end to the receiving of supplies of liquor by boats from the foreign ships at anchor between Montauk Point and Block Island.

The cargo of the rum runner is valued at close to $40,000 and is believed to have been destined for New York.

The Blairmore I is now moored under guard at the United States Coast Guard pier here and this afternoon at 4 o'clock Capt. Mood and his crew of eight men were presented before Justice of the Peace Russell T. Corcoran. On the request of counsel for the accused men, a continuance was granted until the 15th inst., and bail was furnished for the men, Mood being held in bonds of $1500 and the others in bail of $500 each.

The Blairmore I was sighted when in the Race, and but a short distance west of the harbor. The patrol boat was sent alongside of the trawler, and a crew boarding the boat, the nature of the cargo was quickly discovered. Officers of the patrol boat then manned the rum runner and brought her into port at 2 o'clock.

EAST WOODSTOCK

Reginald Pike, of Lynn, Mass., spent the week end at his home.

Mrs. H. L. Bannister, of Webster, spent the week end with G. L. Upham and family.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wetherbee and the former's mother, all of East Hartford, joined Alan and Ethel Upham, last Friday afternoon on a trip to South Killingly, looking for rare finds that gro win that locality. Mr. Wetherbee is curator at Harvard university.

Memorial services were held at the cemetery at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, about 40 attending. The school children sang two selections. In Flander's Field, was given by Elsie Hibbard. Florence Neely and Marian Cady. Prayer was offered by Rev. H. D. Baker, and he also made a short address. The graves of veterans were decorated by Veterans George O. Robbins and V. T. Wetherell, accompanied by sons of veterans. America was sung by the audience.

Friday the school children gathered wild flowers and made 51 bouquets which they placed on the graves of the Revolutionary soldiers buried in this cemetery.

MARKET CLOSED STRONG

New York, June 2—(A. P.)—Reactionary price tendencies predominated in the early part of the stock market, but the demand for stocks increased as trading progressed and prices rallied briskly from the morning lows. The recovery was aided by the easing tendency of the call money market, stiffer lead, rubber and scrap steel prices and the usual crop of dividend and merger rumors.

Chief financial interest centered, however, in events outside the stock market. These included the publication of the government cotton crop estimate, showing a condition of 76.6 per cent of normal, as compared with 65.6 per cent, a year ago, which was followed by a break of $1.50 to $2 a bale in cotton futures; part of which was later recovered; the quick oversubscription of the $45,000,000 Argentine loan within 24 hours after the successful offering of the $30,000,000 Norwegian issue and the announcement that a syndicate of local bankers, headed by J. P. Morgan and company had granted a $150,000,000 revolving credit to Italy for use in the stabilization of exchange.

Maxwell motor issues continued to monopolize speculative attention in the stock market. Maxwell Motors B, which sold as low as $3 3-4 earlier in the year, soared ten points to a record top at 136, despite the announcement that the stock exchange had started an inquiry into the trading in that issue. The B certificates, which represent the stock that has been deposited under the recapitalization plan, jumped 9 3-4 to 119 3-4. The A stock duplicated its record high of 120 and then dropped two points.

Other motors were mixed. A brisk demand developed for Hudson which advanced four points to a new high at 62. Nash motors jumped 4 1-2 points to a new peak at 436 on a few sales. Jordon was heavy, dropped 3 1-2 points to 42 1-4, or within a small fraction of the year's low.

Strength and activity of American Can, which was run up 3 3-8 points to 191 1-2, featured the trading in the Standard Industrials. Baldwin rallied from a low of 115 1-2 to 118 and then sagged a point for a small fractional loss on the day.

U. S. Steel common closed fractionally lower at 114 3-8. Dupont jumped nearly 5 points to a new peak at 174 3-8.

Public utilities again presented several points of strength, American Telephone, American Water Works, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit, Pacific Gas and Electric, Hudson and Manhattan preferred and International telephone were among the issues in that group to break through their previous 1925 maximums.

General Electric jumped 5 points to 293 on buying inspired by the announcement of merger of Upstate Power Properties in which that company was interested. Internal Combustion Engineering also developed outstanding activity and strength by moving up 3 5-8 points to 43.

Maine command preferred sank to new low price for the year on further selling inspired by unfavorable 1924 earnings report. Brunswick-Balke Collander also touched a new bottom price at 26.

Heavy trading in the St. Paul issues and the establishment of a high record by Southern Railway at 97 7-8, featured the trading in the railroad shares. St. Paul common closed fractionally lower at 3 3-4 after selling above 10 while the preferred showed a net gain of 1-34 at 15 1-8.

Call money held steady at 4 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Resumption of trading in the foreign exchanges after the Whitsuntide holiday abroad was followed by the establishment of new low records for the year by French and Belgian francs at 4.94 and 4.61 cents, respectively. Italian Lira rallied from 3.95 to 4.08 cents on the announcement of the Morgan credit. Demand sterling ruled slightly lower around $4.85 3-4, or approximately the "gold export" point.

BOND MARKET

New York, June 2—(A. P.)—An apparently insatiable demand for new bonds, reflected in the heavy over-subscription of about $100,000,000 in offerings in the past two days stimulated trading in the bond market and laid the basis for another substantial rise in prices.

A large oversubscription for the $45,000,000 Argentine loan, following the successful sale of the $30,000,000 Norwegian loan yesterday, together with the establishment of a $50,000,000 banking credit for the stabilization of Italian exchange, were among the developments which focused attention on the foreign list, French issues extended their recent gains while German 7S rose to a record high level at 97.

Anticipating that the St. Paul railway reorganization plan would be favorable to bondholders, the several bonds of the road rallied sharply, recording gains of one to more than two points. Other semi-speculative rails joined in the upswing. Chicago and Eastern Illinois issues responded to reports that the road was being sought for incorporation in the Pennsylvania system.

Buying of public utility obligations was encouraged by the announcement of new consolidations, with the local traction issues showing conspicuous strength in the revival of agitation for increased fares. Oil, sugar and rubber company liens were firm.

Negotiations have been concluded for a $4,000,000 loan by a local banking group to the Saar Basin consolidated countries. An offering of seven per cent. ten year bonds is expected soon. The financing was arranged through the same bankers who last year floated a $3,000,000 loan for Saarbruecken, the chief industrial center of the Saar Basin.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, June 2—(A. P.)—Spectacular breaks in the price of corn, as much as 5 1-2c. a bushel, resulted from good rains, but relief from drought had only a transient effect on the wheat market. Unofficial estimates which were current indicaid that there would hardly be 50 000,000 bushels of wheat available for export from the 1925 domestic crop. Corn closed irregular, 5-8 to 3c net lower, September 1.14 5-8 to 1.14 3-4 and December 95 1-2 to 95 5-8. With wheat firm, 1-8 to 1 7-8c up, July 1.61 5-8, 1.61 1-8 and September 1.59 to 1.59 1-4, oats unchanged to 1-4c. off, and provisions ranging from 15c. decline to an equal advance.

Wild fluctuations in the corn market began shortly after the opening. December delivery, which recently made a sensational upturn in price on account of crop damage fears, was the leader of the downward plunge of values. Rain and hot weather tended to alter greatly the crop outlook and to point to a probable much larger yield of corn than of late was expected.

Numerous standing orders to sell out on declines in price in the corn market and to stop losses were forced into operation before corn began to rally and to show the influence of wheat strength that developed after an early setback. Knowledge that arrivals of corn from the country continue in excess of last year acted as a drag on values.

Aggressive buying, especially on the part of houses with eastern connections had much to do with the upward swing of wheat prices during the last half of the day. Offerings were decidedly scarce at the finish. Evidence of enlarged export demand was also a factor. Oats traders took their cue from wheat rather than from corn.

Provisions were steadied by a rise in hog values and by a big decrease in Chicago stocks of lard.

CURB MARKET

New York, June 2—(A. P.)—Stock prices pointed upward in the curb market with the strength of the public utility and Chrysler motor issues as the outstanding features.

Adirondack Power soared about eight points to a record high at 95 1-8 on the announcement of the upstate power merger involving that and four other companies. Net gains of two to five points also were recorded by American Light and Traction, Lehigh Power securities, National Power and Light, Power Corporation, of New York, Southeastern Power and Light and United Light and Power.

The brisk demand for Chrysler synchronized with the upward movement in the Maxwell issues on the "big board," the stock soaring nearly ten points to a record high at 118 7-8. Revival of activity in Curtis Aeroplane sent that stock up over two points to 20 1-4, but half of its gain was cancelled on profit takings. Chapin-Sacks also gathered strength as trading progressed, closing 3 1-4 points higher at 38 1-4.

Tractions in the newly-listed Sun Oil stock which jumped 3 1-4 points to a new top at 43 1-2 over-shadowed all other developments in the oil group. Prairie Pipe moved up two points to 121 and Magnolia Petroleum showed a new gain of 1 1-2 at 147 1-2. Other changes in the oil group were largely fractional.

NORWICH, CONN., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 3, 1925

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin
Norwich Wednesday, June 3, 1925

WEATHER
Conditions

Pressure is quite low east of Newfoundland. The barometer remains high from the South Atlantic States eastward beyond Bermuda, and it is relatively high over New England and Nova Scotia. There have been local showers or thunderstorms within the last 24 hours in New England and New York and in middle and northern sections of the Pacific coast eastward to the northern lake region and the upper Mississippi valley.

The temperature is still considerably above normal from the southern plain states and the upper Mississippi valley. Eastward, the highest reported Tuesday being 98 degrees at Philadelphia, Penn., and Lynchburg, Va. At Washington, the temperature reached 97, which equalled the record for so early in the season. Cooler weather prevailed in the Dakotas, the Canadian northwest, the plateau and northern Rocky Mountain regions and the Pacific states.

Mostly fair and warm weather will prevail Wednesday and Thursday in the Washington forecast district. Local thunder showers are probable however, on Thursday in the lower lake region and the Ohio and middle Mississippi valley and in the northern portions of the middle Atlantic states. The temperature will continue high through Friday in the eastern and the southeastern states.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook and Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Moderate southerly and weather generally fair Wednesday.

Forecast

Eastern New York: Generally fair Wednesday; somewhat warmer in interior; Thursday partly cloudy; probably local thundershowers in north and central portion; continued warm.

Northern New England: Generally fair Wednesday and Thursday; warmer in north portion Wednesday.

Observations

TAFTVILLE

Ladies Auxiliary, Division 28, A. O. H., held a delightful whist in their rooms Thursday evening. The prizes were awarded as follows: ladies, first, Mrs. Michael Morin of Norwich; second, Mrs. Dunne of Norwich; consolation, Miss Helen Breault. Gentlemen, first, James Garvie; second, James Murphy; consolation, Matthew Garvie. Following the cards, a social hour was enjoyed, refreshments being served and vocal solos sung by James Garvie. The committee in charge were Mrs. William Malone, chairman; Mrs. William Nolan, Mrs. Joseph Waldron, Mrs. Tenas Breault, Miss Nora Murphy and Miss Mae Nolan. The prize cake was awarded to Miss Helen Breault.

The old swimming hole at the Lisbon side of the Ponemah mills dam, was well crowded Tuesday after school hours, by the boys of the town who were cooling off and causing the envy of lookers-on.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Pingree and daughter Lois have returned to their home in Sayiesville, R. I., after spending several days with Mr. and Mrs. Axel L. Aberg of North Third avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Young and Miss Gertrude M. Young of North Third avenue have returned from a motor trip to Cape Cod.

Pentecost, the birthday of the Christian church and the feast in honor of God, the Holy Ghost, was celebrated Monday evening by some of the young people's societies of the Taftville Congregational church at Ponemah hall. Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis, the pastor officiated at the religious exercises and Howell E. Estey, Grand Seneschal of the International Order of the Knights of King Arthur, of Lynn, Mass., presided at the service. The K. O. K. A. ritual was used, the members of Castle Perilous being assisted by the Ocowasin and Aowakiya Camp Fire groups and the O. J. S., who led the singing. The service opened with the prelude by Swahn's full orchestra, followed by the singing of the invocation by Miss Dorothy Wood, soprano.

The conclave was begun with a procession of the Holy Grail, the members in full regalia, with a delegation from Castle Devonshire of Groton following the local castle. Also in the procession were Mr. Estey, and Kenneth E. Henley, baron of Castle St. Paul of Lynn, Mass., and the Rev. Arthur Varley of Portland. Miss Nyra A. Yerrington was the Keeper of the Holy Grail, and she carried the order's symbol of the Sacred Chalice. She was preceded by the girls societies, the members wearing white dresses, red headbands and carrying lighted candles.

During the conclave, two esquires, Forrest Heinrich and Hartwell Zuerner were raised to the degree of knighthood, the accolade being given by the hands of Mr. Estey, with the words, "In the name of God, St. Michael and St. George, I dub thee knight." The obligation was given to the postulants at the red covered altar by Rev. Mr. Crowdis, who holds the rank of Archbishop of Canterbury in the local castle.

Rev. Mr. Varley who is a former pastor of the Taftville church addressed the conclave, as did Mr. Estey and Mr. Henley. About 300 people were present at the service, to see the third degree given and to participate in the conclave. The members left the hall to the music of the Festmarche after the benediction had been given by Rev. Mr. Crowdis.

Conrad Pepin and Miss Hermina Cantara were married Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock at a nuptial high mass at Sacred Heart church celebrated by the pastor, Rev. U. O. Bellrose. The witnesses were Theophile Cantara, father of the bride, and Joseph Pepin, father of the groom. The bride wore a gown of white crepe de chine with tulle veil and carried a bouquet of white roses. A wedding breakfast was served later in the morning at the home of the bride's parents on South B Street. The young couple left for a wedding trip to Montreal, Canada, and upon their return will reside in Taftville. The groom is the son of Joseph and Rose Levine Pepin of 5 North A street. He is employed in the No. 4 weaving department of the Ponemah mills. His bride was born in Canada the daughter of Theophile and Mary Theroux Cantara and has been employed in the spinning department of the Ponemah Mills.

CLASS OF TEN NURSES GRADUATES FROM BACKUS HOSPITAL SCHOOL

The graduating exercises of theclass of 1925, William W. Backus Hospital Training School for Nurses, were held Tuesday evening at the Hugh Henry Osgood Memorial Parish house, the auditorium being filled with relatives and friends of the ten members of the class, guests of the hospital and alumnae and officials of the hospital training staff.

The hall was beautifully decorated for the exercises with baskets of cut flowers and palms, affording a most fitting background for the exercises of the evening.

To the music of Barcarolle, from Tales of Hoffman, by Offenbach, played by Swahn's orchestra, the alumnae of the Nurses Training school, members of the graduating class of 1925 and student nurses, entered the auditorium and were seated in front of the platform.

The exercises of the evening were in charge of Henry A. Tirrell, president of the hospital board, who welcomed the graduates, alumnae and their relatives and friends. The invocation was pronounced by Rev. Myron E. Genter, after which two most delightful duet numbers were rendered by Mrs. Vandalia H. Burgy and Mrs. Edwin A. Harris, singing for their first number Carmena, (H. Lane Wilson) and following this with A May Morning, (L. Denza).

The address of the evening was delivered by Arthur M. Brown, state's attorney for New London county, who spoke to the graduating class as follows:

"We are living in troublous times. There is a spirit of unrest in the world, seeking to permeate the entire universe. Men and women rush about seeking something, they know not what. Old landmarks have been shattered, old faiths pushed aside. In a southern state they are punishing a man who dares to speak of evolution. In Chicago murder goes unpunished. Crime seems rampant in the country and President Coolidge made it his subject in the speech he made at Arlington. The United States Editors' association at their meeting in Maryland talked over the view the newspapers must take of the question.

"Some people even feel that there is a danger to the life of the institutions of our country; they say the democratic form of government is failing and they all ask, 'What of tomorrow?'

"The answer to this question does not depend on the wisdom of statesmen, on the adroitness of politicians, the eloquence of orators, the skill of soldiers or the ruthlessness of dictators. The answer depends on men and women of this world who are willing to forget themselves and unselfishly give themselves to service of humanity. If they are of a sufficient number they may take the dough of which I speak and make it leaven. If they lack numbers all will spoil.

"You have this opportunity before you in the work you have chosen. You have before you a wonderful opportunity and a tremendous responsibility. Do not confine your efforts to nursing the sick but seize the opportunity before you to nurse the sick and humanity generally, thus nursing your country back to health.

"You now stand at the threshold of your career. The institution from which you are about to graduate has fitted you for your work and your training has been given with conscientiousness and efficiency. You have selected a profession that is second to none in the opportunity it offers for honest service. Your sole contribution to life should be yourselves, nothing more and nothing less, ever remembering that whatever you put into life you shall take from it in a greater measure of happiness.

"You are anxious to succeed and you should be, for it is your right. Be careful, however, by what standard you measure success. If you measure it by money alone it is nothing, but if you measure it by quality and quantity of service you may render, it is everything. Strive only for that success which is moral and just. Be proud of your vocation, it is a worthy one, and you cannot succeed unless you believe in it. Think not of your reward, think of service. We hear much of service today in business but too much of it is selfish service, a deed performed in hopes of a greater reward.

Keep the word service ever before you, for its letters have the message of what you want to become. Let the S stand for sympathy and self-sacrifice. Be sympathetic and reach out to the hearts of the sick, for this is a healing power great in the sickroom of the world. Let the E stand for efficiency, for you will need this especially in your work. Let the R stand for real, the V for vital and the I for intense, a real, vital and intense service to humanity by giving yourself in this work. May the C stand for courtesy and culture, for courtesy is within the power of all to exercise and culture may be acquired. Then go even further and again let the E stand for efficiency, for the world demands efficiency of the young women in your profession. Make your work a sympathetic, self-sacrificing, efficient, real, vital and intense service, given in courtesy and culture in the highest degree of efficiency in all that you may undertake.

"Keep these ideals ever before you for they will have a tremendous influence toward leavening the lump of dough of which I spoke, and may God speed you on your way."

The address by State's Attorney Brown was followed by a second selection by Swahn's orchestra. Out of the Dusk to You, by Lee, a charming number, given with delightful ease and perfection of tone.

Mr. Tirrell then spoke to the graduating class and congratulated them upon their graduation from the training school after patient and faithful study and adherence to rules. In giving these diplomas, a public recognition of what you have done, he said, I will also present you a gift of the hospital, a companion case. The names of the graduates were then called and as each received her diploma and companion case, an added gift was made when Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr., on behalf of the Advisory board of the hospital gave each graduate a shower bouquet of roses and carnations.

Mrs. Vandalia H. Burgy then favored with two soprano solos, The Wind's in the South, by John Prindle Scott, and The Old Refrain, by Fritz Kreisler, both numbers being rendered in charming voice. The accompaniment was by Mrs. Charles A. Saxton, pianist.

The class pins, rose-leaf shaped gold pins with W. W. Backus Hospital Training School engraved upon them, were then presented by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, who likened them to medals conferred upon heroes in times of war or peace, a recognition of some valiant deed. By your willingness to administer to the sick, no matter what the disease may be, you have well earned these pins, he said, and may they ever serve as medals for your life of service.

The graduation exercises closed with an orchestral selection, Glita, by Losey, after which relatives and friends personally congratulated the members of the 1925 class upon the completion of their training.

The members of the graduating class of 1925 were as follows: Margaret Walsh, of Jewett City; Dorothy Chapman Peckham, of Norwich; Margaret Frances Delaney, of Westerly, R. I.; Zylphia E. Barnes and Olive Jackson, of Norwich; Laura Greene, of Columbia; Florence Bertha Whitehead, of Norwich; Waud Lester Eller, of Norwich; Leona Emma Berthiaume, of Danielson, and Phyllis Mae Harvey, of Mystic.

Following the graduation exercises at the Osgood Memorial Parish house cars were provided to take the nurses and hospital officials to the Wauregan House where a delightful dance programme was enjoyed until midnight, music being furnished by Swahn's orchestra.

The ballroom was most attractively decorated with cut flowers of many varieties which were distributed among the nurses at the conclusion of the programme of the evening. All floral decorations were arranged by the flower committee of the W. W. Backus Hospital Ladies' auxiliary. Refreshments of ice cream and assorted cake were served at intermission.

At the same time the dance was being enjoyed members of the 1924 class of the hospital held a banquet and social time at the hotel, the party being in charge of Miss Mary Brightman, of Westerly, president of the class.

The graduation exercises will come to a close today, Wednesday, when a reunion of the graduate nurses of the Hospital Training school is to be held at the nurses' residence at the hospital. An entertainment programme will be followed by a social time and refreshments will be served.

In making the graduation exercises a success the hospital authorities were indebted to Charles A. Saxton, Dr. J. J. Donohue, Dr. R. R. Agnew and Don A. Houghton, who loaned their automobiles to convey the nurses to the parish house and to the Wauregan House for the entertainment programme, and to Dr. Paul A. Schwartz for furnishing taxi accommodation to convey the nurses to the hospital following the entertainment at the hotel.

With the graduation of the ten members of the 1925 class the student nurses now in training at the Hospital Training school number 39 and it is expected that when the fall term opens the full quota of 32 student nurses will be provided.

Other cases on the list were disposed of as follows: Moische Katz (Poland) denied for ignorance; Domenico Quarto (Italy) continued for study; Athanasios Zondiros (Greece) denied, unable to prove five years residence; Johann Kump (Austria), Francesco Viscione (Italy), Janos Gross (Hungary), Joseph Sawicky (Poland), Pietro Polidori (Italy), continued for study; Tomasz Aleksander Walkowski, (Poland), denied for failure to prosecute; Antonin Aquitante (Italy), Wladimir Sawchuk (Russia), Antonio Piscitello (Italy), continued for study; John Victorine King (Portugal), continued for non-appearance; Harry Charles Freedman (Poland), denied for lack of character; Wanda Madaline Korzeb (Poland), continued for non-appearance; Giovanni Pascucel (Italy), denied for failure to prosecute; Spiros Gerry Copsinis (Greece), Anders Peter Anderson (Denmark), continued for study; Hans Edward Gulin (Sweden), continued for non-appearance; Jan Joseph Litwinas (Lithuania), continued for deposition; John Henry Murphy (Great Britain), continued for non-appearance; Antonio Oreste (Italy), Giavanni Guerini (Italy), Enrico Cinquanta (Italy), Beneditto Manzella (Italy), Manuel Pedroso d'Oliveira (Portugal), continued for study; Peter Johannes van Diepen (Holland), continued for non appearance; Josef Sluzenski (Poland), Mauro Zito (Italy), Aleksander Skorenski (Poland), continued for study; Petro Gulej (Poland), continued for deposition; Giovanni Maiorino (Italy), Gabriele Vittorio Sargente (Italy), continued for non-appearance; Jan Garstka (Poland), dismissed, for denth of applicant.

Allen F. Church of Boston, naturalization examiner, questioned the applicants to determine their qualifications and the accepted applicants were sworn in by Clerk George F. Parsons of the superior court. Attorney Hibberd R. Norman had charge of making out the naturalizations for those who were accepted and sworn in.

Behind the judge's desk an American flag was suspended and before the oath was administered to the successful applicants, Judge Wolfe addressed them impressively, telling them that they were about to enjoy a great privilege, that of becoming American citizens and coming under the protection of the flag they saw in the court room, a flag that would forever protect them and their property. Judge Wolfe said that he wanted to feel those before him that it was not enough to be able to answer the questions about the constitution and about the government to qualify as good citizens. The ability to answer these questions might be merely a matter of memory. That is not so important, but what the future citizens should understand is the spirit and the life that underlies this country and its constitution and laws, which guarantee life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness to all its citizens. This citizenship in a great free government is indeed a privilege, said Judge Wolfe and a privilege that "you will appreciate not only in your own lives but in the lives of your children."

Every newly made citizen was presented with a complete manual of the United States, which contained 48 pages of valuable information for them and which was published by the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, The Americanization committee of the Faith Trumbull Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, distributed these manuals and flags and the members assisted the new citizens in every manner possible. This committee included Mrs. Robert W. Otis, Miss Barbara Allen and Mrs. William Elliott and Mrs. E. LaRue Bliven.

Mrs. C. H. Haskell had her senior history class from the Academy attend the afternoon session of court where they watched with interest the process of making citizens by naturalization.

N. H. RAILROAD MAKING CHANGES IN MORNING AND NIGHT BOAT TRAINS

Norwich and every city and town along the Norwich & Worcester branch of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, will be affected by the reported change in running time of the morning and evening trains, which is expected to go into effect on the 14th day of June. These changes, according to information given out Tuesday night at the New London station, call for the removal of the morning boat train north and putting ahead by two hours the evening boat train south, and they will have a great effect on mail deliveries in every town and city along the line.

According to the information given out Tuesday night by an official at New London, but later qualified by another who said that the Boston headquarters were still working on the schedule, the 4:10 a. m., train, north, from New London, is to be taken off and the first train north, will leave that city at 7:10 a. m., standard time, or 8:10 a. m., daylight time, while the south bound boat train, which has been reaching New London at 8:15 p. m., standard time, will be put ahead two hours, to reach New London at 6:15 p. m., standard time.

These changes are bound to be of interest to every community between New London and the state line at Thompson and unless some substitute service is being planned, are apt to stir up many a protest.

Postmaster Casper K. Bailey, when informed of the reported change, Tuesday evening, said that it would have a great effect on Norwich mail deliveries. With the first train northbound, reaching this city at about 8:40 a. m., daylight time, instead of at 5:40 a. m., daylight saving time, as at present, there will be a big change in time of all city deliveries. It will be practically impossible to have the incoming morning mail go out on the first city delivery in the morning, meaning that letters and papers from New York and points south and west cannot be sorted and delivered much before mid-day or perhaps, in the case of the business section, by 11 o'clock. Business hours in Norwich begin at 8 o'clock and a holpup in the morning mail of from two to three hours, will mean considerable to every merchant and business house in the city.

Concerning rural deliveries out of Norwich, it will mean that carriers will be compelled to make a start several hours later in the morning in order to deliver mail arriving in this city at 8:40 o'clock in the morning. City mail outside of the business districts will of necessity be sent out on the second delivery.

With the change in the evening train south, that of moving it ahead two hours, a change in mailing hours for all business houses will have to be made, in the past, mailing letters at 5 o'clock would insure their being sent out on the boat train which left here at 8:45 o'clock. The train after June 14th, will leave at 6:45 o'clock, daylight time, meaning that final mailings for New York and cities south and west, will have to be made by 4 o'clock at the latest to insure their being sent out that night.

The morning mail train brings the bulk of business mail into the city each day and over 50 per cent. of the outgoing mail at night is sent out on the boat train so the change has a most important bearing, not only on the postoffice officials but on the public in general.

Postmaster E. H. Keach, of Danielson, said Tuesday evening that 75 per cent. of the day's mail out of Danielson for New York and points west goes out on the evening boat train. With the proposed change, Danielson's last mail out nights, will be about 5:30 o'clock, daylight time, making a most drastic change in business arrangements.

Taking off the morning boat train will also have a bad effect on business in Danielson and cities to the north of Norwich. Danielson's first receipt of morning mail would be after 9 o'clock, daylight time, meaning a first delivery about noon.

Newspapers for all towns above Norwich, depending on the first train north, will be delayed several hours and early morning deliveries made impossible by all dealers if this change continues in effect, unless motor transportation is arranged to continue the early delivery of papers in cities and towns north, which have been receiving their papers before 8 o'clock in the morning.

In speaking of the change, Tuesday night, Postmaster Bailey suggested that there may be a possibility of Norwich mail being transferred to the Central Vermont railroad, thus getting an early morning delivery here, but this change would have no effect on cities and towns north and along the Norwich & Worcester line.

Indications are that protests will be made against the proposed change in train schedules because of the damaging effect it will have on business in all of eastern Connecticut east of New London and Willimantic.

Fourth Birthday Party

Sunday evening a birthday party was given by Mr. and Mrs. James Gordon of Brooklyn, N. Y., at the home of Louis Moskowitz of Leffingwell in honor of their son Robert who was four years old. Many visitors came from out of town. Refreshments were served by the hostess. The younger people danced and played games and an enjoyable evening was spent. The guests left at midnight.

WOMAN WILL REFRAIN FROM SELLING LIQUOR

At the criminal session of the court of common pleas held here Tuesday, with Judge Charles B. Waller presiding, Antoinette Alfiere of New London, mother of five children, the oldest of whom is seven and the youngest is six months, charged with the violation of the liquor law, had her case continued until the next term of the court with the understanding that if she will refrain from again violating the liquor law the case will be nolled.

A seven-year-old Colchester girl, who was charged with theft, had her case nolled upon the recommendation of Prosecuting Attorney Charles B. Whittlesey, who stated that he did not like to see a youngster have a criminal record against her.

Lorenzo B. Fairbrother, Jr., of New London, had his case nolled. He was charged with violation of the motor vehicle law as the result of a collision with Raymond Stein. The prosecutor expressed the opinion that Stein seemed mostly to blame for the accident.

John Quinn of New London, a cripple, charged with violation of the liquor law, had his case continued until the next term.

Frank H. Redden of New London was fined $50 and costs for operating without a license. He paid the fine and costs which amounted to more than $60. He was found not guilty of operating under the influence of liquor.

Fred W. Wendel of Norwich, pleaded not guilty to non-support. He will be tried later during the week.

Had Diogenes visited this county while on his famous still hunt some get-rich-quick promoter would have swiped his lantern.

HARRY A. KIRBY CONFESSES MURDER OF ADIA HAYWARD

Declares That in a Drunken Frenzy He Shot the Aunt, Mrs. Emma Towns; Then Took Miss Hayward to the Gray Cottage, a Mile and Three-Quarters Distant—Then Returned to the Haywood College and Set It Afire—Miss Hayward, Whom He Had Bound, Was Murdered Next Day at the Gray Cottage.

Augusta, Me., June 3.—(A. P.)—Harry A. Kirby today confessed to County Attorney Frank A. Southard to murdering Miss Aida Hayward, shooting her aunt, Mrs. Emma Towns, and firing the Hayward cottage on the night of May 19 at Lake Maranacook, Winthrop.

Kirby said that he was drunk and that he did the initial deed, that of shooting the aunt, in a drunken frenzy, taking the younger woman with him to the Gray cottage, a mile and three-quarters up the car track, binding her, returning to the Hayward cottage, setting the fire in an upstairs room, and returning to the Gray cottage, where he murdered the Hayward girl the next day.

Kirby passed over eight hours today closeted with a Boston newspaper man and guarded by Turnkey George Castle in which the self-confessed slayer told the story of his life from his earliest recollection to his capture and arrival at the Kennebeck county jail.

Between the time of his arising this morning from a sleepless bed and his confession to County Attorney Southard, Kirby threatened to commit suicide and he is being carefully watched.

BODY OF THOMAS R. MARSHALL RESTS IN INDIANAPOLIS HOME

Indianapolis, Ind., June 3—(A. P.)—The body of Thomas R. Marshall, rested tonight in the quiet of his Hoosier home, a big rambling house with a book nook and a broad veranda selected by him as an ideal place to spend his declining years.

The capital of the state over which he presided as chief executive claimed the body with such simple ceremony as it was believed he would have approved.

The train bearing the casket from Washington, where for eight years he had served as vice-president with characteristic humbleness, and where his eyes closed forever last Monday, was met at the Union station here by an escort composed of friends and members of organizations with which he had been affiliated.

Through streets silent except for church chimes pealing out his favorite hymn "Lead Kindly Light," the body and its escort passed to the North Illinois street residence where tomorrow Scottish rite services will be held before the body is committed to the receiving vault to await a decision by Mrs. Marshall as to its final disposition.

There was no display except of grief and reverence. It was the home coming rather of a simple citizen beloved of many for his kindliness rather than the return of one who had been high in state and national councils.

Respecting the wishes of Mrs. Marshall the state confined its marks of respect to participation in the escorting party of Gov. Ed. Jackson and other officials. Public offices were closed and flags flown at half staff.

Mrs. Marshall bearing bravely her grief spent the day at her home with Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh, with whom she was intimate in Washington and with other friends close to the family.

AMERICAN BLUEJACKETS LANDED AT SHANGHAI

Washington, June 3—Conditions at Shanghai were described as "exceedingly serious" in a cablegram received by the state department today from Consul General Cunningham, with indications that the trouble would spread beyond the international settlement at that city.

The municipal authorities in the international zone, the message said, were believed to have conditions well in hand, and commercial interests, foreign organizations and individual Chinese were working for the restoration of order there.

The consul general estimated that the strike of Chinese workers at the time his message was sent involved probably 50,000 men in addition to the workers in the Shanghai cotton mills where the trouble originated. All shops in the international settlement remained closed, he said.

The message placed the number of American bluejackets landed June 3, to guard the light and power supplies at 200 men, with an equal force of Italian bluejackets also put ashore. It added that additional war vessels had been made necessary by the sniping tactics adopted by the Chinese students who are leading in the disorders, and that two more British cruisers were due at Shanghai today.

The wound received by Dr. T. C. McMartin, an American volunteer who was struck by a bullet on the afternoon of June 2 in a clash between Chinese and the volunteers and police, was slight, the consul general reported. Dr. McMartin is the only American thus far known at the state department to have been wounded during the disturbances at Shanghai.

STATEMENT BY COUNSEL FOR DEFENSE IN SHEPHERD CASE

Chicago, June 3—(A. P.)—Efforts to obtain a jury in the Shepherd murder trial were enlivened by a defense attack on Harry Olson, chief justice of Chicago's municipal courts and chief figure in the investigation which resulted in Shepherd's indictment and trial. No other jurors were chosen.

In questioning Carl Bjelland, William Scott Stewart, chief of Shepherd's counsel, accused Judge Olson of being vicious, vindictive and back of the prosecution, and, after objections of the prosecution had halted his examination, Stewart said to Judge Thomas J. Lynch:—

"We intend to show by testimony of witnesses that Judge Olson wanted to be made the guardian of 'Billy' McClintock, and that if he were he never would have to bother about politics or practicing law again.

"We intend to show by another witness that Judge Olson has made a deal with the McClintock heirs whereby he hopes to get a part of Billy's money or the widow of Dr. Oscar Olson."

Announcing himself as "defender of the dead" Judge Olson forced investigation of the death of Young McClintock, for sixteen years Shepherd's foster son, charging the youth's death by typhoid fever had been caused by Shepherd as a step in a plot nearly a quarter of a century old to get the McClintock millions.

TO INTENSIFY OFFENSIVE AGAINST THE RUM FLEET

Washington, June 3—(A. P.)—Indications were given at the treasury tonight that plans were going forward for a far-reaching offensive by the coast guard against rum fleets hovering about thickly populated points of the American coast.

The recent drive against the rum fleet off New York was described in a formal statement as "in reality a preliminary skirmish designed to uncover the strength and the resources of the enemy." Unstinted praise was given the coast guard for the work it had done, and the statement declared that Assistant Secretary Andrews, the field marshal of prohibition forces, "is most emphatic in insisting that no credit should be given him for the recent operations."

Officials declared to disclose the nature of the plans under consideration. In connection with the moves being made to curb the smuggling of liquor, the coast guard has renewed its efforts to retain in the service men whose enlistments are expiring and who have been found to be of the type desired for the work. Officials in the office of Rear Admiral F. C. Billard, the commandant, however, discounted tales of wholesale refusals to enlist, explaining that many men are no longer wanted in the service.

The coast guard will have its complete strength, as provided in the last appropriation for equipment, by the end of the summer, as I said; and the officers guiding the work are making their plans in anticipation of the time when all ships now contracted for will be available.

REORGANIZATION OF THE ELECTRIC CABLE COMPANY

Bridgeport, Conn., June 3—Subject to confirmation by the United States court for the southern district of New York on June 10, control of the Electric Cable company, thriving Bridgeport industry, passed into the hands of a reorganization committee of creditors at a public sale today. The creditors entered the single bid, which was the amount of their claims $1,480,024. The bid, pursuant to the order of the court was in amount of claims, not cash.

The sale covered all property of the company in Bridgeport and all claims of the company from associated companies. The associates are the bare wire company of Nupperhan, N. Y., and the Habirshaw Electric Cable company of Yonkers, N. Y. These two industries will be sold at public auction on Friday at the respective plants and considered for confirmation at the same time. The creditors committee is headed by E. A. Potter of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York bond holders of the companies. The sales when confirmed will be followed by a winding up of the receivership which has been pending for some months and will place the industries back on an operating basis.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED OF MISS ISABEL ROCKEFELLER

New York, June 3—The engagement of Miss Isabel Rockefeller, grand niece of John D. Rockefeller, to Frederick W. Lincoln, Jr., of New York, has been announced by Miss Rockefeller's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy A. Rockefeller of New York and Greenwich.

Miss Rockefeller has been studying for three years in the bacteriological department of Columbia University and since last September has been instructor of biology in that institution. She is a grand-daughter of the late William Rockefeller and the late James Stillman, Sr., for many years president of the National city bank.

Mr. Lincoln is a Princeton graduate and is in business in this city. The marriage which will take place at Greenwich, Conn., in the fall, will be the second alliance between the two families, A cousin of Miss Rockefeller was married to a sister of Mr. Lincoln in 1918.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

President Coolidge went to Annapolis to address Naval academy graduates.

Reports to the state department from China told of continued disturbances there.

The Coronado Coal company asked the supreme court for a rehearing in the Arkansas strike case.

BARN WAS STRUCK BY LIGHTNING AND BURNED

Newtown, Conn., June 3—The large hay barn on the farm of George Mayer in the Palestine district of Newtown, was struck by lightning during a severe storm this afternoon and was burned to the ground. Eighteen tons of hay and some farm machinery were destroyed. The loss is estimated at $4,000.

About the worst examples a small boy ever meets with are in his arithmetic.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Death of James Wadsworth

Florence, Italy, June 3—James Wadsworth of New York, capitalist and art collector, died today at his villa, Palmiera, near here, the place where Boccaccio is said to have written the Decameron.

PRESIDENT ADDRESS AT ANNAPOLIS GRADUATION

Washington, June 3—President Coolidge set aside most of today to take part in the graduation exercises of the United States Naval academy.

Leaving by motor shortly after breakfast, Mr. Coolidge planned after delivery of a commencement address to have luncheon at the academy, returning by late afternoon to clear up his desk.

Concern in some circles, both here and at Annapolis as to whether Ramon Navarro, movie actor, would be allowed to line up with the cadets to receive a "dummy" diploma from the hands of the president as part of a motion picture was dispelled by announcement of abandonment of the plan yesterday by Secretary Wilbur.

While President Coolidge felt the pictures of the graduation could be used by films for commercial purposes it was said at the White House he did not believe the presidential office should be used for advertising purposes in any way.

Reduction of the nation's standing military forces to a minimum is predicated upon attention to military affairs by the average citizen, President Coolidge declared today before the graduating class of the Naval Academy.

While appointing the new officers as ambassadors of peace and citizenship, the president reminded them that the first essential of peace and security is an adequate defense, which "should be broadly extended and borne by all our people."

"We do not believe in or wish to bear the expense to maintain large standing military forces," he said. "The very genius of a republic would be threatened by that policy. But while military science has advanced to such a degree that it is necessary constantly to maintain a considerable body of trained experts in that profession, the true spirit of American institutions requires that each citizen should be potentially a soldier, ready to take his place in the ranks in time of peril, either in the field or in the necessary productive activity.

"It is exactly because we wish to keep our standing forces small that the average citizen must give some attention to military affairs, precisely as he gives some attention to other government affairs, in order that he may express a deliberate and informed judgment at the ballot box."

The president reiterated that America's aim was "a policy of peace through reason rather than force", and declared that in its dealings with the peoples of this and other nations, the Navy must remember that the "dominant traits of mankind are truth and justice and righteousness, and that the appeal to reason must ultimately prevail."

"Though ultimately I believe peace will prevail," he continued, "I have too much knowledge of the history of mankind and too much experience with the traits of human nature to dare to assert that we shall never again be engaged in war. It is known of all the world that we have no present traditional enmities, that we covet no territory, harbor no imperialistic designs, and are not arming ourselves with the expectation of attacking or being attacked. And so far as we can look into the future, so far as we can gauge the power and temper of other peoples, there never was a time when it was less likely that any other nation or combination of nations would or could make any attack on us.

"As one who is responsible not only for our national defense, but likewise our friendly relations with other peoples and our title to the good opinion of the world, I feel that the occasion will very seldom arise, and I know it does not now exist, when those connected with our Navy are justified, either directly or by inference, in asserting that other specified powers are arming against us, and by arousing national suspicion and hatred, attempting to cause us to arm against them.

"The suggestion that any other people are harboring a hostile intent toward us is a very serious charge to make. We would not relish having our honorable motives and peaceful intentions questioned; other can not relish having any of us question theirs. We should not forget that in the world over the general attitude and one of the strongest attributes to all peoples is a desire to do right.

As an instrument of peace, Mr. Coolidge gave assurance that the navy would draw adequate support from the federal treasury and he gave support also to voluntary organizations which attempted to advance the welfare of the navy by keeping the public informed "of its true aims and purposes." A strong military establishment alone, he said, would not prevent anyos from ever attempting to molest the nation.

"I know of no nation in history that has even been able to attain that position," he said. "I see no reason to expect that we could be the exception. Although I believe thoroughly in adequate trying to argue is that they are not sufficient unto themselves.

"If we are to promote peace on quate military preparations, what I earth we must have a great deal more than the power of the sword. We must call into action the spiritual and moral forces of mankind."

AMERICANS PROMINENT IN ARMS TRAFFIC CONFERENCE

Geneva, June 3—(A. P.)—The American delegation took a prominent part in the proceedings of the Arms Traffic Conference, which revolved about the question of the formalities which must accompany the exportation of arms, to be used, or not used, for war purposes. Both representative Theodore E. Burton and the American minister, Hugh S. Gibson, spoke.

The essence of the controversy was that countries like the United States and Belgium, which are large producers of rifles, carbines and revolvers—weapons falling into both peace and war categories—were seeking to protect their home industries from restrictions which they feared would close many foreign markets to them.

Mr. Burton succeeded in forcing the adoption of a clause, whereby rifles, muskets and carbines, in the category of war weapons, may be exported direct to rifle clubs and similar associations duly authorized by their governments to use them. The final vote was 19 in favor of this clause and 3 against it.

Defense Test in Conn. Some Day This Year

Governor Trumbull Will Order a Surprise Mobilization of the National Guard.

Hartford, Conn., June 3—A surprise mobilization of the Connecticut National guard will be ordered by Governor Trumbull as a defense test for this state at some date this year, it was announced today at the executive offices. There will be no official defense test in Connecticut on the Fourth of July, the date set for a national defense test, on the ground that a fair test could not be had on a national holiday when many of the state troops will be out of the state.

"Rather than have a poor test, we will have no test in Connecticut on Independence Day," said the governor. "The war department has asked us to do what we think will be for the best interests of the state, and we have decided that the best interest will be served if we undertake a test which will actually show what Connecticut can do in the event of an emergency." No warning of any kind will be given to the military office of the mobilization call to be issued by the governor. The call will be issued suddenly exactly as would have to be done in an emergency. Each of the twelve members of the governor's staff, every one of whom is a trained soldier, will be assigned to a different mobilization point to record the response and reports will then be made to the governor's office, director of the state of preparedness, in which the state's troops were found. Nothing of this kind has ever been attempted in Connecticut.

The governor reiterated that, far from being in disparagement of the national defense policy, his contemplated action is in hearty accord with it, but the report of the defense test in Connecticut would necessarily be made to the war department after those of the states which have decided to make their test on the Fourth of July.

He felt that the Connecticut plan had the additional advantage of not calling upon the soldiers to give up their holiday and doing military duty without the usual pay. The day to be selected by him for the state test, he said, would be an ordinary working day and the men would be called from their employment or recreation, wherever they might be, to report to the mobilization order. He said that Connecticut employers would undoubtedly be glad to cooperate in the emergency employes to respond for such a purpose.

OLIVER FREMSTEAD, OPERA SINGER, SUES FOR DIVORCE

Portland, Me., June 3—(A. P.)—Oliver Fremstead, opera and concert singer, appeared in the superior court of Cumberland county and asked a divorce from her husband, Harry Lewis Brainard, whose place of residence is unknown to her.

She charged desertion since 1918. After hearing the artist tell her brief story, Judge Arthur Chapman reserved decision.

Few court officials knew who "Oliver Brainard" was until Madam Fremstead started to testify in the practically deserted courtroom.

"My husband went to California in 1918, after announcing that he would take a little trip and have a rest. He hasn't come back since then," she explained.

Madame Fremstead, who said that her residence is at Bridgton, where she has a summer villa, declared that she could assign no reason for her husband's departure.

Two other witnesses stated that to their knowledge, Brainard has not resided with Madame Fremstead for the past three years.

DIPLOMA OF WESLEYAN GRADUATE ATTACHED

Middletown, Conn., June 3—A diploma of Howard A. Schweiker, of Albany, N. Y., a senior at Wesleyan University and captain of the tennis team, was attached here today in a damage suit brought for $100 by Max Press, inc., a local tailoring firm, for alleged non-payment on clothes.

The papers were served on Dr. J. I. McConaughy, president-elect of the university. The suit is returnable on June 16.

DRY FORCES DEFEAT WETS IN ILLINOIS HOUSE 79 TO 66

Springfield, Ill., June 3—(A. P.)—Dry forces in the Illinois house defeated a bill to repeal the state search and seizure law. The vote was 79 to 65.

Scenes of wild disorder marked debate when advocates of the repeal measure attempted to howl down several who spoke in opposition.

DR. NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER SEES PERNICIOUSNESS IN NEWLY MADE LAWS

New York, June 3—Some phases of prohibition and of objections to the theory of evolution were the subjects of caustic reference today by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler in a commencement address at Columbia university, of which he is president.

The words "fanaticism," "new barbarians," and "tyranny" were among his characterizations. Taking "courage" for his subject, he appealed to 3,543 new graduates to fight against reactionary and levelling movements which he said had interrupted the progress of civilization.

"Judges, prosecuting officers and members of legislative bodies, both national and state, talk, act and vote one way and daily drink another," he said. "They have neither the courage to voice their true opinions nor the character to conform their private conduct to their public profession.

"Laws enacted through fanaticism or in crass ignorance bid fair to make law-breaking a cardinal virtue. Such laws are killing respect for law. What was merely a Boston tea party in 1773 is now a nation-wide revolt against tyranny and statutory folly. Hysterical attempts at lawless and lawbreaking enforcement of one particular law only adds fuel to the flame.

"The legislature and the governor of Tennessee have with every appearance of equanimity just now joined a violently affronting popular intelligence and have made it impossible for a scholar to be a teacher in that state without becoming at the same time a lawbreaker.

"The legislature and governor of Indiana have likewise taken occasion to dance in ghoulish glee on the prostrate forms of common sense and the most elementary of the inherited liberties of free people."

(This referred to a new state prohibition enforcement act.)

"No abuse is too great to be visited upon the hapless individual who still ventures to have a mind and character of his own.

"These new and persecuting barbarians are of a kind with their ancient forbears, who from their seats in the arena gloated with joy as the stricken gladiator or the Christian martyr ended his life in agony. These new barbarians have abandoned Christianity, deserted morality, for the barbaric pleasures of torment and persecution.

"The notion that a majority must have its way, whether in matters of opinion or in matters of personal conduct, is as pestilent and anti-democratic a notion as can possibly be conceived. The majority has no function whatever in matters of opinion or personal conduct, and can have none unless all morality is to be abandoned. The rule of the majority is simply a working plan to decide upon policies in matters of common or general concern."

Five Armed Robbers Escaped With $2,000

Weston, Mass., June 3—Five armed men held up the cashier of the Terrace Gardens Inn here early today and escaped with $2,000 from the cash register.

One of the robbers mingled with the guests from midnight on and remained till the last stragglers had departed. A pre-arranged signal from him and his four companions entered. They leveled revolvers at the cashier's head, with the announcement that "the first one who moves will die." Then they emptied the register of its night's receipts, hurried to an automobile and disappeared under cover of darkness.

IN QUEST OF MURDERER OF MISS FLORENCE KANE

New York, June 3—A pair of blood-stained workman's gloves found near the body of Miss Florence Kane, slain in a lot near her home in Brooklyn last Friday, today developed into the most important clue the police have yet discovered in their search for the murderer.

Announcement that the gloves were found to be stained with blood was made by Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, toxicologist, attached to the medical examiner's office, at about the same time that William Brassfield, a negro janitor and ex-convict, was held without bail on suspicion of being the murderer.

Brassfield was positively identified at police headquarters by Miss Irene Coyne as the negro she saw on the night of the murder near the vacant lot where Miss Kane was slain. Miss Helen Connors, who was with Miss Coyne, said she was not positive the prisoner was the man, but that he looked like him."

Police found that Brassfield had worked occasionally in a coal company's yards three blocks from the Kane home.

GOV. PEAY DISGUSTED WITH EVOLUTION "BOSH"

Clarksville, Tenn., June 3—(A. P.)—Declaring that evolution is "all bosh," Governor Austin Peay, declared here that he expects to get as far as possible from the trial of J. T. Scopes of Dayton, Tenn., on a charge of violating the Tennessee law against the teaching of evolution theories.

The governor predicted that the trial would not last more than thirty minutes and asserted that instead of going to the higher courts it "should be taken back to the country."

"As long as the evolutionists stick to the present Tennessee text books in their teachings they can do no harm," he says.

PERU TO PARTICIPATE IN TACNA-ARICA PLEBISCITE

Lima, Peru, June 3—(A. P.)—Augusto V. Leguia, president of the republic, informed the Associated Press that Peru would participate in the Tacna-Arica plebiscite and that it would announce the appointment of its representative on the plebiscite commission next week.

"I have every reason to believe that Peru will win at the referendum," the president continued, "because President Coolidge has been very explicit in his last note to Peru regarding the guarantees we sought for a free manifestation of the popular will at the polls."

CONDITION OF SEC'Y WEEKS SATISFACTORY YESTERDAY

Boston, June 3—(A. P.)—Secretary of War John W. Weeks, who was operated upon for gall stones at the Massachusetts General hospital last Thursday "passed a satisfactory day," according to a bulletin issued early tonight by his physicians, Drs. Daniel Fiske Jones and F. Gorham Brigham.

The doctor's bulletin said:

"Secretary Weeks has passed a satisfactory day. While still in a critical condition, there has been a slight but definite change for the better. Temperature normal. Pulse 88."

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE RULING ON MAXWELL MOTORS

New York, June 3—The governing committee of the New York Stock exchange which has been conducting an investigation into the market position of Maxwell Motors A and B stocks, announced tonight that trading in these issues would be suspended because of the small amount of stocks outstanding. This does not affect trading in Maxwell Motors A and B certificates, which represent stocks deposited under the recapitulation plan.

MANY FATALITIES CAUSED BY HEAT, WIND, LIGHTNING

In Three Days Heat Has Caused 39 Deaths and More Than 100 Prostrations in the Country—In the Eastern States 12 Persons Have Died and More Than 60 Have Been Overcome—Severe Wind and Electrical Storms in the Middle Western States—Freakish Weather Extends From the Atlantic to the Pacific Coast.

New York, June 3.—(A. P.)—Eastern states sweltered again today under a heat wave which in three days has caused thirty-nine deaths in the country and more than 100 prostrations. In the eastern states twelve have died and more than sixty have become overcome.

Death of an aged inmate of a home for the infirm today was New York city's first heat fatality for the summer. Eleven other persons were overcome, one of them so seriously that he attempted to slash himself to death on board the liner Mauretania as she was about to put to sea.

The highest temperature for the day was reached at 4 o'clock this afternoon when the mercury climbed to 92, within two degrees of the record for the day set in 1895. Official forecast was "continued warm," with no relief in sight for 36 hours.

At 5 o'clock the temperature had dropped four degrees. The humidity ratio was 48, as compared with 76 at 8 o'clock this morning.

STORMS IN THE MIDDLE AND WESTERN STATES

Chicago, Ill., June 3.—(A. P.)—Fourteen persons were reported dead up to noon today in wind and electrical storms in some approaching tornadoes, in middle western and western states.

The casualties stood at:

Five in Minneapolis and vicinity.

Four in Iowa, three at Adair and one at Smith Land.

Four in Nebraka, three at North Bend and one at Orchard.

One at Bozeman, Mont.

In addition two drownings, one at Chicago and one at Duluth were included in lists of casualties.

Ten Dead in Ohio.

Columbus, Ohio, June 3.—(A. P.)—Ten dead and a number of others seriously ill or injured was the toll up to noon today in Ohio, due to the excessive hot weather of the last 48 hours.

FREAKISH WEATHER FROM ATLANTIC TO PACIFIC

Chicago, June 3.—(A. P.)—Freakish weather from Los Angeles where nobles of the Mystic Shrine were compelled to forego their parade because of a "most unusual" June rain, to the Atlantic seaboard, which still sweltered beneath a heat wave that has forced the thermometer to unseasonable heights, was the order today.

Electrical storms and tornadoes have accompanied the heat wave in portions of the middle west, resulting in numerous casualties and large property damage.

At Omaha, Nebr., a large crowd at the Ak-Sar-Ben race track rushed madly to an open field and threw themselves face downward in the mud when funnel clouds appeared on the horizon. Torrential rains followed on the heels of the heat wave and damage of $750,000 being reported from a six-inch fall at St. Joseph, Mo., early today.

The death toll from the severe wind and rainstorm that struck the region around Minneapolis, Minn., last night remained at five. The storm dead total for Iowa amounted to eight when reports were received today of the deaths of three persons in a tornado that struck Adair, Iowa, last night. In Nebraska, four persons met death as the result of small tornadoes and a general electrical storm Tuesday night.

In Chicago, Charles F. Hylander, traffic manager of the William Wrigley, Jr., company, collapsed in his office and died. So unusual was the heat here that a merciful federal judge took pity on the jurors deliberating on a $1,000,000 war savings stamp counterfeiting case and permitted them to cease deliberations for the night.

Reports from Columbus, Ohio, said the number of dead in that state since the inception of the sizzling weather has reached ten today.

Some relief for the heat was hoped as the rains which came to the territory west of the Mississippi river were sweeping east.

Three Deaths in Philadelphia

Philadelphia, June 3——Three deaths from the heat were reported today and a number of persons were overcome.

Ninety-four degrees at 4 p. m., was the highest the thermometer recorded, four degrees lower than yesterday, but the humidity was 20 degrees higher. Weather bureau officials said no relief was in sight for at least 24 hours.

1925 GENERAL ASSEMBLY HAS ADJOURNED SINE DIE

Hartford, Conn., June 3—The general assembly session of 1925 was adjourned sine die at 3:45 p. m., standard time, this afternoon after two stanzas of "America" had been sung. Governor John H. Trumbull had given the members a parting message. Deputy Sheriff House had called "Oyez" three times and Secretary of State Francis A. Pallotti had made the proclamation dissolving the body when the singers struck into the anthem. The governor held his gavel poised in the air until the music died away. In an instant there was the noise and bustle of members hurrying to get out of the superheated atmosphere in which for hours they had sweltered and contributed to a joyous uproar greater than any previous legislature had indulged in.

The house of representatives for hours was the scene of merry making, of mardi gras coloring, of song and joke, and toward the end, of missiles throwing which kept the members as busy as African dodgers. What little business had to be done was sandwiched into the proceedings from time to time as Speaker Darbie, coatless and with a jaunty cap on his head, wielded the gavel. It was the senate, heretofore on the heels of the house which was deep in business.

The spectacle of the house scenes was provided by the women members, who as flower girls, in summer raiment with caps and aprons and trays of flowers, marched into the chamber and sang songs. Later they staged a part of the mock legislative procedure at the expense of members who had developed traits of interest in the course of the session.

The governor took the gavel and read a short message in which he pointed out that the state appropriations were well within the estimated resources of the state for the next two years.

AVIATOR HOWARD HELD FOR SECOND DEGREE ASSAULT

Hempstead, N. Y., June 3—Raymond Howard, a commercial aviator, of Mineola, was held in $2,000 bail for grand jury action today on a charge of second degree assault. It is alleged that he deliberately ran his automobile into a car in which his former sweetheart was returning home after marrying another man.

The young woman, who was Miss Irene Truesdell, was married yesterday at Greenwich, Conn., to Perry Gordon, of New York, a magazine writer. As they were driving to her home with friends, Howard, it is alleged, caused a collision in which Mrs. Joseph Susskin, who was with the Gordons, was seriously injured.

GOV. SMITH OF NEW YORK TO RECUPERATE IN ALBANY

New York, June 3—Governor Alfred E. Smith returned to Albany this afternoon to recuperate from the throat ailment that left him voiceless for the past three days and confined him to his room in the Hotel Biltmore. All conferences for the coming week have been called off, it was announced.

POULET IS TO FORM NEW BELGIAN MINISTRY

Brussels, Belgium, June 3—Viscount Poulet, who was minister of interior in the Theunis cabinet, has accepted King Albert's invitation to form a new Belgian ministry.

NONEWS FROM AMUNDSEN NOT ALARMING TO NANSEN

Geneva, June 3—Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, veteran Arctic explorer and relief worker, declared today that absence of news from the Amundsen flying expedition to the North Pole does not justify the deduction that a catastrophe or even an accident has occurred.

Even if one airplane has been damaged, the six members of the expedition, Dr. Nansen, if Amundsen is attempting to return from the Pole by foot it will require 25 days to reach Cape Columbia, Grantland, off the northwest coast of Greenland, but sixteen months might be required to reach a locality from which it would be possible to resume contact with the world.

SHANGHAI QUIET AFTER FIVE DAYS OF EXCITEMENT

Shanghai, June 3—The city was quiet this morning after five days of excitement caused by the riots of students protesting against the prosecution of strikers in Japanese cotton mills and their clashes with defense forces which were maintaining order. The strike, however, appears to be spreading.

The food control committee has announced that there is no need for hoarding as sufficient supplies for all requirements are assured.

The committee has also guaranteed the continuance of essential services although it is said foreigners may have to do their own house and other work owing to the threatened strike of servants.

NO VIZAS FOR PILGRIMS GOING TO JERUSALEM

Cairo, Egypt, June 3—The government of the Hedjas has informed the Egyptian government that owing to disturbances and disorders in the country between Jeddah and Mecca, the Hedjaz cannot accept the responsibility for the safety of pilgrims going to the Holy City.

The Hedjaz representative in Cairo has issued instructions that no vizas be given to pilgrims until quiet is restored in the territory between the Red Sea port and Mecca.

LASSOED RUNAWAY HORSE WITH HIS SAM BROWN BELT

Bridgeport, Conn., June 3—Chasing a runaway horse today for three miles along the highways of Stratfield, Special Deputy Sheriff John Fuller leaped from his motorcycle and lassoed the horse with his Sam Brown belt to which his time clock was attached. Fuller hung on to his improvised lasso and after being dragged half a mile along Buena Vista road, the motorcycle officer had the wild horse quieted and in hand.

OBITUARY

Edwin M. Beckwith

Bridgeport, Conn., June 3—Edwin M. Beckwith, 46 years old, telegraph editor of the Bridgeport Post, died at St. Vincent's hospital here this afternoon following an attack of heart disease and convulsions. Mr. Beckwith had a similar attack three weeks ago when he fell against a kitchen stove, from which he had apparently recovered. He leaves a wife and three children. In newspaper work for a number of years, he worked on many papers over the state. He came here from Waterbury.

WILLIMANTIC

Miss Amy L. Hooker, president of the local textile council, presided at the meeting of the striking members of the American Thread company, at the usual meeting Wednesday morning at the Gem theatre. The speakers were Frank McCarthy, of Boston, and Miss Mary Kelleher, of Scranton, Pa, [illegible] substance the talk had to do with [illegible] of Labor and its [illegible] having to do [illegible] the situation were [illegible]

[illegible] officials have been [illegible] the police court by Judge [illegible] republican; Prosecuting Attorney Harry S. Gaucher, republican, assisting prosecuting attorney Samuel B. Harvey, democrat. The city judge, appointed by the governor is Russell A. Andrews. Mr. Fenton succeeds Attorney Samuel B. Harvey, democrat; Mr. Fenton's is a reappointment, and Mr. Andrews succeeds Attorney Curtis Dean, republican. In spite of the fact that a special act was passed by the legislature allowing the judge to appoint a prosecuting attorney and assisting prosecuting attorney of the same political faith as himself, the political personnel of the court officials is a fifty-fifty proposition. The oath of office was administered Tuesday by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Fenton to Judge Foss, Deputy Judge Andrews and Prosecuting Attorney Gaucher. Mr. Fenton was then sworn in by Judge Foss.

Judge Foss has been a resident of Willimantic for a number of years, coming to this city from Norwich, some time after being admitted to the bar. Mr. Andrews is a native of Willimantic, serving his third year as first selectman of Windham, and having the distinction of being the youngest member of the board in the history of the town. Mr. Gaucher is a native of Baltic. Following his admission to the bar, he practised law in Norwich for some time, and has resided and practised law in Willimantic since January, 1923. Mr. Fenton is also a native of Willimantic, known and respected by every man, woman and child, in the Thread City. The three probation officers appointed by Judge Foss are, S. Arnold Peckham, Elizabeth P. Anderson, and Susan Green.

The weekly meeting of the Exchange club was held with a good attendance at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday noon. The president, Dr. George E. Wilcox presided. It was voted to levy a small assessment on any member who shall appear at a meeting during the summer months wearing a coat. A committee was appointed to make arrangements for a special supper to be held later in the month: Edwin J. Donnelly, chairman; Frank M. Lincoln, Edwin P. Hayes, Egbert A. Case and Ralph U. Wolmer. The meeting of next Wednesday is to be omitted on account of the joint session at St. Paul's Parish house with the Rotary club. H. W. Baker, of New York city, was the guest of Secretary Robert H. Fenton.

The marriage of Miss May Ethel Clayton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Clayton, of South Coventry, and Frank Harvey Burtnett, of South Lancaster, Mass., took place Monday evening at 6 at the home of the bride. The ceremony was performed under a bridal arch of roses, by Elder C. P. Lillie, of the Seventh Day Adventist church, of which both bride and groom are members. The bride was gowned in white satin and carried an arm bouquet of bride roses. She was attended by Miss Julia Shaw. The best man was Fred McGuire. Supper was served, and musical selections were given by Mrs. Thomas Wells, of Coventry. Mr. and Mrs. Burtnett will reside in South Lancaster.

At the Windham Girls' club June party held at their rooms Tuesday evening, the door award went to Mrs. R. H. Worden, and the surprise cake was awarded Mrs. Louise Belanger. The committee assisting Mrs. John Farrell included Mrs. Elizabeth Rood, Mrs. J. O. Bergeron, and Misses Mildred Moulton, Rose Caisse, Leda Caisse, Minnie Peterson, Loretta Lussier, Ruth Russ, Ethel Connor, Blanche Hallahan and Alice Peterson.

A fine of $10 and costs, amounting to $13.15, which was paid, was imposed Wednesday morning in police court by Judge Foss at a continuation of the case of Fred Boucher, charged with intoxication, to which he pleaded guilty.

An exhibition of work done in their classes in domestic science, home nursing, household management, cookery and sewing, was given at Windham High school, from 2 to 5 Wednesday afternoon, by Miss Helen Barker and Miss Josephine Lennox, of the high school faculty. Demonstration of the care of a patient, budgets, balanced menus, the preparation of foods, and the arrangement of the table for a meal were given with skill by the pupils. Wafers and punch, prepared by the cooking classes were served the visitors. The exhibition of hand work, including home projects, besides class work, included very well made dresses, hats, children's dresses, lingerie, linens, negligees, and several tailored wool dresses and coats. All the work showed excellent instruction and careful preparation.

At the meeting of Violet Rebekah lodge, I. O. O. F., Tuesday evening in Odd Fellows' hall, it was voted to unite with the Odd Fellows in holding memorial exercises June 14. Grand Noble Mrs. Amy T. Brown is to attend the exercises at Fairview, Grand Master's day, when the corner stone of the new infirmary is to be laid.

The marriage of Miss Mildred B. Wright, of Willimantic, and Raymond W. Goodale, of Highland Park, Manchester, took place Tuesday morning in Springfield, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. Goodale left at once for a wedding trip.

Mrs. Frank Larrabee and Mrs. Herbert P. Chappell were among those to attend the meeting of the D. A. R. at the Ellsworth Manor at Windsor, on Tuesday.

Thirty-three arrests were made by members of the local police department during May. The number was increased by the arrests of 16 strikers of the American Thread company, for minor violations in the early part of the month. Eleven arrests have been made already by the police in the first three days of June.

Judge James F. Twomey, district manager of a life insurance company of New York, delivered an address on Life Insurance before the 1925 graduating class fo Connecticut Agricultural college at Gulley Hall, Storrs, Wednesday evening.

Mrs. John C. Tracy, travelling in Oregon writes to friends in town of going to Portland from San Francisco by the coast route, and describes beautiful scenery and very bad roads in the extremely northern part of California. Mrs. Tracy is to leave in a few days for Seattle.

During May, eight cases of contagious diseases were reported in the city of Willimantic by Dr. W. P. S. Keating; lobar pneumonia, 4; whooping cough, 4; in April, scarlet fever 2, lobar pneumonia 2, tuberculosis, bronchial pneumonia, diphtheria and whooping cough, one each.

Thermometers in the sun on Main street Wednesday afternoon registered one hundred degrees and over. Older residents of the city say they never remember it so hot this early in June.

At the meeting of the board of selectmen John A. McKenna was appointed truant officer on the recommendation of the town school committee for June and September.

UNCASVILLE MAN FINED— FAILED TO PAY HIS TAXES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, June 3—Charged with an evasion of personal and property taxes in the town of Mansfield, Charles McCracken of Uncasville appeared in the Mansfield town court Tuesday evening, and pleaded guilty to the charge. Mr. McCracken was a resident of Mansfield in October when the personal tax enumeration was made, and when he failed to respond to a notification to pay his taxes a warrant was made out for his arrest and served by State Policeman Henry Heinold. The case was prosecuted by Grand Juror Frank W. Millard. On the payment of costs in the case, amounting to $16.45, besides the tax on an automobile of $9.50 and a personal tax of $2., making a total of $27.95, the case was nolled by Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews.

THREAD CO. WARNS OUT 150 STRIKER TENANTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, June 3—One hundred and fifty families, representatives of the strikers of the American Thread company, were served dispossess notices, Wednesday afternoon, by virtue of an order of the concern that all tenements owned by the company and occupied by strikers be evacuated. The notices demand an eviction within ten days, that is June 13th, which is the time required by law. The serving of the notices was by Sheriff J. H. Fitts, of Hampton and A. J. Greensilt of this city. The officers were well received by the tenants. The notices were given out irrespective of whether or not the rents, which amount to $1.75 to $2.75 per week, had been paid to date since the beginning of the strike, 13 weeks ago. In most instances no payments had been made during that period. The company owns a total of 175 tenements located in Lower Village and at The Oaks on Quercus avenue. Exception to the order was made in families where one or more of the members of the household remain at work at the plant and in three or four cases where the heads of the families were listed on the pension roll. There is considerable talk that the ejected familes will set themselves up in a tent city.

DANIELSON

The butcher, the baker and the candlestick-maker—to indicate, it may be said—the interest in the talked of changes from the present running time of the boat trains through Danielson, discussed the matter Wednesday.

Since no definite announcement has been made officially by the railroad relative to the proposed change, organizations, corporations and individuals that are prepared to protest are for the time being refraining from framing any definite form of action. But they are going to protest. This is certain!

One manufacturing concern in nearby territory is already up in arms about it. One can imagine, too, how the farmers who ship milk to Boston are going to cheer for the change. Banks and business houses will find themselves handicapped by the closing of the last mail here as early, possibly, at 4:46 p. m., standard time.

On the ground that the mail service in and out of Danielson and other communities along the line will not be adequate under the proposed change, the postoffice department likely will be invited to see what it can do about having the already limited service retained as it is.

Well-informed people are not inclined to question the railroad's contention that trains on runs through this territory do not pay. That is generally understood and believed. What interested communities and organizations within them will seek will be the running of such trains as run on schedules most helpful to the communities which they serve. A service that does not get a letter or other mail matter into this town until 8 a. m., or thereabouts delaying deliveries until well into the forenoon is held here to be inadequate. The service will be so held all along the line.

The next few days likely will see a community of action against the change in towns all along the route.

"Once just south of the equator I saw a man drown in his own sweat," casually remarked a cool, individual, after glancing Wednesday afternoon at a thermometer registering 98 degrees. Twelve men who heard were too wilted, mentally and physically, to decide just how he should be executed, so he is living yet.

There is an excuse this morning for mentioning the heat of Wednesday, though likely the announcement will not be news to anyone hereabouts. It was such a day as produces ideas about shunning activity and reduces ambition for work. Nevertheless, most people who work continued to work.

Even the most conservative of thermometers showed readings of 90 degrees in Danielson. Others, inclined to exaggerate or directly exposed to the sun's rays, made it an even hundred. It was hot enough for everyone.

Says a press notice relative to the Well Child conference to be held at the town hall building here Friday afternoon:

We recently heard of a Connecticut town where 50 babies died in two years. It is a small town of perhaps 3,000 souls. It is not an unusual town. Its people are intelligent. Its doctors are skilful. Its nurses are careful and capable. But one thing has been lacking. No doctor and no nurse can prevent sickness after you are sick.

This town where 50 babies died in two years had laid plans to open a Well Child conference. Why? A physician or a Well Child conference can prevent sickness and possibly, death, by having an opportunity to see children before you are ill; may disclose something just beginning. Its far-placing effect it felt not only in healthier, happier childhood, but also in a stronger, finer manhood.

There is no charge for information obtainable at the Well Child conference here Friday.

At Moosup, excavations have been made for some of the cellars of the new dwellings to be erected by the Aldrich Manufacturing company, incident to the construction of an addition to the mill. There are to be five new houses.

Miss Elizabeth Dunn of the business office of the S. N. E. Telephone company here, is having a vacation of two weeks.

It is anticipated that the Textile Products exhibit to be held next week at the state armory will attract several thousand visitors to Danielson from all parts of eastern Connecticut and from more distant points.

Those who read of the result of the caucus of Windham county members of the legislature Wednesday relative to the appointment of a county commissioner to succeed the late John A. Dady, of Putnam, may be interested to know there was no lack of candidates for the place. Assembled, they would make a military command of size.

A dog that barks at and chases automobiles will have a tough time of it should the owner of the machine enter a complaint. A section of the new dog law provides a penalty for such actions by dogs.

Bankers here were not prepared Wednesday to state whether they will take advantage of the provisions of a newly enacted statute allowing paying quarterly dividends on savings deposits. All the banks here pay dividends semi-annually. It is understood that the new privilege, which is optional, will be discussed at an early date by directorates of Danielson's banks.

Raymond A. Mills, of Providence, visited friends in Danielson Wednesday.

Additional transformers being installed here for the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company will allow of distributing a greater amount of electricity than is now possible. The transformers are required because of the growth of the company's business.

Talk of changing the time of the boat trains has brought a revival of talk about establishing bus lines between Worcester and New London, and now some see visions of bus lines with contracts to carry U. S. mails. That's a long look ahead, but the success of operating bus lines makes it appear very plausible to some students of transportation propositions.

Neighborhood growers of vegetables for the local market are now reaping the benefits of their early work. Their produce is coming into the local markets and is also being sold direct to consumers by distributors.

Postoffice authorities have been informed that there was money in one of the registered letters stolen by Frank Linka, 18, when he broke into the postoffice at Dayville last month. He is now held at the county jail in Brooklyn awaiting trial. It is not known what special action the government may desire to take in this case.

Robert M. Flagg, of St. Louis, is visiting here with Mr. and Mrs. Orray E. Potter of Broad street. Mr. Flagg, a brother of Mrs. Potter, is making his first visit east in 35 years.

One hears that Danielson is to have a carnival, the first of the 1925 season.

Abel Bernier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Amadee Bernier, of Oak street, had the flesh of his right arm above the elbow badly torn when it jammed between part of a freight elevator he was operating at the Quinebaug mill and the elevator well wall. A number of stitches were required to close the wound.

Theodore Fulton has so far recovered from a recent very serious illness that he is able to sit out on the veranda of his home, Academy street, daily.

Postmaster E. H. Keach has worked out a plan for carrier service during the vacation season, but announcement of it is not to be made until after the train schedules effective June 14 are announced.

In planning your summer vacation include the rental of a safe deposit box in which to store your valuables in the modern burglar and fireproof vault at the Windham county national bank, Danielson.—adv.

Gardeners mention with considerable satisfaction that showers are coming just about frequently enough to save them from the arduous task of watering growing things.

Representatives of the striking operatives of the American Thread company at Willimantic continue to send collectors into nearby communities on pay days to receive contributions from other mill workers willing to aid them.

PUTNAM

Commencement week for the Putnam High school will begin Sunday, June 21, with the Baccalaureate sermon at the Second Congregational church. Rev. E. F. Richards, acting pastor of the Congregational church has accepted the invitation of the class to make the address. The school will attend in a body.

Tuesday evening, Senior Class, class night will be observed in the assembly room of the high school. Because of the overcrowding of the hall in recent years, admission will be by ticket only on invitation of the seniors. The junior class is the only one asked to be present in a body. The class night parts and speakers are: Address of Welcome, President Carl Tillquist; class history, Perry Barber; class will, Ryeburn LLunch and Ellis Pritchard; class prophecy, Gladys Peterson and Doris Barrett; statistics, Rudolph Metty; class gifts, Edith Child and Ada Chandler; characterizations, Leonie Daigle and Irene Dugas; charge to juniors, Monit Horne; class poem, Ruth deCoudres. The music will include instrumental and vocal solos, a girls' trio and boys' quartette and music by the High school orchestra.

Plans are under way for an alumni entertainment Wednesday evening.

Thursday evening, the commencement exercises will be held at Bradley Theatre as usual. The speaker is to be Jesse B. Davis, of Boston University, formerly supervisor of secondary education in Connecticut. Mr. Davis is one of the acknowledged authorities of the country on the subject of moral and vocational guidance.

The essays of the High school honor pupils of 1925 will be as follows: The Elements of Music (illustrated on the piano) Frances Oblezt; Business Women of Colonial Days, Margaret Jacobson; Speed and Modern Life—a Reverie, Gertrude Marion. A picked chorus of about 150 voices under the direction of Mrs. E. L. Robinson will sing and the high school orchestra will play. The D. A. R. History medal and the Eden Tatem Memorial books for excellence in English will be presented and honor pupils for the four years will be announced by Principal E. L. Robinson and the diplomas will be presented by Superintendent Ralph C. Jenkins.

Friday evening will complete the week with the Senior reception and dance which will be held in the State armory. Music for dancing will be furnished by the Ideal orchestra of Webster.

Putnam sweltered Wednesday in a temperature of ninety-five degrees. At 9 o'clock in the morning it was above ninety and at six in the evening in spite of a slight rain, the mercury did not go below that figure. Except for a few minutes Tuesday afternoon, the average temperature has been 72 degrees. Tuesday night, one week ago, there was a general frost that did damage to young vegetables.

At North Grosvernordale Wednesday afternoon, Tourtelotte High school defeated Putnam High, five to three. Cartier, Putnam's crack pitcher, was in the box and did excellent work a fact which makes P. M. H. all the more elated over victory.

N. Waldo Kennedy, district supervisor of the Loyal Order of Moose and now located at Providence, has received a letter from Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, accepting the invitation of the Providence chapter of that order to be their guest on the evening of June 30. Mr. Davis while in Providence will be the guest of United States Senator Jesse H. Metcalf, who is also expected to be present at that meeting.

Two years ago there was an exciting contest at Putnam High school to see who would bring in the most subscriptions for a popular magazine. The pupils were divided into two teams which together netted a profit of about $10b. Prizes were awarded the boy and girl who brought in the most subscriptions. Last year about thirty dollars was made in a similar way. This year the students had the same opportunity but were not greatly interested. The four leaders, Hazel Mongeon, Arthur Pominville, Allen Colburn and Ida Vacher received but thirty subscriptions, thus making only $15. No prizes were awarded this year. The greatest number of subscriptions was obtained by a junior, Edmaer Guy.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard James started Tuesday by automobile for Seattle, Wash. The distance is 3,700 miles and Mr. James expects to reach there within thirty days, but experienced motorists thinks he is too optimistic in his estimate and that if he reaches his destination in six weeks he will be making good time. They are carrying a camping outfit and will spend most of the nights in the tent and will prepare their own meals. For the greater part of the way they will travel over the Lincoln highway.

In the past two weeks several cases have been reported to the police of vandalism in the Grove street section. Clothes lines have been cut, clothes rells pulled up and broken and flowers pulled up or broken. The police are investigating but it is thought some boys are the offenders.

Adolphus Bosquet has returned from a visit to relatives and friends at Providence.

Mrs. Josephine Law has been visiting at the Forrest Rhodes' home at Thompson.

William R. Hastedt, state treasurer, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will be in Putnam this (Thursday) evening to Officers of Norwich aerie, No. 367 will install the officers of Putnam aerie, accompany him to assist in the installation.

TWO COLCHESTER TEACHERS SECURED FOR PUTNAM SCHOOLS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, June 3.—J. Vay Merrill has been elected principal of the Israel Putnam school for the next term, succeeding Owen J. White, resigned.

Mrs. J. Vay Merrill has been elected teacher of the Seventh grade.

This action was taken at the meeting of the school board. Their present positions and qualifications are set forth in the following report of Supt. Ralph C. Jenkins. All of his recommendations were adopted:

Examinations covering the work of the second semester at the High school begin June 15 and continue through June 19. The Baccalaureate address will be given in the Congregational church by Dr. F. B. Richards. Graduating exercises will be on Thursday evening, June 25, in the Bradley theatre. The address to be given by Dr. Jesse B. Davis, professor of secondary education, Boston university. Class day exercises on June 24 will be somewhat different this year from those in years past. The exercises will be in the evening instead of in the afternoon and admittance will be by invitation only.

After the last meeting there were two vacancies in the teaching force to be filled; one the principalship of Israel Putnam school, caused by the resignation of Owen J. White, the other a seventh grade position in Israel Putnam school. I wish to present with the endorsement of the teachers' committee for the principalship, J. Vay Merrill, at present principal of the Union Grammar school, Colchester, Conn. Mr. Merrill is a graduate of Farmington, Maine, Normal school, having taught a few years in Maine before graduation. For the last three years he has been principal of the school in Colchester and was re-elected for the fourth year, at an increase in salary. He is of splendid personality and very highly recommended.

For the seventh grade position I present with the endorsement of the teachers' committee, the name of Mrs. J. Vey Merrill, now teaching history and English in Bacon academy, Colchester, Conn. Mrs. Merrill is a graduate of the University of Maine and has had a number of years' experience as a teacher of English and history. She is also recommended as a superior teacher.

My plan is to departmentalize the work of the seventh grade in the same way as the work in the eighth grade is now conducted, except that the longer school day will permit more study periods in school. Mr. Merrill would take the arithmetic, geography, physiology and kindred subjects and Mrs Merrill would take English language and literature, history and related subjects.

I shall present the following resolution at the June meeting. Resolved: That the Putnam School Committee hereby adopts for use in the Elementary Course certain of the so-called State Course of Study as follows: The Basic Monograph, the course of study in reading including literature; the course of study in the social studies; the course of study in arithmetic, through the first three grades only. One grade to be added each year. This course of study will supersede the part of the Baltimore course of Study previously adopted in these subjects covered.

The entertainment given May 15 by pupils of the Putnam Heights school was very largely attended and the program was well rendered.

WILLIS CARROLL ELECTED DEM. ALDERMAN, WARD 4

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, June 3.—At a special meeting preceding the June meeting of the city council, last evening, Willis Carroll was unanimously elected Democratic alderman from Ward Four, to complete the unexpired term of Simeon Larose, who has left the city. Mr. Carroll has had previous council experience, having served in 1919. He has also had six years of service on the school board of the town.

C. M. Elliott, a local shoe merchant, was appointed by Mayor Chapdelaine to succeed the late G. Allen Hawkins as a member of the board of water commissioners. The other members of the board are J. Herbert Smith and Alex Gilman.

The council approved Mr. Elliott's appointment as well as the appointment of Mr. Carroll to succeed Mr. Larose as a member of the street lighting and rules and ordinances committee.

What was to be a short meeting was prolonged by considerable discussion regarding recent repairs to the number one fire truck, repairs which have cost the city several hundreds of dollars. The truck is now in first-class condition after a thorough overhauling. The result of the discussion was the passage of a motion instructing the finance committee to prepare and submit to the next council meeting an improvement in the system of expenditures, which will make necessary the approval of controlling committees on the more sizeable expenditures.

A letter from Alexander Maitland, superintendent of the Thompson estate of J. R. Gladding, was read in which it was requested that the city send its fire apparatus to Thompson for any future fires on the Gladding property, on call from Mr. Maitland, rather than from a Thompson fire official, as by the present plan. The local department's out-of-town fee of fifty dollars was guaranteed.

The police report for May showed nineteen arrests, of which ten were for drunkenness, four for violation of motor laws, one for false pretense, two for larceny, and two for breaking and entering. Three of the offenders went to jail, one was put in charge of the probation officer, two forfeited bonds, four were bound over to the superior court, and six paid fines and costs amounting to $1,158.87. Two were discharged. The approach of summer was indicated by the lodging of only two tramps.

The fire company submitted a list of officers elected for the approval of council. Harry W. Sharpe is foreman; Walter Wheaton, first assistant foreman; Harry Morse, second assistant foreman; secretary, M. H. Fish; treasurer, Walter Wheaton. Francis Ryan was placed on the active list and John Gahan removed from it.

Building permits as follows were requested and were referred to the highway committee, with power to act: Roy A. Paine and Aline C. Paine, two-story building on Church street; Nolia Copiette, addition to house on School street; Putnam Box company, concrete boiler house on Truesdell street; John Runki, garage on South Meadow street.

ROAD SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smith of Montville were at William Billings' Sunday. Mrs. Smith remained to spend the week.

Mrs. Seth N. William and Miss Grace D. Wheeler will attend the Golden Jubilee meeting in New London at the Second Congregational church Thursday and will carry the gift of $50 which this church has raised for the Jubilee.

Miss Molly Palmer went to New York Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Gordon of Norwich were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Wheeler. All attended church service in Norwich in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Hallam Whiting and two daughters and Mr. and Mrs. Hallam Whiting, Jr., and daughter of Springfield were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. William Billings.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wheeler were in Norwich Sunday.

Mrs. Grace Gray and her father Philip Busch of New London are spending the week at Fernando Wheeler's before leaving for New York where Mr. Busch will reside with his daughter, Mrs. Gray.

Mrs. Seth N. Williams attended the birthday party of Fanny Ledyard chapter, D. A. R., held in Masonic temple at Mystic Wednesday, when the chapter entertained the state officers.

Mrs. Horace Palmer has returned to Mrs. Sanford Billings' after a few days spent at her home in Laurel Glen.

Invitations have been received to the marriage of Miss Priscilla Alden Billings and William Ryon of Philadelphia which will take place at the bride's home in Mystic, Monday, at four p. m.

Foxes are too numerous about here one being seen within a few feet of a house and was not frightened away, till a loud call was given by one of the people within. Another fox was seen the next day close to the barn but both disappeared before a gun could be secured. Herds of deed are often seen, 24 being counted moving on together. A young man returning to his home one night, heard a rushing sound behind him and had he not jumped quickly to one side would have been seriously injured as the deer brushed him so closely, as it was, that he carried away the overcoat which the young man had on his arm, and which he threw up quickly to defend himself. The coat was found the next day several feet away from the place of attack.

Miss Marian Wheeler eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Wheeler, of Locustdale Farm, who has been in the south some time teaching school, was married Tuesday to Thomas Sloan Sender, at Jonesville, South Carolina. The wedding was given by a friend and later a reception was held at the home of the groom's sister, Mr. and Mrs. Sender expect to be at the home of the latter's parents here the latter part of the week for a short stay.

THE LASH MOTOR COMPANY, INC.

CADILLAC-PAIGE-JEWETT MOTOR CARS

$17,000 sales at a cost of $19.50

During a period of concentrated selling of new Cadillac automobiles last month, The Lash Motor Company, Inc., of New Britain, took a number of used cars in trade, and it soon became necessary to convert them into cash.

Ten toll telephone calls, ranging from Boston to Philadelphia, sold $17,000 worth of cars, at a total sales cost of $19.50!

Says Mr. Lash: "I consider the telephone the most valuable, and at the same time the cheapest, sales asset I have".

Like many other progressive firms and individuals in the State, Mr. Lash recognizes in toll telephone service an effective means of making sales. Distance becomes but a matter of minutes, and a toll telephone call gains admission where a salesman may be kept waiting. Are you using the telephone as profitably as you might?

One of the functions of our Commercial Service Department is the creation of Telephone Sales Plans to meet individual requirements. Its services are available, without charge, upon request.

THE COUNTRY HIGHWAYS

Reference is made elsewhere to a bill which was reported in the House during the closing hours of the 1925 legislature concerning state aid for the construction of country roads. It was a measure which was sponsored by Representative Higgins of Coventry and unquestionably suffered from the fact that there had been too much delay in getting it out of the committee. What its fate might have been had it been possible to get fair consideration for it is not known, but it could not have been presented at a more unfavorable time.

Attention is chiefly directed in these days to the building of trunk line highways, and yet there are other roads running through the country over which there is travel or there would be if the roads were kept in better condition. There are towns which may not be prepared to build macadam or concrete roads, but which would give more attention to the betterment of the dirt roads if there was the incentive of state aid, similar to that which was for years given in connection with the construction of macadam roads.

By the provisions of this bill the state would allow each town $1,000 a year for road work provided the town spent a like sum. This would mean $169,000 a year to be provided by the state for the improvement of country roads provided all the towns availed themselves of this opportunity.

No real test of the merits of the bill was made at this session, unless the delayed report thereon can be given such an interpretation. There has, however, been laid the groundwork for legislation for the future. What the 1925 legislature has failed to do will unquestionably be brought to the attention of the 1927 body of lawmakers, by which time the country road problem may be so much greater and call for so much more urgent attention that the delay which was occasioned in reporting this year will be avoided. The call for better country roads is one that is bound to get greater attention as the motor traffic increases.

THE PRESIDENT DECLINES

There will be general approval of the president's decision not to participate in a fake film in connection with the graduation exercises at Annapolis. This has upset the plans of a film company and of the secretary of the navy, but that is of course of minor consideration when one stops to think what was contemplated.

It appears that there is a motion picture being made in which it was desired that the graduation scene at Annapolis should figure. As for that, there would be no objection providing all who might want to film it were given the same opportunity. But the plan was to have a moving picture actor take his place in the line of Annapolis graduates and be presented credentials along with the class of graduates. It should be mentioned that he would not be getting a diploma, but that would be in itself a misrepresentation and the bringing the president into a picture which would be used to show something which was not actually so.

That the president should be unwilling to participate in any such plan, which is simply a matter of commercialism, is highly commendable. He hasn't and it is made clear that he doesn't object to the filming or to doing what he can to aid in providing a correct presentation of conditions, but when he is asked to participate in something which is not what it appears he is obliged to draw the line and decline to be a party to any such undertaking.

The president is not averse to having his picture taken. He willingly yields to pleas on all sorts of occasions. But he does not do so for the benefit of one to the exclusion of others, and he isn't in the habit of participating in scenes which endeavor to represent something which isn't so. These are the two points on which he based his objections to the scheme for the Annapolis graduation and it is believed that he will be fully sustained in the decision he has made. He fully recognizes that once a start was made in posing for such a stunt there would be no limit to the demands that would be made upon him.

THE OREGON LAW

When the Oregon school law was adopted it was declared to be unconstitutional. It was a case where it was adopted following a referendum vote and therefore open to the interpretation of being a law in accord with the desire of the majority of the people of that state. In connection with the legislation it was maintained that it was prompted and supported by Klan influences, with the referendum result indicating the strength of such influence in that commonwealth.

This law required the attendance of the children of the state at public schools. It was not a case of compulsory education in public schools or something just as good. It was not a case where supervision was placed over all the schools of the state. Oregon by its law demanded that all children should go to public schools. This meant the private and parochial schools were illegal and must go out of business if the law was enforced.

It was inevitable under the circumstances that the matter should be carried to the highest court in the land. Oregon may have considered that it was taking a stand in behalf of education, but it was declaring in fact that education could be obtained at only one place. It could not insist that it was simply bringing the other schools up to the standard of the public schools. It was in reality casting all schools overboard except the public schools.

The United States supreme court has wrestled with the matter and it has declared the Oregon law unconstitutional. Thus the effort to bring education under such unusual control has failed, and what has been decided in connection with this Oregon effort will be given due consideration by every other state. Had Oregon sought, as many others have, to establish a standard of education in all the schools of the state, whether private or public, the situation would have been entirely different. No state should tolerate educational institutions which are below standard, but Oregon's effort was apparently in another direction and it has failed to stand the test in the courts.

JAYWALKERS

In these days much is said about the jaywalker, without there being an exact definition for such an individual. The general impression is that the term refers to the persons who plunges blindly into the highway without looking to see whether he is running counter to traffic or throwing himself in front of a rapidly moving automobile. He is regarded as one who does not observe the common precautions for his own safety.

There are those however who may be regarded as jaywalkers because they do not join the throngs at street corners and wait for signals to cross but step out in the middle of the block and buck the tide of travel along and defiantly.

One of this latter number takes the position, however, that if that is jaywalking he is proud to be a jaywalker and believes that by properly watching his step in crossing a street in the middle of the block he is surrounding himself with greater safety than getting in the jam and uncertainty at the corners.

He figures it out that traffic is moving in all directions at corners, while in the middle of the block, if he follows a direct line, it is necessary only for him to look to his left till he gets to the middle of the street and then to his right till he gets to the other walk and that he can do that with much more certainty of getting across unharmed than he can by trying to dodge the vehicular traffic at the corners, where the number of cars at had enough without having the pedestrian traffic thrown in to increase the complications.

Whether you are a jaywalker in any sense of the term, the wisdom of watching your step and leaning in the direction of safety must have been recognized by you long before this.

TAKING PRECAUTIONS

There are some who were caught in Europe during the opening days of the war will appreciate the position of the Massachusetts excursionists to Canada who were held up at the border on their return because they had no way of satisfying the inspectors that they were entitled to return to this country.

The unfortunate part of the whole matter was that it had been anticipated by the railroad which had warned the excursionists to carry some means of identification. Some of them complied and they had no trouble in passing inspectors. Others did not and it was such members of the party who were delayed and inconvenienced.

It is to be noted in this connection that it was entirely possible for those who left this country for the visit to Canada to have remained there and to have given, or otherwise disposed of, their return ticket to those in Canada who were in no way a part of the excursion party and had no right to enter this country. While Americans are not required to carry passports for such a trip, the wisdom of having some means of proving that they were Americans or at least were entitled to the right to return here will be more thoroughly appreciated by those who were stopped and those who appreciate their predicament.

There are those who are willing and those who are unwilling to take advice. Had the warning been observed there would have been nothing to mar the return. But the failure to make what seems a slight effort in proving their identity led to what may seem needless trouble and yet it was none the less real. Precautions are usually advisable even if there are times when it is proved that they are not needed.

EDITORIAL NOTES

June starts in as if it intended to do the right thing by the reservoirs.

Legislatures come and legislatures go but the state goes on majestically.

The man on the corner says: There is already something about June which reminds one of other years.

From the arrangements being made Tennessee wouldn't have any trouble charging admission for that evolution law case which is about to be tried.

Railroad crossing accidents for the first two months of the year show a decrease. Whether this is due to the drive for greater care, or not, let the good work go on.

That Thompsonville woman who couldn't go to church because the stream of autos prevented her from crossing the street cannot be charged with jay walking.

In the offer for some of the largest and best of the shipping board vessels, does the proposition mean accepting them as a gift or paying what they are worth?

Governor Smith of New York is suffering from sore throat, which shows a governor cannot swallow everything which is produced by politics and not feel the effects of it.

Those who planned to kidnap a movie actress and hold her for $200,000 ransom were too modest. They should have known she would get more than that in advertising out of the mere mention of such a thing.

HIS SERIOUS DIFFICULTY

"Hello, Aunt Alice!" said the tall and presentable young man as he entered his aunt's apartment, laid his hat on the nearest chair and removed his overcoat with deliberation. "Fine spring weather we're having, what? Here, don't sit on that hat—it's the only cover I have, and squashing doesn't improve its appearance any. You look as surprised to see me as if I was that Banquo chap's ghost. Can't a fellow call on his aunt of an evening without causing her such open and painful astonishment?"

"But where is Edith?" murmured his aunt, weakly. "No one in your family ever expects to see you any more. Being engaged seems to be such an absorbing state. When I was a girl we took vacations from our fiances occasionally before marriage instead of after, you know, as the modern way seems to be—"

"Where do you get that stuff?" interrupted the tall young man, patting his aunt on the shoulder. "You know perfectly well that Ede and I have the old-fashioned idea—a home and ten kids and baked beans for supper. Ede is out tonight making a call with her mother, and I was not invited to attend. And, besides," he added with a frown, "I wanted to ask you something."

He fixed her with a troubled gaze:

"Aunt Alice," he said, "what is a trousseau?"

"Why, what—" gasped his aunt.

"Now, don't be technical," said the tall young man sternly. "I started out the other day to explain to a woman the direct relation of a dynamo to the gear-bearing structure it operates and after I'd talked twenty minutes, with pencil drawing and an illustration in calculus, I discovered she didn't know what a dynamo was. I want you to tell me in words of one syllable."

His aunt surveyed the young man quizzically. "Why don't you ask Edith?" she inquired innocently.

"Afraid to display my ignorance," said the young man, with engaging frankness. "And besides, this is—er—a very personal matter, you see. Of course, I know it means clothes, in some form or other, because I've been hearing it discussed off and on for a month, but I can't seem to understand the language. Does one negotiate for a trousseau in toto or piecemeal?"

"Piecemeal," his aunt assured him with twinkling eyes. "Dresses and hats and shoes and—ah—everything from inside to out."

"That's another thing that puzzles me," said the young man, still frowning. "I'm darned if I can see why Edith needs so many more clothes just because she's going to marry me. D' you suppose she thinks she's never again going to have the price of a pair of stockings, or what?"

"Oh, no, no, no," said his aunt, soothingly. "It's the custom; that's all. A fastidious young woman merely likes to have everything new and charming to begin married life."

"Hmmmmm," said the tall nephew, leaning forward again and looking her in the eye. "this brings us to the crux of the matter, aunty. Here's what's worrying me. If Edith is going to be all decked up in pink silk breakfast coats, whatever they may be, and the like of that, do I have to have one of these trousseau things myself? And if so for the love o' Mike—what? I might spare half an hour from the office tomorrow, if necessary and buy it."

"Half an hour," gasped his aunt, indignantly, "It would take a week—"

"Oh, talk sense, aunty dear," said the young man indulgently. "Come to think of it, I needn't have bothered you at all. Edith is a good old scout, and I'll just ask her to step in and order me one, herself. And then," he added, brightly, "if it don't suit her she can't blame me. So long, aunty. Ede will be home now."—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Professor Fredrik Stang, who is on his way to Minneapolis and St. Paul to attend the Norse centennial jubilee as the official representative of Norwegian colleges, is the son of the well-known Norwegian statesman and one-time premier, Emil Stang. Fredrik Stang has long been connected with the University of Oslo as professor of jurisprudence. He has been a member of the storting, and at one time was Minister of Justice. Like his father, whom he succeeded in that capacity, he has also been leader of the Conservative party. Some years ago he resigned his conservative leadership and retired from active politics, to devote himself to jurisprudence. When, however, vital questions bearing upon the welfare of mankind and his nation arise, Fredrik Stang steps forward and takes up the cudgels for broad and liberal ideas, independent of all political parties.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Central Village Exercises

Mr. Editor:—As a soldier, and son of a Civil War veteran, I wish to ask you if something cannot be done by the American Legion or some other organization, to see that at least a semblance of military procedure should be observed at Decoration day exercises. It looks bad as Hades to see people parading as soldiers who are ignorant of the first principles of military laws. Falstaff's famous gang had nothing on the lot that I saw May 30th in Central Village. They broke every law relating to firing parties; and any observant person could have distinctly heard the old soldiers turn over in their graves and grunt with disgust. In the first place they opened up by firing ragged volleys, then taps was sounded and then the rest of the speaking and exercises followed. It looked, to an observer, as if no one on the firing party had ever handled a rifle before, fumbling with them, and each one instructing the other how to load. It took about two seconds for them to get off their shots and on one occasion one came in with his shot about half a minute after the rest had done. A gentleman, standing by, who is a soldier, complained that none was a soldier, at least not a real one, except one man, and he was not in the firing party, but like the rest of the real fighters, in the rear rank. But why? I presume he was ashamed to be in such company and I don't blame him. If we are going to honor the dead don't let us make a comic opera affair of it. And if all the men in town are only "thirty day wonders," why don't the committee see that they have some one to lead, or at least instruct them a bit, before allowing them to make a farce and joke out of a solemn occasion. The "Boy Scouts" acted far better.

Stories That Recall Others

Wrong Gender

A postoffice employe who had been indicted for stealing from the parcel post in another city was being discussed by postoffice employes.

"I guess they can't bring the usual charge against him for stealing from the mails," one remarked.

"Why not," the others demanded.

"The wrong gender," replied the first. "The stuff he stole was from females."

The parcel post packages said to have been rifled by the man contained ladies silk lingerie.

Trying to be Friendly.

Buddy, who was seven years old, was a new comer in the neighborhood and was not familiar with the names of the children. One day as he was playing in front of his home he called to Peter who lived across the street: "Hello, Ben." Getting no response, he called again more lustily. He continued this for several times, when finally Peter, rather disgustedly answered, "Who the heck you calling Ben?"

A Timely Excuse

Anna, age three, was visiting her grandmother, who lived in the country. Late one afternoon she followed her out to do the chores. While standing in the midst of a flock of chickens, one of them pecked at a small break in her stocking. Several days later, when the child's stockings were being changed, her grandmother rather scoldingly inquired as to the cause of there being so many holes in them. Quickly remembering the incident related above, she replied: "The chickens done it."

From Small Beginnings

Seth Pomeroy, The Blacksmith Drill-master of the Revolution

In the pleasant hotel section at the foot of Lake George, in New York state, there once stood Fort William Henry, one of the strong defenses of the Colonies. There, in the years before the American Revolution, occurred one of the most terrible massacres by the French and Indians, the full story of which is told in dramatic form by Fenimore Cooper in The Last of the Mohicans. To the relief of this frontier fortress, in 1757, there moved a column of troops under the command of a sturdy American fighter named Seth Pomeroy.

For over a score of years Seth Pomeroy had been a frontier soldier. Strong, broad-shouldered, fearless, resolute, quick to make decisions, with a voice that roared out commands that snapped men into places, he was the ideal commander for the rough times in which he lived. He had developed his broad shoulders and sturdy health at the blacksmith's forge in boyhood, in Northampton, Mass. In 1706, when Seth Pomeoy was born, Northampton was only a large village, surrounded on all sides by forests and exposed to Indian attacks. Not far away were the villages of Hadley, Hatfield and Deerfield, noted for terrible massacres by Indians. Sharp mountains covered by green forests surrounded the place. Naturally fearless, and loving an active life, Seth Pomeroy very early entered into military drill and soon became an accomplished soldier. Many times he led Colonial forces through the dense forests against the Indians. He slowly developed a leadership that made him respected, and he became major. He took part in the great expedition against Louisburg. In fact, he knew every phase of frontier fighting, and was as ready to march against the French as against the Indians.

So it was naturally to him that the leadership of the expedition to save Fort William Henry was given. Later still, when the Colonies were stirring against England, it was this stern old soldier who was called upon to drill the young men. He whipped the New York troops into shape. At Bunker Hill, although 70 years old, there he was, his white hair blowing and his eyes set toward the enemy telling his men what to do, and how to do it thoroughly. Washington would have made him a general, but 70 years spent in the active field of the frontier bore him down, and he had to give way to younger men. He died in 1777, long before the end of the American Revolution—one of the most gallant of all American fighters.

American Ships Favored

In the transporting of American mail to foreign countries the U. S. Government has consistently favored ships carrying the American flag. The postal clerks favor the U. S. ships except where an obvious delay would otherwise occur or in cases where the name of the ship by which the letter or parcel to go, is specified.

Greenland Moves Westward

Southern Greenland is moving away from Scotland at the rate of sixty to 25 feet a year and Iceland is moving away from Norway at the rate of sixty-three feet a year. The land is not actually moving, but the shores on that side are being worn down by the action of the water which is not as pronounced on the other sides of these bodies of land.

Laundries Now "Certified"

Along with certified milk and meats there is coming into vogue the "certified" laundry which claim to use only chemically tested materials guaranteed not to damage delicate fabrics. They are proving popular, due to the use in some other laundries of strong bleaching chemicals that ruined even ordinary fabrics much too rapidly for the average budget.

Coaches Have Glass Roofs

Taking a tip from the glass bottomed boats running to Catilina Island off California, a railway company in Romedale, Norway, has fitted its railroad coaches, running through scenic sections, with glass roofs. This enables the tourists to see the towering mountains in comfort from their seats and has increased tourists travel considerably.

TWICE IN THIS WOMAN'S LIFE

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her from Sickness to Health

Ellensburg, Washington—"When I was first coming into womanhood I suffered terribly every month. My mother did everything she could think of, so she took me to several doctors and they only helped me a little. Mother was talking to another lady about my condition and she told mother of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mother got me six bottles and at the end of the first month I was much better, so I kept on taking it until I had no more pains. When I got married and had my first child I was in terrible pain so that it was impossible for me to do my housework. I thought of how the Vegetable Compound had been of so much benefit to me when I was a girl, so I went to Perier's Drug Store and got six bottles. It sure did help me and I still take it. I am a well woman today and I can't say too much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I will answer any letter that comes to me to answer about what your medicine has done for me."—Mrs. WILLIAM CARVER, R. F. D. No. 2, Ellensburg, Wash.

LOYALTY CLASS MADE GIFT TO PRESIDENT

The Loyalty class of the First Baptist church met at the home of Mrs. Frank F. Church, of 43 Pearl street, Monday evening and in the absence of the president, Mrs. Walter M. Cowan, the meeting was in charge of the vice-president, Mrs. John J. Parsons. Routine business was transacted and plans were made for the annual class picnic to be held in August at the home of Mrs. Willis Stewart, at Waterford.

As it was the fourth anniversary of the marriage of the president Mrs. Walter M. Cowan, the class presented her a potted plant, the gift being conveyed to her home on Newton street by a member of the class.

Following the meeting a social time was enjoyed and delightful refreshments of fruit salad, saltines, cake and punch were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Frank Tuttle and Miss Althea Church.

Try This Today For BAD BREATH

Now that every thinking person in town has on hand a bottle of Kojene, the safe and delightful antiseptic, we want them to know that it will banish bad breath—no matter what the cause.

Put a teaspoonful in a glass of water—rinse the mouth and gargle the throat with half of it—then drink the balance.

Do this night and morning.

Many times bad breath comes from the stomach and Kojene, the powerful yet harmless antiseptic, will purify it and quickly make it sweet and clean.

Kojene is having a sensational sale the country over because it is a real antiseptic.

As an antiseptic, it is four times as powerful as carbolic acid and much more powerful than Bichloride of Mercury.

And to those people who are using ordinary washes that were good thirty years ago, let us say that Kojene is twenty-five times more powerful than these old timers and a 50 cent bottle will make half a gallon of a supremely efficient mouth wash—50 cents at Lee & Osgood and druggists all over America.

The floral tributes were most beautiful, serving as testimonials to the esteem in which Mr. Lamb was held by his many friends. The service was conducted by Rev. Stanley Sellick of Lebanon and during the service One Sweetly Solemn Thought was sung by Mrs. Taylor and Rev. Mr. Sellick.

Burial was in the new cemetery, Lebanon, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Sellick. The bearers were Charles Perkins, Charles J. Pitcher, Jr., Frank Noyes and Edward Tucker. Arrangements were by C. A. Gager.

TRAIN WILL BE CHANGED FOR MAIL, EXPRESS, MILK

The announcement that ruled in Connecticut business communities was heading in The Bulletin on Wednesday morning that the New Haven road was planning to withdraw the early northbound "boat train" on the Norwich and Worcester branch will be tempered by the statement made Wednesday afternoon by R. M. Smith of New London, division superintendent, that the withdrawal of the train is to be only as far as passenger service is concerned.

The train is to be continued on its present schedule for the purpose of carrying mail, milk and express, but it will not carry passengers. Mr. Smith said Wednesday that this train has been without passengers for some time so that the New Haven road had decided to discontinue the passenger service on it, but it will continue running after June 14 for milk, mail and express matter on a schedule that will make it reach Norwich at 4:35, Jewett City 5:13; Plainfield 5:30; Central Village 5:40; Danielson 6:00; and Putnam 6:35, all standard time.

The first northbound passenger train from New London in the morning will be present passenger train, leaving New London at 7:10; due in Norwich at 7:40; and Putnam at 9:00, all standard time.

The southbound "boat train" at night which has been leaving here at 7:50, standard time, will be moved forward about two hours to, leave here for New London at 5:45 standard time.

Several changes in trains east and west from New London are to be made on the new schedule in effect on June 15.

The train leaving New London at 2.12 p. m., for Westerly and points east is to be taken off entirely, and a new train from New York to Boston will replace it. The new train will arrive at New London at 1.27 p. m., leave at 1.32, arriving at Mystic 1.44, Stonington 1.55, and Westerly 2.04 and also stopping at Wood River Junction, Shannock and Wickford Junction.

The train which leaves New London bound west at 5.50 p. m. is to be discontinued, and a train will leave New London at 2.50 p. m. instead, arriving at Flanders at 3.02, South Lyme at 3.08, Lyme 3.16 and Saybrook 3.22 p. m.

FIELD BIBLE STUDY ON FLIGHT OF JACOB

Notwithstanding the extreme heat Wednesday evening the attendance at the men's Bible study class at the Y. M. C. A. was the largest in several weeks, and the interest in the study was rather unusual.

The topic of the discussion was "The Flight of Jacob," and the scripture used was from the 27th chapter of Genesis. In the discussion the following were among the points brought out: Esau had determined to kill his brother Jacob, but inasmuch as his old blind father was likely to die very soon he thought it wise not to do the dastardly act while he lived. The mother continued her scheming in Jacob's behalf, and helped him to get away before Esau attempted to kill him; the mother was a diplomat. It was suggested that too many men are undiplomatic in their dealings with others, and this fact causes much trouble at times. Jacob was in a sorry plight; his brother wanted to kill him, and he knew it; he had lost his home; he had practically lost his parents; he, a home body is forced to become a fugitive and a wanderer; every step was fraught with danger from wild beasts or highwaymen. Jacob, however, had no one to blame but himself, though his mother had aided him considerably in his wrong doing. At nightfall, Jacob was tired, footsore, probably hungry, and certainly lonely, and found nothing for a pillow as he slept in the open, but a stone. He had a rather wonderful dream, and when he awoke he had made a wonderful discovery, namely, "The God was in that place, and he knew it not."

To the question, what would happen to our lives if we realized that God was always near, it was suggested that we would be better men; more careful what we said and did; we would be more unselfish; we would have more real success, and we certainly would be happier. God is nearest to us when we need him most, and when we realize our need of Him. God is not only here in general, but He is in the office, in my room, in my business, and especially with me in my troubles; He is right here tonight. If this be true, what a companionship we have; let us walk worthy of our companionship.

JAIL AND FINES FOR STONINGTON STORE KEEPER

John H. Dabreau, a storekeeper at Grand and Northwest street, Stonington, was found guilty by a jury in the common pleas court here Wednesday morning on two counts of violation of the liquor law and was given a $200 fine and 30 days in jail on each count by Judge C. E. Waller.

The officers evidence against Dabreau comprised two bottles of liquor alleged to have been taken from his hands when his place was raided on March 7 and a broken bottle which he was alleged to have smashed in the sink. He claimed that he went to the sink to wash his hands because he had been handling kerosene.

One of the amusing incidents of the case was furnished when William H. Jones, an aged colored man who has taken care of the streets of Stonington for years, was called to the stand as a character witness for Dabreau by Attorney G. C. Morgan, counsel for the accused man. The attorney had considerable difficulty in qualifying Jones as a character witness, because Jones stated that Dabreau "ain't got no reputation."

At length the attorney asked the witness if he know what reputation was. Jones replied that it was the name people give. "Very good," said the attorney, "now what name do the people give Dabreau."

"Deh don't give him no name," was the response from the witness and Judge Waller allowed the answer to stand as negative testimony.

Then the prosecuting attorney, C. B. Whittlesey, took Jones in hand for cross examination.

"You take care of the streets in Stonington, do you?" he asked the witness. "Yes," was the answer.

"Well you just sweep the streets, dont you? You are not the street commissioner?" queried the attorney further.

"No, ah ain't the street commissioner—and ah ain't the mayor," shot back the witness.

"That's all," said the attorney as the cross examination closed.

George B. McKenna, prosecuting attorney of the Stonington court, who was assisting Mr. Whittlesey, was brought into the case as a witness and it was disclosed he was out with two policemen conducting another raid while the raid on Debreau's place was going on.

Sixteenth Birthday Party

Miss Elinor Brennan was pleasantly surprised at her home in Baltic for her sixteenth birthday. The party was ably arranged by Miss Olympe Ellie. Games, singing and dancing were enjoyed after which refreshments were served by Mrs. Brennan, assisted by Mrs. Kless and Mrs. Ellie. Those present were Jeanette Cote, Rhea Despathy, Gertrude Blain, Louise Case, Olympe Ellie, Antoinette and Alice Cardin, Mary and Pauline Brennan, Blanche Lucier, Arline Clocker, Irene Kless and Elinor Brennan. Miss Brennan received many pretty gifts.

EXPLAINS COMMUNITY CHEST TO NORWICH ROTARIANS

The Community Chest movement and how it has worked out in Hartford was the subject of an interesting talk given by Arthur Corbin of Hartford, at the weekly meeting of the Norwich Rotary club held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Mr. Corbin has been prominent in the Community Chest movement in Hartford, and was exceptionally well qualified to talk on the subject.

Mr. Corbin said that when Hartford started the community chest movement conditions there were practically the same as in Norwich or any other city. There had been drive upon drive, the same workers were continually soliciting for this or that charity and the people were fed up on the drive idea. It came to a point where workers and givers were about ready to strike and the worthy charities were at a loss to know what to do. Then the Community Chest idea was suggested. There was opposition and plenty of it from some sources. Some said that they wanted to give to certain charities and not to others, others said that the chest idea was too commercial. After getting the facts before the people in a comprehensive manner the idea gradually began to take hold until at the present time practically everyone is in favor of it.

We have found, said Mr. Corbin, that the community chest is no longer an experiment of questionable value in a few cities. It has proven of increasing value from year to year in the charities and social works of a great many cities, beginning with Cleveland over ten years ago. In the United States there are 42 cities having a population of between 100,000 and 200,000. Twenty-six of these have in operation the community chest plan. Only two cities of such size are recorded as having attempted and abandoned the idea. The new failures or partial failures that we know of, in our opinion, in each instance were due to too hasty adoption of the plan without adequate preparation or proper organization.

The experience of two of our neighboring cities is interesting to note.

In New Haven before the war, it was estimated that there were in the neighborhood of only 4,000 regular contributors to the agencies subscribing a total aggregate of about $1,500,000. In November, 1923, the New Haven community chest exceeded teh amount requested for the agencies and obtained over $560,000 from 52,000 givers.

In Springfield, the chest started in 1918 with 17 agencies, and about $125,000 was raised from 2,500 subscribers. This fall, there were 29 participating agencies, with a result of over $300,000 from 18,000 subscriptions.

We have not yet available any detailed figures for Hartford but our investigation indicates that a similar inadequate small percentage of people are the regular supporters of our charities under the independent system of raising funds. An analysis has been made by our secretary of the contributors to seven of the principal agencies of Hartford. The total number of individuals contributing was approximately 3,750.

A tabulation was made of 1,500 of these names and it was found that:

1,169 gave to 1 agency 78 per cent; 195 gave to 2 agencies 13 per cent.; 74 gave to 3 agencies 5 per cent; 47 gave to 4 agencies 3 per cent; 12 gave to 5 agencies .8; 2 gave to 6 agencies .13; 1 gave to 7 agencies .1.

The committee has made extensive inquiry to ascertain whether in "Community Chest" cities there has been any shrinkage in the generosity of the big givers or lessening of personal interest of individuals in particular charities. Quite the contrary seems to be the case and more people become actively interested both in giving to and working with and for the agencies. Nor do we find that any agency has lost its individual identity, but rather each gains in publicity and public appreciation through the united effort.

It is very evident from the experience of the past few years that present conditions in Hartford are far from satisfactory in the support and growth of vital charitable work. When, as this fall, four campaigns for funds are conducted simultaneously each one is bound to suffer. It is becoming more and more difficult to obtain campaign workers for these campaigns. Givers are dazed with the multitude of appeals. Worthy charities are not getting their just measure of support and many fields of needed work are left uncovered. The real bulk of the giving community is not properly appealed to. Boards of directors and agency heads are continually worried with financing problems to the detriment of their other work.

A community chest is not an effortless cure all. It means good hard work all the year round for a limited group of public spirited individuals, and it means everyone co-operating in a hard drive for a week or so once a year. It necessitates adequate planning and careful organization, and in the first year it may not enable any too generous increase of existing budgets, but if properly carried out it should result in increasing opportunities for broader service on the part of all efficient worth-while agencies.

The community chest is a non-partisan and non-sectarian movement in which every race and creed may participate. The charitable organizations submit their budgets which are passed upon and any surplus goes into a contingent fund for unexpected relief work.

Mr. Corbin answered many questions on the working of the community chest. After his talk he was given a rising vote of appreciation.

At the business session, President J. Nelson Weymouth presided and E. LaRue Bitven was song leader. Several communications were read by the secretary relative to the Intercity meeting at Putnam on June 11th and the annual intercity outing at Ashland Park on July 16th.

John J. O'Rourke, pinch-hitting for Otto Ernst in the five minute talk, took for his topic the proposed change of railroad schedule on the New Haven road. Mr. O'Rourke said that if the early morning mail train was discontinued the Chambers of Commerce and other business organizations in Eastern Connecticut would take the matter before the public utilities commission for hearing.

George Fisher of New London also said that some such move was being considered by the New London Rotary club and the Chamber of Commerce.

Charles R. Butts made a brief report on the boys' work fund.

Announcement was made of the Community picnic of the Norwich Rural association which will be held at Lowthorpe Meadows on June 5th.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

ELECT MRS. W. H. DAWLEY FAITH TRUMBULL REGENT

Mrs. William H. Dawley was elected regent of Faith Trumbull Chapter, D. A. R., at the chapter's annual meeting held Wednesday afternoon at the Community House, Mrs. George A. Ashbey, the retiring regent, presided at the meeting, which was called to order at 3 o'clock and which opened with the singing of America, Miss Annie E. Vaughn presiding at the piano. The Lord's prayer was repeated and the salute to the flag given.

The retiring secretary, Mrs. William H. Dawley, gave a report of the last meeting of the chapter and also gave the annual report.

Mrs. Ashbey, the regent, made a report as follows:

Two years ago this month, but on the 14th of the month, the annual meeting of Faith Trumbull chapter was held at Pinehurst, the home of Mrs. Charles W. Gale. You will perhaps remember the meeting when I recall to your minds the parade through the gardens of the members of the chapter, adorned with their grandmothers' beautiful shawls. At that meeting you elected me your regent for two years. It was with a rather faint heart that I accepted this office. The two years have passed and I am glad that I accepted this position as regent. It has been two years of hard work, much responsibility and much apprehension in regard to all the calls that have been put upon our chapter. It has also been two years of rich experiences, new friendships and an opening of wider vsions of world needs and world tasks. Faith Trumbull has stood 100 per cent. through the two years—on all her dues, national, state and chapter. All assessments have been paid and always ahead of time. The extra assessment of nearly $100 for the Lobme at Valley Forge I am glad came during my regency. I consider it an honor that we have had a part in honoring the memory of those who suffered for us in Valley Forge. During my two years we have been able to place $275 in the fund for our Museum. This is in addition to our scholarships and our many contributions which you have heard our treasurer report from time to time.

On Nov. 30, 1924, we celebrate the 36th anniversary of Faith Trumbull chapter. This is an outstanding event for any regent. Both years it has been my privilege to attend the five state meetings and Continental Congress, making twelve out-of-town meetings. In addition to these meetings by special invitations other out-of-town meetings have been attended and at one it was my privilege to give a talk on the life of Faith Trumbull. In the two years your regent has presided at eighteen board meetings and seventeen chapter meetings. At the June meeting of 1924 Mrs. Pettis, your vice-regent, presided, the regent being out of town. I wish to speak of my officers and committees who have worked faithfully and conscientiously with me and it is very pleasing to me that we have worked so harmoniously together.

I feel that to have had the fund for our new museum started during this past year reflects glory upon my regency although the credit belongs to the chairman of our museum committee, Mrs. William Tyler Browne. No regent ever had a finer band of officers and committees than I have had and I do indeed appreciate the capable work that has been accomplished by each one. Faith Trumbull chapter stands high in Connecticut and in the national society and I am proud to have been regent of such a chapter. My term as regent closes today. It is with some regret that I step out of this office, but it is an honor that brings much responsibility and work and care as well as honor with it. I have come to realize that the daughters of the American Revolution stand for some of the best work in this country. As John Sargeant, our attorney general said—"It wields the greatest influence for good of any organization in this country." Note that Mr. Sargeant said "any organization," not any woman's organization.

A delegate coming out of the auditorium in Washington at the last congress heard a little boy say: "See, they said these were the Daughters of the American Revolution, I should call them the grandmothers." I shall always be an ardent Daughter of the American Revolution and when too old and feeble to be an active daughter, I will be an enthusiastic grandmother and cheer on the side lines.

Remember as Mrs Cook, our president general says—"With the advantages of citizenship there have also come to us responsibilities toward all our fellow citizens. We women, as individuals and as members of the largest women's patriotic organization in the world, have a very definite responsibility toward the present and future welfare of our nation."

In conclusion, I would leave with you this creed—which every Daughter of the American Revolution might look upon as a rod and staff for her guidance in patriotic endeavors:

"I believe in my country and her destiny. In the great dream of her Founders. In her place among the nations, in her ideals.

I believe that her democracy must be protected, her privileges cherished, her freedom defended.

I believe that humbly before the Almighty, but proudly before mankind, we must safeguard her standards, the vision of her Washington, the martyrdom of her Lincoln, with the patriotic fervor of the Minute Men, and the soldiers of her glorious past.

I believe in loyalty to my country, utter irrevocable, inviolate. Thou in whose sight a thousand years are but as a yesterday, and as a watch in the night, help me in my frailty make real what I believe."

The various officers and the chairmen of the committees submitted their reports which were accepted as read. The chapter voted to place $75 in the museum fund and four new names were presented for membership.

During the past year the chapter has made the following donations:

$32.40 was given toward the Connecticut Chime to be placed in the cathedral at Valley Forge—$50 was sent to the American International college at Springfield; $10 to the Southern Industrial Institute in Charlotte, N. C.; $3 to the People's Forest; $25 to the Wakefield Nations; Memorial association; $41 for printing of the manual, which is issued in many languages for new citizens; $5 to Cathedral in Paris; about $65 toward the upkeep of the Oliver Ellsworth home in Windsor; $5 to the Caroline Scott Hanson Memorial. This is only a part of the many activities carried on by the chapter.

The nominating committee, Miss Susan L. Gallup, Mrs. Henry H. Pettis, and Mrs. Frank L. Royce, presented the following candidates for election and they were unanimously elected:

Regent, Mrs. William H. Dawley; vice regents, Mrs. Luther K. Zabriskie, Mrs. H. E. Higgins; registrar, Mrs. Hezekiah Perkins; recording secretary, Mrs. William S. Elliott; corresponding secretary, Miss Susan L. Gallup; treasurer, Mrs. Albert S. Comstock; historian, Mrs. George A. Ashbey.

Board of management; the officers together with Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn, Mrs. Arthur H. Lathrop, Mrs. Frank Hempstead, Mrs. Roy D. Judd, Mrs. Daniel M. Lester.

Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn gave a very interesting report of the meeting at the Oliver Ellsworth Homestead in Windsor Tuesday Mrs. Vaughn is one of the directors of the association. Mrs. Olive Roberts sang several selections, being accompanied by Mrs. William S. Elliott. During the social hour punch and wafers were served by the hostesses: Miss Susan L. Gallup, Mrs. Harry B. Ford, Mrs. Herbert R. Kind, Mrs. George L. Ingalls, Mrs. Leslie L. Brewer, Mrs. Herbert Mosher, Mrs. Frank L. Royce, Mrs. Henry H. Pettis.

DOUBT THAT CARBRAY HAS APPENDICITIS CASE

At a late hour Wednesday night, Anna Weltin Carbray and Herman Greiner, victims of the double shooting affray last Friday night, were reported as resting comfortably at the Backus Hospital.

Carbray who is alleged to have fired the shots at his former wife and Mr. Greiner, was also reported as resting comfortably. He was taken to the hospital Sunday afternoon from the county jail as it was feared that he was suffering from appendicitis but up to Wednesday night his case had not been diagnosed at the hospital as such. Two policemen are keeping watch alternately at his bedside, Officer Wm. Sharvan being on duty nights and Clifford Crary during the day.

The man and woman have not been operated upon for the removal of the bullets alleged to have been fired by Carbray, the woman, who was shot twice in the arms has two bullets lodged near her windpipe and Greiner shot in the lip, has a bullet lodged in his face, under the right eye.

MAYNARD IS GIVEN SIX MONTHS IN JAIL

The superior court, criminal term, came in here long enough Wednesday morning, with Judge Isaac Wolfe presiding, to have Henry A. Maynard of Voluntown presented and given a sentence of six months in jail.

Maynard is the man who pleaded guilty to the charge of adultery and was allowed to go home on the plea of his attorney in order that he might collect his carpenter's tools that were scattered around on various jobs. But Maynard did not come back. He skipped his bonds and was not found until about ten days ago, when state policemen captured him near Bishop's crossing after a fight.

The woman in the case pleaded guilty and was also allowed to go home to settle her household affairs. She came back on time and received the jail sentence which she is now serving.

PEQUOT COUNCIL, K. OF C. LAWN PARTY, MONTVILLE

Pequot council, K. of C., of Montville, opened its lawn party Wednesday evening with a big attendance and fine entertainment. There were many visitors from Norwich and New London.

The committee was headed by G. K. M. F. Geary, who was assisted by R. Hamilton, G. P. Collins, J. Donovan, J. Doyle and F. Shea. The attractive decorating was by Mrs. Edward Rowley and Joseph Keoughnan. The following assisted: Mrs. J. Edwards, Misses Bridget Kelly, Lillian Morin, Loretta Sheehan, Eileen Donovan and Madeleine Walsh; also Mrs. William Russel, Misses Laura Morin, Kathryn Hicky, Mae Collins, Minnie M. Ardle and Mrs. Charles Carbry.

Planned Neptune Park Outing.

In the absence of the leader, Mrs. Stanton W. Brown, who was in Springfield, Mass., Mrs. Edward Adams was in charge of Wednesday's meeting of Comfort Circle of the King's Daughters, held with Mrs. Fred L. Tourtellotte of Pearl street. The fifteen members present were entertained with victrola selections and Mrs. Tourtellotte served delicious punch and wafers. Plans were made for the annual outing, to be held June 24th, at the cottage of Mrs. Albert T. Utley, in Neptune park.

Workmen's Compensation.

The following workmen's compensation award has been approved by Commissioner J. J. Donohue:

ACADEMY TAKES FIRM HOLD ON LEAGUE TITLE BY BEATING STONINGTON

The Academy baseball team added Stonington to its list of victories when they overcame their contenders for the league title by a score of 6-2, at Stonington Wednesday afternoon. This victory gives the Academy a firm hold on the championship of the eastern Connecticut interscholastic league for the season and can only be tied by Westerly, whom they play next week.

Stonington did its level best to win, playing hard ball from the very beginning and although they did not come out the conquerors, they gave a splendid performance in their attempt to hold the Academy's great machine.

The Academy started on the warpath in the very first inning, drawing first blood by scoring three runs, although Stonington duplicated in their half, they could do no more with the puzzling shoots of Lefty Jarvis and the wonderful support of his teammates.

In the Academy's first trip, Carroll, leading off, was hit by the pitcher. A wild start! He stole second and went to third on a wild pitch, but was out at home trying to score, when Foote dropped one of Emmet's deliveries, however, recovering in time to tag Lee at the plate. Capt. McGowan fanned. Lefty Jarvis shot a single through left and continued to second on the wild throw by Cragan. Here, Jack Hinrichs, the versatile athlete of the school, did an a la Babe Ruth when he met one of Emmet's fast balls, sending it over the right field wall, Jarvis walking in calmly ahead of Jack. Brewer singled and went to second on an error. Cimikoski hit a Texas leaguer over second for two bags, scoring "Radio." This ended the Academy's scoring in the prologue.

Stonington, incensed over the rudeness of the Red and White, sought revenge in their half. They managed to tie the score and put a scare into the local fans. With one out, Levanti singled, Emmet fled out to "Radio" Brewer. Main was safe on Cimikoski's bad peg to first. McCaffery hit a long single to left, scoring Levanti and Main. McCaffery stole second and came home on Stowell's hard-hit bingle to right. This ended Stonington's scoring for the game.

The locals added runs in the fourth, seven and ninth by a great display of batting ability. They socked Emmet for twelve hits, while he, in turn, sent thirteen of the local warriors back to the bench via the strikeout route.

"Lefty" Jarvis kept the Brown and White hits scattered, allowing only four hits after the first inning "Lefty" also succeeded in making eight swing their bats three times and then sit down.

The fielding of the Academy with the exception of a few slips was good, and in this capacity, they outplayed their rivals.

Jack Hinrichs was the heavy hitting star with his four bagger and a single. Lefty Jarvis and "Lee" Carroll each made three hits. The work of R. Cragan and McCaffery was the outstanding feature of Stonington's attempt to cop the honors.

A large delegation traveled to Stonington, to back the team and the crowd was given a fine exhibition of ball playing, witnessing the locals take the game and put Norwich at the lead of the league.

The home team will start work again tomorrow in preparation for its game with Worcester Trade on Saturday. This game is one of the best games scheduled and should be a great attraction to all. Worcester Trade usually puts out a winning ball team, but this does not mean a thing to the locals and things will be a humming with the home team out for another scalp. Score:

AMATEUR BOUTS SLATED FOR NEW LONDON SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 3.—Several amateur titles in the boxing game will be decided pending the outcome of the mammouth boxing show which will be held at the state armory Saturday evening under the auspices of the 55th Brigade Headquarters outfit. The affair will be entirely simon pure, and boxers from all over the state will compete for honors. Louis (Kid) Kaplan featherweight champion will be the third man in the ring.

Other dignitaries will also attend and an announcement was made at Gales Ferry today that both the Yale and Harvard crews would attend the bouts in force. Of the fighters who are already slated to do their stuff little is known of their ability. But if the average fight fan wants to see action he can easily get it by taking in a good amateur show, and from the list of fighters who will appear on the card it is a certainty that a good fight will take place in every bout.

There is more incentive for a fighter to win out in the amateur bout than in most professional bouts and for that reason keen rivalry is bound to exist.

175 pound class—Henry De Julia of New Haven vs. George Bennett of Bridgeport.

Nathan Levine of Colchester vs. Benjamin Roth of New London.

130 pound class—Eddie Carney of New Haven vs. Willie Disco of Wallingford.

112 pound class—Eddie Blackie of Bridgeport vs. Mike Tarry of Bridgeport.

115 pound class—Eddie Gamberdella of New Haven vs. Joe Pat Duffy of Meriden.

Other bouts to be announced later.

WESTERLY TEAM TO PLAY TAFTVILLE A. A. SATURDAY

The Westerly Independents will play at Taftville, Providence street ball grounds this Saturday. The Westerly boys are pretty strong, but Manager Froland expects to send them back with the small end of the score. Leo Jarvis has put the boys through a good practice this week and will be able to put up a strong fight. Lefty Dugas or Lemon will do the pitching for Taftville while Stenhouse will pitch for Westerly. The Westerly lineup is as follows: Keller c, Stenhouse p, Howd 1st, Blake 2d, Raffo ss, Mitchell 3d, Murphy rf, Lynch cf, Shiller lf.

WINDHAM TO PLAY THREAD CITY CLERKS TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, June 3.—Coach T. A. Callaghan's Windham High School nine scored its first victory of the season yesterday afternoon at Recreation Park after eight defeats. The losing team was Lyman Memorial High School of Lebanon. The score was 13 to 2. The local ace, Johnnie Miela, started on the mound and after keeping the visitors well in hand for seven innings although unusually wild he retired in favor of Dillon, second string moundsman, who continued along the winning ways of his predecessor.

Jackie Nichols was the feature player of the game, collecting a homer and two-base hits and making two pretty catches in the outfield. Starr in the box for the losers hurled good ball, in fact better than the score would indicate.

Tomorrow afternoon, the Clerks will oppose the high school lads. The game which is an annual affair will start at 3:15. John F. McQuillan will officiate. Lefty Smith who now follows the vocation of fireman being a member of Engine Company No. 1 will essay a comeback in the hurling role. In his prime Lefty who was first seen in this city in Norwich spangles in the days of the old trolley league ranked with the top notchers. With plenty of smoke and a baffling assortment of curves, the southpaw soon was considered the best that the league sported and after his transfer to the local club his rise to stardom was rapid. For a number of seasons he was with the Baltimore Orioles in the days when Bob Shawkey now of the Connie Mack's payroll.

AGGIE FROSH CLOSE SEASON WITH SHUTOUT VICTORY

(Special to The Bulletin).

Storrs, Ct., June 3—The Connecticut Aggies Freshmen closed their 1925 season here by white washing the Rhode Island State yearlings 14 to 0. Eddy on the mound for the Aggies pitched airtight ball, holding the Rhode Islanders in check at all times, giving but three scattered hits. Coach Alexander's nine connected with Dragetti's offerings for 15 safe hits, which coupled with frequent Rhode Island errors enabled the Storrs team to score often. For Connecticut the work of Salad and Emerson with three hits apiece was a feature. The score:

HARTFORD BEATS HILLIES IN CLOSE GAME

Hartford, June 3—(A. P.)—Mullen drove in three runs while a double steal netted another, Hartford defeating Pittsfield 4 to 3. Johnson pitched effectively except in two innings when the Hillies scored. A great running one handed shoestring catch by Leary which was converted into a double play, prevented the visitors from tieing the score in the ninth. Score:

SUZANNE LOSES HER FIRST GAME OF TOURNEY

Paris, June 3—(A. P.)—Susanne Lenglen lost her first game of the 1925 French open championships. She defeated Miss Evelyn Colyer of England, 6-0, 6-2, the two games being the only ones lost in reaching the semi-finals.

The Lenglen-Coyler match was awaited with considerable interest, tennis followers hoping it would prove the first real test for the French star since her return to championship competitions. The English player was completely bewildered by Mlle. Lenglen's sterling play.

Jean Washer of Belgium defeated Henri Cochet of France, 9-7, 3-6, 6-4, the Belgian having greatly improved in form since his last appearance in France. Washer, Jean Borotra, Rene Lacoste and Andre Gobert are the semi-finalists in the men's singles.

PENN TAKES LEAD IN COLLEGE BASEBALL LEAGUE

New York, une 3.—(A. P.)—Sensational battery work on the part of Pitcher Long and Catcher Chance elevated University of Pennsylvania to first place in the quadrangle cup baseball series with a shutout victory ovr Columbia today, 3 to 0.

Long limited the home nine to two hits, while his battery mate drove in both of Pennsylvania's runs, making a homer, a double and two singles. The victory broke the first place tie between Dartmouth and Pennsylvania giving the latter three victories and one defeat against two wins and one reverse for the Hanover team. Cornell is third, while Columbia dropped to fourth place through today's defeat.

[illegible] OF TWILIGHT LEAGUE NEXT TUESDAY

The final meeting before the official opening of the twilight season which takes place next Tuesday night at six thirty D. S. T. was held at the Duwell Club last night and all the minor details sewed up tight so that all that is left now is for the official umpire to cry "play ball".

To avoid any disputes as to whom the honors of playing the first game should go the managers of each team drew a slip from a brand new gimmy hat which Tommy Simcox so generously furnished and the Nuggets, under the management of George Madden, and the East Ends, under the wing of Bill Peduce were scheduled to open the 1925 season. Wednesday night the Hallville team will meet the Eastern Conn. Power Co., team on Thursday the Palace will play the Centrals and the Yantic Woolen will meet the St. Joseph team on Friday night. A complete schedule to cover the remaining games will be published later.

In case any disputes should arise during the season an arbitration board, Earl Mathewson, Jackie Wilson and Earl Brigham, has been selected to make things right. These men are well known and popular men, who are interested in the progress of clean sports and no doubt will do justice in any arguments which may come up.

The official umpires will be Charlie Coleman, who has umpired baseball games from coast to coast, and "Cy" Perkins, an old timer who has played with many of the best teams in the state in his day. "Cy" is a scholar of the olden days when the best of 'em were willing to play for carfare and is sure to keep things running smoothly during the season.

Although each team is given until June 22nd, to complete their lineup, the managers gave a few of the names of men that will perform on their teams. On the East Ends roster, are "Big" Bill Austin, Roy Leonard, Bill Durkin, a new comer in this section who hails from up in New York state, Leo Hamil, Jimmy Pedace and Tim Coughlin.

In the Palace lineup will be "Chip" Dugas, Tom Simcox, Red Simcox, Mike Morin, Leo Morin, Joe Jackson and "Long John" Keenan.

The Centrals have Gauthier, Gaudette, "Pheno" Tombari of the N. F. A., Cerbola and Gero of the Chapman Tech.

Taylor of Hallville has signed up "Gene" Fuller, Harold Mansfield, Al Mulholland, Sullivan and Almquist, two stars of last year's Baltic team.

The Yantic team will present the same lineup which has been together all season which includes, Lamphere, Ainsworth, Lane, Burns, Wheeler, H. Lamphere, Coff, Simrock, Laporte and Keeley. The Nuggets, E. C. P. and St. Joseph teams refused to make a statement in regards to their lineup but it is a known fact that these teams have corralled some of the fastest boys in this locality and it is rumored that fexy George Madden has signed up Lloyd Jarvis, the sensation of the 1925 high school season, to do his twirling. Jarvis has won his way into the hearts of all the baseball fans in Eastern Conn., by his wonderful work with the N. F. A.

In looking over the array of baseball talent the fans can judge for themselves as to what kind of baseball will be seen at the Duwell Field this season. While a lot of men have been mentioned the managers of the different teams are holding back the names of many of their players.

All that is needed now to make the Twilight League a howling success is the support of the local fans whom no doubt will come through.

STARS WIN EASY VICTORY OVER COAST GUARD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 3.—With the Coast Guard nine playing listless baseball, it was an easy matter for the Fort Trumbull Stars, with Williamson on the hillock, to gain a verdict of 9 to 2 over the gobs. The winners were also subject to bad baseball and had Williamson been supported the way he should have been, the gobs would have been shut out.

Heavy hitting featured the fuss and two home runs by members of the Stars outfit had something to do with the final outcome of the game in more ways than one. Balknap came through with a four-ply wallop with the bases fully occupied in the initial frame, and Allen's hit which was a terrific drive to the opening of Cape Ann court scored two in front of him. This caused the departure of Morrison and he retired in favor of Todd a bespeckled pitcher who was also hit rather freely. The game went but five innings being called at the end of the first of the sixth due to darkness after the Stars had scored three more runs. The score:

SEMI-FINALS IN CONN. GOLF TOURNEY REACHED

Waterbury, Conn., June 3—Two golfers from the Brooklawn country club in Bridgeport one from the Springfield country club and one from the New Haven country club remained in competition for the Connecticut Women's Golf association championship at the close of the second round matches today at the Waterbury country club. Mrs. C. H. Porter, the defending champion is New Haven's lone representative in the title chance. M. G. Maycroft, the Medalists and Miss Georgiana Bishop are Brooklawn's two sterling candidates for the crown while Mrs. Charles J. Downey has come down from Springfield to challenge the supremacy of the state's best women golfers.

NEUSEL'S HOMER IN 12TH BEATS SENATORS AGAIN

New York, June 3—With two out and a runner on base in the 12th, Bob Meusel crashed his 15th home run of the season off Southpaw Zachary, giving the Yankees their second consecutive victory over the Senators 6 to 4. Howard Shanks, Yankees' second baseman drove out a homer in the ninth which tied up the game.

Nineteen players were used by New York and 15 by the champions.

Babe Ruth failed to get a hit in six trips to the plate. Score:

RED SOX BEAT ATHLETICS 4 TO 2, ON FOUR HITS

Boston, June 3—(A. P.)—The Red Sox defeated the Philadelphia Athletics, 4 to 2, although securing only four hits off the offerings of three Philly pitchers. In the third A. Boone singled and Vache's triple, coupled with a pass to Ezzell and Todt's sacrifice fly, all off Braumgartner, netted three runs. Howard Ehmke turned in his first home victory, being touched for nine hits.

RING HURLS FINE GAME AND PHILLIES BEAT BOSTON

Philadelphia, June 3—Jimmy Ring hurled fine ball to give Philadelphia the odd game of the series with Boston, by a 5 to 4 margin and the locals left for the West in the first division.

The game was one of the best played on the local lot this season and the Braves appeared to be helpless until the eighth when a three run rally nearly tied the score.

WESTERLY

Congressman Richard [illegible] of the Second Rhode Island district, a resident of Providence, [illegible] by his wife and son, arrived in Westerly Wednesday morning on the federal express from their Washington, D. C., residence, Wardman Park hotel. They were met by their chauffeur and motored to Watch Hill to take up their summer residence at their cottage, "Overlook," Ocean View highway.

The family of T. D. Thatcher of New York, has arrived at Watch Hill at their summer home, "Intermere," Niantic avenue; W. H. Donner from Philadelphia is at the "White House"; Hunter B. Marston from New York, is at "Ridge End" and J. Frederick Eagle from New York is also at the Hill.

Mrs G. Byron Cottrell and daughters, Misses Kathryn and Mary Stuart Cottrell, left Westerly Wednesday for New York. Saturday next they will sail on the Holland-American line steamship, Rotterdam, to Plymouth and Rotterdam for a European trip.

Narragansett Commandery, No. 27, Knights Templar, Em. Sir Arthur Arthur E. Thompson, commander, held a regular conclave Wednesday evening in their asylum on High street. Business was followed by work in the Temple degree on a number of candidates. A semi-final report was heard from P. Em. Sir Arthur N. Nash, in which it was learned that at least one hundred and fifty sir knights and their ladies would make the pilgrimage to Worcester, Mass., on St. John's day, June 24th, to participate in the mammoth Knight Templar street parade and observance of the 100th anniversary of Worcester County commandery, No. 5, K. T. Traffic arrangements have been made with police authorities to allow their automobiles to pass restricted streets. Headquarters will be at the Hotel Warren. A number will attend the ball the night before and others will be present at the Wednesday evening's banquet of the Commanders' union.

Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown Wednesday had two patrolmen stationed on or about Dixon square in front of the Rhode Island hotel to enforce the parking ordinances for the the Town of Westerly which went into effect June 1. The parking signs were put in place Tuesday. Wednesday the police were busy checking up on automobiles which were parking more than their prescribed limit.

One change is to allow no parking on the west side of Elm street, the full length. At present the police believe that where parking is allowed on two sides of the street there should be plenty of room for safe two-way traffic, and this is not so on Elm street. Particularly bad is the situation between corner of Broad and Elm and the corner of School and Elm streets.

The situation may be improved in Dixon square by not allowing parking in front of the Rhode Island Hotel as now, but obliging the cars to pull alongside the curb as is done in other parts of the business section. It is believed that a parking place for only five or six cars will be sacrificed and that this room is much more needed in the center of the street, as at present only one way traffic is possible between the center of the street and the rear end of the cars parking obliquely to the curb.

A serious accident followed by the summoning of Frank Costanzi into next Friday's session of Third district court to a possibe complaint of reckless driving resulted when Phoebe Cottrell, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cottrell, was severely injured early Wednesday afternoon while crossing Canal street in front of the Westerly Felt Co. mill. The child was knocked down by an automobile truck driven by Costanzi. The Costanza machine was proceeding down Canal street and another car was coming in the opposite direction. The child stepped into the road, watching the car coming up Canal street, Costanza pulled his machine off into the curbing, but he could not avoid striking the child, he declared. She was knocked to the ground, her leg was bruised and a cut opened in her head. Dr. Charles P. Crandall was summoned and took four stitches to close the gash. The accident was investigated by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown and Officer George Champlin. Later measurements were taken by Louis Rossi and Merton Lewis, civil engineers.

George Monjeau, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, pleaded guilty when given a hearing Tuesday evening before Clerk Michael Walter Flynn at a special session of the Third District court. He was fined $150 and costs. Monjeau was arrested Monday night by Officer William Kay of Hope Valley after an automobile accident on the road between Wyoming and Barberville. A ford roadster driven by Monjeau collided with a Ford touring car driven by Florence Richmond of Arcadia, causing the latter machine to overturn.

Patrick McCarthy, presented before Clerk Flynn last evening on a charge of drunkenness, was fined $2 and costs the whole amounting to $5.40.

CROSS-CUT SAW FIGURES IN AUTO COLLISION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, R. I., June 3—The auto operated by Antonio Gentile, Wednesday evening, about 6 o'clock, came in collision with the automobile driven by "Boots" Salimeno on Railroad avenue, near the West street railroad bridge. Gentile was driving his machine up West street to cross the bridge, as the Salimeno machine came down Railroad avenue. When Gentile saw that he could not avoid hitting the other machine he pulled his machine over to the left giving the Salimeno car a glancing blow and brought up against an iron trolley pole, smashing the forward left headlight, bending the fender, pulling off the rear left tire.

A cross-cut saw, which lay at the back of his machine was thrown forward, striking Gentile on the right ear and cutting him to some extent. Both machines proceeded without police investigation.

NEW ZONING BOARD MEETS AND ORGANIZES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, R. I. June 3—The Westerly zoning board held its first meeting for organization in the council chambers of the Westerly town hall Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

There were present, Arthur L. Perry, Frank A. Sullivan, Charles L. Fontana, and William A. Broadfoot, the only absentee being D. Harold Rogers. The board organized as follows: President, Arthur L. Perry; secretary, William A. Broadfoot. It was stated that a Westerly man was agreed upon for building inspector, but as his acceptance of the office had not been received, there was no announcement to be published. A second meeting of the board will probably be held next Wednesday, or Thursday whenwhen it is convenient for the zoning expert, Robert Whitten, of Cleveland, Ohio, to be present. At that meeting, it is stated, the first business will be taken up. There was no action taken on the applications for building permits which were brought in at the June council meeting. These permits will be acted upon by the inspector to be named and if there is any further question, they will come before the zoning board, which will act as a board of arbitration and will meet when there is business to come before it.

MRS. THOS. E. PACKER REACHES 95TH BIRTHDAY

Today (Thursday) is the 95th birthday of Mrs. Thomas E. Packer, Mystic's oldest lifelong resident. Emma Jane Burrows was born June 4, 1830, the seventh of the ten children of Daniel Burrows and Mary Hempstead, in the old Burrows homestead on Burrows street now owned by Mrs. Addie Burrows Packer a granddaughter. The latter has made a modern house of it and the lawn is one of the prettiest in Mystic, with shrubbery of so many kinds that flowers are found there throughout the summer. Daniel Burrows owned several acres that are now building lots, owned by many persons who have erected houses on them.

At twelve during the great revival by Rev. Jabez S. Swan she was baptized, August 1842, with Miss Susan L. Fish, who was ninety-one last Friday. At this time upwards of 400 persons were baptized upon profusion of faith from the child of six to the man of eighty-two, into the membership of the Baptist church. July 4, 1849 she was united in marriage with Thomas Eldredge Packer, by Rev. S. Backus Bailey. Two daughters were born to them, Teresa K., who married Amos Grinnell, and Addie B., the wife of Frank W. Batty. She has no grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Packer observed their fiftieth anniversary four years before the former's death, October 25, 1903.

At the time of their marriage there were two Baptist churches here and in 1861 when it was thought best to unite them into one church, Thomas E. Packer was one of the committee of three from the Third Baptist church of which he was a member that effected the merger and it has been the Union Baptist church of Mystic ever since. Mr. Packer was deeply interested in temperance and it was mostly through his efforts that the W. C. T. U. was organized here, with Mrs. Packer a charter member and his daughter, Mrs. Batty the first secretary. Mrs. Packer maintains her interest in the W. C. T. U. and is a much loved member and contributor. She was active in all church work and attended Sunday School until infirmity of age prevented.

She remembers when the stage coach drove through and the first train was run through attracted many to see it. She has seen Mystic grow from a hamlet to the present village; also has lived to see the many inventions and the great changes in the industrial world. She has been a shut-in the last few years, tenderly cared for by her two daughters, who do everything possible for her comfort.

Callers are always welcomed with great cordiality. She always receives many cards, gifts and flowers on her birthday.

LEGISLATORS COMBINE BUSINESS AND PLEASURE IN LAST SESSION OF 1925

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, June 3.—The final calendar of the senate today contained 30 items that were passed in the house yesterday and were acted upon by the senate today. The house calendar had eight items which were sent to the senate as soon as acted upon. It was impossible for some of the members to wait till the business before the house was completed and they placed the fantastic paper caps on their heads. Vigorous applause was given on the action taken on every bill whether favorable or unfavorable.

The amended marriage license bill passed today requires that both of the parties must appear in person to make the application.

The bill is Section 5263 of the General Statutes and as amended reads: No persons shall be joined in marriage until they both shall have joined in an application to the registrar of births, marriages and deaths in the town in which such marriage is to be celebrated, for a license for such marriage, which application shall include the name, age, color, occupation, birthplace, residence and whether either one is single, widowed or divorced or under the supervision or control of a guardian or conservator which application shall be under the oath of each of the applicants. If either of such persons is a resident of such town such registrar shall issue his certificate that the parties therein named have complied with the provisions of this act, provided any person under the control or supervision of any guardian or conservator shall file with the registrar the written consent of such guardian or conservator. If neither of such persons is a resident in such town such registrar shall not issue such certificate until the fifth day following such application unless the judge of probate for the district in which the intended marriage is to be celebrated, after hearing such evidence as shall be presented, shall render a decision in writing that, in the opinion of such judge, public policy or the physical condition of either one of the parties requires the intended marriage to be celebrated without delay. Upon receipt of such decision such registrar shall place the same on file as a public document and shall immediately issue a license which shall state that the parties therein named have complied with the provisions of this act. Such certificate shall be a license for any person authorized to celebrate marriage to join in marriage within such town the parties therein named, but no such certificate shall be issued if either of the parties is a minor until a parent or guardian having control over such minor shall give to such registrar his written consent nor to parties either of whom is less than sixteen years of age unless one of the selectmen or any person exercising the authority of the selectman in the town or city in which such marriage celebration is to be performed shall endorse on such certificate his written consent.

House Makes Merry.

As usual the last day, a mock session was held while waiting for business from the senate. The fun began when Speaker Darbie retired to his office and all forms of confetti filled the air. All those who have been prominent in debate were the special targets. The lady members appeared and lined up before the speaker's desk and after singing two popular songs, distributed to the men members a boutonniere, each one containing a spray of "forget-me-nots." Mrs. Hooker, of Hartford, made a humorous address, referring to peculiarities of some of the members. Finkelstein, of Bridgeport, was in the chair and ordered that the doors be locked against any person except friends of Bridgeport. Miss Cheney sent up to the speaker a ball player's chest protector. Wheeler, of Stratford, attempting to speak, was recognized as the lady from Stratford. Several humorous resolutions were offered by the ladies, and speeches were made, accompanied with burlesque oratorical gestures of prominent members. The speech of Mrs. Alsop, who represented Averill, of Branford, was loudly applauded. Mrs. Chapman, of Lyme, imitated Sturges, of Woodbury, to perfection. Mrs. Woodward, of Bolton, representing Clark, of Haddam, introduced and supported a bill giving five millions of dollars for the conservation of Indians and snakes in the town of Kent. Hoyt, of New Haven, presented Lynch, of Orange, a sprig of poison ivy as a mark of appreciation from the school teachers of New Haven.

Lincoln of Ashford was presented a large bell that he might attach to any future resolution that he desired to offer, so that he might find them when wanted.

Miss Cheney was presented with a huge note book in which she might record her impressions of the General Assembly of 1925.

Bell of Salisbury presented Clark of Haddam, a huge megaphone.

Williamson of Darien, Mers of North Haven, Leonard of Killingly, Hoyt of New Haven, Bell of Salisbury, Ketchin of Simsbury, Averill of Branford were presented with typical presents.

Wheeler of Stratford acted as master of ceremonies.

The hilarious sport was cut short by Speaker Darbie resuming the chair for the resumption of business. The hit of the occasion was made by Mrs. Emmons of Westport, who read an original poem portraying some of the characteristics of several house chairmen.

The House

The house was called to order at 10:37 by Speaker Darbie.

On taking the chair he said that in view of the heat of the day he did not think it would lower the dignity of house if the members removed their coats. About one half of the members did so, including the speaker and chaplain.

The weights and measures bill as amended in the senate was passed. The house voted to concur with the senate and voted to indefinitely postpone the bill allowing Manchester to call itself a city.

The house concurred with the senate in making appropriations for expenses of the state for the next two fiscal years. A bill was passed appropriating money for the repair and construction of state aid roads.

The bill providing an excess tax upon public motor trucks upon the state highways passed without opposition. The New London zoning bill came back from the senate and the house reconsidered its action of yesterday and passed the bill.

A recess was taken at 10:35 for ten minutes.

An unfavorable report was made on the bill that would appropriate $1,000 to each town for the building of gravel roads. Dr. Higgins of Coventry spoke in favor of its passage.

It was a measure that would be of great value to every town in the state. Leader Alling said that was unwise at this late hour, a bill that would take from the highway department a sum that would approximate nearly $350,000. Johnson of Kent said that the bill was a good one and should pass. The selectmen of the towns can get the appropriation by adding an equal sum and will be enabled to greatly improve the rural roads.

Chairman Clark said there was no available money to meet the provisions of this bill and the money would have to be diverted from the highway funds. Johnson of Tolland said that the rural towns of the state paid 33 per cent of the state tax and received only 2 per cent of the disbursements. Burrows of Groton moved the previous question and the bill was rejected.

The bill was as follows:

Section 1. Any town, upon application to the —comptroller upon forms to be provided by him, shall receive from the stat ea sum not exceeding one thousand dollars, annually, provided the towns shall expend an equal amount in improving with gravel, native stone, trap rock or cinders any highway other than a trunk line or state aid highway. Each such improvement shall begin at a point to be designated by the selectmen and each appropriation therefor shall be continuous until such work shall be completed.

Sec. 2. And town may vote to expend, under the provisions of this act, not more than two thousand dollars, annually, and upon presentation of a certificate of the selectmen or of the officer having charge of highways in any such town showing that such highway improvements have been made and paid for, shall be reimbursed by the state not exceeding one-half of the expenditure of such town for such improvement. Such certificate shall state the length, and location of the road so improved and shall be such sums of money, not to exceed upon a form approved and furnished by the comptroller.

Sec. 3 The highway commissioner is directed to deliver to the treasurer, upon the order of the comptroller, three hundred and thirty-eight thousand dollars, from funds specified for reconstruction of state aid roads, as may be required for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act.

At 1.55 the house recessed to 2.15 and reassembled at 2.35 with Mr. Williamson of Darien in the chair. The comptroller was directed to secure a portrait of Speaker Darbie to be hung in the speaker's room.

Gifts for Speaker Darbie

Resolutions were passed that gave the speaker the block and gavel used by him during the session ,also expressing a hearty appreciation of the able and impartial manner in which he had presided. Leader Alling speaking on the resolution, presented him with a fine sporting gun in a leather carrying case. Mr. Darbie made appropriate response.

Resolutions of appreciation of the service rendered by House Chaplain Arthur Lewis after the adoption of which Mr. Sturgess presented him a mahogany humidor. Mr. Lewis has been a very popular chaplain. Democratic Leader Bransfield moved passage of appreciation of Republican Leader, Alling and on the behalf of the members of the house presented him with a Masonic charm.

Resolutions expressing appreciation of the service of Democratic Leader Bransfield were adopted and Rep. Averill presented him on the part of the house with a valuable ring. Lavery of Fairfield offered resolutions to clerks Hickey and Bill. Clerk Hickey was presented a gold ring and Assistant Clerk Bill with a humidor. Thanks were given to the messengers and door keepers for the way in which they had performed their duties.

At 3.20 the senate was notified that the house was prepared to meet them in joint convention.

After the senate entered led by Lt. Governor Brainard a committee was named to notify the governor that the assembly was in joint session to receive him before final adjournment. The governor soon appeared and was greeted with tumultuous applause. "He is a Jolly Good Fellow" was heartily sung.

The governor congratulated the assembly for the work done and directed the sheriff to make proclamations and Secretary of State Pallotti declared the general assembly adjourned sine die at 3.40.

Senate

The senate was called to order at 10.35 by Lieutenant Governor Brainard. Prayer by Chaplain Ayer.

The members of the senate were treated to cigars by Senator Meech of the Fifth district.

On the favorable report of the committee on appropriations the following appropriations were voted: Competition of unfinished intervals of state aid roads $10,000; state and construction $10,000; trunk line roads $10,000; federal aid roads $10,000; total $10,000."

In reply to remarks by Senator Ford Senator Pierson said the bill for the appropriation of $2,500,000 for road construction had died in committee and would not be reported. "It is now in the desk in the committee room where it will stay," said Senator Pierson.

When it was reported in the senate that the house had indefinitely reported the bill creating a zoning district commission for Hartford, Senator Smith chairman of the committee on cities and boroughs, moved that the senate insist and ask for a committee of conference. The motion was carried. Senator Smith was appointed on the committee on the motion of Senator Cronin.

Calendar

Passed—Extending from October 1 the time for taking appeals from revocations of licenses to practice medicine; incorporating Lord's Point incorporated; creating a commission consisting of the governor ex-officio, and five others to be appointed by the governor, to investigate the building requirements of state institutions and appropriating $25,000 for the purposes of the commission; concerning assessments of benefits and awards for damages in the town of West Hartford; allowing electors to make written application to registrars to have their names placed on the caucus list; incorporating the Stamford Title and Finance company; increasing the salaries of court officials throughout the state; that funds may be deposited with the county treasurer for the care of cemeteries; concerning assessments for improvements and liens in the Center Fire district; appropriating $8,000 to the Connecticut Firemen's association; appropriating $1,000 to the secretary of state for the purchase of a visible index; creating a board of finance in Branford; authorizing the city of New Haven and the New Haven city school district to execute mutual releases of claims; appropriating $20,000 to the Connecticut Agricultural society for the state fair at Charter Oak; making the terms of court clubs in Fairfield county four years; that persons may be excused from jury duty when they have served on juries in the same court within five years; accepting the provisions of an act of congress concerning the endorsement of agricultural experiment stations; creating the office of superintendent of highways and bridges in the town of Fairfield.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Another Curwood Story for Screen

"The Hunted Woman," the William Fox picturisation of James Oliver Curwood's celebrated novel of the North country, is the attraction at the Bread theatre for two days starting Friday.

Seena Owen and Earl Schenck have the leading roles in this production with Diana Miller and Cyril Chadwick cast as "heavies." Francis McDonald, Edward Piel and Victor MacLaglen have important roles.

John Conway directed the filming of the Curwood story from a scenario prepared by Robert N. Lee. All the outdoor sequences on the production were shot in the Yosemite Valley, because of its topographical likeness to the country described by Curwood in the novel.

Broadway Theatre

Petit Leighton and Josephine and Co., offer a comedy novelty with songs. Kennedy and Davis present "All in Fun." Willie Smith presents a new line of funny stories. Perry and Cowan, "Just Dancing." Roy and Ruby offer grace and agility in the air.

Rum running on a wholesale scale is shown in "Contraband," Alan Crosland's newest Paramount production coming to the Broadway Theatre today.

The inside workings of the transportation of contraband liquor, an illegal industry which the government combats at an annual cost of millions, are faithfully depicted.

The featured roles in "Contraband," Clarence Budington Kelland's story which Jack Cunningham adapted for screen use, are played by Lois Wilson, Noah Beery, Raymond Hatton and Raymond McKee.

Miss Wilson has the role of Carmel Lee, a young girl who inherits a small-town newspaper and uses it to expose a rum ring using a deserted hotel in the outskirts of the town as a storehouse for the liquor which they smuggle over the border in motor trucks.

The sheriff of the county disappears and the girl is told to "lay off" making any mention of the disappearance in her paper, but she goes right ahead and gets out an edition headed "What Happened to Sheriff Churchill?" She is made a prisoner by the rum-runners.

From this point the picture builds to a real smash climax. There are fights, thrills, drama, comedy. To see "Contraband" is to be entertained.

Palace Theatre

Enthusiasm is being manifested at every performance of "The Brat," which the Augustin Stock company is presenting all this week at the Palace theatre at popular prices with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons. This city has seldom had the chance to enjoy the work of a stock company of the calibre of the Augustin Stock company. So fine a company is certainly deserving of capacity houses and should be kept here all summer. If every one of you who enjoy good theatrical entertainment will go once and see what this stellar aggregation of players are offering you will be lured back again the following week by the merit of the performance and the splendid acting. The current attraction, "The Brat," is not only a great comedy drama but it is being given an impersonation that is a delightful treat for every patron of this popular playhouse. It is by far the most genuinely human and humorous comedy that has been presented in this city in many a moon. It hasn't a dull moment in it. It starts right off with a bang and compels the interest and from then on it never loses a grip upon your imagination, interest or emotions. In fact the play gets more and more fascinating as it goes along. The prime motive of a stock company is to entertain you and we can assure you that patrons of the local stock company will vote that it is one of the best that has ever played here. The popular scale of prices have created a heavy demand for seats and patrons should secure their favorite seats for the remainder of the week at once before all the choice ones are gone. Reservations can be secured by calling 1645

DAYVILLE FATHER, IN NEW LONDON, SEEKS DAUGHTER AND SOLDIER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 3.—William T. Knight, of Dayville, came to New London last night and sought the aid of the police in an effort to locate his daughter, Elizabeth, who is alleged to have come to this city late Tuesday afternoon in company with a soldier. No trace of the girl was found here. She is described as being 15, and about five feet, eight inches in height. Knight stated that the girl had been visiting relatives in Norwich and that she was observed to board the trolley car that left Norwich for New London at 4:15 o'clock. The soldier had been about Norwich throughout the day attempting to sell sachet powder.

Following the accusation of Joseph Sleeper, a soldier, stationed at Fort Wright, where he is a radio operator, and Andrew Langeon, sailor, attached to the United States Coast Guard, state pier, that the former had been robbed of $100 and the latter a loser by theft of $35, while they slept in Room 4 at the Hotel Winthrop Monday night, Florence Joyce Edwards, of this city, and Ruby Schaeffer, a resident of New London about three months, were arrested this afternoon by Traffic Officer Frank Linehan. The girls are not charged with the theft of the money, but they are locked up pending the convening of the police court tomorrow morning, charged with lascivious carriage, although it is believed that they may have knowledge of the loss of the money by Sleeper and Langeon, for the two girls are lodgers at the hotel. The girls deny all knowledge of the theft and deny that they were in the company of Sleeper and Langeon.

Sleeper, Langeon and other soldiers and sailors were occupants of several rooms at the hotel Monday night. About 11 o'clock William Deets, also a Coast Guard sailor, was taken to the room occupied by Sleeper and Langeon. Other uniformed men were there and all are said to have retired about 2 o'clock. When Sleeper and Langeon arose at 5:15 o'clock they discovered Deets absent and their money missing. Deets reported back to his boat, the patrol 234, this morning, but the commanding officer refused to deliver him to the civil authorities until he receives orders to do so from Washington. Deets is given an excellent reputation aboard his boat and Langeon has made it known that he will not press a charge of theft against Deets.

Oskar Hill, a Norwegian, finds it no easy thing to cut out the use of liquor, once the habit of drinking has been formed. He began the month of May with an arrest on the 2nd, was again in custody on the 7th and the 10th found him again in the lock-up. Yesterday he was again arrested. Some leniency has been shown him because of his good-natured disposition and his promises to abstain from drink, but that sort of sympathy seems to have been wasted. Today he was fined. He was also assured that if he returned to the court again soon, he would be assigned to a stay in the county jail for a term that would take away from him all appetite for liquor. His expense account today was about $20. But he had more than that amount left, after he settled.

William E. Gordon, a man who pricks images of men, women and birds on the arms of those who seek India ink decoration for their limbs, has been on a spree a few days. He was encountered by Officer Henry Hick yesterday and locked up. Mrs. Gordon has been concerned about her husband and she made known her alarm to the police. Gordon spent last night in the police station, this being the first experience of the sort he ever had. He asked for leniency and made promises that he would abstain from liquor in the future. Judgment was suspended to see whether he has the will power that will enable him to resist appetite. The sincerity of Gordon was apparent to all in the court room when his case was under consideration.

William C. Wheary, a chief petty officer, attached to the United States Coast Guard patrol boat, 233, state pier, complained to the police today that some time since 3 o'clock this morning his Buick roadster was stolen from the pier. The theft, it is believed, was perpetrated by one or more sailors, who are also stationed at the pier.

The deal that has been in contemplation several weeks for the purchase of the business building, 13-14 Main street, by N. Nogrovitch, Westerly, proprietor of the Bargain Self-Service Shoe company in this city, from David Solts, was consummated this afternoon. The price paid is $40,000. The papers transferring title from Solts to Nogrovitch are now being prepared for filing at the office of the city clerk.

Samuel Scott Morgan, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Morgan, 266 Crystal avenue, and a student at Bulkeley school, was taken into custody this noon, at the request of State Police Officer Giles Watson, of Groton barracks, charged with perjury in connection with statements Morgan is alleged to have made in order to obtain an operator's license recently. Morgan is accused of not giving his correct name, stating his identity to be "Scott Morgan," also declaring himself to be 18. Morgan's father became surety on the youth's bond of $100 for the appearance of the accused in the police court tomorrow morning.

John Lavin, 249 Huntington street, complained to the police this afternoon that a spare tire was stolen from his automobile earlier in the day and while the machine was parked in front of the Lavin residence.

A testimonial dinner is to be tendered Deputy Fire Chief Thomas Shipman by the Pequot Independent Hose company Saturday night. The event is planned at the quarters of the company and will be attended by members of the city council and other officials. Deputy Chief Shipman recently returned from New York, where he performed fire duty with one of the New York companies in an endeavor to obtain advanced knowledge of the best possible methods to be employed in combatting fires.

Miss Margaret Scribner, of 236 Crystal avenue; Mrs. Edward Peltier, Ocean Beach, and Mrs. Albert Friber, 36 Mitchell street, Groton, patients at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

The funeral of Mrs. Emma A. Payne, widow of Henry B. Payne, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at her home, 161 Howard street, and was attended by many mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. Joseph A. Elder, pastor of Huntington Street Baptist church. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in East Neck cemetery, Waterford.

The funeral of Sarah E., wife of Herbert C. Burdick, was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the former residence of Mrs. Burdick, 26 Williams street. The services were conducted by Rev. Chester R. Howe, pastor of the First Baptist church. Interment was in Jordan cemetery.

An automobile owned by Arthur Dayton became ablaze on Jefferson avenue this forenoon and so serious did the flames become that a still alarm was sent to fire headquarters. Northwest Hose company responded and on arrival of the firemen the automobile was enveloped in flames. A liberal quantity of chemicals was sufficient to extinguish the fire, before serious damage had resulted.

A class of five candidates received the initiatory degree this evening at a meeting of Minnihaha Council, Daughters of Pocohontas.

Announcement is made of the engagement of George B. Bruhus, of Black Hall, to Miss Beatrice Sherman, teacher at Jordan public school. The announcement was made last evening at the residence of Mrs. Marian Dean, 210 Huntington street, where Miss Sherman entertained a number of intimate acquaintances. Among those present was Miss Gente Dean, of Norwich.

The condition of Robert H. Small, 151 Willetts avenue, who sustained a fractured skull last Saturday when the automobile in which he was riding and which was being operated by Mrs. Small crashed against a tree at Yantic, is reported this evening at Home Memorial hospital as being slightly improved. Mrs. Small, who suffered a fractured leg and numerous lacerations, is stated to be as comfortable as could be expected under the circumstances.

Mrs. Sidney H. Miner was re-elected regent of Lucretia Shaw chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at its annual meeting yesterday. Mrs. Miner gave a full report of the year's activities. The other officers elected were: vice regent—Mrs. Herbert L. Crandall; corresponding secretary—Miss Elsie Fengar; recording secretary—Mrs. Lucian H. Beebe; treasurer—Miss Marjory M. Dennison; registrar—Miss Nettie J. Bishop; historian—Mrs. William D. Harris; librarian—Miss Alice Rogers; chairman ancientest burial ground—Mrs. Joseph Dean; chairman Nathan Hale schoolhouse—Miss Elizabeth A. Mason; chairman Americanization—Miss Dorothy R. Dart; chairman magazine—Mrs. John W. Boylston; chairman of correct use of flag—Mrs. Henry S. Dorsey; entertainment—Mrs. Clark E. Smith; refreshment—Mrs. Cornelius Holmes; board of management—Mrs. George S. Palmer, Mrs. Benjamin T. Marshall, Mrs. Thomas W. Rogers, Mrs. Frederick S. Weld, Mrs. E. G. Abernethy.

A dog owned by Charles P. Hammond, 101 Blinman street, was taken charge of tonight by Dog Warden John Sweezy, when the animal gave unmistakable symptoms of having suffered a heat attack. The dog appeared about Potter street between 6:30 and 7:30 o'clock, chased and snapped at pedestrians, also chased cats through yards until the pursued managed to escape over a fence or climb a tree. The police were complained to and Dog Warden Sweezy was notified. The dog was finally corraled in the rear of the police station.

Mrs. Foley, residing on Lewis street, complained to the police this evening that she had been annoyed an hour or two because of the threats of Mr. and Mrs. John Enos, 66 Lewis street, who Mrs. Foley declared, had threatened to kill her. Motorcycle Officer George McCaskey went to the Enos residence and warned the husband and wife that any further annoyance to Mrs. Foley would result in their arrest and prosecution.

Today was the hottest of the year so far. The thermometer registered 92 in the shade at 3 o'clock.

DRIVERS ORDERED TO COURT— IGNORED TRAFFIC LAWS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 3—Captain Charles A. Pinney issued orders to all officers on duty on State street and all traffic officers to see to it that the city and state laws and ordinances were enforced, in relation to the movement and parking of automobiles. As a result there will be an array of alleged violators before the police court tomorrow morning. Within the past week traffic conditions have been such on State street that it has been difficult to keep traffic open at times and in many instances the officers have been hampered in performing their duty because of the negligence and apparent indifference of automobile drivers. In order to eliminate as much as possible the congestion, Captain Pinney issued the edict causing a strict enforcement of the law. Those who have been ordered to appear in court tomorrow include Thomas T. Wetmore, 73 Stuart avenue; James Iann, 20 Chapel street, Putnam; Charles R. Tinker, 581 Bank street; Maurice J. Lakoff, 20 Sterling street, Hartford; Mrs. E. M. Ackerman, Lyme; Thomas Crocker, 3 Peninsula avenue, and Miss Ruth Newcomb, 31 Vauxhall street.

ALLEGED RUM RUNNER SEIZED IN THE SOUND

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 3—Another seizure of an alleged rum-runner was made in Long Island Sound late this afternoon when the gas screw launch, K—14910, owned in New York, was captured by the crew of the United States Coast Guard patrol boat, 131, stationed at the Greenport, N. Y., section base. The launch and her crew of three men, James Adams, William Maher and Charles Nelson, were brought into port this evening. The craft is moored at the state pier. The prisoners were taken to the New London police station, where they are being held to await a hearing tomorrow afternoon before United States Commissioner Russell T. Corcoran at the customs house.

The prisoners are charged with conspiracy, as no liquor whatever, was found on the craft, although it is believed by coast guard officers that the launch is engaged in the running of liquor through the sound.

The coast guard patrol boat had been scouring the sound throughout the day in an attempt to apprehend any suspicious moving craft. About 5 o'clock, the launch was observed a considerable distance from the rum supply fleet and the movement of the launch attracted the suspicion of the coast guard crew. The patrol boat was headed for the launch and overtook her in a half hour and when officers boarded the launch, evidence was found of a nature that indicated that the crew of the launch were endeavoring to communicate with the master of one of the liquor-laden supply boats. Officers of the patrol boat boarded the launch and manned her into port.

POETRY

A Little Room by the Sea.

(Anniequam)

A little triangle I see
That holds a bed, a chair and me,
A bureau, and a tiny stand,
With three long windows, seaward planned,
And just outside a wooden prow
That seems some land-locked sailor's vow.

And when I sit and look away,
Beyond the beach, across the bay,
I feel like one in days gone by,
Who, from some tower turret high,
Watched, yearning, for an argosy.

Huge merchant ships in Orient guise
Sail slow before my dreaming eyes;
Swift, slender craft fly to and fro
That sought the Southland long ago;
And now and then a light canoe
By Indian stroke skims o'er the blue,
And queer, strange vessels, quaintly manned,
Swing to, by old-time, hoarse command.

And, dreaming still, I somehow know
All strange, wild tales of long ago,
And feel the legends of the deep
In mystic spell around me creep.

And so this triangle, though small,
Is dearest little room of all!
And some day—when, I cannot tell,
From out the ocean's surge and swell
Will come, I know, to it and me,
Some long lost secret of the sea!
—Elisabeth Minot in Boston Transcript.

The Prime of Life.

Just as I thought I was growing old
Ready to sit in my easy chair,
To watch the world with a heart grown cold,
And smile at a folly I would not share

And I am thinking that forty year
Isn't the age that it seems to be,
When two pretty brown eyes are near.

Bless me! of life it is just the prime,
A fact that I hope she will understand;
And forty year is a perfect rhyme
To dark brown eyes and a pretty hand

These gray hairs are by chance, you see—
Boys are sometimes gray, I am told;
Rose came by with a smile for me,
Just as I thought I was getting old
—Walter Learned.

A decrease of $66,000,000 in the farm value of dairy products produced in 1924 as compared with 1923, is shown in estimates of the United States department of agriculture, which place the 1924 valuation at $2,586,148,000 compared with $2,652,419,000 in 1923. The decrease is attributed to lower prices for all farm dairy products except buttermilk, whey and skim milk.

WRINKLES, LINES OR CROWS-FEET

Lemon Juice Tightens Skin

Squeeze the juice of two lemons in a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents, shake well and you have the very mildest anti-wrinkle lotion to tighten relaxed skin, erase fine lines and eradicate crows-feet.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion into the skin at night. By morning most of the tell-tale wrinkles, tired lines and crows-feet are smoothed out, giving a more youthful contour to cheeks, chin, throat. It leaves the skin velvety soft, clear and fresh.

Beauty experts use this astringent lotion for enlarged pores, also to bleach and whiten sallow, tanned skin.

Mix this harmless lotion yourself since it acts best immediately after prepared.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS PROFESSIONAL

New York, June 3—(A. P.)—Motor shares were whirled upward in the stock market and the general list followed in their wake, although there were several weak spots scattered throughout the list. Trading was largely of professional origin with the day's sales running over one and one-quarter million shares.

The Maxwell issues again provided the pyrotechnics of the session. The B stock was run up to a record high at 127 1-2, broke to 119 and then rallied to 120, where it was unchanged on the day. The "B" certificates dropped from 128 to 115 and then rallied to 113, off 3-4. The "A" stock touched a new peak at 121 1-2, closing a point below that figure for a net gain of 2 1-2 points.

Speculation in Hudson Motors derived fresh impetus from the circulation of reports that a stock dividend was under contemplation, this stock touching a new maximum at 65 1-4 and then yielding a point for a net gain of 2 1-4. The three Pierce-Arrow issues, Moon Motors, Nash, Packard and Fisher body also broke through their previous 1925 highs.

Bullish sentiment was created by a further easing of call money rates, the announcement of a new 1925 high freight traffic record for the week ended May 23, extension of gasoline price advances and several special dividend distributions.

St. Paul issues responded favorably to the announcement of the reorganization plan. The common closed fractionally higher at 9, after having sold above 10, and the preferred showed a net gain of more than one point at 16 1-4, after fluctuating between 14 3-4 and 17.

Public Utilities also presented several points of strength with International telephone, Virginia Railway and Power and Pacific Gas & Electric, all moving into new high ground. Local public utilities also moved higher under the leadership of Consolidated Gas, which was run up over 8 points within a small fraction of the year's maximum.

Heavy accumulation of International Combustion Engineering, apparently based on reports of expanding business and earnings, sent that stock through 44 to the highest price since it was listed more than three years ago. Other specialties for which there was a good demand included Coca Cola, Great Western Sugar common and preferred, Dupont and International Cement, all of which attained new highs

American Express broke 5 1-2 points to 131 1-2 and heaviness also cropped out in Abitibi Power, Cuba Cane Sugar preferred, Interborough Rapid Transit, International Paper, Montana Power, St. Louis Southwestern and Southern Railway, all off from one to three points.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent. and then dropped to 3 3-4 as funds became more plentiful. It was reported that loans were obtainable as low as 3 1-2 per cent. In the "outside market." Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged with business in moderate volume.

Pressure against the foreign exchanges was renewed at the opening of the market but practically all the losses were recovered later. Demand sterling ruled fairly steady around $4.85 5-8 and French francs were quoted just under five cents. Italian exchange held firm in further reflection of the $50,000,000 Morgan credit to Italian banks.

CANTERBURY ORGANIZES FOR LIBRARY ASSOCIATION

The regular monthly meeting of the Canterbury teachers was held at the Green school Monday. After the regular school matters had been discussed the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Belle Holcomb Johnson, head of the Connecticut School Library Committee. She outlined the work of the library and discussed the plans for formulating a library association. The matter of having a town library has been in the minds of the people for some time but about two months ago the teachers had a drive to raise $200 towards a library. If this amount could be raised the state would grant them $200 more for the beginning of the library. Monday's report of cash on hand from the various schools was as follows:

| School | Teacher | Amount |
|---|---|---|
| Frost, Miss . Dawley | | $122.00 |
| Green, Mrs. C. Lovell | | 24.00 |
| Baldwin, Miss B. Hock | | 19.50 |
| Hyde, Miss M. King | | 16.50 |
| Westminister, Miss E. Johnson | | 8.30 |
| Gayhead, Miss E. Kimball | | 7.85 |
| North Society, Miss R. Davis | | 5.00 |
| Packer, Miss H. Peterson | | 4.05 |
| Raymond, Mrs. Parker | | 2.00 |
| | | $209.20 |

There is still a small amount to be paid in.
Plans were discussed as to organizing the library association and the incorporating thereof. As each organization has to have its officers, the teachers elected the following:
President, Miss Lucy Baldwin; secretary-treasurer, Miss Grace Dawley; librarian, Miss Bessie Hock; executive committee, Mrs. C. Frink, Mrs. H. Hawes, Mr. Miller, Miss M. King and Mrs. Lovell.
The matter of formulating and drawing up of the by-laws was left to Mrs. Johnson and Mr. Floyd.
As yet the exact location of the library had not been definitely decided upon but this matter will be taken up at a later date.
The teachers feel very confident that the library will be a success and if they can enlist the hearty co-operation and support of the towns people they feel that they will have something to be proud of in Canterbury.

ARGONNE FOREST HERO TO BECOME A PRIEST

Norwich relatives will go to New York for the week end, to be present Saturday morning at 8 o'clock, when, in St. Patrick's cathedral, James Osmond O'Brien will be elevated to the priesthood by Cardinal Patrick J. Hayes, in company with other candidates. The young student is completing his course in philosophy and theology at Dunwoodie Seminary, N. Y.
During the World War he enlisted from New York in the famous 77th Division, and spent two and one-half years overseas. For four months he was in the Argonne Forest, his division being in action at the date of the signing of the armistice. They remained in France until May of the following year.
War experience included a serious gassing for the young soldier. After his discharge he returned to his home on Prince Edward Island, but following the death of his mother, since he had resumed his studies in college, he came to Norwich for his vacations and his home has been with his sister, Mrs. John J. Morley, of Laurel Hill avenue. He is therefore a member of St. Patrick's parish and has been invited by the rector, Rt. Rev. Mgr. M. H. May to celebrate his first solemn mass in St. Patrick's Sunday next, at 10:30.
Military, college and seminary friends of the young ex-service man will be in the local congregation that day, to assist at the happy event of his first offering of the Holy Sacrifice and to receive his blessing so soon after his ordination. After the church service, Mr. and Mrs. Morley will entertain a company of relatives at breakfast at their home, to rejoice with the young Levite.
Father O'Brien has another sister living in Norwich, Miss Margaret O'Brien, R. N., a nurse at Norwich State hospital, who did valuable work during the World War.

Senator's Son Wins Yale Prize.

Alfred Mitchell Bingham, son of United States Senator Hiram Bingham, has been announced winner of the first C. Wyllys Betts prize in English at Yale, open to sophomore competition. His subject was "Several Jeanne d'Arcs." Meyer Mermin of New Haven received honorable mention.

Norwich [illegible] Bulletin

NORWICH, CONN., THURSDAY, JUNE 4, 1925

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

Norwich, Thursday, June 4, 1925

WEATHER
Conditions

There have been no material changes in weather conditions during the last 24 hours. Pressure remains high from the Mississippi Valley eastward.

There have been local showers or thunder storms in portions of the north Atlantic states. The temperature has continued high east of the Mississippi river and at Washington, a maximum of 99 degrees was registered yesterday, the highest on record so early in the season.

There is no indication of a break in the heat wave in the eastern states for at least two or three days. Mostly fair weather will prevail Thursday and Friday in the Washington forecast district and although there is a possibility of local thundershowers in northern New England.

In Hamburg, N. J., the heat was broken during the afternoon by hail and rain storms which lasted two hours. During the storm lightning hit the steeple of the First Baptist church as a funeral procession was entering the building, causing the mourners to run for shelter.

Overcome by heat while he was attempting to cool off by swimming in the public baths at 23rd street in New York city tonight, Jack Leisman, sank and drowned before attendants could save him.

In Philadelphia three deaths were reported during the day and a number of prostrations as a result of a temperature of 94 degrees.

Baltimore reported a 98 degree temperature with 11 prostrations for the day.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook—Moderate to fresh south and southwest and weather partly overcast Thursday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras—Moderate south and southwest and weather fair Thursday.

Forecast

TAFTVILLE

Postmaster D. C. Murphy said Wednesday that the change in train schedule would probably make some change in the arrival of the morning mail which arrives at 7.15 at present.

The children of the Cradle Roll of the Taftville Congregational church school, and their mothers, are eagerly looking forward to the annual cradle roll party which is to be held next Friday afternoon from 2.30 to 4.30 in the church parlors.

Anthony Lamoreux of North A St., is able to be out after being confined to the house for several days suffering from severe electrical burns.

St. Veronica's T. A. B. Society held its regular meeting Wednesday evening in their rooms on Providence street, with the president, Miss Louise White in the chair.

Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Varley of Portland and Howell E. Estey and Kenneth Henley of Lynn, Mass., who have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Earle M. Wood of North Third avenue have returned to their homes, having been in town for the K. O. K. A. conclave Monday evening at Ponemah hall.

PATRIOTIC FEATURES AT FIFTH BIRTHDAY PARTY

Robert Emonds, Jr., celebrated his fifth birthday Friday afternoon last at his home, No. 49 Fountain street. There were 16 children present. The children were red, white and blue with patriotic caps and carried flags. The party opened with the salute to the flag by the children, followed by the singing of America. There were violin selections by Miss Helen Lichwell and Miss Emeline Chapman and various popular games were enjoyed by the children. The prize winners were Alice Peck, first in pinning the tail on the donkey, Grant Dennison, first in the peanut hunt.

The dining table was prettily decorated in red, white and blue and there were bouquets of pansies. Each child received patriotic favors. The small host received numerous pretty and useful gifts. Mrs. Edmonds was assisted by Miss Ethel Lewis and Miss Emeline Chapman. Those present were Elsie Lotten, Marion Lotten, Lillian Kyle, Margaret Kyle, Alice Peck, Priscilla Chapman, Helen Lichwell, Julia Lichwell, Mildred Emonds, Ruth Emonds, Grant Dennison, Joseph Evans, Edwin Edwards, George Edwards, Ralph Emonds, Robert Emonds.

New York papers Wednesday mentioned that the $5,000,000 sale of the Johnson building, in Exchange place, to C. K. J. Billings had been negotiated by the Charles F. Noyes Co. and Joseph P. Day.

FRECKLES

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With Othine—Double Strength.

This preparation for the removal of freckles is so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by all drug and department stores with a guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil or waste time on lemon juice or cucumbers; get an ounce of Othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine; it is this that is sold on money-back guarantee.

We recommend Othine Complexion Soap for use with Othine, also as a shampoo—it's wonderful for bobbed hair—25c a cake at all drug or department stores or by mail. Othine Laboratories, Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.

STATE POLICE SAY ACCUSED OFFERED THEM $200 IN WATERFORD LIQUOR CASE

Wasel Szewceuk of the Lake's Pond district of Waterford was on trial in the criminal common pleas court here Wednesday afternoon on two counts alleging violation of the liquor law. He is charged with reputation and keeping liquor with intent to sell on April 17 of this year.

State Policeman Fred Caron from the Groton barracks, who headed the party that raided the place with a search warrant testified before Judge C. B. Waller and the jury that they found and seized four large copper boilers, with coils, two stone jugs of liquor and two glass bottles of liquor, all of which was produced in court as evidence. Following the seizure the accused told him that he would pay $200 if he would leave the things there, the officer testified.

The stills and the stone jugs were found on the other side of a wire fence that divides the farm of accused from land owned by a man named Fuller but the two glass jars were found on the land of the accused.

Mrs. Clarence Whiting, who lived in the neighborhood, testified to the reputation of the accused as to making and selling liquor and she believed her husband got liquor there. On cross examination by Attorney G. C. Morgan, counsel for the accused, it was brought out that Mrs. Whiting had been beaten by her husband, when he came home intoxicated, that she no longer lived with him and that the accused man went on Mr. Whiting's bond on the assault charge.

Prosecuting Attorney C. B. Whittlesey, who is conducting the case for the state and is assisted by Attorney Charles Smiddy, next brought to the witness stand, Mrs. Ruth Tinker Rix of Salem, formerly a school teacher in the Lake's Pond district, who testified that the Szewceuk place had the reputation of making and selling liquor, that she had heard it talked of by the school children and in the community and she had sent word to the man by his daughter, one of the pupils in the school, that if he didn't stop the nuisance at his place she would complain of him. He came to see her, she said, and told her he had formerly had liquor but not now.

State Policeman Carl Grant, another member of the raiding party, testified to noticing a path at he end of which he found the two glass bottles of liquor. The stills and the stone jugs, he said, were found over the other side of the wire fence under some laurel bushes.

State Policeman Irving H. Nelson told of hearing Officer Grant at the end of the path say, "Watch him. I've got something." At that time the officer said the accused man was standing by his side and the accused said, "I don't own it." The officer testified that, neither he nor the accused could then see what it was Officer Grant was referring to when he said "I've got something." The officer also said he heard the accused make the offer about paying $200 to Officer Caron if he would leave the "stuff".

Henry C. Fuller, 53, of 264 Jefferson avenue, owner of the land referred to as the Fuller property, said he didn't know anything about the stills and the jugs that were alleged to have been found on his land.

Robert George, a farmer of Lake's Pond, testified that he had heard the Szewceuk place talked about in the country store as a place where liquor was made and sold, and Frederick L. Goss, the Waterford justice of the peace before whom the case was tried, testified that a week before the trial the accused came to him and made an offer of money if he would drop the case. The amount of the offer was not stated. His testimony concluded the case for the state.

Attorney Morgan called to the stand as the first witness for the defense Clarence J. Whiting, whose wife had been a prosecution witness. He denied he ever got any "stuff" at the accused's place or from the accused. He had never heard of any reputation against the accused until after the accused was arrested, he said.

The accused man was the final witness before court adjourned for the day. He stated that after the officers found the articles produced as exhibits in the case they said "We've got you now. We've got enough to show." He testified that all the articles were found on the Fuller land and that none of them belonged to him.

The trial will be resumed this (Thursday) morning.

The jury in the case is the following: Norwich—Everett M. Rogers, David R. Kinney; Preston—Frank Palmer, Nathan H. Hall, John F. Richardson; Griswold—Edmond Herbert, George E. Geer; Colchester—Timothy F. Kelly, E. T. Bunyan; Lisbon—Paul Geist; Lebanon—Elmer M. Lord; Voluntown—Albert R. Dawley.

FORMING NORWICH COUNCIL FOR RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

A meeting of delegates to the Norwich Council of Religious Education was held Wednesday evening at the First Baptist church with 16 churches and church schools of New London county represented by 38 delegates.

The meeting was in charge of Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, and Rev. B. P. Gaines, pastor of the First Baptist church of Waterbury, spoke briefly concerning the council in Waterbury, its functions and intended work.

The delegates present from many of the churches of the county held authority to act for their respective churches while others served as temporary members only. Those churches which have already acted upon the permanent appointment of delegates to the Norwich Council of Religious Education are the First Congregational church, Norwich Town; First Baptist church, Central Baptist church, Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, Fitchville Bantist church, Franklin Congregational church, Newent Congregational church, A. M. E. Zion church and Mt. Calvary Baptist church; making in all nine churches to have completed their organization and appointment of delegates.

The purpose of the council is to promote co-operative programs of religious education in Norwich and vicinity and other projects such as leadership training schools, week day schools of religion and vacation schools of religion.

By combining the efforts of all churches under the one council a better result may be obtained and the work carried on to a much more successful end than if each church dealt with its own problem.

The nominating committee, comprising Rev. Allen Shaw Bush, of Gales Ferry, Harold S. Burt and John B. Stanton, of Norwich, brought before the meeting the following names for officers of the council: Rev. J. Harlow Graham, president; Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, vice-president; Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, secretary; William E. Park, treasurer, and their selections were accepted and these officers elected.

The meeting voted to report back to those churches which have not yet appointed permanent members of the council and that the officers and nominating committee nominate standing committees, thus insuring a speedy development of the council as a permanent and active body in Norwich.

Another meeting of the delegates will probably be held at the First Baptist church on Wednesday evening, June 17th, when all appointments will be confirmed and the work of the council become active in the community, especially regarding leadership training which will be started during the summer months.

NURSES IN REUNION AT ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION

The annual reception of the Backus hospital alumnae association was held Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the nurses' home at the hospital with the graduate nurses of the class of 1925 as guests.

The recitation of the Lord's prayer with the singing of America opened the meeting, after which the president, Mrs. Leon Raymond, of this city, welcomed those returning for the reunion, as well as the ten new graduate nurses to whom she presented the Amanda Beck handbook for nurses, on behalf of the association. Mrs. Harrison Gray, the secretary, presented her annual report and other officers reported.

In the musical and social part of the reunion, there were violin and piano selections by Miss Lucille Guile and Albert Guile and readings by Myra Frink Ward. Ice cream, ladies fingers, nuts, candy and punch were served.

PARKED AUTOMOBILE ON WEST SIDE BRIDGE

Alfred Muensch, 20, of R. F. D. 7, ran up against a city ordinance, as well as a state law, Wednesday evening, when he parked his automobile on one of the West Main street bridges. The machine was observed by Officer John Donovan, who brought the man to police headquarters and he will be obliged to appear in the city court this (Thursday) morning.

FINDS STORRS COLLEGE DRIFTING FROM AGRICULTURE

The special committee of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce which has spent the last six months in studying the "purposes, functions, activities, expenditures, curriculum, and future plans" of the Connecticut Agricultural College presented a 23 page typewritten report to the Board of Directors of the Chamber at a meeting held Monday.

The directors of the chamber passed a resolution outlining the special committee's plan of study last fall. The committee was appointed to study various aspects of Storrs College for two chief reasons; First, because of criticism that has been raised in recent years as to the functions and field of the college; and, second, because the 1200 members of the chamber comprise a substantial part of the tax-payers of the state of Connecticut whose money is used to support Storrs college.

Outstanding in the committee's report are three recommendations: First, that the directors of the chamber recommend to the present legislature the passage of an act authorizing Governor Trumbull to appoint a special commission to make a comprehensive study of the whole subject of public education in the state of Connecticut; second, that the directors recommend to the legislature that it make no appropriation for capital outlays at the present session; third, that the directors recommend at the present legislature confine the Storrs college appropriation to $440,000, which is 10 per cent. more than the appropriation for the past two years.

The directors of the chamber accepted the special committee's report and extended to the committee a vote of thanks for what one director present termed "the most thorough piece of work I have ever seen." Attention was called to the unselfish work of the committee whose members have devoted many hours of study to the question without receiving any recompense. The opinion was also expressed that it would have cost thousands of dollars to have employed experts to have made as comprehensive a study as did the committee.

Committee Visited College

In preparing this report regarding Storrs college, the committee made every possible effort to ascertain as many different viewpoints as possible from as many different reputable sources as possible. The committee held seven different meetings. One meeting consisted of an all day visit to the college including a long conference with President Beach and members of the faculty. Another meeting included a long conference with the trustees of the college. Another meeting was a conference with the executive committee of the Connecticut State grange. Another meeting was a conference with certain responsible and constructive critics of the present policy of the college.

The personnel of the special committee follows: William R Webster, vice president of Bridgeport Brass Co., chairman; Frank E. Spaulding, Dean Department of Education, Yale University; Benjamin T. Marshall, president Connecticut College for Women; Charles A. Thompson, of Melrose (a practical farmer); Charles E. Blake, president Hartford Steam Boiler Inspection and Insurance Co.; Theodore L. Bristol, president Ansonia Water Company; A. R. Kimball of Waterbury, bank president and director of many enterprises, including the Chase Companies.

The directors authorized George B. Chandler, executive vice president of the chamber to supply the following persons and bodies with copies of the report; Governor Trumbull, President Beach and the trustees of Storrs College, state board of education, state board of finance, state board of control, state board of agriculture, executive committee of the state grange, and Philo T. Platt, commissioner of agriculture.

During the presentation of the report to the directors of the chamber it was brought out that the report was based upon data supplied the committee by the trustees and the officials of Storrs college and that this data was later submitted for corrections but that none were made.

Defer Further Expenditures

In regard to the committee's recommendations that the present legislature make no further appropriations for capital outlays for Storrs college, the report states: "The committee finds so much uncertainty and apparent disagreement among the officials immediately "responsible for the policies and plans of the college, and so much evident inconsistency of stated purposes and actual practices in carrying on the present program of instruction, that it believes further expenditures on capital outlays should be deferred until a clear definition of policies, purposes and plans can be worked out and agreed upon, and an education and program in harmony therewith can be adopted."

Recommends Educational Survey

In regard to the committees recommendation calling for a state-wide study of educational institutions, the report states: "An adequate study of the State Agricultural College cannot be limited to that institution. The State College is but one of many institutions serving educational interests and needs within the state. What this college does, what it can do, and what it ought to do, can be intelligently determined only in the light of comprehensive study of the educational needs to be served and of the work of other institutions both of collegiate and of lower grade, such as the endowed colleges and universities, the state normal schools and the high schools, academic, commercial, trade and agricultural. Moreover, from the standpoint of financial support by the state, it is important that the whole financial obligation that the state is assuming for education be given careful consideration."

With respect to the value to the State of Connecticut of such a survey, the report states: "The value of such a comprehensive study, or educational survey, as this committee hopes to see initiated and supported by the state, would exceed many-fold its cost. Within the last dozen years, more than a score of states, located in every section of the country, have been subjected to statewide educational surways. Without exception these surveys have been productive of good results, more than sufficient to justify them. Not since the early career of Dr. Henry Barnard, now nearly a century in the past, has there been made in Connecticut any comprehensive and adequate study of educational conditions, needs, institutions, activites, and finances."

It was brought out at the meeting of the directors that the proposed educational survey seems particularly desirable at the present time because educational conditions "have changed enormously in Connecticut in the last one hundred years."

Is It An Agricultural College?

The much-discussed question of recent years as to whether or not Storrs college is actually a strictly agricultural institution or whether it is tending in the direction of a state university is discussed in the report as follows: "The actual use that is now being made of the college by students seeking instruction there seems to be in large measure at variance with the permanently stated and emphasized function of the college. More than one-half, 53 per cent. to be exact, of all students not in the mechanic arts or household economics courses are pursuing no agriculturnl study whatever. Of the whole college enrolment, including the mechanic arts and household economic courses, just one student in three is pursuing as much as one agricultural study; two students out of every three are taking no agricultural study. From these facts, it seems evident to your committee that, regardless of the declared purpose of the college, far more students are going there for such subjects as are taught in the academic courses of non-vocational colleges and universities than are going to learn the vocation of agriculture. And there is conclusive evidence in the hands of the committee that the proportion going for the former rather than the latter purpose is increasing very rapidly in recent years."

The committee delved into the matter of why students attend Storrs college. A questionnaire was sent to the principal of the high schools in Connecticut which send the most students to the college. A substantial group of principals stated that the most common reason why their pupils entered Storrs was to secure a general college education that could not be obtained elsewhere "because of inability to meet admission requirements."

One High school principal whose pupils represented 1-5 of the entire first year registration at Storrs college replied: "It is probable that not more than 10 per cent. go to Storrs on account of the peculiar advantages as an educational institution. Some go there because they have not taken the kind of course that would fit them for other institutions. Others go with the intention of transferring to another college after a year or two."

One principal replied: "In fifteen years of casual observation I know of no pupils who ever entered Storrs for a strictly agricultural course, nor of any pupil entering the academic course who had the scholarship qualifications to enter any other college in this state."

In concluding its comment upon the vocational motives of the students attending Storrs college the report states: "There is a popular impression that the State agricultural college is maintained primarily in the interest of the farmers of the state and that its students are recruited mainly from rural homes. Possibly this impression is based on nothing more substantial than the suggestion conveyed by the name of the institution. Whatever its basis, this impression is not substantiated by facts. The report further states that of the 150 Connecticut students in the freshman class in 1923-24, one-half come from six of the largest cities of the state and that only thirteen—or one in six—of these students were taking the agricultural course.

The report concludes this point in the following words: "These facts would seem fully to justify the statements that in overwhelming proportions both rural and urban students are seeking general education rather than agricultural vocational training."

Instruction Not Practical

As to the practical nature of the farming operations at the college, the report states: "Your committee finds itself forced to the conclusion that no conscious effort is made anywhere on the college farm to carry on any activity on a practical basis; that never is this simple question asked of any activity carried on for purposes of educational experimentation and demonstration——Does it pay?"

As to the type of instruction that should be given at Storrs college, the report asks: "In view of the evidence produced in preceding sections that only an exceedingly small and decreasing minority of students are going to Storrs because of a desire for instruction in strictly agricultural studies, why persist in "maintaining at relatively great expense the illusion of a simple Agricultural college? Why not provide the instruction that most students really desire, provide it most students really desire, provide it frankly on its own merits? It costs only 28 per cent. as much, hour for hour, to give instruction in subjects of "general" educational value as it costs to give instruction in the strictly agricultural subjects."

The special committee's report recommends that the state-wide educational survey be completed not later than October 1, 1926. The report states: "Such study, report, and recommendations should deal from the state standpoint with present educational conditions and needs in the state, with the educational institutions and activities now required, carried on, supported or encouraged by the state, and should outline for the guidance of the state a program of state educational activities, institutions, and financial support, calculated to promote the educational interests of all the people of the state."

$25,000 Appropriation Recommended

The committee's report recommends a legislative appropriation of $25,000.

The concluding paragraph of the committee's report says: "It is the people who should determine the nature and scope of their state educational institutions. It is for the purpose of helping the people of Connecticut to determine this matter intelligently and wisely, that your committee strongly recommends a thorough state educational survey."

The committee thanks these persons who have cooperated with it in its study in the following words: "Your committee desires here to record its appreciation of the cheerful spirit and the promptness with which President Beach has responded to the committee's numerous requests, some of them involving much labor on the part of the president and his associates. Also, your committee would express its appreciation of the services rendered by the trustees of the college, the executive committee of the State grange, and citizens, in their meetings with the committee. Undertaking its task in a disinterested and considerate spirit, your committee has become increasingly impressed with the importance of the work that the college, under many difficulties, is carrying on. Especially worthy of note are the enthusiasm and the splendid spirit of service that characterizes the activities of President Beach and his loyal staff."

ROYAL ARCH MASONS ELECT DANBURY MAN

The one hundred and seventh annual assembly of the Most Puissant Grand Council of Royal and Select Masters of Connecticut, held at New Haven Wednesday elected Frederick H. Gerlach, of Danbury, Most Puissant Grand Master in succession to Daniel H. Gladding of New Haven. Other officers elected were: T. Frank Cassidy, Hartford, deputy grand master; Frederick A. Beebe of New London, grand principal conductor; Arthur H. Parker, of New Britain, grand captain of the guard; Arthur L. Clark of Middletown, grand conductor; Robert B. Houston, of Greenwich, grand marshal; George G. Platt, of New Haven, grand standard bearer.

The officers reelected were George A. Sturdy, of New London, grand recorder and D. Fairchild Wheeler of Bridgeport, grand treasurer.

The next session will be held in Danbury.

Visiting grand officers were: Arthur D. Prince, grand master of Massachusetts, and his associate officers, Marcellus Reeves, W. C. Keith and H. Comp. Milliken; Joseph L. Lockhart, grand master of New York, and his associate officers, James Chambers and Elias Whitney; D. J. Sargent, grand master of New Jersey, and his associate, J. Blair Cuthbert; W. S. Solomon, grand master of Rhode Island and Past Grand Master Wheeler.

The reports of Grand Recorder Sturdy and Grand Master Gladding indicated that cryptic masonry had had a prosperous year. This session was the first at which past illustrious masters of subordinate council became automatically permanent members of the grand council which heretofore has been made up of past grand masters and the first three officers of subordinate councils.

HAY FEVER SEASON BEGINNING IN STATE

Time to avoid hayfever, is the caption of an article in this week's issue of the Connecticut State Department of Health's weekly bulletin. The article says:

From June 1 to July 15 Connecticut will be visited by its spring hayfever season. A certain number throughout the state will wake up with a sudden cold, or violent sneezing and will be aware of the fact that their annual hayfever attack is on. Certain others in the state will be free from this until August 15 when the fall hayfever season sets in and lasts until October 1. A total of one per cent. of the population have this "season of colds" to look forward to each year, as estimated by a national survey of the American Hay Fever association.

Hayfever is caused by inhaling the pollen from certain plants, the protein of which is toxic to certain people. The spring hayfever in this section of the country is caused by the pollen from grasses while that in the fall is largely from ragweed. These two are the chief causes of hayfever, though there are other plants and trees which during pollination will cause hayfever in certain people. Hayfever can only exist during the time when pollen in these various plants is being formed and blown about in the air. It has been noted that after a high wind, when the air is filled with pollen, severe attacks of hayfever result. Again, after a rain storm during which pollen becomes heavy and settles down, patients secure much relief, which continues until dry weather and wind prevail.

Investigation seems to point to the fact that immunity to hayfever is relative only, inasmuch as people, ordinarily not susceptible when living in a place where the pollens in the air are few, will develop hayfever when they change their location to one in which the air is heavily laden with pollen. Furthermore, this belated development of hayfever will so reduce the patient's resistance to it, that he will now be susceptible to hayfever should he return to his previous location in which the atmospheric pollens were formerly below his relative immunity.

Special hayfever resorts have been much advertised and many sufferers from the disease have found relief there. That this is due to their high altitude is a mistaken notion, since hayfever is found to exist up to 6,000 feet. The important factor is the absence of plants whose pollen is windborne. Roses, daises and goldenrod, pollinated by insects do not cause hayfever unless one inhales the pollen by direct contact.

The best means of preventing hayfever is to get rid of or keep away from, the offending agent—the pollen-bearing plant or tree. It is possible to determine which pollen caused the disease by the intradermal test in which there is injected into the skin of the forearm an extract of the pollen, this being repeated with different pollens until a positive reaction is secured.

While pollen and vaccine therapy have proved fairly successful in the treatment of hayfever, especially if these precede the actual onset of the disease, more would be accomplished if the general public were informed about the pollen-bearing plants in their vicinity and their relation to hayfever. By cutting all weeds, plants and grasses that grow in vacant lots much can be accomplished toward the prevention of hayfever.

GAVE WHIST FOR UNIQUE CLUB MEMBERS

The members of the Unique Club were delightfully entertained Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. Thos O'Rourke at her home on Broad St. in honor of Mrs. Charles Porter Hill who is soon to move to Philadelphia.

Two tables of bridge were in play, each player receiving a surprise package as a prize.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess; the favors and decorations being in pink and white.

Mrs. Hill was presented a beautiful picture by the members of the club with their best wishes for her future welfare in her new home.

WAR RISK INSURANCE REINSTATEMENT LIMIT

To a great many disabled ex-service men, June 7, 1925 will be the last date to make application for the reinstatement and conversion of War Risk Insurance, and it is the desire of Major T. J. Bannigan, Regional Manager of the Bureau in Connecticut, that every ex-serviceman take advantage of this opportunity to reinstate and convert his insurance.

Section 304 of the World War Act, which limits the time for the reinstatement of this insurance, makes mandatory this notice.

For the convenience of any disabled ex-service man or woman, who wishes assistance or desires information regarding the reinstatement of insurance, a representative of the Bureau will be at Red Cross office, Washington Square, Norwich, on June 5th 1925.

Men are warned not to fail to avail themselves of this opportunity by visiting the Bureau representative for assistance in applying for reinstatement and conversion of War Risk Insurance.

Fined For Motor Law Violation

At the Wednesday morning session of the city court, Judge H. H. Pettis on the bench, Barnet Cohen of Laurel Hill, was fined $15 and costs on a charge of violation of the motor vehicle laws. He figured in a collision with a trolley car recently and it is alleged that he failed to keep to the right, thus causing the accident. One local man was fined for intoxication and being unable to pay his fine went to jail.

Do This After Severe Illness

How to Speedily Gain Strength and Put on Needed Weight.

Nothing like the wonderful vitalizing vitamines in Cod Liver Oil to help convalescing people to quickly get strong and well—everybody knows that.

But nobody wants to take the old smelling, horrible tasting, stomach upsetting oil itself, so nowadays, up to date medical men are ordering a tablet of Cod Liver Oil, and it surely has proved a blessing to thousands of people who have been napped of their natural strength after a severe illness and especially after the Grippe or a stubborn cough or cold.

Ask Lee & Osgood Co. or any regular druggist for a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. They cost but little, are sugar coated and all pleasant to take as candy.

Skinny men and women take them to speedily put on plenty of good healthy solid flesh, and for this purpose they are so extremely good that thin men and women often take on 5 pounds or more in 30 days. As a matter of fact, your druggist will return your money if you don't take on 5 pounds in 30 days.

Be sure and ask for McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—60 tablets, 60 cents.

SCOTTISH RITES SERVICES AT FUNERAL OF T. R. MARSHALL

Body Lies in the Same Cemetery at Indianapolis Wherein Rests the Body of James Whitcomb Riley—There Was a Brief Eulogy and a Plain Procession to the Cemetery.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 4—(A. P.)—The body of Thomas Riley Marshall, lies tonight in the same cemetery wherein rests the body of James Whitcomb Riley, another Hoosier who touched American hearts through his poems of homely strain.

Indiana, with simple but reverent ceremonies laid Mr. Marshall at rest.

A brief eulogy by his pastor, Scottish Rite services by his brethren in that order, a plain procession to the cemetery, Masonic rites committing the body to its resting place—these were all that were accorded one whose station in life might fittingly have merited a more pompous service.

Rev. Matthew Smith, pastor of the First Presbyterian church where Mr. and Mrs. Marshall held membership while in this city, delivered the eulogy after reading from the bible the psalm upon which Mr. Marshall's eyes rested before they closed forever in Washington last Monday.

William Geake of Fort Wayne, Ind., deputy of the supreme council for Indiana of the Scottish rite, intoned the ritual of the funeral service and presented to the widow Mr. Marshall's Masonic ring. A Scottish rit choir sang and then recited the Lord's prayer.

Ancient Landmarks Lodge, F. & A. M. took charge of the body to conduct it to the cemetery.

BOLSHEVISITIC AGITATORS AT WORK IN SHANGHAI

Washington, June 4—(A. P.)—Official reports from Consul General Cunningham at Shanghai, telling of the discovery there of further evidence of Bolshevistic agitation in the stirring up of the students' strike added to the concern felt in Washington over the growth in the last few days of the anti-foreign movement in Chinese cities.

The department also received word from vice-counsel Meinhardt at Changhsa, that the students in all schools there were on sympathetic strike because of the Shanghai developments. The Changsha movement was aimed particularly against the British and Japanese residents, rioting, with considerable damage, resulted but the vice consul reported that the authorities had gained control of the situation.

The Shanghai reports told of the discovery, during the search of hotels in the international settlement, of munitions and arms and considerable quantities of Bolshevist literature.

Reports of Bolshevist support for the Shanghai disturbers have caused no surprise in Washington. The influence the Russian Soviet representatives have gained in China since the signing of the treaty between Peking and Moscow has caused growing concern here, and Soviet propaganda has been employed in many parts of the country to discredit and embarrass the Western powers in their dealings with the difficult situation that exists there because of the lack of a strong central government.

Dispatches yesterday from Canton telling of an impending outbreak of civil war in that vicinity reflect the division of opinion in Chinese circles as to the desirability of following Bolshevist theories and leaders.

The contending forces, which were expected to clash within ten days, represent the radical and conservative wings of hte whole South China party, which was headed up to the time of his death recently by Dr. Sun Yat Sen.

The radical grpup among Sun's followers has openly declared adherence to Bolshevist principles, including the intention to co-operate with Soviet Russia. The Conservative South China leaders are allied with military groups in nearby provinces, and the impending clash is expected to develop from their efforts to disiodge the radical wing from control of Canton and its vicinity.

CHINESE STUDENTS PROTEST ACTION OF FOREIGN POWERS

New York, June 4—A protest against the action of the United States, Japan and other powers in the anti-foreign riots at Shanghai was issued today by Lung Chi Lo, president-elect of the Chinese Students' Alliance in the United States, which has a membership of 5,000. Tomorrow night a meeting of protest will be held at International House by 300 Chinese students of this city.

The demonstrations at Shanghai against working conditions in Japanese-owned mills, the statement said, did not become serious until diplomats in China asked that war ships be sent to the city. Unarmed students leading the workers have been shot down, it was charged, and the effect of the policy of foreign governments has been to increase anti-capitalistic and anti-foreign sentiment among the Chinese.

The statement concludes with the assertion that only by peaceful and non-political means can the situation which is primarily an economic one, be settled.

TIGHTENING STRIKE IN NOVA SCOTIA COAL MINES

Glace Bay, N. S., June 4—Asserting that they were acting on the advice of International President John L. Lewis, union leaders today withdrew the men who had been engaged in maintenance work in the Nova Scotia coal mines. The action was to launch "more vigorous policy" on the part of the 13,000 striking miners toward their employers, the British Steel corporation.

MAN WAS KILLED BY FALLING RADIO SET

New York, June 4—Struck by a 23-pound radio set which had fallen from a ninth floor window of a department store, David Siegel, 35 years old, was instantly killed today as he walked along crowded 32nd street, just off Broadway. The box containing the set had slipped from a pilot truck being hoisted along on the ninth floor, as it passed the window.

TEACHER AND PUPIL OVERCOME IN WORCESTER

Worcester, Mass., June 4—A woman teacher and one pupil were overcome by heat in the public schools here today.

Worcester sweltered in a temperature two degrees hotter than yesterday. The mercury registered 86 at noon. It was 66 at 8 o'clock yesterday and 68 at 6 o'clock this morning. One was collapsed in the street and was taken to a hospital.

CAMILLE FLAMMARION FRENCH ASTRONOMER, DEAD

Paris, June 4—(A. P.)—Camille Flammarion, the noted French astronomer, died at his observatory at Juisy-Sur-Orge.

Camille Flammarion, the French poet-astronomer, made astronomy popular to the layman. He sugar-coated astronomical facts, but while he won applause from the layman some of his serious-minded contemporaries in the study of astronomy attacked many of his theories as pure fancies.

Flammarion, when a boy 9 years old, witnessed the sun eclipsed by the moon. Awed by the phenomenon, his chief concern was in how astronomers who predicted this event were able to tell. Thereafter, the lad could usually be found at sunset on a neighboring hill watching the departing sun and waiting for the appearance of the stars. In his 15th year he wrote a book on the origin of the world, but, in his own words, "it luckily never met a publisher."

He entered the famous Paris observatory, and became an assistant astronomer to Le Verrier, and wrote his first published book at 19. It was translated at once to almost every language. He soon assumed direction of the scientific review Cosmos, and also published [illegible] work, "The World Before Adam" and "The World and Its Inhabitants." With the famous astronomer Wolf, [illegible] reported in balloons to study the heavens. These observations extend over a period of five years.

GERALD CHAPMAN GRANTED REPRIEVE TILL DECEMBER 3

Hartford, June 4—(A. P.)—Gerald Chapman, notorious bandit who was sentenced to be hanged on June 25 for the murder of a New Britain policeman last October, will not be put to death on that date, it was definitely determined, when Gov. John H. Trumbull issued a reprieve which sets December 3 as the date of execution. The reprieve was granted upon application of State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn.

The reprieve was not unexpected as counsel for Chapman had taken an appeal to the supreme court and this appeal had gone over to the October term. It was pointed out that should the appeal be decided against Chapman there will still be time for an appeal to the state board of pardons, which will meet in November.

The appeal was specifically based on certain exhibits in the Chapman trial, such as ammunition, guns, books on counterfeiting and two bottles of nitro-glycerine which had been spread before the jury, by the state's attorney during the argument before the jury.

The text of the argument also is objected to and certain portions of it pointed out as an appeal to passion, prejudice and partiality.

When the appeal was filed, Frederick J. Groehl, senior counsel for the defense, said that this was the beginning of a fight for the life of Chapman.

TROLLEYMEN AT WORK ON A NEW WAGE SCALE

New Haven, Conn., June 4.—Behind closed doors the general conference board of the Trolley Men's union and officials of the Connecticut company met today to discuss the new wage scale and working conditions preliminary to a new agreement to replace the one which expired June 1. The sessions will continue for several days, it is expected, and until something definite develops it is understood that neither side will make a statement. The requests of the trolleymen have previously been announced, and especially the feature which embraces definition of the duties, scale, wages and seniority rights of men who drive busses for the trolley company.

WILL NEVER, NEVER PERMIT TAMPERING WITH PROHIBITION

New York, June 4—The Women's Temperance union will never countenance tampering with the prohibition amendment, nor modification of the Volstead act, declared Mrs. John S. Lalry, of Logansport, Ind., one of the 125 Christian Temperance union delegates who sailed on the Zeeland today to attend the world-wide temperance conference in Edinburg, June 19 to 24.

"The liquor situation is in the hands of three men—President Coolidge, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Attorney General Sargeant," she said. "They should face it as Lincoln faced the problem of slavery."

SCHOOL BOY DISAPPEARED ON HIS WAY TO SCHOOL

To Restore Tomb of Virgil.

Rome, June 4.—(A. P.)—The tomb of Virgil at Naples has been purchased by the government, and a large sum will be expended in restoring the ancient Latin poet's resting place as part of this year's celebration in his honor. Signor Federzoni, minister of the interior, in making this announcement in the chamber of deputies today, said: "We wish not only to commemorate Virgil the poet, but Virgil the singer of our racial qualities and the discoverer of our greatness."

BINGHAM AND TRUMBULL TRAVEL BY AIRPLANE

Waterbury, June 4—Senator Hiram Bingham and Governor John H. Trumbull arrived at Naugatuck flying field in Bethany about an hour apart this afternoon, Gov. Trumbull coming from Hartford in a plane piloted by Maj. Toby Freeman of the 118th aero squadron and Senator Bingham in a plane piloted by Lieut. Ostey of Anacostia Field, Washington, D. C.

Lieut. Counselman of Washington accompanied the fliers. Senator Bingham had the V. C.-Type machine which Admiral Moffett uses.

Senator Bingham and Governor Trumbull each spoke at the air meet planning session held at the airdrome inn. Senator Bingham discussed the growth of aviation and declared that he is opposed to a united air force but favors a separate bureau in the department of commerce to have charge of aerial navigation for commercial ships. He also declared that he believes Governors' Island should be taken over as a great airport and should be abandoned by the army headquarters to aviation.

Governor Trumbull pledged his support viation and plans for an air meet at Naugatuck field on June 27 were discussed.

Commander H. T. Bartlett of the naval bureau of navigation, air section, also spoke discussing plans now being considered for the Amundsen relief expedition which will start in about two weeks with MacMillan in charge and Lieut. R. E. Byrd representing the navy department.

COOLIDGE NOT KEEN FOR COLLEGE DEGREES

Washington, June 4.—(A. P.)—President Coolidge could have any number of honorary college degrees, but apparently he doesn't want them.

This was indicated today at the White House where it was learned that more than a score of prominent universities and colleges had formally invited the president to attend commencement exercises and that at least that many had offered to confer a degree—usually with the proviso that he must come to the campus to receive it.

But Mr. Coolidge as decided to decline all invitations and offers, although yesterday he did address the Naval Academy graduating class. He also planned to attend the graduation exercises at the University of Michigan, but called off that trip after the death of its president, Dr. Mario Leroy Burton, who placed him in nomination at the Cleveland convention.

6-YEAR-OLD GIRL DROWNED NEAR WATERBURY

Waterbury, Conn., June 4—Six-year-old Louise Kowalewski drowned late this afternoon in the waters of the Hopbrook river in Platts Mills, near here. She was found in eight feet of water at a spot a hundred feet from her home at the corner of Platts Mills and Middlebury roads. She was discovered by her brother, Clayton, 14, and a playmate of his, Louis Regan. The two boys pulled the small girl from the water, and summoned the mother and L. E. Regan. Doctors were called but Louise was past help.

The little girls had gone paddling and was clad in a bathing suit. Her brother and his friend had been nearby and she could not have been in the deep water more than 10 minutes before they discovered the tragedy. The drowning happened within a stone's throw from Middlebury road which is much traveled.

VOTTARI SENTENCED TO LIFE IMPRISONMENT

Hartford, Conn., June 4—Giovanni Vottari, who was indicted for murder of Joseph D'Angelo in New Britain, on September 21st last, pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree in court this afternoon, the state accepted this plea, and he was sentenced to life imprisonment. Votarri was caught in Canada and brought back in February.

Vottari at the time he killed D'Angelo by shooting also wounded Mrs. home at the time.

Amelia-Scoata who was in D'Angelo's [illegible] February was located in Ottawa, Ont., where he was surprised by a squad of officers and captured.

The woman is still in jail as a material witness incase the murder charge was tried out.

It was claimed that jealousy was the motive for the crime.

SEC'Y WEEKS IS SLOWLY BUT STEADILY IMPROVING

Boston, June 4—(A. P.)—Secretary of War John W. Weeks, who was operated on for gall stones, at the Massachusetts General hospital a week ago today has shown "steady but slow improvement during the last 24 hours," a bulletin from his physicians said tonight.

The bulletin read:

"There has ben a steady but slow improvement during the last 24 hours. While all conditions are not satisfactory, the more essential symptoms have improved."

Bulletins during the day said that last night Secretary Weeks spent "the best night since Saturday" and that he was taking more nourishment and fluids than in the previous 12 hours.

AGED MAN CHARGED WITH CHOKING BABY

New York, June 4—(A. P.)—Charged with choking a six-months-old baby in a perambulator an aged man was saved from a mob of several hundred women and children after they had torn off most of his clothes and were trampling him on the pavement in Brooklyn.

The baby was not seriously injured. The man, who gave his name as Adam Frick, was held in $1,500 bail on a charge of felonious assault.

Atrocious Murder Committed in Cuba

Unconscious Girl Placed Against Tree and Empty Auto Sent Crashing Into Her.

Havana, June 4.—(A. P.)—Rafael Leon and Pablo Herandez, a chauffeur, are being held in the suburb of Mariano under a charge of having committed one of the most cruel murders Cuba has known for years.

The murdered person was a girl, while unconscious was placed against a tree and an empty automobile sent crushing into her.

The police say that Hernandez today confessed to Judge Manuel Bonado of Marianao that several days ago he was hired by Leon, a married man, to drive him and his "conquest" as Leon is alleged to have described her, to Baracoa Beach. Arriving at the beach, Hernandez said Leon and his companion, whose name was given as Encarnacion Casado Brito, imbibed freely.

On the return journey to Mariaanao, Hernandez told the judge that Leon suddenly knocked the girl unconscious with a rum bottle. At the point of a pistol he forced Hernandez to stop the car and assist him in taking out the girl and propping her up against a tree. Still under the menance of the pistol Leon compelled Hernandez to point his car toward the tree, give it gas while standing on the running board and steer for the tree.

The police assert that the wrecked car with the crushed body beside it at first led themto believe that the killing of the woman had been accidental. Later they became somewhat suspicious and rounded on the chauffer and obtained his confession.

BUREAU OF MINES NOW IN COMMERCE DEPARTMENT

Washington, June 4.—(A. P.)—The bureau of mines and the division of mineral resources of the Geological Survey were ordered transferred today from the interior department to the commerce department.

Secretary Hoover announced he would begin consultations at once with mining representatives on the bureau's future course. He also will recommend a new head for the bureau to succeed H. Foster Bain, who has resigned.

In a statement on the change, which he recommended, Secretary Work said it would do away with a great amount of duplication of work now being done by the interior department and the commerce department, and would lessen government expenditures. The patent office recently was transferred from the interior to the commerce department, and the changes are in line with a policy of departmental organization designed to group bureaus in related lines.

President Coolidge in making the transfer acted under a law permitting the transfer to the commerce department of certain government agencies. His latitude on this respect, however, is limited, and congressional authority will be necessary for changes on a large scale contemplated in recommendations of a board which investigated the question.

RECORD NUMBER OF ALUMNI ARRIVING AT WESLEYAN

Middletown, Conn., June 4—A record number of alumni was arriving in Middletown tonight for the installation exercises at Wesleyan university tomorrow when Dr. James Lukens McConaughy will became permanent president of the university. # Shy of Volunteers For Military Camp

Governor Trumbull Has Issued an Urgent Appeal to Young Men to Fill Quota For State.

Hartford, June 4.—(A. P.)—Unsatisfactory response by Connecticut young men to the call for volunteers to attend the Citizens' military camp to be held in August at Fort Terry caused Governor Trumbull today to issue an urgent appeal to fill the quota for this state. He said that several other New England states had filled their quotas and had requested the war department's permission to send their overflow to the camp provided for Connecticut boys, which is situated on Plum Island, opposite New London harbor.

"It would be humiliating to be forced to accept applications from young men of other states to take the places provided at the camp for Connecticut boys," said the governor, "and every effort should be made to fill our own quota. Citizens' military training camps are conducted by the war department under the national defense act. The object of these camps is to bring together young men of high type from all sections on a common basis of equality and under the most favorable conditions of out-door life; to stimulate and promote citizenship, patriotism and Americanism, and through expert physical direction, athletic coaching and military training to befit the young men individually, and bring them to realize their obligations to their country. The government pays the expenses of those attending, consisting of transportation to and from camp, uniforms, food and medical attention.

In an effort to stimulate the recruiting, the governor has provided quarters in the main lobby of the capitol for Miss Gertrude Garvin, of Boston, secretary of the Training Camps association, for the period of an intensive campaign to obtain Connecticut's quota of enlistments.

The quota for this state is 556 young men and up to date, according to information furnished to the government by Co'. John L. Gilson, of New Haven, civilian aide to the secretary of war for Connecticut, only 250 applications have been received. Massachusetts, whose quota is 1,564 has received 2,225 and unless enough applicants are received from Connecticut young men, some of the Bay State overflow will be sent to Fort Terry. The boys who enlist are scheduled to arrive at the camp July 31 and leave August 31.

AMUNDSEN LEFT SEALED NOTE TO BE OPENED IN FORTNIGHT

Oslo, June 4—(A. P.)—A fortnight has passed since Captain Ronald Amundsen with six five companions disappeared into the Arctic wastes in their guest for the North Pole, and the mystery of their whereabouts is still unsolved.

Amundsen is understood to have left with Captain Hagerup, of the Steamer Farm, sealed instructions, to be opened a fortnight after his departure. What these contain has not been divulged. Meanwhile, the Norwegian government at the request of the Aero club, which promoted Amundsen's flight, is despatching on Saturday two naval scout seaplanes by the 4,730 ton steamer Ingertre, placed at the government's disposal by the Great Norwegian Coal company of Spitzbergen.

The Ingertre, it is expected, will arrive about mid-June at Kings Bay, Dane Island, to connect with the Farm and Hobby, and will then begin immediately a systematic search of the ice edge along about the 81st degree of latitude.

In addition to the three aviators, Lieutenant Lutzen Holm, Lieutenant Harald Styhr and Lieut. Bernt Balchen, there will be four mechanicians —Halvorsen, Noglegaard, Smaaland and Walter.

EXHAUSTING CHALLENGES FOR THE SHEPHERD JURY

Chicago, June 4—The prosecution was forced to exhaust two more peremptory challenges today to prevent the second panel of four jurors, apparently too pleasing to the defense, being sworn in the Shepherd trial. The state has only nine premeptory challenges left, while the defense has used but three of its score.

The net gain of the day was one venireman apparently acceptable to both sides. In the jury box at adjournment were four sworn jurors, three tentatively accepted by both the prosecution and defense, one questioned briefly by the state and four who had not been examined.

Nearly 400 veniremen had been excused at adjournment today.

It developed today that another state witness was missing. Miss Estelle Ghelling, nurse who formerly was friendly with Shepherd, could not be found by detectives from the state's attorney's office, nor could her attorney state her whereabouts.

PROTEST BY THE CHINESE MINISTER TO GERMANY

Berlin, June 4—Comparison of the present disturbances in Shanghai with the Boxer uprising is unwarranted, declared the Chinese minister to Germany, Dr. Wu, in an interview today in the Voissische Zeitung.

The present disturbances in Shanghai originated in a strike, and the right to quit work is recognized by all nations, said Dr. Wu. He blames certain parties in China who "attempt to usurp all prepogatives," and who are now protesting against this right to strike, for the existing situation in Shanghai.

The bitter animosity of the Chinese population has been aroused and the strike has developed into a national wave of resentment, Dr. Wu admitted the possibility of Bolshevik influence having played a part in causing the disturbances. He said the Soviet government was in sympathy with the nationalistic movement in China.

SNOW CAUSING DAMAGE TO TREES IN MONTANA

Great Falls, Mont., June 4—While the east and middlewest sweltered under oppressive heat, this section of Montana today was under a four inch blanket of snow. # HEAT HAS CAUSED AT LEAST 67 DEATHS LAST FEW DAYS

In Many Cities and Towns in the East and Middle West Schools and Shops Have Closed Because of the Heat—Weather Bureau Officials Forecast That the Warm Weather Will Continue For Two More Days.

Chicago, June 4.—(A. P.)—The east, middle west and south continued tonight to swelter in the grip of an early summer heat wave as the mercury went hiking to a new altitude record, for the day in several cities, while Montana was blanketed with four inches of snow.

Several more deaths attributable to the heat, occurred during the day to add to the more than three score who have died since the sun took advantage of commencement month to confer upwards of 100 degrees a day on half of the country. Nebraska and Iowa were recovering from a series of baby tornadoes during the past three days, killing and injuring a dozen persons and causing property loss of upwards of $200,000 from wind and rain. Indiana, on the otherhand, was suffering from a drought which is doing heavy damage to crops.

Little immediate relief from the hot wave is in sight, according to weather bureau officials who said tonight that while frequent thunder showers are likely, the warm weather will probably continue for two more days, accompanied by strong winds.

Cool weather has been the rule from the Rocky Mountains westward.

In the east several cities reported new heat records for June 4.

In Columbus the mercury touched 105, in Louisville it was 95 and in Milwaukee it was 90 at noon. Four new deaths caused by heart as well as a dozen prostrations were reported for Chicago during the day. The mercury went up to 94.6 degrees at 5:30 o'clock tonight, coming within less than a degree of the hottest June 4 in Chicago's history, which was in 1911 when the mercury stood at 95.3 degrees.

Outgoing trains were filled with people seeking relief in the country. Subway passengers in the crowded hours probably suffered more than any other class. Restaurants reported a precipitate drop in patronage, thousands of mid-day luncheers seeking soda fountains instead.

67 DEATHS DUE TO HEAT WAVE DIRECTLY OR INDIRECTLY

Chicago, June 4—(A. P.)—At least 67 deaths have been attributed directly or indirectly to the heat wave of the last few days over the middle West and East. Of these 23 were listed as the toll of heat, as follws:

Two in New York.
Seven in New Jersey.
Six in the New England state.
Twelve in Ohio.
Six in Michigan.
One in Indiana.
Four in Chicago.
Two in Maryland.

In addition, 27 other deaths were traced to storms and bathing fatalities as follows:

Eleven storm deaths in Iowa.
Five storm deaths in Minnesota.
Four storm deaths in Nebraska.
One storm death in Montana.
Five bathing fatalities in Milwaukee.
One bathing death in Chicago.

HEAT VICTIM FELL FROM A FOURTH STORY WINDOW

Springfield, Mass., June 4—Apparently overcome by heat while standing at a fourth story window of the Poole Dry Goods company store today, Mary Scully, about 60, fell to the street. Immediate death was prevented by the fact that she struck an awning, which lessened slightly the force of the fall. She was taken to a hospital, where the extent of her injuries has not yet been determined.

New Rochelle, N. Y., June 4—With the temperature at 97 degrees today, Charles Lupo, 34, of Bridgeport, Conn, employed as a laborer on an apartment under construction, was overcome by heat and fell 15 feet to the ground. He remained unconscious until taken to the New Rochelle hospital when he became so violent that it required eight men to control him.

CONTESTING REORGANIZATION OF THE ST. PAUL RAILWAY

New York, June 4—Opposition of plan of the Chicago, Milwaukee and security holders to the reorganization St. Paul railway began to crystalize today, but their objections were met with vigorous defenses of the program by bankers, reorganization managers and receivers for the bankrupt road.

Opponents of the reorganization proposals opened their attacks from several different angles. A group of stockholders, with headquarters in Washington, took the stand that the high assessments called for assistance from bankers to prevent small owners inability to meet the levies.

Wall Street opposition began to take shape under the leadership of George Emlen Roosevelt, head of the New York stock exchange firm of Roosevelt and Son, representing several large institutional holders of St. Paul securities. Mr. Roosevelt argued that the plight of the railroad sprung not from bad financing nor bad management, but from confiscatory freight rates in the northwest. No reorganization should be consummated, he said, until pending applications for higher rates had been decided.

To this argument, Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City bank, one of the reorganization managers countered that it would be the height of absurdity to delay the execution of the plan pending settlement of the rate question now before the interstate commerce commission.

CARRYING OUT PLANS FOR A DEFENSE TEST JULY 4

Washington, June 4—(A. P.)—Cooperation of the various governmental departments with the war department in carrying out the plans for a defense test July 4 has been asked by acting Secretary Davis, in letters to the department heads.

Further assurances of support and co-operation from state executives also were received today.

"Assure you of the support and cooperation of the state of Texas to carry out plans for defense day, July 4," Gov. Ferguson wired. "Await your instructions as to details."

Gov. Billings of Vermont, also sent a message, saying, "I most heartily support the president in the observance of defense test on July 4."

The acting war secretary's letter to other department chiefs pointed out that "the patriotic demonstrations in any locality will comprise such ceremonies, participated in by both the military and the civilian populations generally, as may be arranged in accordance with the plan of state and local civilian committees."

WOMAN AND CHILD WERE PROSTRATED IN BRIDGEPORT

A man a woman and a child were overcome by the heat here today, although all recovered after being treated.

Two prostrations were reported.

NEW YORK TAKES HEAT PRECAUTIONARY MEASURES

New York, June 4—Sizzling under a relentless sun through the fourth consecutive day of its heat wave, New York hung up a new record high temperature for June 4, 95 degrees, and recorded one death and eighteen prostrations.

Because of the suffering, city officials took measures to bring relief to harrassed citizens, Mayor Hylan ordered the parks of the city thrown open as sleeping places tonight. On the East Side and in other crowded tenement districts firemen and policemen turned on 600 street sprinklers to the acclaim of sweltering children.

Many schools were dismissed early.

BIG LIQUOR SEIZURE WAS MADE OFF FISHER'S ISLAND

New York, June 4—The first large liquor seizure by the coast guard since the rum blockade went into effect six weeks ago came to light today when it was announced that the steam trawler Blairmore No. 1, had been captured off Fisher's Island, Tuesday, with 2,000 cases and 130 barrels of alleged wet goods aboard.

Captain C. H. Mood and nine members of the crew were held in heavy bail for trial in federal court June 15. The craft, said to be owned by a Halifax shipping firm, is at New London, Conn., pending decision of the courts.

The Cigarette, fast rum running craft found abandoned Monday at Bayonne, N. J., was released by the coast guard today for lack of evidence. The Cigarette had been taken into custody three times previously for alleged illicit activities along rum row.

WILLIMANTIC

Concerning the issuing of the notices served on holders of certain of the striking operatives of the American Thread company Wednesday afternoon, Agent Don H. Curtis stated that the houses were originally built by the company for its operatives, and that there is a demand for them by people seeking employment, for whom the company must have them. He said that the plant is to be operated, and that at present practically every section of it is manned and turning out product. He stated also that the number of operatives is increasing daily and that the American Thread company has opened an employment office in Lowell, Mass., through which many operatives will secure work in the local mills. He explained that the local employment office has been removed temporarily to the old stone office in front of Mill No. 2.

As he was guiding his motorcycle, which was being towed by George Spencer across the intersection of Valley and Walnut streets, Paul Lasiciki, of South Coventry, lost control of the machine, which crashed into a pole, and rendered the driver unconscious from a blow on the head, early Wednesday evening. Mr. Lasicki was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, for treatment. He was found to have a torn right ear and lacerations about the face.

The speakers at the mass meeting of the strikers Thursday morning at the Gem Theatre were Thomas Regan of Lowell, Mass., and Miss Mary Kelleher, of Scranton, Pa., and their addresses were mostly concerning the notices sent to holders of tenements owned by the American Thread company. Miss Kelleher advised the strikers to keep cool and not to be excited by the company's action, announcing that Friday morning the speaker will be Thomas F. McMahon, of Providence, president of the Textile Workers of of America, and Frank J. Gorman, of Providence. She said that later White Senator John H. Powers, of Cumberland, R. I., and others will visit the city. In reply to a call for reports, a number condemned the action of the company, in issuing the notices to tenants.

The death of Olive Louise, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Henry Kelly occurred Thursday morning at the home of her parents in South Coventry. Besides her parents, she is survived by a brother, Earl Henry.

At the meeting of Francis S. Long Woman's Relief corps Wednesday evening in G. A. R. hall, the president, Mrs. Lena Tripp, presided. All of the officers and a good number of members were present. About seventy-five attended the birthday supper held at 6:30 for members whose birthdays fall in May and June. Boiled ham, escalloped potatoes, pickles, rolls, coffee, strawberry shortcake with whipped cream were served. A birthday cake, made by Mrs. Arthur Squires, and handsomely decorated with candles, ribbon and candy to represent a May pole was admired. Six new members were initiated, Alice Stoughton, Sabra Stoughton, Eleanor Ford, Margaret Sears, Jennie Bradshaw, and Caroline Larned. The appointment as new department aides fell to Amy Anderson, Lena Tripp and Alice Easterbrook. Arrangements are nearly completed for the reception to be held next week for Mrs. Maud Deming, deputy president. Mrs. Margaret McArthur is in charge of decorations, the executive board, with Mrs. Eva Adams in charge, of the luncheon and the color bearers on the reception committee.

Windham Center school auditorium was crowded at the presentation of the circuit plays in the home town by the Windham Players Wednesday evening. The plays, which have been very successfully given in circuit in Andover and Hebron and are to be given this week in Mansfield, are "Cinderella Married," by Rachel Field, "Neighbors," by Zona Gale and "Sauce for the Goslings," by Erine Warren. They were received with much applause. Costumes by Helen Hopkins were excellent, and the settings, very artistically arranged by Miss Dorothy Brown, excited admiring comment. The plays were given under the direction of Mrs. Albert Sonnischen, who appeared in "Sauce for the Goslins," in the role cast for Miss Brown, who was unable to be present.

Field Day exercises were held by the children of Hebron schools on the Green, Tuesday afternoon, with a good crowd of older people in attendance. In the boys' contests, the 50-yard dash was won by Joseph Miscovic, of the Center school, with Joe Robetti of the White school second. The baseball throw for accuracy, scored by schools, came out with the Center school first and the Jagger school second, but the champions were declared Charles Rathbun of the Jagger school, first, and Joseph Miscovic of the Center school, second. In the sack race, Arthur Keefe of the Lord school came out first, Mario Fiachhia of the Center school making a good second. In the girls' contests, the fifty yard dash was won by Frances Hubbell of the Center school, with Margaret Keefe of Gilead Hill school second. In the basket ball throw and catch, the Center school came out on top, with two representatives, Lucy Tennant and Annie Mosney, Amston school second, with one, Betty Johnson. The Center school also won the relay race, White school second. Nettie Epston of Amston school won the sack race, with Betty Jackson of Amston school second. Edwin J. Donnelly of Colchester acted as coach.

On the south side of Main street at two o'clock Thursday afternoon, thermometers registered 95 degrees in the shade. During the day the mercury hovered around 90, making the recently oiled roads almost dangerous for traffic. The natatorium at the Y and the swimming holes in this section became the most popular places around town.

About twenty applicants appeared at the patrolman's room at the police station Thursday, before Edgar S Abell of the Stafford Springs barracks to take the required tests for motor vehicle operators' licenses.

Overcome by the heat while working on the state highway in Mansfield Wednesday, Jacob Finkelstein, of Asylum street, is in a serious condition at St. Joseph's hospital, where he was removed for treatment, upon the advice of Dr. Charles A. Jenkins, who was summoned to attend him at Mansfield State Training school and hospital.

Thursday evening, Colonel Fred H Williams, of the Patriarchs Militant, accompanied by a delegation from, made his annual visitation at Sassacus lodge, No. 1, I. O. O. F., of New Haven where a degree was exemplified upon a class for that lodge.

COLCHESTER

At 11 a. m. at St. Andrew's cemetery, Saturday, it was estimated that over 500 persons gathered for the blessing of the new cross by the Rev. Dr. M. A. Sullivan, rector of Immaculate Conception church at Hartford. The rosary was said, followed by a procession around the cemetery, led by Rev. Philip J. Mooney, pastor of St. Andrew's church and Father Sullivan, At the head of the procession was a soldier in uniform carrying the processional cross with altar boys. Returning to the cross there was the litany and prayer of the dead for all who lie sleeping in St. Andrew's cemetery. The recent improvements made a sight consoling to the parishioners, with new stone wall, newly graveled avenues and new large iron gates, also the large new cemetery cross, 31 1-2 feet high with 10 foot arm, that stands in the center of "God's Acre."

Judge Carrington Stricken.

The following item is of Lebanon interest:

Winsted, June 3.—Judge George M. Garrington, who will be 90 years old on his next birthday, was brought to Winsted today in a motor ambulance from Belchertown, Mass., where he suffered a shock Tuesday. Judge Carrington left for Belchertown a few days ago, accompanied by his wife and her sister, Miss Edith Hine on a vacation trip. Judge Carrington retired from the probate judgeship here nineteen years ago, having reached the age of 70, but he assisted his successor, Judge Frank W. Seymour, up to a few years ago. His condition is not believed to be critical.

OBITUARY

John Bennett.

John Bennett, 64, died suddenly at his home in Pawcatuck Monday night. Dr. William A. Hillard, of Pawcatuck, was summoned and he pronounced death due to heart failure. Mr. Bennett had attended a meeting of the P. S. Barber Hose company earlier in the evening and returned home, apparently in good health. Before retiring for the night he took medicine for what he believed to be indigestion. He went to bed and shortly after his wife heard a commotion in his room. She entered the room and found him dead.

Everett W. Church.

Everett W. Church, a native of New York state, died at his home in Camden, N. J., Monday as the result of a sudden attack of heart disease. Mr. Church was a frequent visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Comstock of Quaker Hill, Waterford. He married Miss Harriet Tefft, sister of Mrs. Comstock, and daughter of the late Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Tefft, of Waterford. Mr. Church is survived by his wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Comstock, who spent the winter in Florida, visited at the home of Mr. Church on their return and during their stay there, Mr. Church was taken ill and expired.

The CALENDAR OF DINNERS

A new source of daily cooking help

Contents

365 complete dinner menus—one for each day of the year. A daily answer to the daily puzzle: "What shall we have for dinner to-night?"

Practical suggestions for judging, choosing and cooking meats, fish, fowl and game.

"Time-table" showing just how long to cook various classes of foods together with a complete and modern table of measurements.

Unusual and unusually helpful ideas about cake-making and pie-baking.

Special sections on Soups, Vegetables, Candies; Salads, Puddings, Breads, Eggs, Vegetarian dishes and the Art of Carving.

Of this cook book, written by Marion Harris Neil, formerly cooking editor of the Ladies' Home Journal, a prominent New York publisher said: "Such a book would cost at least $1.00 in the average book store."

But you will find below a simple way to get it for 10c.

How to get this $1.00 Cook Book for 10c

(Special Offer for one week)

HERE is a really unusual opportunity. We wish every housekeeper in this city to use a can of Crisco; to discover for herself through actual test the ten outstanding virtues of Crisco (listed below).

So in cooperation with your grocer we are making an offer by which you can save 90c.

How you Save 90c

During the coming week we will give you, for 10c, an unusual cook book with a minimum value of $1.00—provided you accompany that 10c with a wrapper from a can of Crisco.

This cook book consists of 231 pages of cooking and serving information—the sort of information that will give really practical daily help to even an experienced cook. Prepared by Marion Harris Neil, formerly cooking editor of the Ladies' Home Journal, it contains also 615 tested recipes.

In "A Calendar of Dinners" Mrs. Neil approaches the housekeeper's daily problem of "what for dinner" from a fresh, sympathetic viewpoint.

Her cook book will save you a great deal of time and worry when you are puzzled over the menu for a dinner.

For it contains a special dinner menu for every day in the year and gives recipes for a great many of the dishes mentioned in these menus.

An outstanding point about these recipes is this: They are prepared with special reference to digestibility. They will be peculiarly welcome to every thoughtful wife and mother who keeps a careful eye on the healthfulness of her family's foods.

The simple way to secure this cook book

To secure for 10c the $1.00 cook book shown above is a very simple and easy matter. This is all you need to do:

1. Buy a can of Crisco from your grocer.
2. Clip the coupon in the lower right-hand corner of this page and carefully fill in your name and address.
3. Remove the outside wrapper of your can of Crisco, attach the coupon to it and bring or mail both the coupon and the wrapper to the Bulletin,

NORWICH,
CONNECTICUT

Enclose or bring 10c in stamps or coin.

Does any shortening, besides CRISCO, possess these 10 virtues?

1. Crisco is a pure vegetable shortening—not an animal fat. Crisco is made from the pure sweet oils of growing plants.
2. Crisco delightfully answers every shortening and frying purpose: For Cake-making, Shortening, Frying.
3. Crisco gives perfectly delicious results. Crisco cakes are light and tender and stay fresh longer. Crisco fried foods are crisp outside and tender and fine-flavored inside. Crisco pie crusts and pastry are deliciously brown and flaky.
4. Crisco needs no refrigeration. It keeps sweet and fresh indefinitely without ice-box help.
5. Crisco is very digestible. (Food authorities say that an easily digested fat should melt near body heat—98⅘ degrees. Crisco melts even below this temperature. It melts at 97 degrees.)
6. Crisco helps to secure uniform cooking results, for Crisco itself is absolutely uniform. Crisco never varies—it is the same to-day, to-morrow and a year from to-day.
7. In frying with Crisco you avoid smoke and unpleasant odors. Crisco never publishes, to living room callers, intimate news of kitchen activities.
8. In frying, Crisco is but little absorbed by foods. Crisco makes fried foods with a crisp, brown outside and a tender, digestible inside.
9. After frying with Crisco you can strain it and use it again and again. You can fry fish, then onions, then potatoes in Crisco and the potatoes will not even hint of the onion.
10. In all kinds of cooking Crisco lets the fine full flavor of the ingredients come out—undisguised by the flavor of the shortening itself.

Special Crisco Week at your grocer's

During the coming week you will see Crisco prominently displayed in your grocer's store. He will invite you to buy a can.

If you order by telephone he will mention Crisco especially.

His reasons are two-fold and both are reasons of service to you:

1. Wishing to do you a service beyond the mere filling of your daily order, your grocer will urge you to buy a can of Crisco this week because he will thus help you to secure for 10c a cook book valued at $1.00 at least.
2. As a progressive modern merchant your grocer naturally prefers to sell you the most practical and wholesome food ingredients. He would rather sell you a shortening which you can use for every cake-making, every shortening and every frying purpose than one whose usefulness is limited. When he sells you Crisco he knows that he is selling you a shortening which alone delightfully answers every shortening purpose; a wholesome shortening made from the pure sweet oils of growing plants.

Clip this coupon and secure this $1.00 cook book for only one wrapper from a can of Crisco and

THE 1925 LEGISLATURE

The close of the 1925 legislature found the members working right up to the limit when the indications early in the session were that it would be able to close well in advance of the time fixed by law.

The early speed that was displayed did not overcome the dilatory tactics later on, but while there was a let up in regard to the quick handling of the business there was no departure from the policy of economy which was advocated by the governor. Connecticut has seen another legislature come and go which had many demands made upon it for the spending of huge sums of money but these were turned down wherever it could be said they were not needed. There was the temptation before the legislature to enter into a programme of large expenditures, under the claim that there had been retrenchments for several years until the state was virtually out of debt and with a surplus on hand for the past two years the time could be regarded as propitious for making up for the expenditures which had been sidetracked in other years. Whatever tendency there may have been among the legislators to indulge in such a program was effectively squelched, all of which means much to the taxpayers throughout the state.

Some of the matters to arouse the most contention in the general assembly have had to do with acts concerning municipalities. Other big matters have been the medical practice bill, the anti-pollution bill, the creation of the agricultural commissioner and changes in the marriage license law, the fish and game laws and the creation of a commission on state parks.

The legislature was prompt in its action when refusing to ratify the child labor amendment, in making provision for more frequent examinations of banks and while there was a hard fight made on the so called Wheeler bill it was defeated by figures which left no uncertainty as to the sentiment of the state.

Where the legislature might have dragged the session to had there been no legal limit for closing there's no telling. Lack of a quorum delayed much business at times but full justification was again demonstrated for the forcing of the legislature to so regulate its work that it cannot remain in session all summer.

FORT SHANTOK PARK

One of the measures before the general assembly in which Norwich had New London county was much interested concerned the incorporation of Fort Shantok property in the state park system. This along with other matters was regarded as among the things which could wait. It was not looked upon as necessary at this time. There was disappointment over the decision but it is to be realized that there were many more meritorious propositions which it was necessary to treat in a similar manner if the economic policy was to be maintained.

While the legislature declined to buy this tract of Indian territory, important for its historical connections, it by no means eliminated the possibilities of ultimately accomplishing the desired object.

With the idea of developing forestry and a state park system on a larger scale the new commission to deal with this matter has been provided with a fund of $200,000. Instead of the legislature deciding where additions should be made to the state park system it will be the duty of the commission to deal with such matters.

Thus while the efforts which were concentrated on the legislature to have Fort Shantok property acquired for state park purposes, that this place so rich in Indian lore might be preserved, failed, the situation has developed to the point where efforts should be brought to bear upon the commission to convince it of the wisdom of acquiring this land before it is too late.

The supporters of the plan, and they are not few, should recognize the value of setting forth the merits of this proposition to the state commission which has it within its power to obtain Fort Shantok and place it under public control where it will be open to visitation by all. The most should be made of the fact that the chance to get this property has not been entirely lost.

CLAIMING ARCTIC TERRITORY

It is certainly an interesting claim which has been made by Canada to all territory to the north of the present Canadian limits whether it has been actually discovered or not. This is a good deal like the boy going huckleberrying and claiming all the berries as far as he can see.

The Canadian claim as made by the minister of the interior of that country came at a time when Donald B. MacMillan is about to leave for the arctic with the idea of visiting an unknown area in the belief that a large hitherto undiscovered continent exists there. He plans to make a survey of that region by airplane and should he find what he believes to exist he will claim such territory in the name of the United States. That is no more than any other explorer would do for the country he represented. It is no more than would be expected by other countries.

Thus it would seem that Canada is endeavoring to lay claim to something which it doesn't know exists, but if it is found that it is there Canada wants it because it is north of Canada, and it even puts in its claim for any land all such land between Alaska and Greenland up to and including the pole. This seems to be rather an inflated claim in view of the discovery of the pole by Peary.

What is going to be the answer to this claim is much will depend upon MacMillan. If there is nothing there, the claim is an empty one and creates less interest than those in Florida real estate tracts which are under water but which are possible to reclamation some day. If MacMillan finds what he seeks there will develop an international discussion as to ownership if Canada is really serious but even before that develops there is no telling what Roald Amundsen is doing in the way of discovery in the arctic during these days when nothing is being heard from him.

Up to the present there hasn't been any great rush to stake out claims in that region and it promises to be some time before it is necessary to tap that locality for refrigeration purposes. Finding is keeping has heretofore held good regarding such territory however.

SENATOR JOHNSON SORE

Congress isn't in session but notice has already been served by Senator Hiram Johnson that he will oppose the appointment of Judge McCamant of Oregon to the federal circuit court of appeals. That means one thing that will help to enliven the next session of congress.

When appointees are opposed it is invariably because the persons named are not considered qualified for the position. That certainly cannot be said of Judge McCamant. He will be admitted by those who know him as thoroughly qualified in every way to sit on the federal bench.

Senator Johnson isn't opposing the appointment for any such reason. There is no action taken back of the stand by the senator from California. Judge McCamant went from Oregon to the republican national convention at Chicago as a member of the Oregon delegation. He went as a Johnson delegate but after he got there and sized up the situation he recognized the fact that the Californian had no chance and he ceased to vote for him. It was, of course, an unpardonable performance and in view of the fact that the Californian has been out with the administration because he failed to get a chance at Cleveland he is fiery. There's no use beating about the bush, he's sore. It doesn't take much to stir up his ire under the circumstances and he hopes to get the senate through an appeal to senatorial courtesy to join in which and help him get vengeance.

Perhaps he will succeed. There's no telling what some in the senate will do, but Senator Johnson fails to make a good impression when he gets out to defeat an appointment on personal grounds.

CHINA'S TROUBLES

Eyes are once again turned upon China. For how long there's no telling, but the reports, if they can be believed, indicate an ugly situation with possibilities of foreign complications.

The fighting which has taken place there, the landing of marines and the call for additional aid for the protection of the Americans indicate something out of the ordinary.

Because of the recent treaty relations entered into between China and soviet Russia the first thought naturally is that the outbreak is the result of the Moscow influence, that it is the outcome of the new relationship and that Russia is doing its best to stir up strife in that quarter for the purpose of creating conditions favorable to itself.

Possibly Moscow is not guilty, but it will get the benefit of the charge until it can clear its skirts. Nothing pleases the soviet government more than to stir up strife. It is committed to world revolution and its activities are reaching out to all corners of the globe. China is handy and the conditions in China are such as to make it a fertile field for just such operations, while there isn't a much better place to be found for embroiling the nations of the world than right in China.

It is to be sincerely hoped that China is not going to be thrown into another Boxer rebellion but the soviets will do their part in starting and abetting such trouble if it is possible.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It must be said that the Kirby confession will cause no one to be surprised.

Those 23 magazines which were declared too vile to circulate in Chicago must certainly have been bad.

While the shipping board is getting ready to scrap ships there are those who would scrap the shipping board.

The man on the corner says: No song leader is needed to bring out that old time loyalty. "Is it hot enough for you?"

Plain service appeals to some and plane service appeals to others. It was not always that one could take his choice.

While no figures are as yet available there is good reason for the belief that the swatting results are far below the record this season.

Better mailing week should have a strong appeal for that Pennsylvania postal clerk who used the mails to send a bomb in a blackmailing scheme.

A New York girl unintentionally remaining on board as a liner sailed for Europe cried most of the way over and back. Many another has wept because she couldn't take such a trip.

Think how the auto owner must feel who was fined for parking on the crosswalk markings, when such lines have long since been obliterated and it is impossible to find a cross lane today.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, June 5.—Wonders will never cease. The democratic senators, who for generations, as a fundamental of their party belief, have been sitting up nights inventing new taxes and the way to spend the public money, are now announcing to the world that they are about to invent a system of economy in public expenditures. Senator King, of Utah, is heading a sacred little democratic band, the members of which not only are for the reduction of taxes, but they are already quarreling among themselves as to the extent of the reductions which the people deserve.

It is wholly possible that their arguments carried out to a logical conclusion, will provide for the abolition of all taxes, and the payment of bonuses to the citizens at large.

It is all humorous. The leopard has not changed its spots. The democrats have always been, and always will be, committed to the theory that there are more tax eaters than payers, on taxing everybody in sight and then hunting out the few who may be under the table. The change is, because, having realized, as Chairman Butler of the republican national committee recently said in his Philadelphia speech, that they were now only torn and tattered fragments of what once was a great party and that the people of the nation are for the president and economy, they have adopted this course, outwardly at least. They are not for it because they, the democrats, believe in it, but because they feel it is politically necessary, and then, being democrats, they have adopted the programme of trying to fool the people into the belief that they invented it. In these dull days if it were not for the antics of the democrats in such cases this would indeed be a sour world.

The House Committee on World War Veterans' Legislation has made a very interesting report relating to the several hospitals where veterans of the World War are being cared for by the Federal Government, and Congress followed with a $10,000,000 appropriation for additional hospitalization of the Veterans of the World War.

There are 13 Veterans' Bureau hospitals: West Roxbury, Mass.; Rutland, Mass.; Northampton, Mass.; New Haven, Conn.; Bronx N. Y.; Otteen, N. C.; Chicago, Ill.; Waukesha, Wis.; Excelsior Springs, Mo.; Helena, Mont.; Fort McKenzie, Sheridan, Wyo.; Walla Walla, Wash.; Takoma, Wash. (Cushman); Takoma, Wash. (American Lake); Portland, Ore.; Palo Alto, Calif.; San Francisco, Calif. (Livermore Hospital); Tucson, Ariz.; Whipple Barracks, Prescott, Ariz.

There are five soldiers' homes hospitals: Augusta, Me.; Central Branch, Dayton, Ohio; Mountain Branch, Johnson City, Tenn. Northwestern Branch, Milwaukee, Wis.; Battle Mountain Sanitarium, Hot Springs, S. Dak.; Pacific Branch, Los Angeles, Calif.

There are seven contract hospitals: Maine General Hospital, Augusta, Me.; Maine Insane Hospital, Augusta, Me.; Maine General Hospital, Bangor, Me.; Maine Tuberculosis Hospital, Bangor, Me.; Maplecrest Sanitarium, East Parsonville, Me.; Western State Hospital, Tacoma, Wash.; Compton Sanitarium, Los Angeles, Calif.

There are five naval hospitals: Portsmouth, N. H.; Chelsea, Mass.; Newport, R. I.; Brooklyn, N. Y.; Great Lakes, Ill.

There is one army hospital: Fitzimmons General Hospital, Denver, Colo.

The hospital legislation of last June admitted to the hospitals and to compensation, several thousand men who had prior to that time, been refused admission. The policy was adopted of putting at the command of the veterans of all wars, regardless of service-connected disabilities, such hospital facilities as were not in use.

The peak of hospitalization had been reached in the summer of 1922 when nearly 31,000 patients were under the charge of the bureau two years later this had fallen to 22,457. The result of the legislation was to increase the number to 29,292 on the 15th of January last. At the present time, the number is about 30,000.

The $10,000,000 additional will provide for 1,000 beds, replace temporary structures, replacing leased places with permanent structures owned by the government, and the acquisition of one leased hospital.

The total amount appropriated by congress to June 30, 1924, for expenditure by the Veterans' Bureau, and the various agencies now merged with it, aggregates $2,200,000,000 and $349,000,000 were appropriated for this year 1925; making a grand total of $2,549,000,000 to next June. A total of more than 562,000 insurance policies for veterans of the world war, amounting to the face value of $3,984,000,000 are in force. The adjusted compensation law will add many millions more. These are some of the results of the war, and evidences of Uncle Sam's generosity.

Senator Borah is determined that the truth shall prevail in the matter of French taxation. He knows, what every well informed person knows, that French taxation cannot be accepted on its face. That is to say, it is one thing to announce a scale of taxation and it is quite another thing to collect that tax. The French are notorious tax dodgers. French governments invariably wink at the practice.

Following a somewhat exhaustive investigation he has reached the conclusion that an American is taxed—federal, state and city, at the rate of approximately $70 per capita while the Frenchman pays approximately $33 per capita. That is one of the reasons why Senator Borah is determined to do all in his power as chairman of the committee on foreign affairs to compel the French government to fund its debt. When this is accomplished the scales will be tilted a little bit anyhow.

MAKING THEM HAPPY

"I just don't know what I am going to do!" declared the new wife who had made the amazing discovery that her husband was stubborn. "I can't make Horatius do a single thing that I want him to do! He always wants to do something else!"

"Of course he does, the lamb," said the determined young woman. "They all do—they just don't know what's good for 'em! That's our mission in life—making them walk the straight and proper pathway, doing as they should do and nothing else but! All the ladies' journals say we must use tact, but personally I think something more obvious is better. Men are such literal beings and won't believe in fairies unless they see 'em.

"Why, I believe that an infinite amount of good might be done by hanging in every vestibule a large, stout rolling pin neatly decorated with blue satin ribbons. A husband coming home feeling reckless and cocky would be given pause by the sight of it, and would enter his home in a properly subdued receptive state of mind. Then we'd have lots less trouble with them. It would beat tact all hollow."

"But I don't understand it," persisted the new wife, who was too quiet to enjoy a joke. "Before we was married to them they was like the agile chamois if we drop a magazine or a pin and afterward they say, 'Dearie, run upstairs and find my cigarette case, will you?' I am sure my husband actually is in love with me, but when he gets his slippers on I wouldn't make him change back to shoes and go across the street to mail a letter if I were my head off. Before we were married he spent long evenings assuring me that my slightest wish was law and that his entire life would be spent making me happy—"

"You didn't get it right," the determined young woman explained kindly. "He meant exactly what he meant—which was that he was going to make you happy as he thought you should be happy.

"The most shining example I ever knew of this husbandly method of making one happy was one Timothy Pullback. 'Oh, no, my dear,' he would announce most kindly when his wife said that she'd like to take a ride around the little summer resort idea. 'It's so hot, Timothy,' she would add, 'and the lake looks so cool!' 'What you need is a nice brisk walk,' he would say with the thermometer at 99 and everything covered with dust he'd walk the poor girl five miles to the village. Red as a beet and choked to death, she would head toward the drug store and an ice cream soda, but Timothy would put out a restraining hand. 'What you want,' he would tell her, 'is a nice glass of buttermilk! Come on to the dairy!'

"There's my George, who knows that I hate a solemn show with a sickening hate. We've been married ten years and in that time he certainly should have gathered some inkling of my opinions—yet when he wants to give me a treat he comes home waving a couple of sixth row seats and cries, 'Guess what! We're going to see Blazes Banwhat, that sterling actor in King Lear—or some blow like that!' I can't bear to wipe the tea from his face, so I clap my hands, crying goody, goody, and plan my next year's wardrobe during the acts.

"There's a dead spot in their brains my dear—some thing as owning a perfectly good radio and being totally unable to get Joliet or some station you don't want at all, except that you want it because you can't get it!

What I mean—"

"You have made it very clear," the new wife assured her solemnly. "My goodness, what a future!"—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Rev. Mr. Tholen's Reply

Mr. Editor: Replying to the malicious attack made upon me by a fellow clergyman in the press I beg to refer to my past record and also to a few public utterances that I recently made in my Memorial day addresses. I said that as a nation we have ideals which are characteristically American which are liberty, justice and democracy and that any citizen who does not strive to embody these ideals is not 100 per cent. American. And that any citizen who does not revere our American Constitution or violates the law of our land is trampling on the blood of the heroic men who died in the nation's cause and are treading on the flag which these men loved so ardently.

For the second time the local veterans invited me to address them on Memorial day and I said to them that words were inadequate to express our gratitude and could not pay our indebtedness that we owed them for the unselfish service they had rendered at the time that our nation was in danger of disruption. And this tribute includes the men who fought in the last war and also the men who fought in all the wars that our country was unfortunate enough to encounter.

I have expressed in public my personal love and devotion to this nation of which I am proud of being a citizen and have said that my naturalization vows are as sacred as my marriage vows and if this is unchristian or un-American then my friends or foes can make the most of it.

Regarding insulting our nations heroes and in particularly those who fought in the last war I said in my paper, which was read before the Willimantic Minister's Union, that the church was called upon to give of her sons who were the brightest, the best, the cleanest, the strongest of all men for only such could endure the strain of battle and I also said that these men fought bravely and prayerfully. If this is insulting them, I do not know the use of the English language.

Those who heard my paper expressed their appreciation with the exception of one member who objected very strongly to my views but to which he had perfect right to object only the manner in which this member expressed his objection was criticised.

In two towns of two different states I have instituted Memorial day services at the cemeteries where sleep the nation's valiant dead and again and again I have assisted the soldier and befriended him and the attack made upon me through the public press is nothing else than malicious. This is the first and will also be the last that I shall take any notice of them.

REV. F. W. THOLEN
Stafford, June 3, 1925.

From Small Beginnings

Jean Carpeaux, the Stonecutter's Son, a Great Realistic Artist.

Jean Carpeaux, the little French boy, having found a soft stone, made a floral design and began to cut it out with one of his father's stone chisels. The father was an ordinary worker in stone, accustomed to use the sledge hammer and the heavy chisel, to cut facings and to do rough work. The boy had watched him, had played with chisels, had taken off bits of stone, and finally had begun to help him as much as a boy can. Now, in a moment of rest, he had gone on with something that he had started many times, the making of a picture in stone.

When Jean was 15 years old he wished to learn more about real art, and so he set off to Paris. His father, the stonecutter, was too poor to pay for the son's training, and therefore the lad had to support himself as best he could. He did various work, sometimes carrying heavy things, sometimes acting as errand boy, sometimes playing the part of very subordinate workers—but always finding time to study sculpture and always making money enough to pay for his study. Within three years he had found his way into a great art school. With his whole heart in his work, and feeling his lack of advantages, he threw himself into sculpture. The result was that at 18 he won a great prize. He lived 30 years longer, the flame of his genius burning him up at 48, but before he died he had become a leader in French art. He saw things as they are, real things, with real lines and real beauty. He had a fresh, original point of view and he was daring. He took up painting as an amusement, and became a famous painter. Today, in the great galleries of the Louvre, they treasure his sculpture and his work in making pictures. The facade of the magnificent Paris Opera House speaks of his genius in ornamental sculpture. In many places they treasure the wonderful portrait busts that he made. A little friendly help had set on fire the heart of Jean Carpeaux, the stonecutter's son, and his own devotion to his chosen work in life had led him to real greatness. Certainly it pays to help a boy.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. James L. McConaughy, whose installation as president of Wesleyan University will be the occasion for a large gathering of noted educators at Middletown, Conn., today, comes to the Connecticut institution with a high reputation in educational administration. He is a native of New York City, the son of Rev. Dr. James McConaughy, who is well-known as an educator and as an editor of Sunday school publications. The son was educated at Yale. After his graduation in 1909 he went to Bowdoin as Y. M. C. A. secretary and instructor in English. In 1915 he left Bowdoin to become professor of education at Dartmouth. In 1918 he was called to the presidency of Knox college, at Galesburg, Ill., where for more than six years he has served as professor of education as well as the administrative head. Dr. McConaughy is a strong supporter of the honor system in colleges, and is described by the students as "a fan on athletics."

Stories That Recall Others

Thinks Cooks Are Finicky

Cooks are getting finicky, according to one woman who is having her share of trouble in obtaining someone to function in the kitchen. Recently she thought she had solved the problem by paying a woman $15 a week, and giving her a room with bath. To her surprise the cook failed to show up one morning, and a few hours later a note arrived saying that she had resigned "because some of the trees in the garden shaded the kitchen windows too much."

The Mother of Fifteen

Mr. and Mrs. A. were taking their usual afternoon drive and after rambling about for 50 miles or so they parked at a picturesque spot to enjoy the view. Their attention was soon attracted by three youngsters coming out of the woods. Two of them were carrying something in their caps and a little way behind was a third carrying a dog. On investigation it proved to be a collie mother and 15 puppies only a day old. These big hearted boys had found them in the woods almost famished and were trying to get them home, which was some little distance away.

Mr. A. being a generous hearted man, and a great lover of dumb animals, volunteered to take them home if they would "hang on." After depositing the two cabs full of puppies in the warm car they were soon landed at the gateway to their home.

ASK YOUR NEIGHBOR

So many thousands of women have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that there is hardly a neighborhood in any city, town or hamlet in this country wherein some woman has not found health in this good old-fashioned root and herb remedy. If you are suffering from some womanly ill, why don't you try it? For a great many years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been restoring sick women to health and strength.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Abbie M. Schofield

(Contributed)

The life of Mrs. Abbie M. Schofield, which was so peaceful in its passing to life eternal, Thursday morning in this city was one of those which continued on from the yesterdays of long ago, she being the seventh in line from Nehemiah Smith, whose name we find recorded as one of the original settlers of Norwich, on the Captain Mason monument at Norwich Town.

Nehemiah Smith and John Bradford, the latter a son of Governor William Bradford, married sisters, both of whom were living in Norwich the latter part of their lives. The same spirit that brought Mr. Smith from England to Plymouth in 1637, kept him seeking new surroundings, and, after marrying at Marshfield, Mass., in 1639, he sailed for Stratford, Conn. After living in Quinipiack (New Haven) for a time, the records find him on Long Island in 1652, probably at a place where a branch of the New Haven church had been established. The next year found him receiving a grant, on Pequot Town records (New London) of two pieces of land for a house lot. At the end of December he received "20 acres of upland east of the pond in Scull Plain."

This is the Smith homestead of that period that was located at Smith Lake Poquonnoc, and it was gradually developed although the family lived at New London until 1655 probably for better protection from the Indians. His children continued to occupy this farm when he and his wife moved to Norwich.

At "New Norridge," his house stood about 57 feet north of the oldest burying ground, after the burying ground was enlarged and became known as the "Post and Cager burying ground." The house was in the north side of the road, with that of Thomas Howard on the northwest and that of Samuel Hyde on the southwest, with the road running between.

When it came to the need of branching out for himself, the sixth son, Nehemiah Smith, Jr., purchased from Capt. Bull of Hartford, a large tract of land at East Lyme, now Niantic, given to Joseph and Jonathan Bull for their aid in the Pequot wars. It was not until a few years later that the homestead was built and not until 1819 that the present stone house was built on the site of the original wooden structure. Meanwhile three generations had grown to manhood, Samuel, Daniel and Simon, before they had become owners of the stone quarry from which the stone was taken for the 1819 homestead.

Simon Jr., was the father of Abbie M. (Smith) Schofield and it was history repeating itself that the unrest of the Civil war found the children leaving the fireside in the country and faring forth to find what other localities would develop.

Six of the children of Simon Smith, Jr., located at Norwich during a period of a few years, three daughters living here during the early part of their married life, Abbie M. Smith came to teach at Greeneville and married Socrates Schofield, from whose family Schofield's hill, in that suburb, was named. Mr. Schofield was a patent lawyer and located shortly afterwards in Providence where he practiced his profession until his death about 12 years ago.

A daughter, Bessie M. Schofield was an assistant to the superintendent of schools in Providence, who in that period was Dr. Tarbell.

After the death of her husband and daughter Mrs. Schofield returned to Norwich to live, that she might be near her relatives residing in this city. A son, Herbert Schofield, who died about five years ago, was in charge of the vocational school at Dr. Trudeau's sanatorium at Saranac Lake, the "Workshop" from its inception 25 years ago.

Mrs. Schofield was well known to the neighbors on Laurel Hill avenue, where she had apartments at Mrs. Kellogg's until a year ago. Since that time she has been tenderly cared for at the home of her nephew, C. Edward Smith of Warren street.

She was the sister of S. G., George S. and Sydney C. Smith who located at Norwich about the same time Mrs. Schofield located here, and was the last survivor of her generation. Mrs. Schofield was born June 17, 1838 and would have been 87 years old on the 17th of this month.

Relatives in Norwich are C. Edward Smith, Charles L. Smith, Emma Smith and Harriet G. Smith.

Mrs. Edwin P. Edwards.

Following an illness of about twelve weeks, the death of Annie Dow Edwards, wife of Edwin P. Edwards, occurred Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at her home in Montville. Mrs. Edwards was born in that town, May 10, 1862, the daughter of Amos T. Rogers and Kate Higgins Rogers and practically her entire life was spent in Montville. She was educated there and on April 13, 1894, was united in marriage with Edwin P. Edwards, also of Montville.

Surviving besides her husband are two grandchildren, Roger and Ruth Bogaltans, who lived with her; also one brother, Charles Rogers, of Fitchville.

News of her death was received with sorrow by her many friends in Montville and in Norwich, where she was also well known, and many expressions of sympathy were extended to the family.

MURDER STRANGULATION LIQUOR CASE

A twenty dollar bill, alleged to have been marked by the state police before it was used to buy a gallon of liquor in the North Stonington farm of John Kavendez, promised to be a disputed point in the trial of the man, which started in the criminal common pleas court here Thursday afternoon, before Judge C. E. Waller and a jury.

The bill has not yet been produced in evidence but when its number was given by one of the state police witnesses, the number was challenged by the attorneys for the accused as not being the same that had been given in the justice court at North Stonington.

In reply to a question from Judge Waller the attorneys for the accused stated that they proposed to claim this money was never paid to Kavendez. The accused, who is represented by John J. McGarry and Frank E. Shea, two New London attorneys, is charged with having sold a gallon of liquor on Feb. 13 to Bill Hatt, of East Hadlyme.

Hatt was the first witness to take the stand. Questioned by Prosecuting Attorney C. E. Whittlesey, he said that he had been working for the state police for some time and that on Sunday, Feb. 7, he went with William Pelts to the Kavendez place and asked for liquor. Kavendez told him to come back on Friday and he would have some. The two men already mentioned went back on Friday, going in automobiles driven by State Policemen Caron and Albright. Hatt and Pelts went into the house, the former having been provided with a twenty dollar bill, by Officer Caron, who had marked the bill just before giving it to the witness. Hatt testified that Kavendez told him he only had a gallon on hand. Kavendez then went down cellar into the cellar, returning with liquor from which he poured out drinks for the three men and then gave Hatt the gallon. Hatt said he paid over the twenty dollar bill and was handed back $13 in change by Kavendez. He asked for something to carry the jug of liquor in and Kavendez got a bag into which the jug was placed and handed to Pelts. Just then Officer Albright came into the room, the witness said. Kavendez got very nervous and went down into the cellar. When he returned from the cellar, Officer Albright took the twenty dollar bill away from him.

State Policeman Henry J. Albright was the next witness for the prosecution, testifying that the number of the bill was K-34813616. When Hatt and Pelts were in the Kavendez house, he said that he was hiding behind a stonewall, but he could see into the house from there and saw the transaction of the delivery of the jug of liquor by Kavendez to Hatt and the payment of the money by Hatt. Kavendez denied to him that he had sold liquor to Hatt, but when he made Kavendez show his money, the alleged marked twenty dollar bill was on the outside of the roll that Kavendez drew from his pocket, the witness said.

Officer Albright said he went into the cellar and saw there a still that had been knocked off the stove. The still was warm and there was mash on the floor.

Attorneys for the accused gave the state policeman a searching examination, bringing out that he was not in uniform at the time of entrance into the Kavendez house, but he said he showed his shield and that Officer Caron had a search warrant which he read. The witness denied that he had testified in the justice's court that they were without a search warrant. He also denied that he pushed Kavendez down into a chair with such force that the chair was broken. He also denied that he pushed Mrs. Kavendez forcibly away from using the telephone, but said on the contrary that he called up the number she wanted and allowed her to talk.

The trial was adjourned at 4:30 until next Tuesday morning.

Before the case could be begun Thursday afternoon, Deputy Sheriff George H. Stanton was directed to summon in two extra jurymen. He made a tour around the streets and brought back Thomas J. Leahy and John Quinley. The former was excused from jury duty but Quinley was at once drawn for the jury on the case. The following is the jury:

ess, having been written by her for the opening of the golden anniversary campaign of the Woman's American Baptist Home Mission society. The leading part in the pageant is taken by Mrs. Sisson, who portrays very beautifully the part which she takes.

JUBILEE MEETING SHOWS GREAT MISSIONARY WORK

The notable part taken in the missionary field through the Congregational churches of Eastern Connecticut was vividly brought to mind at the fiftieth anniversary meeting of the Eastern Connecticut Branch of the Woman's Board of Missions, which was held Thursday at the Second Congregational church in New London and at which 26 churches were represented. The jubilee meeting was largely attended when the morning session was called to order at 10.30 by the president, Miss Abby G. Willard of Colchester. After the opening hymn, Come Kingdom of Our God, the scripture was read by Miss Willard and prayer was offered by Miss Susan Hyde of Norwich Town.

Two reports for the fiftieth year were given as follows: Mrs. Harvey M. Briggs, Norwich, home secretary; Mrs. W. M. Zumbro, Norwich, secretary for young peoples work; Miss Anna C. Learned, New London, treasurer; Mrs. Allen Latham, Norwich, the Churches of the Branch; Miss Alexandrine N. Trumbull, Norwich, foreign secretary.

In the report of the treasurer, it was interesting to note that there have been but three treasurers of the branch in the half century. Miss Learned's report showed $1,472 as the jubilee gift to help build a new tubercular ward at the hospital at Ahmednagar, India.

After a hymn, Our First Three Missionaries, were referred to in an interesting way by Miss Willard. These missionaries were Miss Ellen C. Parsons, Mrs. Clara Gray Schauffler (Mrs. Henry Schauffler) and Mrs. Martha Tinker Raynolds (Mrs. George C. Raynolds).

Miss Willard also gave a brief historical sketch of the branch w was organized June 1, 1875 in the chapel of the First Congregational church, New London.

After reports by the different churches, a missionary service banner processional was held, in which the representatives of the churches marched in with banners that bore stars showing the number of missionaries that went out from each church in the 50 years. The story of the banners was written by Miss Caroline T. Gilman and read by Miss Elizabeth F. Pullen of Norwich. The two churches having the most stars were the First church, Norwich Town, with 34 and the Norwich Second and Broadway, now the United, with 25.

Twenty seven auxiliaries were entitled to banners, totalling 189 missionaries.

The following officers were elected: President, Miss Abby G. Willard, Colchester; vice presidents, Mrs. E. J. Graham, Norwich; Mrs. S. H. Howe, Norwich; Miss Kate Huntley, New London; Mrs. Percy C. Eggleston, New London; Mrs. J. R. Danforth, New London; Mrs. Sidney H. Miner, New London; Miss Caroline T. Gilman, Norwich; Miss Marion B. Chollar, Danielson; Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn, Norwich; Mrs. Allan Latham, Nor-

JONES AND MACFARLANE TIED AT 291 FOR NATIONAL OPEN GOLF HONORS

Worcester, Mass., June 4—North and south, tall and short, thin and stocky, middle age and youth, will meet on the links of the Worcester County club tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock to decide who shall be open champion of the United States.

William MacFarlane, veteran pro-fessional from Tuckahoe, N. Y., and Bobby Jones, young in years, but old in competition, will be foes. For today they had cut scored to rivals at the end of the alloted 72 holes—a battle fought in wilting heat for the greater part of the time.

The struggle was sensational, and the tired crowd flocked to the home stretch as each noted exponent of the game came into view. First it was Johnny Farrell, Quaker Ridge professional, who was expected to lead at the end of the day. Then came the news that the indomitable Walter Hagen, conqueror of hundreds on the links, was moving toward the home-ward stretch with deadly accuracy and would require only par figures to win.

With the Hagen threat the topic of discussion among the thousands gathered to witness the play, Jones came to the last hole playing steadily and assured of a score to equal that of Farrell. Drive, chip, and two putts took him down—a 291.

But MacFarlane, who has led them all the previous day, played desperately. He needed a four at the last and he obtained with some nerve-racking play that made the throng gasp. His second lay forty feet from the pin on the second terrace of the green, fully two feet higher than the hole. Two strokes would equal Jones, one would bring him untold fame.

MacFarlane viewed the terrain, he measured the distance, he aimed. It was one of golf's greatest moments. Aim and financial gain depended upon that shot. After two minutes he was ready, bent over, careful, and he pointed direct for the back of the cup. Slowly the ball set forth upon its journey, went down upon the first termce, and even more slowly progressed to the edge of the green and rolled a stop a foot from the cup.

The rest was easy, or should have been. But with the chances for immediate victory gone, the die must be made. Again the bespectacled professional measured with a practiced eye. About to stroke he hesitated and called to his caddy. The putter went into the bag and the putting cleak replaced it. The pit was not perfect. Then again he returned to the ball, tapped it over so easily, and trickled to the cup and out of sight as the crowds burst into a roar.

From Jones, remarkable golf was expected; for MacFarlane to come to the fore was most unexpected. Cyril Walker of Englewood, N. J., the champion, had been left in the rough, MacDonald Smith, a great favorite, broke under the test. Leo Diegel, after pushing his way into the foreground on the first day, had stumbled in his last nine holes of a finish that had seldom been equalled any sport.

Jones, with 77 and 70 on Wednesday, found himself six strokes behind Diegel and MacFarlane as today's play started. He made a desperate effort to retrieve the ground and shattered par in the morning with a 70. But when MacFarlane returned it was to learn that his 72 had kept Jones four strokes behind with only one round to be played.

If the Athenian had had his putting game working as well in the afternoon as in the morning, he would now hold two titles. There was no necessity for Jones going over 70 if his final round, to well was he hitting his tee and second shots.

He also was deadly on shot approaches from rough and traps, but threw away strokes on the green. The amateur champion sent forth a beautiful tee shot to start the deciding round but overshoot the green on his second, chipping from the rough he ran over the cup about six feet and was shot with the putt that would have given him par.

Jones went one stroke over par on four other holes but partly offset the loss by scoring birdies on the third and 17th.

During the round he failed to score higher than a five. His cards follow:

Morning

Out—454, 443, 434—35.
In—284, 244, 545—35—70.

Afternoon

Out—554, 453, 435—38.
In—254, 255, 444—36—74—144.

If history repeats itself, the stocky Georgian again will be the open champion, for two weeks ago, he defeated Bob Cruickshank in the play off at Inwood by two strokes. In that year they were tied at 296. In the 18 hole play-off Jones scored 76 to Cruickshank's 78.

MacFarlane, starting slowly in the afternoon, played par golf on the first two holes but on the third his putter began to give him trouble and he took five. He was one over par on the fourth, his tee shot landing in a sand trap behind the green but a fine mid-iron, following a long drive, gave him a par on the next. His tee shot on the short sixth carried him into the trap guarding the green and although he came out brilliantly he was forced to take over one par. He finished the round with two fours missing an easy putt on the ninth for a total of 39.

But turning for the homeward journey he shot a birdie two on the tenth, his first birdie of the afternoon. The tee shot carried him within eight feet of the pin and this time his putter did not fail him. After this, however, he cracked, taking fives on the next two holes, both par fours, and he was one over par on the 13, a short hole. At this stage the word was passed through the gallery and to MacFarlane that he needed three fours to beat Jones' score and par golf to tie.

Right away he seemed to falter, taking a five on the sixteenth when his approach found a sand trap but he made up for this mistake with a long two shot and a fine approach on the long 17th, getting a birdie. Then came the sensational finish, with a mighty putt that gave him a tie.

MacFarlane's cards were:

Morning:

Out .....  465  553  425—39
In .....  345  335  548—32—72

Afternoon:

Out .....  455  454  444—39
In .....  355  456  544—38—73

The final standing of the leading players in the National Open Golf tournament follows:

Willie MacFarlane, Tuckahoe, N. Y., 71-150—291; Robert T. Jones, Jr., Atlanta, Ga., 147-144—291; Johnny Farrell, Mamaroneck, N. Y., 146-147—292; Francis Ouimet, Auburndale, Mass., 143-149—292; Gene Sarazen, Jamaica, L. I., 144-149—293; Walter Hagen, Pasadena, Florida, 143-145—288; Mike Brady, Mamaroneck, N. ## TWILIGHT LEAGUE SCHEDULE CALLS FOR 56 GAMES

The schedule of the Norwich Twilight league calls for 56 games, the first game to be played on next Tuesday evening and the final game on Friday evening, Sept. 11th. There will be four games a week played on the first four days of each week with the exception of the first week and Labor Day week, when the games will be played Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. On the schedule the Eastern Connecticut Power team takes the place of the Hardigs, who have dropped out of the league. The reason given by the Hardigs for their withdrawal is that "there is not enough money in it for them." This reason was given after they claimed at a recent meeting of the league when they asked that certain players be barred because they were professionals, claiming that the Hardigs had the only "amateur" team in Norwich. An amateur team is one that plays simply for the sport and not for money.

The schedule is as follows:

June 9—Naugets vs. East Ends.
June 10—Hallville vs. E. C. P.
June 11—Centrals vs. Palace.

WINDHAM HIGH BEATS CLERKS ON ERRORS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, June 4—Profiting at the expense of a fielding lapse by the opposing twirler in the ninth inning, Windham High defeated the Clerks 3 to 2 in an interesting game played at Recreation Park this afternoon. Lefty Smith in the box for the losers pitched superb ball and should have been returned the winner but for poor support in the critical stages, his associates handing the schoolboys the two runs scored previous to the fatal ninth.

The Clerks found Haggerty for ten clouts but for the most part these safeties were wasted, the schoolboy pitcher holding the upper hand with men on bases with the exception of the seventh when the Clerks tallied their two runs.

Not an earned run was made off Smith who limited the Crimson and Blue to three hits. The former Baltimore Oriole and Athletic pitcher was in great shape and was slipping them over as in the old days The score:

MISS BISHOP—MRS. REYCROFT TO PLAY FOR CONN. TITLE

Waterbury, Conn., June 4—(A. P.)—Mrs. C. H. Porter of New Haven, 1924, champion of Connecticut women's golf association was today eliminated from further competition in this year's tourney when she lost to Miss Georgianna Bishop of Brooklawn 4 to 2 in the feature match in this semi-final round of the eighth annual tournament being conducted by the association. Mrs. Charles J. Downey, Springfield's representative for honors lost to Mrs. H. G. Reycroft of Brooklawn 4 and 2 leaving the championship to be decided tomorrow between the two star entries from the Bridgeport course.

Mrs. Reycroft and Miss Bishop turned in an unusual brilliant game of golf and as both are on equal footing at their home course, the contenders in the tourney were at a loss tonight in picking the winner.

Miss Bishop, however has turned in remarkable cards each day in the tourney and it would not be surprising to find her crowned champion tomorrow. Mrs. Downey was one of the big favorites for the championship with her playing of the first two days but the drawings favored the Springfield entry with Mrs. Reycroft, who is one of the state's best women golfers.

The two Brooklawn entries who meet tomorrow for the championship will start their final match at 9:30 o'clock. A large gallery of the fans are expected to follow the doings of the players.

REDS BREAK LOSING STREAK TRIMMING BRAVES

Cincinnati, June 4—Cincinnati broke its losing streak by defeating Boston in an extra inning game by the score of 7 to 6. The Reds pounded Barnes and Marquard for 18 hits. Bancroft, regular shortstop for Boston, broke his left thumb in the first inning and had to retire. He will be out of the game for at least two weeks the physician says. Score:

HORNSBY HITS TWO HOMERS BUT CARDS LOSE TO GIANTS

St. Louis, June 4—Manager Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals went into a tie with Bob Meusel of the New York Yankees for major league home run honors by poling his 14th and 15th circuit clouts of the season but the Cardinals lost to the Giants 11 to 10 in a free hitting game.

It was the first defeat of the locals since, Hornsby assumed directorship last Sunday.

Third baseman Lindstrom of the Giants received an injury to his hand from a pitching ball and shortstop Cooney of the Cardinals injured his finger catching a fly. Both may be out of the game several days. Score:

HARVARD CREWS GIVEN HARDEST WORKOUT

Red Top, Conn., June 4—The Harvard crews here in training for the regatta with Yale, tonight were given the hardest workout since their arrival. Coach Stevens took the two varsity boats downstream below the Navy yard and with no rest rowed them back to the quarters. On the last half mile the crews were even and Coach Stevens ordered the stroke raised and raced the boats to the landing. The second crew led for the first minute but the varsity, rowing 36 against the junior's 38 soon passed the latter and at the end were leading by half a length. No time was given out. Coaches Haines and Spuhn gave their crews a six mile row downstream. The so-called Walters' crew was organized today with three coaches, the doctor, the proctor, the freshman manager and three waiters in the boat.

BULKELEY CLASHES WITH HARTFORD HIGH TODAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, June 4—The impressive record hung up by Hartford High during the past season shows that this team which is to appear opposite Bulkeley High on this (Friday) afternoon at Morgan Park cannot be considered too lightly for the state championship. After a rather uncertain start the climax of the Capitol City aggregation in its winning habits came with the brilliant victories over the nine from New Haven Hillhouse by a score of 5 to 3 and a more overwhelming victory at the expense of New Britain High and on the latter's home grounds.

These performances convince those who have been following the work of the Bulkeley nine closely this year that the game Friday will be one of the best fought in a long time.

PROFS AND WORCESTER HAVE FIERCE BATTING BEE

Worcester, June 4—(A. P.)—New Haven defeated Worcester in a slugging game 16 to 15. Moore had a great day at bat with six hits in six times at bat. A running catch by Hayes was the fielding feature.

Speedboys After Games.

The Jewett City Speedboys are looking for games for Saturdays only for the remainder of the season. They would like to play the Roosedales again as last Sunday the Roosedales defeated them. This challenge includes all other teams averaging 16 years. Write to Frank Casper, Box 124, Jewett City.

BULKELEY SHUTS OUT MANCHESTER, 4 TO 0

(Special to The Bulletin.)

South Manchester, June 4—Bulkeley played shut out ball today to win, 4 to 0, behind Parish's skillful pitching. It has been no less ago that the Orange and Black players have played a shut out ball game that the exact date has been forgotten. Although off his own territory, Bulkeley played fine baseball with the locals never having a chance to even break into the scoring column. Some fancy piece of work in the center garden by South Manchester leaders deserved odd hopes rolled dead in the center garden over before this year, but Bulkeley was just a shade better and that shade represented five big round runs.

Not one South Manchester player reached third during the afternoon, although in the hitting line the visitors were but one behind the Bulkeley total. But while Bulkeley bunched its hits to advantage, the locals connected in most cases with two outs. Once Daniels' valuable arm which was patrolling right field nipped a South Manchester rally in the bud. Lupier and Mistretta got singles, but Daniels cut down Lupier at third on Mistretta's single and another opportunity for the locals to break into the scoring line went to the winds.

Both Boyce and Parisi twirled a good game, but the latter easily had the shade on his rival. But the Bulkeley twirler received good defensive support as well as fine offensive help from his team mates.

The South Manchester batters had a tendency to pop the ball in almost every instance of this kind Bulkeley fielders were found camping under the balls. All of the put outs made by the outfield were good catches in most every instance. Mantelli for South Manchester in center field was a busy individual with four put outs, two of his catches robbing Bulkeley batters of extra base hits. His catch off Mansfield's bat in the seventh robbed the Bulkeley first sacker of at least a triple. Mantelli caught the ball over his right shoulder in deep right center. Bulkeley scored two runs in the first frame on an error, Booth's walk and singles by Daniels and Gaetanne. These runs proved to be sufficient to win the ball game, but a run trickled over in the sixth and two more came over the plate in the eighth inning to bring Bulkeley's total number to five. Bulkeley with the exception of the first run earned the remainder of the tallies and gave a good account of themselves at the bat when hits were needed to bring in runs. Score:

REUTHER HOLDS YANKEES AND SENATORS WIN

New York, June 4—Reuther held the Yankees to eight hits while the Senators took the final game of the series, 8 to 2. Joe Judge, Washington first baseman, hit two home runs for a total of seven this season. Meusel's triple with the bases loaded in the eighth accounted for all the New York runs. Score:

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Members of the Service Battery, 192d Field Artillery, may begin ensemble practice in starting the 15-day Long Trail within a few days. Captain F. O. Armington of the battery has general orders pertaining to the movement of the company in connection with the annual encampment of 15 days to be held at Tobyhanna, Pa.

This year the Service Battery is to travel in a fleet of motor trucks. They will leave here July 5, and on the first day's journey are scheduled to reach the state fairgrounds at Danbury, where they will remain for a night. The route to be followed to Danbury is about 103 miles. The second day of the journey, also occupying a day will be from Danbury to Parsipanny, N. Y., if you know where that is, with its suggestion of beef stew for dinner with plenty of parsnips mixed in. Approximately 100 miles will be covered on the second day. The final lap of the journey will be an 80 mile jaunt from Parsipanny to Tobyhanna.

Now much of the "hurry up" expect in the general direction of the encampment at Tobyhanna the Service Battery personnel concentrating on contemplating the experience with overland journey of three days will provide. This will be made under conditions approximating the movement of troops during war time. It will be on the order of moving up toward the front, where the big doings are going on. It will give the men practical experience with getting meals along the way, making camp for the night and break camp in the morning, all under strict military discipline.

Orders specify that one cargo truck completely equipped be delivered to the Service Battery and also an ambulance ready for field service. These vehicles will be in addition to the regular fleet of trucks kept at the state armory here.

Establishing that the thing can be done repeatedly, the weather man ran the mercury up to an even 100 degrees again in Danielson, Thursday afternoon. For the fourth consecutive day the intensive heat wave parboiled humanity. Naturally, there was nothing to do but endure it—and talk about it, which most everyone did, slighting, insofar as might be possible, duties pressing and otherwise. One heard various reports of persons being overcome with the heat, but no case of serious nature in this immediate vicinity. Late Thursday afternoon and during the evening, hundreds sought relief through motoring.

Like Wednesday, the day wore away without bringing a cooling thunderstorm, though late in the afternoon a change of the wind into the Northwest brought vagrant breezes that had a tendency to ease off the extreme heat prevailing since early morning.

On a flag-draped caisson drawn by four black horses, the body of Joseph Arthur Messier was carried from the home of his parents at Warren, R. I., Wednesday to St. John's church in that place, the military escort being made up of members of Warren post of the American legion.

Rev. Elphige Caron was celebrant of the solemn requiem high mass. Rev. Joseph Forcier deacon and Rev. Omer Paquin, of Pawtucket, sub-deacon. Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S. of Danielson and Rev. Fr. Lambret of Pawtucket were in the sanctuary. Special music was sung during the mass.

At the grave in Warren cemetery a squad from Warren post fired a volley and a bugler sounded Taps. Beautiful flowers surrounded the flag-draped casket. A large number of his townspeople paid tribute to Mr. Messier, veteran of the World War, who was employed at a fruit store in Danielson when he became ill, about a fortnight ago and died later at the hospital in Putnam, after undergoing a serious surgical operation.

Of special interest in connection with the Textile Products exhibit at the state armory, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week is the fact that the State Trade school of Putnam is to have an exhibit. Through the courtesy of the Jewett City Textile Novalty company the Trade School exhibit will occupy booth No. 31. The school will feature its textile activities and have an opportunity to interest many in an institution the state has provided at great expense for the benefit of all of eastern Connecticut.

This (Friday) afternoon when the Civic federation meets at the Health station in the town hall building matters of real importance will be up for consideration. Following this meeting there will be a meeting of the Good Samatarians society.

It is not unlikely that some of the savings institutions here will pass up the option of paying quarterly dividends on deposits, as may be done under a law just passed by the legislature.

An item of $6,000 is included in a general appropriations bill passed by the legislature, this money for repairs and improvements to the Danielson state armory.

Harold Holehouse is confined to his home by illness. Mr. Holehouse is with the Kennedy corporation.

A Well Child conference is to be held at the town hall building this (Friday) afternoon. A similar conference was held at Wauregan Wednesday.

In Alumni circles it is beginning to be whispered around that the Alumni baseball team expects to defeat the Killingly High school team in the annual Commencement week game.

Charles S. Hyde of Brooklyn again has been annointed a jury commissioner for Windham county, an office he has filled for many years.

Favorite swimming pools in this vicinity drew attendance, Thursday, as soon as the boys could hop over after school.

Recent visitors with H. S. Mowry of Dayville were Judge George Holt and son, Hamilton Holt, of Woodstock, and Frank W. Simmons of New York.

Arthur A. Hurdmen of Worcester was a visitor with friends in Danielson Thursday.

The State Trade school of Putnam is to have an exhibit at the state armory here next week when the Textile Products exhibit of the Eastern Connecticut Mills Association is held.

To The Bulletin that the northbound boat train from New London to Worcester would be withdrawn and that the time of the southbound boat train would be advanced two hours was the subject of much discussion among the business men of the city. The statement was made by R. M. Smith, of New London, division superintendent, will mitigate to some degree the consternation over the first announcement. According to Mr. Smith, the train will be continued for the carrying of mail, and express on its present time schedule and will not cause the inconvenience to business men and milk producers that was at first feared.

This schedule provides for the arrival of the morning train at 6:25. The first passenger train from New London will reach here at 9 o'clock. The time of the southbound boat train will be changed as first given out, making [illegible] hours earlier than at present.

[illegible] the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Stark, of Putnam, whose death was caused instantly by an automobile accident, was brought here Thursday. The boy had been visiting his grandmother, Mrs. Phoebe Barber, and while playing in the road was struck by a car driven by James J. Murphy, of Bozrah. He was taken to the Backus hospital where it was found that both legs were broken and his skull fractured. He died next day. His parents live in the Putnam Heights section.

The checker team of Putnam Checker club was defeated by the team of the Woonsocket club in a team match played at the state armory in Putnam, the score being nine games to eight, with nine draws. The match hinged on the result of one game, which was prolonged long after the others were completed. In this, William P. Warren, captain of the Putnam team, and Judge J. J. Mee, of Woonsocket, were opposed.

Preceding the match there was a supper at the Arnold grill for the members of the Putnam club and their Woonsocket guests.

Arthur Andrews, employed at Buffalo, N. Y., is visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Andrews, on Farrow street, for a short time. He is a graduate of Trinity college.

State Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald and family, of Hartford, have been visiting Mr. Macdonald's parents, Postmaster and Mrs. Archibald Macdonald, of George street.

Frederick A. Morrell, Jr., of New York, has been the guest of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. F. A. Morrell.

Mr. and Mrs. George Newell and daughter, Barbara, have been the guest of Mrs. Newell's mother, Mrs. Mary Burt.

Charles Bugbee, of Brooklyn, N. Y., formerly of Woodstock, is spending a few weeks with his sister, Mrs. Mary B. Bishop, of Grove street.

Walter H. Gilpatric, of White Plains, N. Y., and Raymond Gilpatric, of New Britain, spent Thursday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Gilpatric.

The members of the staff of the Day Kimball hospital held their June meeting at the hospital where a supper was served them by the superintendent, Miss Bloxham. Those who attended were Drs. Tanner, Burroughs and Judson of Danielson; Dr. Paine, of Thompson; Dr. Pike, of Woodstock, and Drs. Murphy, Perry and Phillips, of Putnam.

Gilbert F. Perry, son of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Perry, has a position with the Massachusetts Highway commission and is located at Brookfield, Mass.

The appointment of C. M. Elliott to succeed the late G. A. Hawkins as a member of the board of water commissioners will be universally approved. Mr. Elliott is a long-time resident and business man of Putnam, who in his quiet and efficient way has discharged his duties as a good citizen, possessing a fund of practical knowledge and good judgment. He will be a valuable member of that very important department of the city. Mayor Chapdelaine has again given evidence of his administrative ability.

"Nothing But the Truth," a three-act comedy made famous by Willie Collier, is to be given by the members of the class of 1926 of Woodstock academy in the Academy hall.

Wappaquasset Tribe, No. 63, and Iroquois Council, No. 39, plan to hold a strawberry shortcake supper in Red Men's hall. The following committee has been appointed to take charge: F. William Faber, Peter A. Gardner, George E. Perry, Mrs. Ola Litchfield, Mrs. Mabel Franklin and Mrs. Isabel Spatcher.

The hard wind and rain storm of a few days ago put many telephones out of commission in this vicinity. Manager Lyon reports that workmen are now repairing the 300 in Putnam, 500 in Danielson and 55 in Moosup that had been disabled.

Fred Platt, of this city, who is a patient at St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, is reported as dangerously to suggest that there will no longer be trains running. Well, it may not be as bad as that.

Gurdon E. Withey and son, Howard Withey, were at Thompson Thursday afternoon attending the funeral of Mrs. Henry Withey.

A number of Danielson members of the Putnam Country club were at Worcester Wednesday to watch the playing of C. L. Booth, professional at the club, in the national open championship.

Milkmen in this vicinity who are shippers to Boston were appeased Thursday when they read in The Bulletin that an early train to carry milk, mail and express will be run.

In numbers of cases men employed at strenuous outdoor tasks were obliged to lay off Thursday afternoon on account of the heat.

Miss Mildred Bubba, who has been in the south during the winter and more recently at New Bedford, is ill here.

Icemen are having their big week of the season; the demand for their service probably being as great as it is likely to be through the summer.

Motorists will tell you, in many instances, that the extreme hot weather has played havoc with tires, especially old ones.

The Quinebaug mill closed Thursday noon for the remainder of the week, allowing operatives a respite from working in such temperatures as the weather.

The high temperatures of the week appear to be responsible for the taste and odor of the city water, about which many are complaining.

ill. An operation was performed last week for appendicitis and complications have developed.

The legislative train which has been leaving Putnam at 8:27 a. m. for Hartford during the session at Hartford has been discontinued, Wednesday being the last day it was run.

At the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce at the Putnam Inn the membership campaign committee reported the names of 60 applicants. All were approved and voted in as members.

This makes a total of 139 names that have been added to the roster in the past three weeks. There are still a number of citizens who do not belong to the Chamber and in order to give everyone an opportunity to join the present drive will continue for another two weeks, the final reports to be made at the next meeting of the board of directors, Monday, June 15.

President Hezekiah Childress reported that Memorial day exercises had been carried out as planned, that everyone who was called on to co-operate had cheerfully complied and that if there had been longer time it would have been possible to have held public exercises. He announced that the committee appointed a week ago on factory sites, would be continued as a committee on new industries. It consists of C. A. Boyce, A. Newton Vaughn, Alex Gilman and F. E. Metcalf. A committee to prepare an advertising folder setting forth the advantages of Putnam as a factory site and a desirable place in which to live was named as follows: George L. Padgett, E. C. Rogers, Whitman Danielson and F. L. Davis.

There was considerable discussion of plans for the coming year, looking to the further upbuilding of the Chamber of Commerce and how it can be utilized best in promoting the interests of the city and the community of which it is the business center. Of the big membership increase, 139 to date, 90 of the names were secured through the personal solicitation of Walter N. King.

NO. GROSVENORDALE MAN SUICIDE AT WEBSTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, June 4—August Deslauriers, 28, of North Grosvenordale, committed suicide by hanging in his cell at the city prison at Webster last night. He is a son of Peter Deslauriers, of North Grosvenordale, and the body was taken there today for burial. No cause for the act is known other than that he may have been despondent because of his arrest.

NEPHEW SUES ESTATE OF NAZAIRE PELOQUIN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, June 4.—Suit to recover $11,500 from the estate of the late Nazaire Peloquin, has been brought by his nephew, Adelard Miour, of this city. The action reached superior court on an appeal from probate court on the disallowance of a claim for $10,000 filed by Miour with the administrator, David Flagg.

The plaintiff sets the claim that his uncle promised to pay him as much as he could save, over a contractor's price in building the Victory theatre building, on Main street, and remodeling and improving the White Front building on Pomfret street, both owned at the time by Mr. Peloquin. Miour alleges that he saved $10,000 on the two buildings and that the money was never paid him. There is a further claim for $4,500 on promises alleged to have been made for advice given by Miour to his uncle and other matters of detail.

Miour is represented by Samuel B. Harvey, of Willimantic, and the estate by J. F. Carpenter and Charles L. Torrey, of Putnam.

The estate has reached the stage where it is ready for distribution. The amount to be apportioned to the heirs is in excess of $80,000.

WAS ORIGINATOR OF BEST VARIETIES OF GRAPEFRUIT

Deland, Fla., June 4—Lue Gim Gong, 79, Chinese American citrus expert and credited with being the originator of two of the best known varieties of grapefruit and oranges in Florida and California, died last night. He came to this country at the age of 12 and was adopted and educated by an American woman, whose winter home he inherite here at her death.

Gim Gong had lived in seclusion on his plantation here for fifteen years and had made many discoveries and had perfected the growing of several fruits and vegetables. He was presented with a gold medal by the United States government in recognition of his work with oranges. It is said he has saved the country millions of dollars by his perfection of an orange tree on which fruit would remain until far beyond maturity.

Among the perfections that he has effected are the cherry currant, perfume grapefruit, early sweet apple of Massachusetts, peach which grows under glass and bears in November, a firm variety of tomatoes and the three leaf orange which bears as far north as Connecticut.

WESTERLY

The annual banquet, the first for the Westerly Chamber of Commerce, will probably be held in Westerly this year at the Colonial club. For years past the Westerly Board of Trade held its annual banquet at the Ocean House, Watch Hill, where it was customary to have some well known speaker address the members, also one or more entertainers. The banquet affairs are in the hands of the reception committee, of which Arthur M. Cottrell is chairman. An invitation was sent to the newly formed Pawcatuck Board of Trade on the West Side and Thursday an acceptance was received from that Connecticut civic and improvement organization. The date of the joint banquet will probably be set for some time in June.

The crosswalk on Broad street at the head of Main street again become conspicuous Thursday morning after a lapse of several months, when the white lines outlining its zone of safety were repainted on the surface of the highway under the superintendence of the police department and by direction of the police committee of the town council. Previous to its removal to the middle of the Washington Trust building, it had been at the head of Main street "until the memory of many raneth not to the contrary"—in fact when Dr. John Champlin appeared at the June session of the Westerly town council and spoke in favor of the petition signed by Main street merchants, he said "they had waited fifty years for the change until someone should grow up and tell them where to walk safely," which removed it to the middle of the block. Apparently it is now back in its former place for another fifty or more years.

Daniel J. Sully, the ope time Cotton King, has spent several days at his Watch Hill cottage Kenneth Ridge where he had come from Hollywood, Cal., to get in readiness the cottage occupied last year by Mrs. Frank A. Sayles of Pawtucket. He is about to leave the Hill, where at one time he was its most celebrated resident, and says that he plans to pass the summer in New York.

C. Palmer Chapman of Avondale, master of the Rhode Island State Grange, has now on his Avondale farm five head of Ayrshire cattle purchased from the well known strain of G. L. Church of Albion, R. I. Mr. Chapman now has one of the best herds in Westerly and his dairy is under both federal and state supervision.

Many relatives and friends attended the funeral Thursday afternoon, of John Bennett who died suddenly from heart failure Monday night after he had returned home from the annual Pawcatuck Fire district meeting. At his late home, 141 West Broad street, the funeral services were conducted by Rev. Byron U. Hatfield, pastor of the First Baptist church of Westerly, assisted by Rev. J. G. Osborne, pastor of the Baptist church in Mystic. The bearers were William E. Livingstone, Charles E. Andrews, James H. Kenyon and Louis R. Day, shopmates of Mr. Bennett. Burial was in Elm Grove cemetery, Mystic.

Morris Barkin of Dorchester, Mass., and Israel Rosenberg of Boston, arrested in Bradford by Policeman G. H. Champlin, appeared in a special session of the Third district court on Wednesday evening, before Acting Judge M. Walter Flynn, Jr., on the charge that they did hawk and peddle oil cloth without first having secured a permit from Rhode Island authorities. On their pleas of guilty they were fined $10 and costs each, amounting to $14.50.

Workmen in the employ of the Westerly Highway department have nearly completed their work on Ocean View road, near the junction with the Shore road, where there remains a short gap which the appropriation was not sufficiently large to complete, and which will be merely smoothed off. Patching work will occupy the attention of the workmen about town and the Wells street approach to the new Westerly hospital will also be made fairly smooth and passable, that entrance to and exit from the grounds be reasonably good.

Just when the Westerly hospital and nurses' home will be opened is problematical. There is still considerable work to be done before patients will be received. The contract has just been let to John Bristow of Narragansett Pier to do the necessary grading around the building. This will necessitate the removal of many rocks, establishing lines and following the plan as outlined by Landscape Architect Arthur A. Shurtleff of Boston, who several days ago was in Westerly to lay out the work.

Just how long the grading will take is not known. Furthermore, before the hospital is opened the road through Wells street to the building will have to be smoothed so that the patients may be carried over it with a degree of comfort, which is not possible at present. It is expected that the highway commission will take up this matter soon. An official request has already been directed to that body by the hospital board asking them to act as promptly as possible that the opening of the hospital may not be delayed.

Mrs. Buel was the next speaker and referred to records she had when the late Mrs. Sarah Thompson Kinsley was state regent; of the growth and work accomplished and the noble cause the society represents. Mrs. Latimer, of Groton, said her chapter was organized three months after this one and at the present time the membership is almost the same. She has with some assistance copied all the tombstone inscriptions in Starr cemetery. Mrs. Crandall, representing New London chapter, offered congratulations and then presented Mrs. Gray a large bouquet of beautiful red roses from her chapter. Mrs. Gray accepted them graciously. The closing number was a well executed piano solo by Mrs. Wilbur. During the business session Mrs. Charles Palmer presented the chapter a Connecticut Gazette published in New London in 1815. She read some of the advertisements, amusing to the people of today. Chicken salad, sandwiches, ice cream and cake were served by Miss Carl Ostler and assistants.

The chapter was organized June 8, 1923, with 18 charter members, five of whom are living: Mrs. Edith N. Morgan, Mrs. Jessie Simmons, Mrs. Ellen Mayer, Mrs. Ella R. G. Wheeler and Mrs. Aletta T. Holmes; the last two were present at the meeting.

RUSTICUS AND CITICUS.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

"The trouble with you farmers," began Citicus, when I broke in and interrupted him.

"Oh, dry up!" I said, vulgarly but firmly; "You and your trouble with us farmers." Don't ye s'pose I can see a hole in a millstone as well as you, and recognize the difference between a hawk and a handsaw when the wind is northerly? For every single flaw in us that you can pick out and stick your irritating finger into, I'd guarantee to find two bigger and deeper cracks,—if exposing 'em would do any real good. What d'ye expect of us, anyway? Have we all got to be extra prime, No. One, Class A saints of goodness and Solomons of wisdom to suit you? Besides, people who live in glass houses shouldn't begin any stone throwing campaign."

Citicus wasn't used to this kind of talk-back and actually kept off the critical grass for ten minutes. Even yet, when he gets near the sodded margin and starts to step on it he does so very gingerly, and with a kind of "by-your-leave" air, as if he wasn't quite sure how his invasions would be taken.

Like most half-spoiled children, Citicus knows perfectly well just how far he can wisely go. And he certainly can be very winning and propitiatory in his little ways when he chooses to be. Honestly, I like him; like him so much that a dozen times since I snubbed him I've been sorry for my own rudeness. In fact, I'm growing a little inclined to think I ought to have let him explain at length and map out in black and white the particular pecadillo he must have had in mind.

He doesn't really want to carry round a dirty face, does he?

The more I think of it the more repentant I grow over my abruptness, not to say discourtesy and ingratitude. Burns once intimated his belief that it would be a good thing, all around, if some "gittie" could give us the power "To see oursels as ithers tee us." "It wad frae mony a blunder free us," he explained.

Don't we want to be freed from blundering?

Why, then, should criticism irritate us? Why shouldn't we take it as we take the doctor's diagnosis, as a statement of what ails us and a necessary preliminary to the discovery and application of a remedy?

I think one reason for this irritation at Citicus's disparagement of us is due to the air of superiority he carries when setting it forth. I came near writing that as the air of superiority he "assumes," but checked my sometimes over-hasty typewriter just in time. It isn't an "assumed" air, but an entirely natural and habitual one. James Russell Lowell once wrote a trenchant essay on what he entitled, "A certain condescension in foreigners." He found particularly provoking the somewhat insolent patronage with which European visitors were apt to take everything American. The attitude of Citicus and his tribe towards people and things rural is of a similar sort. It is, or seems to be, that of the well known "tired business man," temporarily relieved from the burden of things of real importance, watching with faintly amused tolerance the behavior of monkeys in a cage at the menagerie.

It isn't so much what Citicus says as the way he says it which ruffles our fur.

Like many others, we're perfectly willing to say right out loud that we're "poor miserable sinners," provided it is in church and on a Sunday.

But it makes us mad to have some one else tell us we are, on a week day.

It would seem, to a fellow actually wanting to know the truth and seeking it by scientifically inductive reasoning, as if the real important question was not who says we are "poor, miserable sinners," nor how and when he says it, but whether we are that sort or not.

If we're not, then we're quite as big liars as Citicus when he says it. If we are, he simply corroborates our own admissions. Nothing for us to get huffy about in either case, is there?

"Faithful are the wounds of a friend, but the kisses of an enemy are deceitful," said wise old Solomon.

It hurts our self-conceit to have our errors or our misbehaviors pointed out to us. And,—speaking now as a faithful friend,—I sometimes think that self-conceit is every whit as much a part of the composition of country as of city people.

But it is only when we are brought to see the error of our ways that there is any hope of our reforming them. Reformation is something which must come from within; it can't be enforced from without. We've got to fit the soil of our own souls for it and plant the seed and cultivate the crop if we expect to reap any worth-while harvest;—and we've got to do all those things ourselves.

But perhaps an onlooker may, occasionally, give even the best-intentioned of us a kindly "steer" in the direction of greater efficiency in our work for self-improvement.

Will you permit an old farmer, who was born on the farm he now holds and who returned to it, after 30 years' experience of city life and work, for the sake of his own body and mind and soul,—will you permit old John Farmer to suggest,—not as an outsider and critic, but as an insider and a faithful friend,—one fault which seems to be specially common among farmers?

I mean Dogmatism.

Just what is Dogmatism?

Well, Webster defines it as "arrogance or positiveness in opinion." We'll take his word for it, if you please.

Does it seem to you, at first sight, a rather trivial fault? I'll agree with you that it is not, in itself, a crime; not even one of the major sins. I am even willing to admit that there may be found extenuations for it and explanations for the addiction to it of isolated, lonely-living and usually self-educated farmers.

Nevertheless it is a fault and it is interlinked, not to say interwoven, with other faults yet more heinous.

e Dogmatism in religion is the Siamese twin of bigotry and the parent of all the inquisitions and persecutions and martyrdoms whose abominable cruelties fester across the pages of history.

Dogmatism in politics is the foster-father of partisanship and mob-tyranny and nepotism and "graft" and unfair favoritism and unjust discrimination and eventual oppression leading to revolt and revolution.

Dogmatism in farming is just simple, plain, unvarnished damphoolishness.

"Arrogance or positiveness in opinion." There's all the differences between "knowledge" and "opinion" that there is between a bird in the hand and one in the bush.

If you'll kindly apply your mind to the task, you'll precious soon discover that, while we all have opinions by the bushel about pretty nearly everything under—or ever and beyond—the sun, we actually "know" exceeding little. I gravely doubt if a two-handed man's fingers would all be needed to count up the things he really knows, even though it would take a mighty shaggy bear's fur to afford hairs enough to tally his opinions.

We know that two, and two make four; that the whole is greater than a part; that fire is hot and ice is cold to our feel, and a very few other things like that. Beyond them we infer and guess and have opinions.

Our knowledge is like the stem of the pasture pine, firmly tied by clinching roots to the everlasting rocks below: our opinions are like its uncountable needles quivering and shivering in every vagrant breeze. You can fasten your horse to the tree trunk with reasonable security, but who would think of hitching him to one of that same pine's fragile needles?

We are so constituted that we simply must hold numerous opinions about subjects concerning which, in the very nature of things, we are unable to attain absolute knowledge. Not only must we hold such opinions, we must, in the absence of knowledge, act upon them. Otherwise, the world would come to a stand-still. Half of all our farming is done "by guess and by gosh," as the older men phrase it. We are such pitifully limited creatures, with such a tiny store of proved knowledge and surrounded with such an infinity of mystery, that we have to do the best we can and use as efficiently as we may the poorly tempered tools which are all we can put our hands on.

But that doesn't give us any authority to assert "arrogantly and positively" that what we think is so actually and necessarily is so, or to demand that others take our say-so, even when it is our very best think-so, as infallible truth. It doesn't even give us authority to denounce those who disagree with us as fools and nit-wits.

Our opinions and beliefs about farming and farm problems are just provisional formulae and rules-o'-thumb which we have to accept and follow, in lieu of anything certain, or till something certain has been proven. They are make-shifts which we use, lacking better instruments.

And yet I find it a very widespread habit among farmer-folks to dogmatize, i. e. hold with "arrogance and positiveness" their own self-formed opinions, not only about farming but about a good many other things. They are too often inclined to "lay down the law," as if each one was chief justice of the supreme court of the universe. They are "hide-bound" in their adherence to and promulgation of mere opinions which are at best purely fantative guesses at the truth, made from partial vision and individual experience.

I resent as keenly as any one can Citicus's air of condescending criticism.

But let's be fair to him—and to ourselves.

Is it, after all, one whit more unreasonable and irritating than the dogmatism into which we seem peculiarly liable to fall?

Wouldn't it show a finer humility, not to say a shrewdes common-sense, if we should dig the beam out of our own eye before ridiculing too sharply the mote in his?

THE FARMER.

WESTMINSTER

"In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thy hand, for thou knowest not which shall prosper, this or that or whether both alike shall be good."

"He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him." These texts were used for a talk, illustrated by Scripture parables and otherwise, on the topic, "Sowing and Reaping," at Westminster's Sunday morning worship.

As Memorial Day fell on Saturday and she would be at her home in Woodstock, Miss Elsa Johnson, teacher at Westminster Hill, with her pupils marched from the school Friday morning and decorated the graves of the Revolutionary soldiers with flowers, also inserted flags in the S. A. R. markers. They also left flowers on the grave of little Douglas Haviland, a schoolmate drowned in the Quinebaug about two years ago. The school then marched, singing patriotic songs, to Spicer private cemetery, nearby, to decorate a Revolutionary soldier's grave. This is an annual custom on Memorial Day.

Saturday the flags were again placed in the S. A. R. markers, the graves of two Civil war veterans were also decorated, both days by Mrs. Oscar Hubbard. A number of U. S. flags were displayed on private property and at the church.

A number from other places visited the cemetery and friends resident here. Among the number were Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Hartson of North Windham, Fillmore Sage, of Norwich, Miss Fannie Knickerbocker and sister, Mrs. Kerr, of Springdale, Conn., Mrs. Marion McKee of Providence, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Nichols and Miss Gertrude Nichols of Foster Center, R. I., Mrs. A. A. Downe and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Downe of Mount Hygeia, Foster, R. I.

Wednesday of last week word was received of the death of Mrs. Henry D. Lovett of Groton. The Lovetts were for many years residents of Westminster and members of the family are still occasional visitors. Mrs. Agnes Wood, cousin of Mr. Lovett, attended the funeral of his wife, held at the home in Groton, Friday.

Mrs. Edwin Edmond and son, Deacon Arthur Edmond, were Moosup guests of Mrs. A. Smith, sister of Mrs. Edmond.

The last regular teachers' meeting was held Monday.

The W. C. T. U. meeting for June was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. and Miss Hadley at South Canterbury. Subject, "Medical Temperance," and "Flowers." All attending were to bring flowers to be sent to sick and shut-ins.

Last Wednesday evening a May basket was hung for John Varley.

Mrs. Fannie Parker went home for the week end.

May 29th, twenty-two, led by Mrs. R. P. Taylor, held exercises in Raymond (Backus) cemetery, with singing, the Lord's prayer, speaking and decorating of graves.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dunn, Philip Lawson and his brother, Charles, were at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lawson for Memorial Day.

Friday a community May basket was hung for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lawson, after which the evening passed very enjoyably with story-telling, singing and dancing.

Rev. and Mrs. Davies are spending several days with friends at Storrs.

Earle MacLeod is at home to assist his parents for the summer.

GOSHEN

Miss Dorothy McCall has returned home after being graduated from Sargent's school, Boston.

The Community club held a meeting Wednesday evening, perfecting plans for the Fourth of July celebration to be given by the club on Goshen Hill, with the usual display of fireworks, etc. After the business meeting an amusing and interesting program was given, including readings, recitations and songs, "Allow Me to Move a Vote of Thanks," "The Deacon's Call," etc. A vote of the favorite month of the year was taken, June receiving the biggest, May coming second. Tommy's Essay on Conductors was read. There was a mock trial, the judge "reserving his decision two weeks; lemonade and ice cream were served.

The thermometer stood at 102 in the sun, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Case and daughter, Miss Grace Elizabeth Case, of Danbury, and Mrs. C. H. Dawley, of Colchester, were callers here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Randall were visitors in Andover, Sunday.

A very interesting Sunday school conference for Sunday school workers and leaders was held in Goshen church Thursday afternoon and evening, May 28th. The program began at 3 p. m. and was as follows: 3:00, devotional service, business; 3:30, round table discussions, (a) for pastors, leader, Mr. Webb; (b) for superintendents, leader, Mr. Bunyan; (c) for teachers, leader, Miss Day; 4:15, round table discussions, (a) workers with adults, Mr. Canney; (b) workers with youth, Miss Norton; (c) workers with beginners, Mrs. Robert Brown; 5:00 general conference, our Sunday school.

Rev. Leonard Case, Jr., supplied the pulpit of the Congregational church Sunday, preaching a sermon appropriate for the occasion. Mr. Case is a student at Yale Divinity school.

Mrs. Ella Bennett is in charge of the Goshen Public Library during the absence of Miss Dorothy McCall.

Mrs. Ella Bennett and Mrs. Ethel Bennett were callers in Willimantic, Monday.

Artificial "silk" made by dissolving wood pulp and cotton linters is now called "rayon."

Powder that is flashless as well as smokeless is now manufactured to make the location of artillery by an enemy more difficult.

Two hundred tons of kanred, a variety of wheat developed in Kansas from a Crimean strain, has been shipped to the Argentine republic for seed.

The United States government is now raising big horn mountain sheep to stock suitable areas throughout the country with this fine big game animal.

The new sixteen-inch guns now being placed at the Panama canal can, once every fifteen seconds shoot a projective weighing more than one ton a distance of twenty-seven miles.

Oil obtained from sawdust of the calantus wood used in the manufacture of cigar boxes has been used by Philippine chemists on cheaper substitute woods to give them that cigar-box odor.

Miguel Paz Barahona's inauguration as president of Honduras marks the first instance in twenty years where a chief executive of that country has taken office through peaceful elections.

What is believed to have been the oldest cow in Vermont was killed at Essex Junction by Henry Lang. Lady Cherry, a registered Ayrshire, was 20 years and two months old when her days of usefulness came to an end.

The average age of marriage in Germany is 28 for the man and 25 for the woman; in Denmark, 29 for the man and 25 for the woman; in France, 29 and 25, respectively; in England, 28 and 26, and in Italy the man is 28 and the woman 24 years at the average age of marriage.

Evening classes for plasterers are held four evenings a week in the Buckman school of Portland, Ore. The first part of each evening is devoted to technical planning and designing. After this the men go to the basement of the school, which has been divided into small rooms, and there they spend about two hours in the practical work of plastering.

A one-eyed fish with apparently normal vision has been produced in the experimental laboratories of the University of [illegible] according to a recent announcement. In the experiment the eyes of the fish were removed and one was transplanted into the forehead. The operation was performed by Dr. Theodor Koppyani, famous European eye specialist and J. Franklin Pearcy, research student in the university, searching for a cure for blindness.

The Spanish explorer, Ponce de Leon, is credited with having brought the grapefruit to Florida when he landed on the east coast of this state in the year 1513. During the three centuries that the Spaniards disputed possession of the state with their old world enemies, nothing was done to develop the grapefruit, or any of the other genus citrus introduced in Florida at that time, except to distribute it to the communities in the southern part of the state.

The traveling of the "cays" or sand islands off the eastern coast of Australia, has recently been causing more or less annoyance to the navigation authorities. On one of these small islands, beacons erected as guides for shipping persistently failed to "stay put," and frequent relocations of the markers were necessary. A study of the migrations of the marker on Beaver Cay showed that in the course of two years it had moved not less than 100 yards.

A new world's record for sugar cane production has been set by the Ewa plantation, in Hawaii, which took a little more than 18 tons an acre from a field of 126 acres. This represents something like four times the usual average for Hawaii, which is from four and one-half to five tons an acre, and it is from nine to fifteen times as great a yield as usually obtained in other cane-producing countries in the American area. Cuba averages two and one-half tons an acre. Porto Rico from two to two and one-half tons, and Louisiana about one and one-third tons.

The homely Irish potato may soon lose its simplicity and adopt sophisticated foreign manners, if experiments now being conducted by the United States department of agriculture succeed. Agricultural explorers have brought from the high Andes of Colombia and Peru rare varieties of potatoes that have a fresh as yellow butter and a delicious, nutty flavor. The tubers are a little smaller than the North American variety. Experts of the department are now engaged in crossing the new Andean potato with the common "spud." It is hoped that new forms will be developed that will combine the flavor and color of the Peruvian potato with the size and reliability of the North American tuber, and one that will be readily adaptable to the climate of the United States.

In 1878 a [illegible]rate veteran named Dobey left South Carolina for Tennessee with his family. Ill-fortune went with them for a while, for their home burned down and members of the family became ill, so that when the only money in their possession was an initialed silver dollar they parted with it reluctantly. Mr. Dobey goes on with the story: "Not a dollar has since fallen into my hands without my scrutinizing it to discover those initials. A few days ago a man called to me on the street and said, 'Here is the dollar I owe you.' As was my custom for 46 years, I looked for the initials, and to my great joy that dollar had the letters W. E. D. engraved on it."

Worth Waiting For

By Claire Wesson

NORRIE KING'S wrathy outbursts always brought an indulgent smile to her sister Janet's lips. Therefore, when Norrie burst into the room with an angry exclamation, Janet deftly patted the few remaining articles of feminine apparel into place within the suitcase before she looked up. Being both mother and father to an impetuous 18-year-old had its responsibilities.

"What is so provoking?" she asked.

"Matty—Doctor Ray—has decided not to come with us to the Springs, after all. Marita Crane's wild! And her mother! He was especially invited for this trip. He says it's impossible to get away from the hospital just now, but everyone knows he's bluffing. It was to be such a gay party," she wailed, "and Marita was to ride in his car. And now—well, I hope she'll show him she's not to be trifled with."

"Norrie," Janet voiced her displeasure. "I wouldn't worry over much about Matty, and—say, you're over eating him." said Norrie. "But of course you wouldn't care. Don't take me too much," Janet's high voice in spite of herself. And then Norrie was whipping something in her car. "You'll find a note on the dresser and we'll talk things over when I get back. Bye, Jan," and away she flew upstairs, the waiting cars.

A whirr, a chugs-chugs, and a cloud of dust in its wake, Janet's tear-filled eyes followed it out of sight. She stumbled toward a hammock on the vine-shrouded piazza, and weeping bitterly, flung herself within. A moment later she chided herself severely. Norrie would have a wonderful time. She should have it—youth demanded it. While she, well, at 35, did everyone feel like her, that youth was far, far behind?

Last year when Norrie had gone she had cried and longed until Tilly Vance from Connecticut, had stopped in for an unexpected visit. Poor old Tilly had helped massage her loneliness. Tilly was blonde, and lapsed, and had a wonderful sense of humor. It had been a hilarious month, with recitals of former adventures and numerous callers, at which Janet had laughed until she cried.

"And I give 'em all the air, Jan, says I." Tilly broke off abruptly. "Ain't you never had a single affair, child? Never been in love?"

"Once," vouchsafed Janet, and her mouth twisted queerly. "But it didn't take. Won't nobody cotton to an old hen like me, Til."

"O'wan!" Tilly flared. "Old hen, your grandmother! Huh! you'd outclass more than one Spring chicken," with a deep-throated chuckle. "Lookit me, now, 200 pounds," she groaned in mock dismay, "and there's Norrie—she ain't in it with you far as looks are concerned. Maybe you ain't an artist's model, but you're wholesome, and good to look at—and, say, if I was a feller I'd think you was the kitten's cream!"

"O'wan," mimicked Janet, at which they both giggled like schoolgirls.

Janet sighed and her tear-filled eyes overflowed. Dear, lovable, sloppy Tilly had passed away since under the surgeon's knife, with her God-given disposition, that had enabled her to face the ordeal with a smile, perhaps, and a merry quip on her lips.

"Why the gnums, Jan?" Whereat Janet jumped up, startled.

"Matt—Doctor Ray! And I never even heard your car." She was smiling now, but her reddened lips spoke volumes.

"She's a new one and runs easy. And Jan, no! Doctor Ray, please—Matty, as always, to you." He gave her the professional "once-over," "H-m! crying. Norrie, I'll bet," knowingly.

"N—not exactly," Janet brushed an unsteady hand across her eyes. "It's Tilly—you remember her?"

He nodded: "And it's the Tillys we need so badly, Jan. They make this old world a better place." He studied the clouds a moment. "See here, it's a beautiful day and a bit of a ride out in the country wouldn't go amiss. I'll be off duty for several hours and—I've something important. Get on your duds—"

They had left miles of white, dusty roadway behind them and there was the coolness of green and smelly, woodsy things close by when the car slowed down. Janet had been watching him out of the corner of her eye.

Not exactly handsome, but magnetic. By sheer capability, conscientiousness and divine sympathy for his fellow sufferers, Dr. Matt was swiftly forging a name for himself in the annals of the surgical world.

He had stopped the car. "Janet," he was saying, a queer little catch in his usual strong voice, "I lost my first case this morning. The little woman I told you of passed on." He paused. "There's a wee laddie of 5 and a baby sister who'll be needing a bit of mothering until I can find a good home. I thought while Norrie was away you might—"

"O-o-h, oh, I'd love to," breathed Janet.

Turning squarely, Dr. Matt captured her two hands. "Jan, dear," said he, "I've been wanting a bit of a chat with you for ages. Twice already have I asked you to marry me. But there was always Norrie, and you wouldn't."

"Was not is, Jan."

She looked puzzled.

"Norrie became engaged to Ted Stone at the club dance last night. Didn't she tell you?" he said sternly. He sensed her dumb surprise and went on more gently. "He's a fine lad and worships her. They're to be married in the fall."

For one fleeting moment Janet felt a knife-like thrust somewhere within her, and then an illuminating smile lit up her face. "Norrie said I'd find a note—on her dresser," she murmured. "Poor dear," brokenly.

Dr. Matt's arms went around her then and there. "And you'll marry me soon, dear? I need you," pleadingly.

She raised her eyes. He saw smile, here, and acquiescence of a woman who sanely realized the happiness within her reach.

A moment later: "Matt, Dr. Ray, the little chap, and his baby sister, couldn't we—adopt them—that is—after we—" And, woman like, half-sobbing, half-laughing in her sudden confusion, she straightway hid her face.

An Exception to the Rules

By Phil Moore

DO you mean to say there is no train out of this deserted village for five hours?"

"No, madam," replied the patient station agent.

"Isn't there any possible way of my getting to Vernon before that?" The agent shook his head.

She was a fine-appearing, middle-aged woman and looked as if she was used to having her own way. She showed her impatience plainly as she went to the door of the tiny station and looked around her.

The "deserted village" was Harris Junction, and it or its counterpart will be familiar to anyone who has ever traveled in the Middle West. There was a small hotel labeled "Junction House," a few houses—a very few—one small store and the station. That was all. The intricacies of a railroad in a sparsely settled country call such places into existence.

"There is an automobile in front of that house. Do you think its owner would drive me to Vernon?"

"Well, you can ask him," said the agent, doubtfully.

She crossed the dusty street in the glaring sun, leaving four other travelers, who were also waiting for the five-hour-old train.

One of these was a very attractive young woman, who showed great sympathy with the older woman when she came back from her animated talk with the man across the street, with a slightly dejected expression.

"Oh, I'm so sorry you were not successful."

The older woman's face brightened at this sign of friendliness. She introduced herself as Mrs. Black, from New York, and started to tell her troubles.

"Well, of all the obstinate men! Would you believe it, Miss ——," she hesitated.

"Mrs. Carlton."

"Would you believe it, Mrs. Carlton? That man actually refused to budge out of this junction unless he is called on a case. He is a doctor and has located here because it is the center of his district, and he feels it his duty to be always on call. I offered to pay him most liberally. It is only 25 miles to Vernon and he wouldn't be gone forever."

"Is it awfully important that you should get there at once?"

"Well, I am very anxious to do so. Of course, it's not a life and death affair, but I am going to visit my mother, and I haven't seen her in years. It is to be a complete surprise. She has no idea I'm coming, and it's such a bore waiting here. I think the doctor might make an exception in my case, even if it is his rule never to leave except on a case. By the way, are you going in my direction?"

"Yes, to Winston, the next station beyond Vernon."

"Oh, I have an idea. Why don't you tell the doctor you are going to visit a sick relative? I'm sure he would go for anything important, and then I can go along, too. Will you?" She paused expectantly.

Mrs. Carlton blushed in embarrassment and perplexity. It was plainly to be seen that she did not want to do it, and yet she hated to refuse.

"Oh, well, if you have a New England conscience, you are excused."

"Well, I am from New England, but I'm afraid my conscience isn't that variety, for it was not inborn, as the good old New England conscience should be. It was acquired, and painfully acquired, too. Perhaps that's why it seems so important to me. My husband calls it a World War conscience."

"That sounds interesting. Won't you tell me about it?"

"Why, it's my whole life story, but perhaps I can tell it briefly. I always went through life in a careless, happy-go-lucky way. I never thought I was exactly selfish, and I don't think my friends did, either. But I always wanted to do as I pleased without restrictions. If any rules stood in my way, I always managed to evade them. I knew they were necessary for the majority, but I always wanted to be an exception. It was the same in my school and college life. I never came back from vacations on time. It was the same in driving an automobile. Traffic regulations were necessary and desirable—but, not for me.

"Naturally, when the war came, and Jim and I were married, I thought I had to be permitted to go to France, where I would be able to see him whenever he could get a leave of absence, although I knew that there was an iron-bound rule against soldiers' wives going overseas. Of course, I evaded that rule, too. I thought it very clever at the time. I enlisted as nurse's assistant, while Jim was still in training camp, and, of course, could truthfully swear that I had no husband in France. So I got across, and soon after, Jim came. But as fate had it, I never saw him once. He was wounded in his very first battle and invalided home.

"You can imagine my state of mind when I realized that I might have been there to take care of him, but for my selfish desire to be an exception to the rule that every other war bride in the country was abiding by, I was not able to get home until months after the armistice was signed. But my suffering on his account and my witnessing of the actual suffering of so many thousands, taught me a lesson I shall never forget.

"I learned I was only one individual cog in the universal machine, and important as my affairs might seem to me to be, they were really insignificant in comparison with the whole machine, which can work properly only when every individual cog is working right.

"I made a vow then and there that I would play the game strictly according to rules after that, and never claim exemptions from inconveniences, responsibilities or actual hardships."

Just as her story ended, they were startled by cries from the road, where there had been a slight automobile accident. The doctor rushed from his side of the road and Mrs. Carlton rushed from hers. The others, fearing they would be in the way, stayed where they were and watched anxiously as a woman was being carried into the doctor's house. The others were uninjured.

Soon Mrs. Carlton came back.

"Nothing serious. One woman was bruised a little and was bandaged her up. But she has a very weak heart, and the shock might have proved fatal had there been no doctor present to give the proper stimulant. But as it is, she is all right."

Mrs. Black turned pale as she realized there would have been no doctor present if she had had her way.

"Mr. and Mrs. Gregory and their friend, who was hurt, are from Vernon, so you will have a chance to go by machine, after all, and you will still save three hours."

"Mr. and Mrs. Gregory? Why, they are friends of—." Then, in a frightened voice. "Who was the woman with them?"

"A Mrs. Walker, I think."

"Mother!"

Working Against Fate

By Parke Whitney

AT the age of 18 one should be blissfully happy, even, in a stuffy train—especially when one is the proud possessor of two boxes of chocolates, roses and four magazines. But Isabell's usually smiling mouth was puckered into an unhappy little twist. The ticket she had put in her glove read "Lesterville," where, isolated from suitors, theaters, dances and good times, she was expected to spend an eventless vacation away from the city with her aunt, who was to see to it strictly that she did nothing else but eat good food, fresh from the farm, and rest.

Perfectly ridiculous, wasn't it, that such an attractive girl as Isabell, with absolutely nothing the matter with her, should be made to spend her vacation in such a place? Her aunt had said there were no young people in the neighborhood. Isabell laughed as she recollected. Who ever heard of a neighborhood without young people?

However, her aunt was true to her word. After Isabell had stayed four days in Lesterville she had met seen anyone her own age except the tawny-haired, freckle-faced farmhand. Isabell, craving companionship, thought the boy "better than nothing," and they spent many a half-hour together.

When Isabell had been a week in Lesterville she heard there was going to be a costume party in the village. Her freckle-faced friend told her of it. She began making plans for it, having made up her mind she was going. It was easy to get the boy's co-operation, but when she discovered her aunt was going the matter became more complicated.

Sheltered in a grove, far from her aunt's prying eyes, she made an Egyptian costume.

Their idea worked out simply enough. On the night of the event, just after her aunt had left, a sly little Cinderella rode away in Tom's buggy. Just before it was time for gentle to leave the fete they planned to return.

Arriving conspicuously late at the party, there was nothing for them to do but watch the games which were in progress in lantern-bedecked lawns. A young man dressed as Captain Kidd, evidently their host, offered Isabell his place in a game of croquet. "But I don't know how," she had objected.

"I'm sorry you don't play," said the host, "but there are six or seven other games you could join. They're dancing the Virginia Reel in the barn. Come, let's do that."

Smiling, Isabell took his arm. It's quite a while since I've done it, but I'll try."

And a few moments later Isabel was "doing it." She little knew what a gay picture she made in her Egyptian costume, dancing in and out, clapping and bowing to her unknown escort, whose fiercely grotesque costume seemed to enhance the beauty of his little partner's outfit.

"Let's play 'It,'" said Captain Kidd, after the dancing was over.

Then followed a period of explanations. In spite of the fact that Isabell knew very few of the games, she found her host more than eager to explain. He took her to this group and that group, introduced her, but never once let any of the other men be her partner.

When they drew up to the "Fast" group, she saw Tom for the first time since their arrival. He was looking at her queerly. But why? Her aunt had been playing croquet all evening, and had never once glanced her way. Jealous, she thought, and forgot him in a gale of laughter as a young man, garbed as King Arthur, was requested to remove her sandal and hide it. In a few moments King Arthur came back shouting: "Now, Captain Kidd, go and find the sandal of your Egyptian lady friend, and give the other fellows a chance to get acquainted."

Somebody tugged at her dress. It was Tom. "Hurry, we got to go now, or we'll get caught. The thing's most over!"

Dismayed, Isabell looked at her sandalless foot. "I can't, Tom, until he finds my sandal."

"We can't wait," he said. "Come with me now—easy—this way—so they won't notice."

. . . . . .

It was 10 o'clock, the day after the party. Isabell was getting ready to go blue-berrying. In a sunbonnet, hardly to be recognized as the dazzling Egyptian princess, of the night before, yet certainly as desirable, she was soon walking in a thicket of berry bushes. From time to time she wondered how she had been able, as she recalled last night's experience, to get home ahead of her aunt, hustle under the bedclothes still in her costume, and wear the innocent expression she had worn when her aunt had opened her door to see if all was well.

For an hour Isabell picked, humming snatches of a gay little tune. Then there had been a slight rustling in the bushes, a scream from Isabell, and the berries had been scattered in a hundred directions. Then she had run and run. A young man was coming toward her. Instinctively he held out his arms and she ran right into them.

Absurd, isn't it, to try and work against fate? How hard Isabell's aunt had worked to keep her niece away from parties and excitement. And she had only to send her niece out to a blueberry patch where there wasn't supposed to be a soul around for miles, and a young man dropped right out of the clouds at her feet.

It was Captain Kidd who carried Isabell back to the road. He took a long time about it, going around a longer way than necessary. "You say you only saw his horse?" he asked.

"Yes. But I don't think I'll ever be able to go berrying again."

He looked down at the pale face. "He wouldn't hurt you. He probably ran faster than you did.

"When we get to the road, I'm going to give you your slipper."

"You have my slipper!" she cried. "Why, it's just like the Cinderella fairy tale, isn't it?

"My, but we're taking a long time getting to the road. Why, you've taken me around the longest way. Naughty prince! Just for that, I'm going to make you carry me right up to the house. Auntie will have a fit!"

And auntie did have a fit, but she might just as well have saved her strength.

A Hard-Won Victory

By Margaret Taylor

SEATED on a ledge, overlooking valley, stream and distant mountain, Ed and Beth happily talked the afternoon away, until Sue and small Lyle, their hands full of wild flowers and bits of pink and purple quartz, came scrambling up the slope. Beth hummed a strain of music, and broke off to say idly:

"Who was the owner of the fine voice at church this morning?"

"That was Archer Burleigh," returned Sue. "Archer was suspended at college two years ago, which forever condemns him in Edward's eyes."

"I've nothing against Burleigh, except that I shouldn't like to have my sister choose him for a friend," said Ed. The jaw that Beth had admired for its firmness was stubbornly set.

"I have not. I told you that I had a fall on the street yesterday and he walked home with me. You did not let me explain," protested Sue.

"A girl should not put herself in a position demanding an explanation," persisted Ed, doggedly.

"Piffle!" retorted Sue. "Come, Lyle, let's get the lunch baskets." Beth regarded Ed with troubled eyes. That high-spirited flue was not to be controlled after this fashion she knew full well. Nineteen has ideas of its own.

"Ed, was the college affair a bad one?" she asked.

"No. The climax of a series of pranks. But a girl should be guided," said Ed sententiously.

"I'm asking you to take my judgment. Accept her explanation, dear. You will see how much more smoothly things will go."

"I did accept her explanation; but I think a girl should not have to explain. Like the rest of the world, I judge by what I see."

"Then, like the rest of the world, you will often be wrong," she returned emphatically. "If you should meet me in a place, or in company that I should not ordinarily seek, would you judge me without a hearing?"

"No," he returned with his winning smile, "for I should never meet you in such a place or in such company."

Back came Sue and Lyle with the lunch baskets and Beth could say no more.

Coming along the "Horseback" above the river next day from inspecting the season's drive of logs, Ed, stepping out from the screen of bushes to begin the descent to the road below, confronted Beth and Archer Burleigh coming up. Beth had laughed out a little startled, halting note. Archer, partly supporting her up the path, glanced up and said embarrassedly:

"Why, Hello, Ed!"

Ed, with a colorless face, lifted his hat and plunged past them, unheeding Archer's hail. The set of his jaw told Beth that the "Morgan stubborn streak" was in control, and she knew, as if the words had been passed between them, that she would henceforth wait in vain for the familiar ring at her doorbell.

The "Morgan stubborn streak" was well known in the village from the great-grandfather's time. Beth, a comparative newcomer, had heard of it. Ed's mother had been wont to say:

"Poor boy, he can't help it. It's inherited."

As she did her best in her lifetime to avoid opposing it, the boy grew to a spoiled and stubborn young manhood. With the care of the business, after his father's death, he had steadied and developed; but the very quality that made him a power in his small business world sometimes proved his greatest weakness.

If Beth suffered, none knew it—a little quieter as the Summer months passed a gray hair or two in the brown when the year was complete. Sue, mystified and sorrowful, saw the signs of bitter conflict in Ed's worn face. Yet the year had lengthened into two before the terror gripped him—the fear that he might never be able to yield.

Came a night when he admitted he had known that Beth, loyal and true to the very heart, had not purposely defied his wish. There was an explanation. Knowing this, he was still powerless. If only he could get to Beth and tell her he knew!

That night he reached the front door before he failed. Night by night he gained a few steps. Ridiculous? Possibly. A life-long habit of mind is not easily broken. Weeks had passed when Beth heard the doorbell ring the familiar peal.

Ed faced her, trembling and spent. "Beth," he said without preamble. "I always knew it was all right. You could not be wrong."

"Do you want me to explain, Ed?" she asked, gravely.

"Not now, or ever. I always trusted you, but I had to beat the Morgan stubborn streak."

A moment's pause, while Beth faced that dread spectre, and defied it.

"You poor boy," she said, and drew him in with a mothering gesture.

At the home gate Sue awaited him. There was a peace and a gentleness in his face that emboldened her to say:

"Archer is coming in to see you tomorrow, Ed."

"Archer has proved himself," returned Ed quietly. "He will not find me difficult."

Sue pressed closer to his shoulder. "You never knew that Archer saved my life, Ed. At log driving time I was trying to roll a log with my feet as the riverman do. Of course I slipped in among the logs and he came just in time. I was too dripping wet to go through town, so he and the girls helped me up to that little camp on the bank, then he ran to get Beth to bring me some dry clothes. Beth stumbled in the steep path and twisted her ankle so that she could hardly get there and home again."

"As simple as that! And suppose the explanation had come three hours earlier! For thinking of his own peril, there was scarcely place in his mind for Sue's, but his heart fervently echoed the girl's exclamation:

"Thank the Lord, everything is all right now."

Jumper the Hare Tells Peter Rabbit Some News

For news some people have a need;
'Tis best to keep away from those.
—Old Mother Nature.

What old Mother Nature means is that some people are so anxious for news that they make it out of almost anything, and then they spread it all about and it sometimes makes trouble. You know there are many things which people would delight to talk about if they only knew about them, and when anything or anybody is very much talked about, trouble for some one isn't far away.

Jumper the Hare hadn't seen his small cousin Peter Rabbit for some time. But then that wasn't Jumper's fault. Jumper lives in the Green Forest and he stays there. The only time he sees his small cousin is when Peter takes it in his head to go over to the Green Forest. Peter had had so many things on the Green Meadows and in the Old Orchard into which to poke his wabbly little nose that he hadn't had time to go over to the Green Forest for quite a while. The morning when he discovered the white Robin and the white Red Squirrel was the first time he had spent a day away from the dear Old Briar Patch since the day he had found the nest and eggs of Mrs. Teeter the Sandpiper.

"I have seen a white Robin and a white Red Squirrel," declared Peter in the most important manner

Peter was still thinking about those two little folks in white and how queer it was that every once in a while there would be some one whom all the neighbors called a freak.

"I wonder if ever there was a freak rabbit," said Peter, talking to himself aloud, as he sometimes does when he thinks he is alone.

"Probably, Cousin Peter, probably," said a voice. "I never know a family yet without some sort of freak in it sometime."

Peter twirled about at the first word. There, looking out from under a hemlock branch, sat Jumper the Hare. "Do you know what I have just seen?" demanded Peter.

"No," replied Jumper, "no, I haven't the least idea what you have seen. What have you seen?"

"I have seen a white Robin and a white Red Squirrel," declared Peter in the most important manner. He looked at Jumper as if he expected the latter to be too greatly surprised to believe it.

"Is that so?" exclaimed Jumper. "They ought to meet the white Porcupine I saw yesterday."

You certainly would have laughed could you have seen Peter's long ears fly up at the mention of a white Porcupine. "A white Porcupine!" he cried. "Do you mean to tell me, Cousin Jumper, that anywhere in the Green Fo[illegible] ere is a white Porcupine? I don't believe it. I never heard of such a thing."

"Neither did I ever hear of a white Robin, but I wasn't impolite enough to say that I didn't believe it," retorted Jumper.

Peter looked a bit ashamed. "I am sorry," said he. "Do you really mean, Cousin Jumper that you have seen a really, truly Porcupine that is all white?"

Jumper nodded. "He is one of Prickly Porky's this year's children. I saw him just by chance, over in a certain part of the Green Forest yesterday morning. I have an idea that Prickly Porky himself hasn't seen him yet. Mrs. Porky didn't seem to know just what to make of him. I am sure I didn't when I first saw him," said Jumper.

By this time Peter was fairly dancing up and down. "Do you suppose I could see him, Cousin Jumper? Do you suppose I could see him if I went to look for him?" cried Peter.

"I don't know how you could help seeing him if you should find him," replied Jumper dryly.

"Tell me where it was you saw him!" begged Peter.

ANNOUNCE

At the Breed

Lovers of heroic deeds on the screen can spend a thrilling evening in witnessing the William Fox picture version of James Oliver Curwood's powerful Alaskan story, "The Hunted Woman," which opened at the Breed theatre yesterday.

In this stirring story Seena Owen and Earl Schenck have leading honors in the roles of "Jeanne Gray" and "John Aldous." But Cyril Chadwick, Edna Miller, Victor MacLaglan, Harvey Clark and Francis McDonald enact such splendid parts that the honors are distributed very evenly.

For years James Oliver Curwood has been chronicling the happenings of the bold denizens of the rugged North. His story "The Hunted Woman" gave Director John Conway an opportunity to portray the wild lands where the thermometer does a gold avalanche jig at 50 degrees below zero and where life frequently depends upon the endurance of sledge dogs. In this romantic setting Mr. Curwood staged the battles between "Aldous" and the conspirators "Culver Rana" and "Quade," owners of the dance hall.

Every advantage was apparently taken of the scenic splendor of the country where the picture was made. The "punch" of the story lies in the tremendous exploits of the hero and the heroine that the tale maintains through its many spectacular sequences.

South Coventry Child Health Conference

Health is not a matter of chance but of scientific knowledge. With this in view, the town of South Coventry assisted by the bureau of child hygiene of the state department of health will open a monthly well child conference.

Through the physical examinations given at these conferences, undiscovered tendencies that may handicap supposedly well children throughout life, may be detected and corrected. Diseases may be checked at their start. There is no question that babies and children kept under the observation of a doctor have a better chance for health than those whose parents trust to luck or nature. There is no question that parents who attend to such physical examination for their children are thinking not only of themselves but are safeguarding their community as well. The effect of such prevention is felt not only in a healthier happier childhood, but also in a stronger, finer manhood.

Local and state department of health physicians will conduct the examinations, assisted by local and state nurses. Problems of child feeding, posture and mouth hygiene may be brought here for discussion. Parents whose children are found to have serious tendencies requiring further treatment will be advised to consult with their own physician.

The first well child conference will be held from 2 to 4 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, June 6th, in the public library.

Broadway Theatre

A very fine program of vaudeville and pictures will be seen at the Broadway theatre today and Saturday. You can sit and thoroughly enjoy the show for with the cool air blower system, the temperature is fully fifteen degrees cooler than out of door. Here is an opportunity for you to enjoy a delightful program and at the same time keep cool.

Perry and Cevan offered Just Dancing. They are masters of the dance routine and this offering is different than the usual.

Willie Smith foolowed in some song and comedy patter. His songs are all up to date and with his funny stories, makes an act worth while.

Beulah Kennedy and Billie Davies are two likable lassies, pert, attractive, clever, animated and bubbling with personality. They offer All in Fun which explains it all.

Leighton, Pettit and Josephine followed in routine of songs and comedy. A little novelty is introduced in the form of a cute little girlie who helps make this offering outstanding.

Roy and Ruby closed the vaudeville program with a fast routine of acrobatics that has speed and class.

Contraband, the new Paramount picture, which opened at the Broadway theater last night, is as exciting and thrilling as its title would lead one to believe. Rumrunners, bootleggers, crooked politicians, a villainous deputy sheriff, a beautiful girl editor and a scholar young professor—these are some of the ingredients in the latest Paramount comedy-melodrama.

The photoplay was adapted from the gripping novel of the same name by Clarence Budington Kelland, by Jack Cunningham. The story has lost none of its vitality in the screen, and Alan Crosland, the director, has taken full advantage of the many opportunities the plot affords, so that from start to finish, the picture is an alternating succession of gasps and chuckles.

Lois Wilson, Noah Beery, Raymond Hatton and Raymond McKee are featured in the principal roles of the picture.

Palace

There are only three more performances of the Augustin Stock Company in The Brat which has been enthusing audiences all this week at the Palace theater. It is a long time since anything better has been offered to the theatergoing public of the town and all those who are desirous of seeing something worthwhile will be certain to attend the performance either tonight or tomorrow's matinee or night performance. Palace patrons are unanimous in the opinion that the Augustin Stock company has been most fortunate in being able to secure a leading lady of such great natural cleverness and much personal charm as Miss Ruth Floyd. She is able as she is pretty and that cannot often be said of a leading lady in stock. As a rule both talent and good looks do not go together, but Miss Floyd has them. In addition she has a charming personality and an excellent speaking voice which the patrons enjoy immensely. Starting next Monday night and for the entire week the Augustin Stock Company are presenting the greatest melodramatic mystery comedy the world has ever known The Cat and Canary. This mystery-thriller ran for two solid years at the National theater, New York, playing to absolute capacity business at every performance. It has been a terrific hit all over the country. Last year it was presenting for six months in Australia and played for almost a solid year in London. The very title of this play is sufficient guarantee that patrons of this stellar aggregation of players are in for the best entertainment ever devised, for the fame and popularity of The Cat and Canary are well known to everybody in this city. All critics are unanimous in their opinion that The Cat and Canary is a weird, yet a highly amusing success. The critic in the New York Globe said, "An orgy of thrills—more exciting than The Bat. The creepiest mystery play I ever saw. A solid evening of starts, thrills, clammy creeps, cut off by laughter." The New York Evening World said, "Spooky, mysterious and exciting. The Cat and Canary in addition to its mystery and thrills, has a most delightful and unusual love story. It has the most delightful comedy imaginable and these big dramatic moments when your heart is up on your throat. All in all it is one of the most unusual of stage entertainments. No expense will be spared to make this play a big success both from a scienic as well as an acting standpoint. The seats are now selling for all performances.

N. LONDON COMMUNITY CHEST FILES INCORPORATION CERTIFICATE

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, June 4—A certificate of incorporation has been filed with the city clerk incorporating the New London Community Chest and naming Malvin S. Garde, William F. Allyn and James G. Harrawood, last named secretary of the chamber of commerce, the subscribers. The purpose of the corporation is the soliciting, collecting and distribution of funds necessary to carry on, upbuild and sustain the activities of the several charitable and social agencies of New London, that solicit aid of the corporation.

Mrs. Mary J. Lyon Stebbins, 76, widow of Felix M. Stebbins, died last night at her home, 47 Williams street. She had long been in ill health. Mrs. Stebbins formerly resided in Brooklyn, but had made her home in New London many years. She is survived by one son, Robert Stebbins, of New York, and one sister, Miss Ella Lyon, of this city.

Patrolman Henry Sylvia is positive that he observed Elizabeth Knight, 15 of Dayville, daughter of William T. Knight, who disappeared from Norwich Tuesday with a soldier while visiting relatives in company with the soldier about the streets of this city, early Tuesday evening. Sylvia was not aware at the time that the soldier and girl were being sought. Sylvia declares that the soldier had been attempting to dispose of anchat powder here and the girl with him talked with the description of the Knight girl. Sylvia observed the soldier and girl emerge from a State street store and later saw them in a taxicab en route to the Union station.

George Young, 126 Willets avenue, reported to the police late last night that he had been aroused from slumber by some one attempting to gain entrance to his residence by means of a key. When Young rose from bed, he declares, he scared the intruder away. Motorcycle Officer George McCaskey was sent to the home of Young and after ascertaining the facts in the attempted entrance to the house, made a search of the vicinity of Willetts avenue, but was unable to locate any suspicious persons.

Lucy A. Neff has sold to her father, C. Tyler Landphere, of Groton, a house and lot on Raymond street, this city.

George J. Riley has sold a house and lot on Norwood avenue to Daniel E. and Elizabeth Cummings.

John A. Markham and Daniel F. Cotter of Hartford, have sold two parcels of land at Neptune park to Addie L. Kellogg, this city.

Today was even better than yesterday, for this afternoon the mercury reached the peak when, at 3 o'clock it registered 94 degrees in the shade, as against 92 at the same hour and place yesterday. The thermometer in front of the police station at 2.55 o'clock showed the mercury to have disappeared above the 130 degree mark, this being caused by the thermometer being where the sun's rays fell upon it.

Kalek Soltz, 54 John street, complained to the police early this morning that entrance had been gained to his house during the hours prior to daylight by a crook, who entered the house through an open window. Soltz, who is of advanced years, declares that the intruder threatened to choke him to death if Soltz made any outcry. So far as could be ascertained the crook departed from the house by the same means as he entered and did not obtain any plunder. Soltz lodged a similar complaint with the authorities some time ago.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operators' licenses of William R. Waterman, Glenwood Park and William Clark, 82 Howard street, to be returned to the owner. Waterman's license was recently suspended following the victim being fined $100 in the police court of reckless driving. The commissioner also suspended the licenses of William Street, Jefferson avenue, and Frederick English, 186 Willets avenue Street was fined in the Waterford court a fortnight ago of the charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

David Hullivan left this evening for Salt Lake City, Utah, after having spent a week with relatives in this city.

James Adams, Charles Nelson and William Maher, crew of the gas screw launch K-14910 which was seized in Long Island sound late yesterday and brought into port, the prisoners being locked up charged with conspiracy, were before United States Commissioner Russell T. Corcoran, at the customs house this noon. The charge against them was nolled, as the evidence in the hands of the authorities to substantiate the charge was so slight that there was little, if any, grounds, for binding the men over to the United States district court. Counsel for the trio, however, assured the commissioner that should the accused be wanted at any time he would cause them to appear in court.

Sarah Barcco Cardello, 3 Elizabeth street, was taken into custody this afternoon by Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolmen William Graham and Clarence Martin, charged with violation of the prohibition law. She was released later upon furnishing in Guiseppe Pesaolle, a surety on her bond of $1,000 for her appearance in the police court tomorrow morning.

Mrs. Cardello had been suspected for some time of dispensing alcohol of various strengths to callers at her home. This morning, Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield supplied the police with a man who declared that he had purchased alcohol at the Cardello home. Patrolman Martin was attired in a suit of overalls, jumper and cap and accompanied by the informer, went to the Elizabeth street house, where Martin purchased a pint of alcohol for $2, tendering two marked $1 bills in payment. When the officers raided the place the two bills were found in Mrs. Cardello's possession. Included among other evidence obtained were five gallons of alcohol and containers of alcohol of lesser quantities, together with corks, bottles and coloring.

This was a field day in the police court for fifteen cases were presented and several others were deferred till later in the week. The offenders were chiefly violators of the ordinance concerning the parking of automobiles on the business streets of the city.

The accused were men and women, but they were shown leniency by the court for not one of them who disregarded the parking ordinance was penalized. Each of them admitted guilt as they were called. One Norwich man, James Lane, was in the group accused. He said he did not realize that the time was passing so rapidly and kept his car parked more than 30 minutes on State street. He went close to getting a fine, as he was inclined to discuss matters with Officer Martin who took him into custody. Judge Prince told the accused that the police are now to enforce the parking ordinance in the principal business streets, though they have been lenient in this respect during the winter and spring months. He said that travel was congesting the streets now and necessity compelled the assistance of automobile drivers in conforming to the laws. There were women offenders as well as men. They were shoppers and did not realize that the time was passing as it did.

Stanley Scott Morgan, a youth of 18 years, was fined $10 for operating an automobile without a license. Morgan falsified to get a license and State Policeman Giles Watson detected him in his romancing.

Two drunks were presented, Norwich furnishing one of them in an old-time printer. They were not disciplined beyond caution as to their future conduct. They were both in pretty bad shape so that confinement would have worked seriously on them in such weather as prevailed during the day.

Florence Joyce Edwards and Ruth Schaeffer were to have been presented in the court this morning for lascivious carriage, but they were not subjected to that embarrassment as their attorney was engaged elsewhere and he asked for a continuance of the case till next Monday. The girls were said to have been a little sporty in this city, but they deny that they are lascivious in carriage.

A strenuous kick is being registered because a diving and resting float has not been placed at Ocean Beach as in other years. The claim is that New London depends upon patronage of the beach for its summer popularity and the bathing there is a magnet that attracts. The float will be provided, no doubt, but like all large bodies, the management of the city that is responsible for the float being in place moves slowly.

Edward Shenkenberger, 49 Fraser avenue, reported to the police last night that while his automobile was parked on that thoroughfare a thief visited the car and stole a spare tire.

NATIVE OF NORWICH DIES IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 4—Joseph B. Neale, 81, died this morning at his home, 843 Williams street, after an illness of many weeks. Mr. Neale was born in Norwich, but had resided in New London the greater part of his life and was proprietor of a grocery store many years. He is survived by two daughters and a son.

JUDGE WALLER'S CAR STOLEN WHILE HIS HONOR LOOKS ON

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, June 4—A Franklin sedan, owned by Judge Charles P. Waller, was stolen from State street this evening. The local police have requested the state police at Groton and Centerbrook, and the police at Norwich, Westerly and Hartford, to be on the lookout for the stolen machine. Judge Waller parked his car in front of his office in the Plant building during the early afternoon and shortly before 6 o'clock he observed the machine being driven away and about to enter Washington street. Believing that some member of his family had taken the car, Judge Waller did not notify the police, but did an hour later when the machine was not returned and after he had communicated with members of his family at the Waller home, Vauxhall street.

Mrs. Neude P. Dutra died this afternoon at her home, 28 Fraser street, she had been ill a long time.

Patrolman Edward Riordan, who has been confined to his home, Squires street, two days, because of stomach complaint, resumed his duties tonight.

Patrolman Michael O'Neil is absent from duty, being confined to his home on Connecticut avenue, by an eye affection.

As a result of a secret meeting of the members of the city council, sitting as a committee, a vote was taken Tuesday night authorizing the city manager to go to New York and negotiate for the services of a police inspector and if necessary complete arrangements for such an officer to come to New London at once and act in an advisory capacity to the city manager in endeavoring to obtain a greater efficiency in the police department. Acting on the vote of the committee City Manager William A. Holl left New London this forenoon and was to have a conference with Superintendent Richard Enright of the New York department this afternoon. It is known that several inspectors are available for the city of New London and Superintendent Enright has been requested that either of the inspectors selected by the officials may come to the city at short notice and remain until such time as the services of that officer are no longer required.

Guy Underwood, of Main street, was in the Waterford town court this afternoon, charged with reckless driving of his automobile. The case was the first to be heard by the court since legislation was obtained a fortnight ago, and Judge Frederick Dimmock, who occupied the bench, made it apparent that he intended to mete out penalization with force wherever, in his opinion, the case was of a nature to call for discipline of a severe nature. Judge Dimmock imposed a fine of $100 and costs. Underwood, who is 27, and a machinist, was taken into custody last Saturday night in Waterford by State Police Officer Robert Bobnick.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Yost complained to the police this forenoon that they meanest kind of a thief for Yost declared that he and his wife had suffered been made the victim of the loss of practically all of their respectable wearing apparel and by a fellow, whom they believed had befriended them, the thief leaving the Yosts with no clothing except that became acquainted with the owner of an automobile by the name of "Jim" to Philadelphia, earlier in the week and the trio in company with one, "Bill" Boyer, started for New London Tuesday. Upon the arrival of the party here Wednesday night all of them obtained lodging accommodations at the home of Mrs. Mary J. Rhodes, 36 Brewer street. This morning Mrs. Wheeler, manager, summoned Yost and the latter went to report for duty. Yost left the home of Mrs. Rhodes and after waiting two hours for Jim and his companion to return, Yost informed the police of the theft. Sergeant John Cavanaugh was sent to the Rhodes lodging house and there he found Yost partially attired in some clothing of his wife's in order to cover his nakedness. The owner of the automobile is believed to be a sailor at the present time, or to have served in the navy up to a short time ago.

TRINITY METHODIST SOCIETY VISITS VERSAILLES CHURCH

A return visit of the Ladies' Aid society of Trinity Methodist church to the Ladies' Aid society of Versailles Methodist church was made Thursday afternoon. The down town church society entertained the Versailles society last season.

Eleven went up from Norwich, taking the car at 2:15. Mrs. Emma Worthen, the president of the society, was unable to attend.

A brief business meeting was followed by a social afternoon and later an appetizing supper was served, under direction of Mrs. C. W. Perkins, president of the entertaining society.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS REACTIONARY.

New York, June 4.—(A. P.)—Heavy selling for both accounts took place in today's stock market, recessions of one to five points being quite common at the close. The selling was generally described as a further correction of a weakened technical position resulting from the recent sustained advance, but the uneasiness caused by the suspension of trading in the old Maxwell shares, the weakness of French exchange, the apparent inability of operators on the long side to attack a large public following and the marking up of call money rates toward the close, all had a depressing effect on speculative sentiment.

Selling pressure was most acute against a number of motors, public utilities and specialties which had enjoyed an almost uninterrupted advance in the last few weeks. General Electric broke 5 1-2 points to 259, while net declines of 2 1-2 points or more were recorded by American Can, California Packing, Dupont, General Baking, Laclede Gas, Loose Wiles Biscuit, Mack Trucks, Montana Power, F. G. Shattuck and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe.

While pool operations were suspended in many issues, independent strength was shown by about a score motors and specialties; Nash, Moon, U. S. Rubber first preferred, Fisher Body, Coca Cola, Cushman's Bakery, Ward Baking B, Tobacco Products and American Telephone all being lifted to new high records for the year.

Accumulation also was noted in some of the eastern rails on rumors of a possible change in control. Lackawanna was run up nearly five points to 146 7-8 and then slipped back to 145, while Lehigh Valley showed a net gain of about a point at 86 2-4 after having sold as high as 81 7-8. St. Paul issues displayed a firm undertone despite reports of opposition on the part of minority stockholders to the proposed recapitalization plan. Southern railway was strong in the early trading, but sold off later on reports that the court decision in the preferred stockholders' suit would not be handed down for ten days, delaying action on any proposed increase in the dividend at the next meeting of the directors.

Maxwell B certificates broke firm 119 1-4 to 112 and then rallied to 115 1-2 for a net loss of 2 1-2 points on the day.

Coppers lost ground on liquidation by traders who had become tired of waiting for the predicted increase in Red Metal prices. American Smelting and Anaconda each fell back about two points while losses of a point or more were recorded by Kennecott, Magma and Cerro De Pasco.

Mid-Continent Oil displayed a strong undertone but the other oils failed to respond to reports of additional gasoline price advances. The extremely hot weather of the last few days stimulated the buying of American ice, which crossed 112 to the highest price in three years.

Call money renewed at 3 3-4 per cent. and then advanced to 4. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady.

Heavy selling of French francs, apparently based on the large increases in note circulation and advances to the state shown in the weekly bank statement, sent the demand rate down 7 1-2 points to 4.90 cents, the lowest rate since last summer. A slight rally took place later when it became known that the Bank of France was using the $100,000,000 Morgan credit to stabilize the currency. Demand sterling ruled practically unchanged at $4.85 5-8. Other Continental exchanges were reactionary.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, June 4.—(A. P.)—Soaring prices for all grain resulted today from adverse domestic crop conditions, notably torrid winds in Kansas. September and December deliveries of wheat both reached the top-most level yet this season. The wheat market closed strong, 2 1-8 to 4 1-4c. Net higher, July 1.68 to 1.68 1-4 and September 1.63 5-8 to 1.63 3-4, with corn 3 1-2 to 3 5-8c up, oats 1 5-8 to 1 7-8 gain, and provisions varying from 25c decline to 40c advance.

Except right at the opening, wheat traders here virtually ignored the fact that Liverpool quotations had failed to reflect the advances of prices yesterday on this side of the Atlantic. An opinion from a leading Chicago authority that unfavorable news about crops in this country much more than outweighed at present the influence of foreign supply and demand attracted wide notice. This opinion became especially effective in stirring up buyers after attention was called to reports of hot winds threatening Kansas wheat and other cereals as well.

Notwithstanding frequent rainfalls due largely to profit-taking sales, the broad general upward sweep of the wheat market persisted throughout the day. Estimates were current that the yield of wheat in Kansas this season would be as low as 65,000,000 bushels, compared with 154,000,000 bushels last year. It was also estimated that taken altogether six states southwest and west—Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado and Nebraska, would produce 150,000,000 bushels less than in 1924.

Hot weather and insufficiency of moisture, together with enlargement of cash demand, hoisted the corn market. Country offerings of corn were withheld unless at an advance. Complaints of damage to fodder crops and pastures added to the firmness of oats.

Profit-taking sales in the provision market partly offset the influences of the grain bulge and of dwindling stocks of lard.

BOND MARKET.

New York, June 4.—(A. P.)—United States and foreign government obligations held the limelight in today's bond market, which failed to maintain its early showing of strength. Prices reacted mildly late in the day in sympathy with the unsettlement of the stock market and a slight stiffening of call money rates.

The recent advance in Hungarian 7 1-2s, which has carried them to record high prices, was linked with reports that a new loan on credit might be arranged here for the government. Other European issues responded to the progress which has been made in stabilizing Continental finances and currencies. German 7s touched a new peak at 98 and Belgian 6s and 6 1-2s also worked into new high ground.

Development of opposition to the St. Paul reorganization plan brought about moderate reactions in the road's junion securities, while the moregage bonds and Terre Haute issues encountered profit taking after yesterday's rally. Southern Pacific collateral 4s and Illinois Central 5 1-2s were among the few strong spots in the rail list.

Oil company liens turned heavy in line with selling of Petroleum stocks, which followed the announcement of another substantial increase in crude production.
